New York, Sept. 22.—Hans Schmidt, who killed Anna Aumuller, the rectory maid at 68 Bradhurst avenue on Sept. 2, was examined as to his sanity in the Tombs by Dr. Gustav Scholer, a former coroner, who is a member of the board of managers of the state insane asylum on Wards Island. He did not know until near the close of the hour's talk that his visitor was a physician interested in his defense, and then, according to his lawyer, Alphonse G. Koelble, Schmidt shrugged his shoulders and said:

"Why bother yourself about me so much. Go ahead and expedite this thing. I'm going to the electric chair."

Dr. Scholer refused to discuss his conclusions concerning the man's mental condition, saying that he considered the examination a superficial one and could not express an opinion now.

Leaves Bequest for Methodists.

Yates City, Ill., Sept. 22.—The will of Nettie J. Corbin, just admitted to probate, leaves $2,500 to the Methodist church, $5,000 for a public library, $1,000 to W. C. Jacquith of Providence, R. I., and bequests to the home and foreign mission boards of the Methodist church and the Hedding college of Abingdon.

GAYNOR OUTPOURING WITHOUT PRECEDENT

Crowd Larger Than Honored Lincoln or Grant.

New York, Sept. 22.—There were such evidences of the public mourning for Mayor Gaynor as daunt simple accurate description. One can say that 70,000 people passed reverently through the city hall and looked upon the mayor's face. Over 100,000 had turned out to honor his memory.

Without any doubt, there was a greater outpouring of citizens to honor the memory of a great man than was ever known in the history of New York. Men who remembered the day in 1865, when the body of Abraham Lincoln lay in state in the city hall, thought that the Gaynor crowds were greater by a third than appeared to honor the martyred president. It was a vaster assemblage than was remembered by those who recalled the episodes of the day General Grant's body law in the city hall and other occasions such as the manifestations of public respect for Henry Clay, for Horace Greeley, for General Joseph Hooker and for others who had done their share of the nation's work and had then passed on, were not comparable to these stupenduous gatherings.

It is estimated that 10,000 children passed before the dead mayor's coffin.

GREECE'S PREMIER

Dr. Schurman Says He Is One of World's Ablest Statesmen.

GREECE'S MEN ARE AS OF OLD

Dr. Schurman Says King and Premier are of First Rank.

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 22.—King Constantine of Greece is a great soldier, according to Jacob Schurman, president of Cornell university, who has returned to Ithaca to resume his position after a year's leave of absence spent at Athens as United States Minister to Greece.

Dr. Schurman says that in his opinion King Constance is the only monarch in the world who is capable of leading his troops in battles. Premier Venizelos he regards as a statesman of the first rank, a man who if he were in one of the big countries would be considered one of the "greatest statesmen in the world."

THIRD MAN SHOT IS DEAD

Sixteen-Year-Old Girl Is Cause of Triple Tragedy.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—An Italian girl was the cause of the death of her father, her sweetheart, and her father's business partner. The latter, Egidio Bianchi, died at the Columbus hospital of abdominal wounds inflicted, supposedly accidentally, by Armido Pieroni, his partner, on Sept. 3, when Pieroni shot and killed Gilbert Lovetti and committed suicide.

The shooting occurred in the fruit store of Pieroni, Bianchi & Co. The previous day Lovetti and Pieroni's daughter, Ida, sixteen years old, returned from Winnetka, where they had stayed two days. Pieroni demanded that the young man marry the girl. The latter laughed at the father. Pieroni shot and killed him and two bullets struck Bianchi.

Disfranchised Five Years.

Nashville, Ind., Sept. 22.—Henry Sewell, an aged farmer of Johnson township, was fined $50, sentenced to jail for sixty days and disfranchised for five years for stealing two hams from Milton Floyd, a neighbor.

Famous Flags.

There are only a few Old Glories in the Annapolis collection of 173 historic flags, but each is connected with some incident that gives it the honor of its present position. There is the thirty-one starred flag that flew beside the sunrise flag of Japan when the close shut doors of that island kingdom were pried open for American commerce. The old flag that Lieutenant Charles Haywood defended so gallantly in 1847 at San Jose, Lower California, is there to recall the story of how he and his tiny garrison held an old mission house for over three months against an overwhelming Mexican force. Here, too, are a few reminders of our history's saddest war. Side by side in the one case are draped the ensign of the Union man-of-war Kearsage and the stars and bars of the ensign of the Confederate cruiser Albemarle. Another treasure is the ensign of the battleship Maine, which was recovered fourteen years after the catastrophe in Havana harbor.—Christian Herald.

Diamonds and Wealth.

A famous French scientist estimates that all the diamonds recovered in the history of the world could be packed in a box three feet wide, six feet high and eight feet long and would weigh less than thirty tons.

It seems almost beyond the power of mind to grasp the fact that a treasure worth more than a billion dollars in gold could be contained in so small a space. The high value of the gems is still more strikingly illustrated by the fact that gold to the value of a billion dollars would weigh more than 4,000,000 pounds. Diamonds as a measure of money occupy a large place in civilization. But when one takes into consideration how far diamonds are from constituting the real wealth of nations or a measure of brains, of true social standing or worth while success in life the enormous expenditure of human energy represented by the pile of gems valued at a billion dollars is an appalling waste.—Chicago Herald.

Johnson's Diet on Pitching Days.

Walter Johnson, the great twirler for the Washington Americans, is pitching himself to glory on a diet of pudding, sherbet, cake and iced tea. The Senator pitcher discoursed scientifically a few days ago on the whys and wherefores of his midday meal. "I don't believe in eating much," he said, "before going out to the ball park. Overloading the stomach is bad for a ball player. I like pudding and cake, particularly on a day when I am going to pitch. Sherbet or ice cream is soothing to the stomach, and so is iced tea. Then when I come back to the hotel I eat my heartiest meal of the day."

Obituary

ANNE SWAN

Anne C Swan, the daughter of J. Benjamin and Hannah Sutton Swan, was born Aug. 2, 1878 at Tecumseh, Michigan in the same home in which she passed away on the evening of Sept. 18, 1913. Much of her early girlhood was spent in the South. She attended Moses Brown School in Providence, Rhode Island, from which she was graduated in 1897. In 1899 she entered Earlham College, Richmond, Indiana, and there received the degree of Bachelor of Arts with the class of 1902. This was supplemented by graduate work at Chicago University in history, of which subject she was an enthusiastic and efficient teacher in Germantown Friends' School. While at home for her summer vacation, she was stricken with typhoid fever on August 19th and was severely ill for a month. She leaves her father, her sister Mary Swan, and her brother Frederick A. Swan of New York City. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon in the Tecumseh Friends' church with burial in the family lot at Raisin Valley.

MRS. ELIZABETH WATSON USBORNE

On Monday last, the sad news was brought to Tecumseh of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Watson Usborne. Although her multitude of friends had hoped that the hard and long battle for life would prove victorious, she passed away Monday September 15, while at Phoenix where she and her husband had resided for the past two winters and summer.

Mrs. Usborne was born May 4, 1869 in Antrim County, Ireland, coming to this country in June 1883. In June 20, 1889, she was united in marriage to Mr Albert Usborne.

Surely the benediction of this sweet patient christion will rest upon us all.

MRS JOSEPH TILDEN

Mrs Abbie Tilden passed awry Sunday at her home on west Chicago St., aged 72 years. She has been in failing health for a long time but has been confined to her bed for the last three weeks.

The funeral was conducted at the home this afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. F. Hewitt of the Episcopal church officiating with burial in Brookside Cametery.

THE UNWASHED CUP

A three minute talk on How to Drink Healthfully and Decently. Prepared by The Minnesota Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis.

The unwashed cup—Do you use it? Do members of your family use it at home or elsewhere? If you do it is up to you to wake up and realize that you are not only behind the times, but so far as this practice is concerned in the stone age of civilization. Don't you know that the trend of all the centuries is away from the gregariousness of the primitive man and toward the privacy and individualism of modern life? In thought and action men are becoming more social but in habits of living more individual. In the dark corners of the world to day you will find people eating from one dish, smoking a common pipe, bathing in a common tub. Do you want to be classed with these people, or even with the crass boarding school boy who borrows his roommate's pantaloons to go to the ball game? You stopped using a family tooth brush several generations ago. Why do you continue to use a family, or worse, a school or railroad station cup that is practically certain to have been used by uncleanly and diseased people and cannot be cleansed by rinsing? Be up-to-date, throw away that dirty dripping dipper and unspeakable dish cloth, use some real hot water and soap powder or soda on the family glass-ware and carry your own paper or metal cup with you wherever you go in public.

To See Through Paper.

A very remarkable experiment which any one can repeat with very little trouble has been unearthed by a German. Take a piece of paper of such thickness that when it is laid upon a piece of printed matter the characters just show through, but cannot be read. Placing it over a printed sheet, impart to it a circular motion to and fro, and to your surprise you will find that now you can read the print below the paper. It is rather difficult to explain this peculiar effect. The explanation offered is that the paper has thin places in it, and by rapidly moving it over the print every part of the printed matter is exposed in turn underneath one or the other of the thin places in the paper, and thus the entire print can be read. However that may be, the experiment is interesting and very simple, requiring for its performance only the simplest means imaginable.—New York Press.

Helping Her Mamma.

The Youngs had dropped in unexpectedly upon the Baileys just as dinner was about to be served. Mother, who was somewhat disturbed, called Helen aside and explained that there would not be oysters enough to go round and added: "Now, you and I will just have some of the broth. And please do not make any fuss about it at table."

Little Helen promised to be good and say nothing. But when the oysters were served Helen discovered a small one that had been accidentally ladled up with her broth. She could not remember any instructions that covered this contingency, so, after studying the situation awhile, she held the oyster up as high as she could on her spoon and piped out:

"Mamma, mamma, shouldn't Mrs Young have this oyster too?"—New York Globe.

H. BREWER & CO. CLOSE IMPORTANT CONTRACT WITH JACKSON CO

Cement and Concrete Machinery to be Made in Tecumseh

In an interview with Charles Burridge of H. Brewer & Co., Mr. Burridge states that H. Brewer & Co. have made a Manufactures Contract with the Cement Machinery Co. of Jackson, Mich., a concern manufacturing cement and concrete machinery whereby Brewer & Co. take over the manufacturing of the machines.

The plant at Jackson will be closed and all machinery needed will be moved to Tecumseh. The Jackson Co. will maintain selling offices and show rooms at Jackson, while all manufacturing will be down here.

The Cement Machinery Co. has been doing business in Jackson for the past eight years, have built up a large business and are today shipping their product all over the United States, besides doing a large export business shipping their machines to Canada, South America and European Countries.

This will mean a great increase in the already large business being done by H. Brewer & Co., and will ultimately mean an increase in the working force already employed by them.

The Herald wishes them success in their new undertaking.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

The members of the Friends church gave a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr and Mrs. Thomas Hanley Friday evening in honor of Miss Mott who is going from their midst, after serving 2½ years as their pastor. As previously arranged Mrs. Hanley invited her to tea and detained her, until 8 p. m. when forty five came bringing with them many useful articles, which were deposited in a basket out side the door.

After the usual greetings a short program was enjoyed. Miss Wilson and Miss Beaubien brought in the basket, and Miss Jessie Avery made some very appropriate remarks, when Miss Mott proceeded to unfold the pieces one by one, commenting on each article causing some merriment. Light refreshments were served. On account of Miss Swan's death, the evening was unusually quiet, yet each one expressed themselves as having a pleasant time as they departed for home, wishing Elizabeth a pleasant future. The quilt which had been given her was suspended by two corners over the window pole, and those who had not seen it were interested in reading the names of the donators.

QUILT PRESENTATION

September 18, 1912, the mothers of the Friends church met at the home of Mary C. Wood. The usual program of considering the various subjects from the mothers magazines and questions discussed from quarterlies, with a few other items. At the close, the ladies disposed of a quilt which they had made; placing the names of each member on their blocks as handed in comprising in all near 40 ladies. After an explanation by the president how the quilt had been made complete Mrs A. S. Hanley, Mrs. Sadie Nobles, Mrs. Emma Wonders and Mrs Mary Ford, each one holding a corner, emerged from a room and marched up to Pastor Elizabeth Mott each repeating as follows:

Mrs Hanley;
Here is a token to thee and thine
In a way of comfort, as we design.
Our names you can read either day or night
And thus retain us in memory bright.
The colors are many as you will see,
When trials of life come may you agree
What is best to do; may the Lord direct,
And in his mercy guard and protect.
In your neat little cottage on the side of a hill
May love ever abound and your whole being thrill.
May God's richest blessings your souls ever fill
And sorrows come not neither evil nor ill
You have preached to us our hearts to cheer
The Gospel truths both plain and clear.
Will you please accept this work of our hands,
And may your heart and ours e'er be joined by love's bands.
Tho' your future pathway be strewn with sweet flowers
May you always remember Tecumseh's bright hours.
And when before the throne you offer your prayer
May our mothers' meeting the blessing share
From your friends
Mothers' Department
Tecumseh Sunday School.

Mrs Nobles;
Before you marry, be sure of a house wherein to tarry.
Mrs. Wonders;
A good wife and health are a man's best wealth.
Mrs. Ford;
He who serves well need not be afraid to ask his wages.

The quilt was presented and in due season Miss Mott collected her thoughts and made very appropriate remarks in her own good way.

The meeting closed after which a a bountiful picnic supper was served and social time enjoyed. There were 18 members present; one guest from out of town and several children.

[illegible] Opinion.

The Fond Mother—Everybody says he is such a pretty baby. I'm sure the poet was right when he said that "heaven lies about us in our infancy." The Uncle (unfeelingly)—But he should have added, "So does everybody else." —Life.

Just a Trifle.

"Oh, Mrs. Meyer, how do you do? It's an age since I've seen you! Anything new with you?"

"Only my husband."—Fliegende Blatter.

AMUSEMENTS

"THE GIRL AND THE BARON."

Fresh and pretty, funny and tuneful, snappy and dashy, can all be applied to the big Broadway Musical success "The Girl and The Baron" which will appear at the Bradley Opera House on next Friday evening, September 26.

This is the first visit of this popular show to this city and the patrons can rest assured that the management has provided "The Girl and The Baron" with the latest Musical numbers, which are catchy and up-to-the-minute. The big beauty chorus can all sing and dance and will wear some of the most gorgeous costumes ever seen on the local stage and few musical attractions of recent years have made a better impression upon the theatre goers than "The Girl and The Baron."

The electrical effects are all new and novel and neither time nor money has been wasted on same. The big Broadway number which is sung by Miss Eva Malvin, assisted by the chorus, is one of the big features of the play and this alone is worth the price of admission.

Secure your seats early and spend a pleasant evening and hear some of the latest songs which will be whistled on the street by almost everyone long after "The Girl and The Baron" has furnished you an evening's entertainment.

A complete carload of special scenery carried for this production. The sale of seats opens at Hay's bakery Wednesday (tomorrow) morning at 8:00 a. m. There are only two musical shows booked for Tecumseh this season so if you are one of the lovers of these excellent attractions don't miss this one but get your seats early.

WORTH REMEMBERING

An article now going the rounds of the state press and said to come from the State Fire Warden of New York is worth remembering, and may prove of great value to all of our readers, when they begin starting the fire this fall. The warden says; In case your chimney gets on fire drop a tablespoonful or two of dry sulphur into the stove and throw on the direct draft so that the fumes will pass directly up the chimney or stove pipe and you may thus possibly avert a serious fire. This has been tried time again and never has known to fail in putting out the fire

SOME OLD BIBLES.

In the issue of the Adrian Daily Times of September 15 we find the following taken from their paper of the same date twenty-five years ago. "S. P. Hosmer of Tecumseh has a Bible that was printed in London in 1777. It is supposed that his ancestors could not read, as it is in a good state of preservation."

This is a good old age for a Bible but we have one before us, that belonged to the family of Mrs. George Tansley whose maiden name was Hardy. This book was printed in London by "Thomas Baskett, Printer, to King's Most Excellent Majesty and by the assigns of Robert Baskett, M. D C C L I X-1759.

The Bible was dedicated "To the most High and Mighty Prince James by the Grace of God, King of Great Britian, France and Ireland. Defender of the Faith, etc. by the translators, with Grace, Mercy and Peace, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

In 1872, Mr. and Mrs. Tansley and their family came to America bringing this Bible with them. The packing case containing it with other goods was lost, and finally returned to England, and was again shipped to America and reached the family in April 1873.

The price of the Bible in an unbound condition was one pound, five shillings. Mrs. Tansley's people had it beautifully bound in leather. Where ever the edges of the leaves were worn or torn it was repaired in a most wonderful manner, being reinforced with a strong paper making the edges at perfect as when new. The old s's are used which makes it quite difficult to read by the present generation.

The book is in a fine state of preservation, and very highly prized by its present possessor Harry Tansley who kindly brought it to the Herald office for our inspection.

TO THIER FRIENDS IN TECUMSEH

Lents, Oregon
Sept. 14, 1913

To the Herald,
Dear Friends:

Father says he has been trying to get his hand steady enough to answer the many delightful letters, the large shower of postal cards, but will take this opportunity to say through the Herald that he has not forgotton his many friends in and about Tecumseh.

There are many things of interest in and about Portland that he hopes to write up for the Tecumseh Papers.

He says he never was better than now, except for the paralysis and fracture. Eats well sleeps well, and all say he looks well. While he likes the west he would like to see the old friends again.

Yours Sincerely,
Bess L Frost.

Rochefort Was Reckless.

The late Henri Rochefort was a good deal of a man, although we may smile at some of the Gallic eccentricities that marked his cyclonic career. Rochefort did one of the finest physical feats on record when he escaped from Cayenne, to which inferno he had been sentenced for life. He was by no means a young man at the time, but he swam for over three miles in a sea infested with sharks, some of them following him all the way and actually snapping at him. Six years later he fought a serious duel in defense of his son and was badly wounded.—Argonaut.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR NEIGHBORING VILLAGES

St. Clairesville O. has a man, who is putting the women of three states to shame by his wonderful skill in embroidery. John McBride, is a Barton Mine machinest and last year won a loving cup, having won first place for three successive years at their county fair.

We see by an exchange that Iowa has the largest water power dam in the world and that some New Hampshire Democrats would like to borrow it for use in their comments on current politics.

Prof. White state clay analist says that Michigan is rich in good clays, and that almost any county could support a big pottery factory by its own clays. As yet Michigan does not count among her leading industries that of pottery, but it hoped that it may be started soon, though it may take time to get men to make the venture, but it is sure to come.

People who find fault with the town in which they make their living are of the same stamp as those children who find fault with their parents to whom they owe their food, clothing and the other good things of life. If people will everlastingly complain of their town and see no merits in it they ought to be consistent, go to some other town that is more in line with their tastes. But such people would complain even of that town, for the simple reason that they are chronic grumblers. The way to do with a town in which one lives is not to run it down at every chance that offers but do one's best to help it on by word and deed.—Petersburg Sun.

Last week when a block of 1014 shares of Ann Arbor railroad preferred at the Delray station, not a bid was offered and the sale was postponed until noon of October, 13. This stock was owned by the D. T. & I. Railroad when it went into bankruptcy and the sale was part of the bankruptcy proceedings.

Why not make Savings a Family affair

"The little Savings Bank in the home means more for the future of the children of a family, almost, than all the advice in the world."

—These are the words of William McKinley, the martyred president. They tell a story for every father and mother.

In making Savings a family affair you are laying the foundation for the future happiness of yourself and your children.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Foot Ball Tomorrow!

The Blissfield High School journeys here to get a good beating tomorrow by our peerless team. Every one come out and see the game. Lots of fun.

The game the other day crippled our team quite seriously. "Doc" Hendershott received a kick in the knee and cannot walk without a cane Russell McNiel had his nose hurt also, but no little thing like that, he says, is going to keep him out from the game

The girls had a mass meeting Monday afternoon after school and by the noise they made, we judge they were learning some new yells. Whoop her up girls, we hope to hear some great yelling tomorrow.

DON'T FORGET THE GAME TOMORROW.

OPPORTUNITY FOR INVESTMENT.

Until sold, the undersigned offers all, or any part, of 15 shares of stock of H. Brewer & Co. for the estate of Sarah F. Stout, deceased.

No better investment than this can be found, I believe. The company has been doing business here for more than a life-time and throughout its existance has prospered. This stock is paying 6 per cent and all know its safe and conservative management. Measured by the value of assests belonging to the company, or book value, it is worth considerably more than par, ($100.00). It is exempt from taxation and the dividends are net income. For immediate cash I will allow a small discount below par,

NEW HIGH SCHOOL.

At the last election the total vote polled was so small and the proposition to bond the District for a new high school lost by so slight a majority that the question as to the District's wishes in the matter was far from being made known on that occasion.

On this account, at the annual school meeting of the District last July the Board of Education was instructed to again vote on this proposition.

The date set for this special election is Tuesday October 14th when it is hoped that every qualified voter will cast his or her ballot so the Board may definitely know the wishes of the people regarding this proposed improvement. On the question of of voting school taxes, every citizen, male or female, twenty-one years of who owns property which is assessed for school taxes in the District, and has resided therein for three months previous to an election, shall be a qualified voter also where husband and wife own property jointly, if otherwise qualified they may vote on tax or bonding questions.

Careful John.

A rural storekeeper was greatly bothered by rats which infested his building, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Also he possessed a valuable watch dog which guarded the premises at night. One night, just before he locked up, he scattered poison around the place and left a note on the counter for the clerk who opened the store in the morning.

The clerk found the note as was intended. But he nearly dropped through the floor when he read:

"Jerry—You take the poison in the morning so the dog won't get it. There is some in the cellar too. John."

The Signal.

"How do you endure listening to Biggins' funny stories? He spoils them by laughing at them himself."

"That's what I like about him. You don't have to listen in order to laugh at the right time. All you have to do is to wait till he gives the signal."—Washington Star.

Amended.

An English official once said to Father Healy, the famous Irish wit:

"Healy, I've got a crow to pick with you."

"Make it a turkey," said Father Healy, as quick as a wink, "and I'll join you at 6 sharp."

GO RIGHT AT IT.

Friends and Neighbors in Tecumseh Will Show You a Way.

Get at the root of the trouble.

Rubbing an aching back may relieve it,

But won't cure it if the kidneys are weak.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right at it;

Reach the cause; attack the pain.

Are recommended by many Tecumseh people.

A. C. Aylesworth, W. Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About four years ago I had an acute attack of lumbago and my kidneys were disordered. I at length heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procuring a supply at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store, I began using them. In a short time I was relieved and I have had no return attack of the trouble. I hope other kidney sufferers will read my statement and be led to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. adv.

A great deal of the milk of human kindness is only butter milk. —M. M.

Foleys Kidney Pills cure obstinate cases of kidney and bladder trouble, rheumatism and lumbago, because they remove the cause. You can not take this honest curative medicine into your system without getting the right results. Try them. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Advt.

Waiting for dead men's shoes usually necessitates walking barefoot a long time.

Facing a Serious Proposition.

The man or woman who has kidney trouble is facing a serious proposition, where grave complications readily follow neglect. Foley Kidney Pills are an honest curative medicine that once taken into your system mean restored kidney and bladder action, and a return of health and strength. For sale by all druggists. Advt.

Where the river is deepest it makes the least noise.

Strengthen Weak Kidneys

Don't suffer longer with weak kidneys. You can get prompt relief by taking Electric Bitters, that wonderful remedy praised by women everywhere. Start with a bottle to-day, you will soon feel like a new woman with ambition to work, without fear of pain. Mr. John Dowling of San Francisco, writes:—"Gratitude for the wonderful effect of Electric Bitters prompts me to write. It cured my wife when all else failed." Good for the liver as well. Nothing better for indigestion or biliousness. Price, 50c. and $1.00, at C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

We are apt to fail at little things. Remember that "little strokes fell great oaks."

Can't afford to have Kidney Trouble

No man with a family to support can afford to have kidney trouble, nor need he fear it with such a remedy at hand as Foley Kidney Pills. An honest medicine, safe and reliable, costing little but doing much good. Foley Kidney Pills eliminate backache and rheumatism, tone up the system and restore normal action of kidneys and bladder. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh, Advt

THAW WINS IN COURT

Hearing on Writ of Habeas Corpus Is Continued Indefinitely.

LITTLETON, N. H. — Harry K. Thaw won a victory in the United States district court here when Judge Aldrich, over the protest of William Travers Jerome, granted an indefinite continuance of the hearing on the writ of habeas corpus sued out by the Matteawan asylum fugitive. This will prevent the immediate deportation of Thaw even if Governor Felker orders him extradited to New York.

No intimation was given as to when the habeas corpus procedings will be held. Until such time Thaw will remain under the guardianship of the United States. The court overruled Jerome's motion to quash the writ, thus recognizing the case as properly before the United States tribunal.

Forest of Natural Columns.

There is in Bulgaria a group of natural columns much like the Giant's causeway in Ireland. On the edge of a plateau in the open country rises this forest of natural columns, which gives the impression of an antique ruin. The columns, which are about fifteen to twenty feet high, are absolutely cylindrical, and they are often as much as three feet thick. The stratification of the rock resembles joints and vertical erosion due to rain has formed Doric antiques.

Herrick and Hinman Head a Formidable Legal Array.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

Two of Sulzer's counsel as they appeared on the eve of the hearing. D-Cady Herrick (at top) and Harvey Hinman had worked long on the defense they were prepared to offer when the impeachment trial opened.

Millet's Difficulties.

Two of Millet's famous pictures, the "Sower" and the "Binders," were produced in a damp studio, ineffectually warmed by a tiny stove. In order to keep warm he would work with his feet in big wooden shoes stuffed with straw, himself enveloped in a heavy horse cloth with a hole in the center, through which he put his head! In these pictures Millet had simply sought to express with all his might one of the phases of man's unceasing combat with nature. But "political" parties drew their conclusions. The "labor" party declared that these pictures protested against the misery of the laborer, while official critics said that the artist sought to set class against class. At this time Millet willingly painted a signboard for a Parisian tradesman. But then he painted it so well in the end it figured in an exhibition of his works in the School of Fine Arts.

Nickel In Soapmaking.

It will probably be news to the average ablutionist that the metal nickel is used in making his soap. And further, perhaps, he will be glad to learn that although the nickel, finely ground, is mixed with the other soap ingredients, the finished product contains none of it. This is so because the nickel acts as what the chemists call a catalyst—that it, its presence causes certain desirable changes to occur, although it takes no part in the chemical reaction. Offensive oils and those too thin for satisfactory use, when mixed with finely divided nickel and subjected to the action of a current of hydrogen, become deodorized and harder and suitable for the soap maker's use. Cottonseed oil, for example, after the nickel-hydrogen treatment, makes a satisfactory soap.—New York Post.

"Come Ye to the Waters."

Julian Grande, who recently returned to England from Bible lands, has had some interesting things to say about Damascus. The pride of the district lies still in its rivers, Abana and Pharpar, but this does not hinder the citizens from polluting them with the refuse of the streets, making the water quite undrinkable in summer. Water is brought from a distance and sold in the streets at about a farthing a quart, and to buy a cupful of cold water and give it to "one of those little ones" is a typical act of eastern charity. Pious Moslems will buy water and then gather the thirsty children round them, using almost the very words of Isaiah—"Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters." —Homiletic Review.

Force of Habit.

There is at Princeton an instructor in mathematics who was country bred, a fact that is frequently betrayed by some homely saying of his.

One day an undergraduate had performed some peculiarly useless and complicated process in arriving at the solution of a problem when the instructor said:

"This reminds me of a colt once owned by an old friend of mine down east. This colt was put out to pasture after having been fed from its birth in a box stall and watered at a trough in the yard. The pasture lay across a small river, and in the middle of the day the colt would swim the stream to go up to the barn for a drink of water."—Harper's Magazine.

The Poison In Poison Ivy.

Poison ivy has long been a mystery both to scientists and laymen. Why and in what manner it causes the peculiar rash and irritating inflammation have puzzled both botanists and physicians. But Dr. Minande of Paris says his study of the plant shows that poison ivy contains prussic acid. This is found principally in the young leaves and buds. In older leaves there is very little of it.

In three and one-half ounces of young leaves there is about a quarter of a grain of the acid.

As with other plants in which prussic acid is found, the poisonous substance does not exist in its perfect form, but develops as soon as the leaves are bruised, a chemical action being set up through the union of an enzyme with a glucosid.

They Don't Want Strangers.

In the northwestern part of Switzerland, far from the tourist's path, is a little town, Selzach, where for more than 250 years watchmaking has been the chief industry. "There are no machines in the place for the production of watch parts—the men work as did their fathers and grandfathers," says the Berlin Post. "A feature of the place is the Passion play, produced every summer by the watchmakers and the members of their families. These simple people have succeeded in maintaining for their play a modest dignity and have not allowed it to become commercial. The few notices of the Saturday performances which one sees in the neighboring places contain the information that the town 'cannot accommodate many strangers.'"

MAN AND THE SOIL.

Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, author of the Common Sense Medical Adviser, says "why does not the farmer treat his own body as he treats the land he cultivates. He puts back in phosphate what he takes out in crops, or the land would grow poor. The farmer should put back into his body the vital elements exhausted by labor, or by ill-health induced by some chronic disease." Further, he says, "the great value of my Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is in its vitalizing power. It gives strength to the stomach and purity to the blood. It is like the phosphates which supply nature with the substances that build up the crops. The far-reaching action of is due to its effect on the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases that begin in the stomach are cured through the stomach. A bilious spell is simply the result of an effort made by the liver to catch up when over-worked and exhausted. I have found the 'Discovery' to be unsurpassed as a liver regulator and rich blood-maker."

Miss Lottie Knisely of Perth, Kansas, says: "I will here add my testimony of the effectiveness of your remedy upon myself. I was troubled with indigestion for two years or more. Doctored with three different doctors besides taking numerous kinds of so-called 'stomach cures' but received no permanent relief. I was run down, could not sleep at night with the pain in my chest caused by gas on the stomach. Was weak, could eat scarcely anything although I was hungry nearly all the time. About one year and a half ago I began taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and after having taken several bottles am nearly cured of stomach trouble. Can now eat without distress and have gained fifteen pounds in weight.

I thank you for your remedy and wish you all success in your good work."

PLOTTED TO MURDER OFFICER AT PONTIAC

Failure to Keep Secret Thwarts Plan of Six Inmates.

Pontiac, Ill., Sept. 22.—Prompt action on the part of the Illinois state reformatory frustrated a well organized plot to assassinate Officer Bert Kinsella by inmates of that institution.

Six boys employed in the printing trades school at the reformatory had plotted among themselves to "get" Officer Kinsella as soon as the opportunity presented itself. They had arranged that, when given their usual play hour, they were to each secure a baseball bat and station themselves at points about the officer. At a given signal they were to rush him and beat him to death. The plan was frustrated through the fact that one of the six could not keep the secret.

An attempt by a boy armed with a hammer to injure Officer A. D. Burrell was stopped only by other officers grabbing the boy as he was attempting to commit the act.

Plot and Counterplot

A Story of the Russian Revolution.

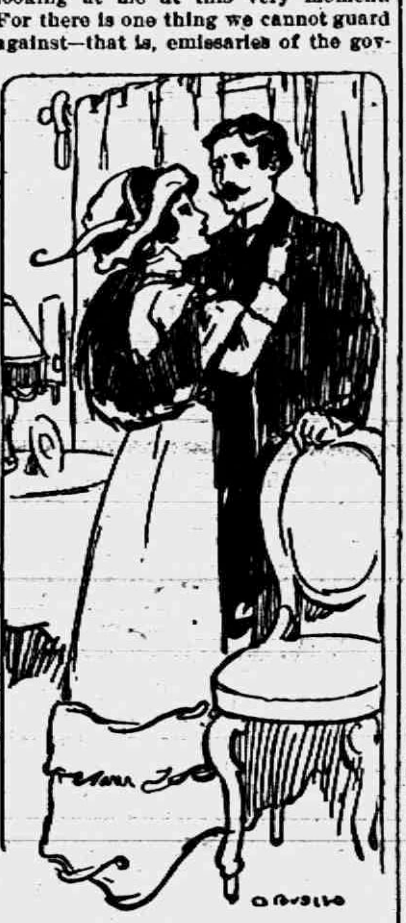
By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Peter Polizoff and Alexis Alexandrovich were students at the university at St. Petersburg, Russia. They were bosom friends and both members of a revolutionary circle; indeed, Alexandrovich was its president and the conductor of its secret movements in behalf of the revolution. Polizoff was two years younger than his friend and of a far less rugged nature. His confidence in Alexis was absolute, and his affection for him was supreme.

This was at a time when the revolution was brewing and when those instigating it were straining every nerve, taking every risk, to bring it about. On the other hand, the government was aware of what was going on, the police were hunting them down, and, when caught in their work or informed upon, they were hurried off to Siberia without even the semblance of a trial.

One night at a meeting of the circle to which the two friends belonged Alexandrovich addressed the members:

"We are like men in a frail boat passing down fierce rapids. At any moment the hand of the government may fall upon any one of us or all of us. We cannot even trust one another. I would not be surprised to see that door broken in by the police, they having been directed here by some one looking at me at this very moment. For there is one thing we cannot guard against—that is, emissaries of the government joining our circle under pretense of being revolutionists for the purpose of betraying us.



"WILL YOU GO FOR MY SAKE?"

"There is another matter to which I desire to call your attention. It may be necessary for some one or more of us to be sacrificed to save the others. For the work of the circle may go on without a part, whereas if the whole is crushed, so far as this organization is concerned, its efforts will cease. Be prepared, then, for that which you will not understand. If any one of you is betrayed suspend judgment as to the guilt or innocence of the betrayer, for you cannot know, may never know, whether you are betrayed to serve the purposes of the government or the circle."

Alexandrovich spoke the words with evident feeling, for he had got wind of the fact that they had a government spy among their number. He had formed a counter plan by which to save the main body of the circle by betraying to the government two or three of its members, including the spy, it being necessary to betray real revolutionists in order to make good his assertion that the spy, though pretending to work for the government, was really working for the revolutionists.

The plotting and counterplotting lasted longer than was expected, and Alexandrovich's scheme was delayed. Most of the members who had heard his warning either forgot it in the constant dangers to which they were exposed or looked upon it as a remote possibility. He never referred to it again, considering once enough. His whole being was enlisted in the cause. He had an iron will and was able to suffer any evil himself or inflict any evil on another in the service of civil liberty.

Alexandrovich had a younger sister, Katia. The Polizoff and Alexandrovich families had been friends for years, and Peter Polizoff and Katia had grown up together. From playmates they had become lovers. Katia lived in terror for her lover and her brother, knowing that they were both revolutionists and liable to suffer what she considered worse than death—that is, being sent in chains to work in the mines in Siberia.

One day Katia ran breathlessly into the home of her lover and found him at his studies. She was as white as ashes.

"What is it?" exclaimed Peter, starting up.

She tried to speak, but failed. He clasped her in his arms and caressed her till she found her voice and said in broken sentences:

"Go away from here, for heaven's sake—for my sake! Go at once!"

"Why?"

"You have been betrayed!"

"By whom?"

"I cannot tell."

"I must know."

"True; if you remain in ignorance that you have been betrayed by a friend you are likely to fall into his hands."

"I? Betrayed by a friend?"

"Yes."

"What friend?"

Her head fell on his breast. She tried to speak the name, but could not. At last, barely audible, it came:

"My brother."

"Alexis?"

"Alexis."

"Katia, you can never make me believe that."

"Then you are lost."

"I would rather go to the mines, a slave, than lose my faith in my friend."

"I know that he has betrayed you."

"How?"

"A man is now with him whose appearance I did not like from the moment I saw him. Dreading always some trouble for Alexis, I feared the visitor intended no good. Alexis took him up to his room. There is a door between it and the adjoining chamber. I went into this apartment, lay on the floor and put my ear to the interval between the door and the lintel. I heard Alexis tell the man that you and several others were members of a revolutionary circle."

This information coming from his betrayer's sister and his own betrothed stunned Polizoff. Katia was now obliged to sustain him instead of being sustained by him. When he had regained something of his composure he asked:

"Do you know your brother did this?"

"I do. I heard his voice, which I know only too well."

"Was anything said about my arrest?"

"No, but the blow is liable to fall at any moment. Go at once. A minute's delay may be fatal."

"No; I will remain. There has been some mistake. I cannot believe Alexis is base. He is all that is noble."

"Will you go for my sake?"

He looked into her eyes and consented. He was holding her in a parting embrace when there was a knock at the door. Katia pushed her lover through an opening; he entered a rear garden, crawled through a fence and gained a street.

Katia remained where she was, taking up a book and pretending to read. A servant went to the door, opened it, and a police officer, attended by several assistants, stepped into the hall. He did not ask any questions, but, sending a man through to the garden in the rear to shut off escape in that direction, with the others proceeded to go through the house. After a thorough search, not finding the object of it, he withdrew.

Alexandrovich had informed on three other persons, including the spy. His testimony was weakened by the escape of Peter Polizoff, who was known to be his friend, but since he was kept under surveillance by the government from the time he gave the information to the attempted arrest it was not believed that he had warned the man he accused. Indeed, as soon as the accusation was made a party was sent to arrest Polizoff.

As soon as the officials who had failed to find Peter retired, Katia, who was not known to them as Alexandrovich's sister, left the house and later in the day went home. She found her brother there, but the man to whom he had betrayed his friends had gone. Alexis looked at his sister eagerly and asked where she had been. Between a brother and a lover a woman will stand against the one and for the other. Katia, with fire in her eye, accused him of his treachery and showered imprecations upon him. Then, remembering that her brother had degraded himself, she burst into a passion of tears.

"You warned him?" asked Alexis.

"Yes."

"And he escaped?"

"He did."

"Thank heaven! I did not intend that he should; it was not in the plan. But I doubt if I shall be believed to have warned him."

"What do you mean?" asked Katia.

Her brother told her that a spy had got into the circle and was ready to betray every member. Playing government spy, Alexis had gained the confidence of the government by denouncing his best friend and two others besides the spy, who, with the rest, would be sent at once to Siberia.

"And now," he concluded, "comes the second part of my plan. I must rescue the innocent members of our circle on their way to Siberia."

The record of the attempt to rescue the revolutionists on their way to Siberia, an attempt that was participated in by Peter Polizoff and in which Katia played the part of an arch deceiver, forms a story by itself.

The spy went on to the mines. Whether he ever succeeded in convincing the government that they had made a mistake in his case is not known. But one fact is certain—not one of those concerned in the plot that sent him to Siberia ever afterward dared live in Russia. Every one of them today is living in the United States.

Identifying Himself.

It is said that at certain seasons in Scotland when the fishing is not very brisk the fishermen act as caddies and are easily recognized by their costume, a woollen jersey and trousers braced up to the armpits. One of these was asked his name by the gentleman for whom he was carrying and the reply was, "Weel, hereabouts they maistly ca' me 'Breeks,' but ma 'malden' name is 'Broon.'"

An Apt Retort.

"Fools sometimes ask questions that wise men cannot answer," remarked the professor in the course of his lecture.

"Then that explains why so many of us get plucked in our examinations," said the flippant student.—Home Notes.

CHILDREN SHOOT CHILDREN: 1 DEAD

Assailants Brothers, Victims Brothers; Accidents.

CHELSEA, MICH.—Herold Gilbert, who was twelve years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gilbert, of this village, is dead, and his brother, Clarence Gilbert, ten years old, lies seriously wounded in the University hospital at Ann Arbor, as the result of two bullet wounds, inflicted by two brothers, Charles Watkins, ten years old, and his brother, Edward Watkins, eight years old.

Charles Watkins was playing with Clarence Gilbert, near the latter's home in the village with an airgun and shot the Gilbert boy in the eye. He will lose his sight.

The fatal tragedy occurred the next night at the bakery of T. W. Watkins.

Edward Watkins was playing behind the counter when Harold Gilbert, brother of Clarence Gilbert, entered the store. A piece of paper lay on the floor. According to the story of bystanders Harold picked it up. Edward from behind the counter, playfully commanded him to drop it. Harold failed to comply. He drew a loaded 32-caliber revolver from a drawer and without a word pointed it at Harold and fired, shooting him dead.

Marshal Huber said there was no question both shootings were purely accidental.

WIFE BACK; KILLS HIMSEFL

Grand Ledge Man, Unintentional Bigamist, Suicides.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—The unexpected return of a wife he had thought dead caused John W. Shellenburger, of Grand Ledge, to come to Grand Rapids and commit suicide by shooting himself in the head.

His body was found at noon by a chambermaid in the lodging house where he had rented a room. Shellenburger, years ago, married a woman, whose love grew cold. She left him one day and after a long time, when he failed to hear from her, he married the widow of William Dukes who was killed at a Spiritualist camp meeting two years ago. Last Saturday wife No. 1 appeared at Grand Ledge.

Five hours after the suicide wife No. 2, in Grand Ledge, gave birth to a baby girl, the third child by that marriage. When Shellenburger married Mrs. Dukes she had six.

ESCANABA ELOPERS CAUGHT

Youthful Pair Nabbed in Milwaukee, According to Dispatch.

ESCANABA, MICH. — Miss Elizabeth Rowan, fourteen years old, and Frank Maleski, seventeen years, who left their home in North Escanaba several days ago and were supposed to have eloped, have been apprehended in Milwaukee, according to a telegram received by the city marshal of this city.

Steps will be taken to have them returned here.

WILL MEET AT MACKINAC

Soldiers and Sailors of Northern Michigan to Gather in June.

CHEBOYGAN, MICH.—Noted Mackinac Island will get the next encampment of the soldiers and sailors of northern Michigan.

Officers elected are: President, Benjamin Lachance, Mackinac Island; vice president, one from each of the fifteen counties in the association; secretary, William P. Preston, Mackinac Island. The 1914 encampment will be held in June instead of in the fall.

METHODISTS HAVE ELECTION

Officers Chosen for Year at Seventy-eighth Conference.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.—The organization of the conference was completed at the seventy-eighth annual session of the Methodist Episcopal church here.

At the annual election of officers, Clark S. Wheeler, of Hillsdale, was elected secretary. Other officers are: Assistant secretaries, G. A. Brown and R. W. Merrill, of Kalamazoo; F. M. Clough, of Grandville, and C. J. Cartland, Dowagiac; treasurer, W. A. Exner, Athens; biographical secretary, O. F. Bulmann, Jonesville; secretary of transportation, Russell Bready, Grand Rapids.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—A large brass band and hundreds of tooting horns acquainted the residents of this city with the fact that more than 1,500 students in the two high schools have gone on a strike in support of three demands—shorter study hours, better food in school lunchrooms, and a continuation of fraternity system. The streets were paraded by the malcontents and fearing trouble the city authorities sent out all the available police. The strikers made demonstrations in front of the office of the superintendent of education and around the high schools. The teachers locked the doors.

JUDGE EMORY SPEER

Who Is Made Ill Over Threatened Impeachment Proceedings.

MACON, GA.—As a direct result of worry over the threatened impeachment proceedings against him, United States Judge Emory Speer of the southern district of Georgia is reported critically ill at Highlands, N. C., where he went about two weeks ago to recuperate.

THINK MT. FOREST MEN ARE INDICTED

Two True Bills Returned, but Names Suppressed.

BAY CITY, MICH. — The grand jury has returned true bills against two persons. Judge Collins directed that the names of the indictments be kept secret until he issues bench warrants and the arrests are made. This will take place soon.

The grand jury is busy getting evidence in shape. More indictments are probable this week.

Evidence regarding city deals in which fraud and graft are alleged to have occurred and evidence regarding alleged bribery and misappropriation of school funds in Mt. Forest and Fraser townships having been practically all submitted it is not unlikely that the indictments returned have to do with the former township's mess involving two officers of that place.

POSTMASTER IS PUT IN JAIL

E. O. Briggs, Slocum, Taken to Grand Rapids for Trial.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Ernest O. Briggs, the postmaster who is said to have embezzled $350 and a large quantity of stamps from the postoffice at Slocum, Mich., last spring, was brought to this city by Chief Deputy United States Marshal Christian Meedeson, of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

He was locked up in the county jail pending a trial at the fall term of the United States circuit court. Briggs was captured at Walten, Oklahoma last week. He went there soon after the robbery of the office, and was becoming quite a figure in the village when his identity was discovered.

TO END RACE WAR

Governor Dunne Calls Militia Company at Benton, Ill.

AMERICANS SLAIN BY POLES

One of the Murderers Surrounded in Woods and Lynching Is Feared in Case He Is Captured—Mining Town in an Uproar, but Authorities Finally Restore Order.

BENTON, ILL.—Company F of the Fourth regiment, of this city, was ordered out to suppress a race riot between American and Polish miners, which started on the town square as the result of the double murder of Ewell Hutchins and Quincy Drummonds, who were killed by a band of drunken Polish miners while returning from a Polish dance, where they had furnished the music.

Governor Dunne ordered the troops out on the recommendation of Chief Deputy Sheriff Vaughn and Mayor Estes. By the combined efforts of the troops under Captain O. C. Smith and a delegation of the better class of citizens led by the mayor the streets were finally cleared of rioters.

Leaders Go to Their Homes.

The mayor's party urged the crowds to allow the law to take its course and persuaded the leaders among the American mining element to go to their homes. Residents of both the Italian and Polish colonies took to their homes immediately after the first outbreak of violence. A few foreigners who appeared on the streets with weapons were disarmed by the soldiers.

Late at night John Hurzan, one of the miners accused of the murders, was thought to be surrounded in the woods by the sheriff's posse. A lynching is feared should he be caught and should the American miners learn of his capture.

Foreigners Severely Beaten.

All except three of the fifteen foreigners arrested in connection with the murders were later released.

The disturbance soon assumed such proportions that Mayor Estes swore in twenty-five extra police and sent for the sheriff of Franklin county. The mayor then mounted a box in the center of the square and vainly tried to pacify the Americans.

Twenty-five foreigners who appeared on the square were severely beaten and pursued to their homes in the Polish colony. Every other foreigner who was found on the streets met similar treatment.

SUPERVISORS ARE ENJOINED

Circuit Court Issues Injunction Stopping Vote on Road Bonds.

HOLLAND, MICH. — The Ottawa county good roads commission scored a significant victory when Circuit Judge Orien S. Cross issued a permanent injunction retraining the good roads question to a referendum vote. Unless the case is appealed to the supreme court the good roads squabble is settled.

The commission has sufficient contracts, and it is likely that next spring efforts will be made to sell the next installment of the $600,000 issue of bonds.

WASHINGTON—The house of representatives has passed the administration currency bill by a vote of 286 to 84. Thirty-nine Republicans and Progressives voted for the measure and only three Democrats—Representatives Callaway of Texas, Elder of Louisiana and Witherspoon of Mississippi—voted against it. Representative Thompson of Oklahoma, an insurgent Democrat, on the bill from the outset of its consideration refused to vote.

TRIAL OF SULZER MUST GO RIGHT ON

Deposed Governor Loses Plea to End Hearing.

ALBANY, N. Y. — D. Cady Herrick, counsel for Governor Sulzer, announced at the outset of the day's proceedings of the high court of impeachment that the governor would cease henceforth to exercise the functions of the executive office until the termination of his trial.

In a vote in executive session shortly taken...in executive session shortly after 6 o'clock in the evening the court of impeachment voted down the application of counsel for Governor Sulzer to set aside the impeachment as illegal. The only dissenting vote was that of Senator Gottfried Wende, independent Democrat, of Buffalo.

Louis Marshall of counsel for Governor William Sulzer, made the governor's final plea for dismissal of the articles of impeachment, upon the ground that the assembly was without power to impeach and that the court, as a consequence, was without jurisdiction to hear the impeachment.

As the attorney closed a technically brilliant presentation, it was the apparent sentiment that the court was not afavorable to a dismissal.

Chief Judge Cullen led his somber associates through the line of senators in the lobby at 2 p. m. The stately procession moved slowly into the senate chamber and within a few moments there came a resumption of the legal battle.

G. A. R. PRIZES TO MICHIGAN

Gardner Elected Commander-in-Chief and Detroit Gets Encampment.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN. — Colonel Washington Gardner, of Albion, Mich., was elected commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic and allied organizations, succeeding Alfred B. Beers. All other candidates withdrew from the race and the election of the colonel was made unanimous.

Detroit won the 1914 encampment by an unanimous vote after a hard fight had been made by Houston, Chicago, New York and Mobile.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

PORTLAND, ORE.—A big boiler exploded at the Kelly-Butte subjail, the rock pile for county prisoners, five miles east of here, and it is reported the engineer was killed and a number of others injured.

The stockade is on fire and specially sworn deputies are guarding the prisoners, many of whom are regarded as bad characters.

GENERAL NEWS.

SPENCER, IOWA.—That Frank B. Rosenkrans, prosperous farmer near here, has given blackmailers over $7,000 since last April developed when [illegible] were placed under arrest. Rosenkranz had made several withdrawals from his bank account since last April and his banker, J. H. McCord, asked him what he was doing with so much money. Rosenkrans was finally persuaded to confide in McCord, and said that a gang had threatened to take his life if he did not advance them money they demanded. Since April 22 he said he had given them about $4,000 in cash and notes. A few days ago he agreed to turn over $2,000 more. Rosenkrans went to the appointed place with the money, but was accompanied by officers, who hid near the agreed rendezous. In a short time William Carter, Mac McCarter, Matt Adair and Oscar Cunningham were taken into custody before they had relieved their intended victim of his money.

Would Fill the Bill.

Some who have attended councils and associations can appreciate this story of the late Rev. Dr. Norman Macleod of Edinburgh. Going into a room in which was a cage containing a large owl, he surveyed it for a long time. The owl sat unmoved, placid and erect. His mien was dignified, his torus impressive, his eyes cold and observant, his countenance sagacious and critical. ANOTHER OLD BIBLE

We thought last week that we had an old Bible to record, but today we have one that is more wonderful still. This Bible was printed in 1607, four years before our Bible now in use was printed, and is called the King James translation. "Imprinted in London by Robert Barker, printer to the King's Most Excellent Majestie 1607."

The whole Church of England service is in the front of the Bible, and the Psalms in verse with the music in the back. "These were collected into English meter by Thomas Sternhold, John Hopkins and others, conserved with the Hebrew, with apt notes to sing them withall."

Another interesting feature is the First Alphabet of directions to common places containing all the Hebrew, Caldean, Greek, Latin or other strange names, dispersed throughout the Bible.

Then follows "The Second Alphabet of directions to common places containing all the English words containing unto most of the necessary and profitable doctrines, sentences and instructions which are to be found in the Old and New Testaments."

This Bible has a heavy wooden cover which was covered with a thick leather and has heavy brass corners and center pieces and originally had large clasps, but these are only partially preserved.

The present possessor is John Wyrill to whom it has descended from several generations of Wyrills in Old England and to whom it is a precious legacy.

This and the one mentioned in our last issue will be at the Herald office for a few days and, should any one wish to see them, we would be pleased to have them call in.

A SPENDING AGE.

This is a spending, not a saving age. Everybody wants money, not in driblets, but by handfuls, and having it, spends lavishly. "Come easy; go easy." The remark is often made that people "don't care what they pay if they get what they want." Especially is this true where physical comfort is in question, and in what we call our pleasures, which are perhaps more refined than they were a hundred years ago—but certainly far more expensive. Everybody is supposed to have money to spend freely and foolishly, and few have the courage to invite contempt by saying "I can't afford it!"

Amusements and social aspirations are decimating the purses of the American public and setting false standards for the upbringing of youth. Fifty years ago Emerson wrote, "Things are in the saddle and ride mankind." The burden was never heavier, nor the load more valued than today. Women want "things," then get nervous prostration taking care of them. Our idea of life is largely based on material possessions; the chief ambition of the majority is to equal or excel those who have more. The things that cost most are the superfluities, and the idea is that we must have them in quantity. The automobile has become as much a household necessity as beefsteak and one is not enough for a well-regulated family. "The best is the cheapest," is pernicious doctrine, because we associate "best" with "most expensive" and thus make price rather than excellence or suitability the standard. Living, save in the matter of rents and the enhanced price of meats—due to shortage rather than the Beef Trust—would not be so unreasonably high were we content to cut out the superfluities for which we pay exorbitant prices, getting nothing but frills and fuss in return.

Now all this would not be so reprehensible were it not the practice of those who cannot afford it, who are living up to the last dollar of their incomes, and who, in case of a financial disaster or loss of position would be practically penniless. They have been planning how much they could spend and taken no heed of saving.

It is not the extravagance of women; it is the extravagance of every body. It is a microbe in the air to which none of us is immune, and for which no counteracting serum has been discovered. Economy, frugality, once watchwords even among well-to-do people, are words likely to be classed as obsolete in the dictionaries. It is impossible that the present era of money-getting and money-wasting shall go on indefinitely. When the end comes, as it must, it will be as disastrous to our nation as Sedan was to France—Exchange.

Seizing an Opportunity.

"Why did they arrest that man?"

"It was discovered that he was supporting two families—keeping up two establishments."

"Oh, are they arresting people for that? I'll have to tell my wife to chase her father out in search of a job."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Those Thoughtless Remarks.

Jinks—The biggest fool trick I ever did was once when I was ill and thought I was going to die. I sent for all my creditors and paid them in full. Blinks—And then you recovered, I suppose? Jinks—No, died, you blanked idiot!—Boston Transcript.

BRADLEY REUNION

Written by Mrs. Cora M. Clinton of 57 S. Jefferson Ave. Battle Creek, and read by her at the Bradley reunion at Sand Lake, Aug. 6, 1913.

We are gathered once more on the beautiful shore,
Where the past seems only a dream.
And we cherish the places of many dear faces,
That have crossed over the silent stream.
Life seems but a day when we children would play,
On the shore where the water was blue
Aunties and uncles, sisters and cousins,
With bright, sunny faces gather there, warm hearts to renew.
Grandpa's and grandma's with neighbors most dear,
Look forward with pleasure once, every year
With bright, happy faces, smiling in places,
Accustomed to each with good cheer.
Also time has changed that bright, sunny day,
The circle now broken, many gone far away
Some are changing sweet songs in the heaven above,
As they watch and gaurd over hearts filled with love.
Only a few short years intervene,
The shadow veil lifted life's beautiful dream
Will shine like the stars in the heaven so blue,
So sad hearts and glad hearts fond memories renew
Of our loved ones here and our loved ones there,
That ties be not broken as with silvery hair
Our eyes grow dim and step seem slow,
And the days seems shorter the older we grow.
Let us join in prayer for the hearts that are young,
And the journey of life only begun
That the days of the future be as pright as the past,
With fond reccollections that forever may last.
And gather each year on the beautiful shore,
To renew old acquaintance as in days of yore
When grandpas and grandmas, uncles and aunts,
And the wee little ones all took a chance,
Now, we are only waiting the Master's call,
The sunset of life and the shadows fall
As around the old home fond memories cling,
Let us cherish each one as the birds cherish spring.
And perhaps we may never all meet here again,
But will sing loud hosannas from our heavenly plane
As we watch and wait at the beautiful gate,
For our loved ones now sighing Oh, why do I wait.

IN ELECTRIC STORMS

A student of electricity offers in the New York Sun this advice to persons who are afraid of lightning:

"If in a building which is isolated in the open country or is higher than surrounding buildings in a group, avoid chimneys or other flues, open windows or draughts, especially warm currents of air, directly below a high tower or flag pole, peak or angle of the structure. Keep away from overhead wires entering a building—although these are generally protected by lightning arresters, the current is not always "arrested."

"If in the open avoid trees, wire fences or poles, and if you happen to be the most prominent object in the landscape, as in an open field or on a beach, do not raise a steel rod umbrella or in fact any umbrella, as you may become a living lightning rod without an approved ground connection.

"If you should happen to be caught in such open space, with lightning discharged coming very close, as may be determined by the lessening intervals between flash and report, it is better to lie flat on the ground and risk a soaking than to offer a possible path for a discharge. The reason for this is that the body, being warm, offers a better conductor than the surrounding air, and but a few feet rise is necessary to attract lightning on flat ground."

Having observed these simple precautions, take this additional piece of advice, with our compliments: "Don't worry. The number of deaths from lightning is very small. Because they are usually dramatic they are vividly reported by efficient and ambitious news writers, but there aren't many of them."

Literary Coincidences.

Tennyson said of a strange literary coincidence, "A Chinese scholar some time ago wrote to me saying that in an unknown, untranslated Chinese poem there were two whole lines of mine almost word for word." Byron in his monody on the death of Sheridan, where he says there will never be another Sheridan, the mold being broken up, employs, word for word, terms in which an ancient Sanskrit document refers to the death of Maru, notwithstanding that Byron could never have seen the document. Shakespeare's passage about love and lightning in "Romeo and Juliet," ii, 2, is almost identical with a quotation from "Malata and Madhava," an Indian poem by Bhavabuti, written nine centuries before and not translated up to Shakespeare's time.

School "Examinitis."

Let us remember that there is such a thing as examinitis and that a brain crammed with a multitude of useless facts may show up brilliantly on an examination, but be so clogged as to be unable to put the knowledge to practical use. We know we are raising the pedagogue's ire by thus stating that there is such a thing as too much knowledge, but as a fact the world's work is being done by specialists who are densely ignorant of everything outside their respective narrow spheres and of many things inside too.—American Medicine.

WOMEN ON ONE ACRE FARMS

The women working the little acre farms did not appear to be heavily tasked. They were engaged in seeding, irrigating (the Littlelander irrigates with a hose), weeding, raking, and that sort of thing. They took their self-imposed labor lightly, enjoyingly. And in my short spell of observation I had seen more than one act of neighborliness. Here was evidently the true community spirit; that calls for no sacrifice of independence. Here a natural environment fosters the best qualities of the individual—qualities which the artificial conditions of the city stunt or strangle.

The elements of their happiness are not far to seek. They "walk in the sunshine without fear of want." Shorn of superfluities, their lives know no desire beyond their reach. To-day is theirs to shape at will; the morrow hold no dread uncertainties. What they enjoy is earned by honest toil, and no man can rob them of the full fruits of their labor.

Presently I bade my Littlelanders farewell, with a strange feeling of envy in my heart. As I walked down the peaceful village street, the conviction was forced upon me that these simple people, with their sublime contentment, are richer than I in most that makes life worth the living.—Forbes Lindsay in October Lippincott's.

BRIEF AND BREEZY

This season's most popular dance in the east is called the "Hesitation glide," and if it is anything like the tango or the Turkey trot he who hesitates is lost.

The death of Mayor Gaynor leaves a straight issue of Tammany and anti-Tammany. Voters will have to choose between Murphy's candidate and John P. Mitchell, clean government candidate.

Sulzer, Murphy, Thaw and Jerome being the most prominent citizens of New York, the blessings of obscurity are again emphasized.

Dumplings
For Soups, Stews and Fricasseed Chicken

Left overs of roast lamb, veal or beef, the cheaper cuts of fresh meats, and fowls too old for roasting, make delicious and nourishing stews. K C Dumplings make them doubly attractive and the whole dish is most economical—an object to most families while meats are so high and must be made to go as far as possible.

K C Dumplings

By Mrs. Nevada Briggs, the well known baking expert.

2 cups flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; ½ teaspoonful salt; ½ cup shortening; milk or cream.

Sift together three times, the flour, baking powder and salt; into this work the shortening and use cream or milk to make a dough less stiff than for biscuits.

Allow the stew to boil down so that the liquid does not cover the meat or chicken. Add half a cup of cold water to stop its boiling and drop the dough in large spoonfuls on top of the meat or chicken. Cover and let boil again for 15 minutes.

Made with K C Baking Powder and steamed in this way, dumplings are as light as biscuits and are delicious with thickened gravy.

This recipe is adapted from one for Chicken Pot Pie in "The Cook's Book" by Janet McKenzie Hill, editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine. The book contains 90 excellent recipes for things that are good to eat and that help reduce the cost of living. FULTON BAR FOUNDER DEAD

M. L. Essick, Former Kansas State Senator, Expires in Rochester.

Rochester, Ind., Sept. 22.—Martin Luther Essick, seventy-nine years old, founder of the Fulton county bar, a civil war veteran and at one time a member of the Kansas senate died at his home here.

His death marks the passing of one of the leading men of this county, who settled here at an early day. In the twenty years following the war, Mr. Essick took a leading part in the affairs of the state, was active in politics as a Republican and gained a reputation as one of the best lawyers in this section of the state. Death was caused by complications due to old age.

SHOOTS NEGRO BALL PLAYER

Doctor Wounds Member of Union Giants Following Altercation.

Dubuque, Ia., Sept. 22.—J. B. Turner, a negro, member of the Union Giants team of Chicago, playing at Warren, Ill., was brought to Dubuque with a bullet in his leg.

He had an altercation with Dr. Thompson of Apple River, Ill., who, it is said, insisted he leave the smoker on a train. When Thompson left the train Turner followed and was shot. The wound is not dangerous. Thompson was not arrested.

THE OLDEST PERSON LIVING

Probably the oldest person now living is Gertrude Alto, whose home is at Old Town, San Diego, Calif. She is of Mexican Aztec Indian blood, and is believed to be in her one hundred and twenty-fourth year of age. She saw the morning dawn, the noonday brightness, and the waning twilight and afterglow of her own generation, and now stands as its lone surviving representative a full generation after its sunset. She is hale and hearty and has a real relish for her food. Through her granddaughter as interpreter, she declares she never saw a sick day in all her long life. She is still able to easily walk about her immediate neighborhood when aided by some one to lead her, as she is nearly blind. In her earlier years it was her delight to go five miles up the valley on foot to the old San Diego Mission for the service at 6:30 in the morning. She attributes her great age and strength to her life-long regular habits and out door life.—Christian Herald.

REUNION OF THE FIFTEENTH MICHIGAN INFANTRY.

The twenty-second reunion of the Fifteenth Michigan Infantry to be held in Dundee, Tuesday, September 30, promises to be a very interesting meeting. A new flag is to be presented to the village, the old one being carefully taken down and with fitting honors retired from service.

Tablets to comrades of the Civil war; to sailors and marines; to army nurses; to Spanish War veterans; to the 18th Michigan Infantry; 7th Michigan Infantry; Old Stonewall Regiment, 17th Michigan Infantry, to members of Co. K, 3rd Michigan Cavalry and a memorial stand are all to be unveiled and dedicated. A camp fire will complete the days entertainment.

AMUSEMENTS

THE GREAT DIVIDE.

"THE GREAT DIVIDE," the long awaited great American play, which is booked to appear at Bradley Opera House on THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2, is heralded by the most knowing critics as the most absorbing, intensely dramatic and human play ever produced. The first two acts are laid in Arizona—in the heart of that great Continental divide, which seperates our East from our West—and the third act in Massachusetts. The drama might be called a struggle between the Spirit of the East and the Spirit of the West. It tells the romance of an Eastern woman whose life and habits descend from a long line of Puritan ancestors, and a Western man, as untrammeled in mind and action as the plains and mountains over which he roamed.

The purpose of the play is to show how these two contrasted natures were brought together and to prove that love between man and woman whose methods of living, beliefs and manners have nothing in common, can be overcome by the great divide which separates them. The production is one of the most beautiful now touring the West.

The cast is one of the most evenly balanced gathered together by C. S. Primrose, owner of the play and who is responsible for such excellent attractions as "The Thief", "The House of a Thousand Candles," "Paid in Full", etc.

Ice Glazed Salmon.

Ice jackets have been found to be the best protection for frozen salmon on their long journeys from the Pacific coast to all parts of the world Thousands of tons of salmon are now frozen in the great factories of the coast for export, because the combination of the ice jackets and the frozen meat has been found to keep the fish from becoming tainted. After the salmon are bled they are kept at a temperature of zero, or near there, for forty-eight hours and are frozen hard. If they were shipped this way, however, the air would get to the fish to some extent and tainting would result, so they are dipped in tanks of water and given another freezing. This puts a thin jacket of ice all over each fish, or glazes him, as it is called. After two coats of glazing the salmon are wrapped in paper, packed in paper lined boxes and started to the export markets.—Saturday Evening Post.

Lucky Lightning Strokes.

To be struck by lightning is still a most lucky thing for the Greek peasant—if he is not killed. "Such a man," says J. C. Lawson, "may indulge a taste for idleness for the rest of his life—his neighbors will support him—and enjoy at the same time the reputation of being something more than human." This is an inheritance from ancient days. Artemidorus, an authority on occult matters who flourished in the times of Marcus Aurelius, commented on the fact that while a place struck by lightning had an altar erected upon it and was thenceforth both honored and avoided, "no one who has been struck by lightning is excluded from citizenship; indeed, such a one is honored even as a god." The election of Quintus Julius Eburnus to the consulship in 116 B. C. is attributed to his having been favored thus by the gods.—London Spectator.

1st, 2d and 4th.

"Do the letters 'st,' 'd' and 'th' have to be followed by a period when used thus: 1st, 2d, 4th? What is this combination—an abbreviation, contraction or merely a sign?"

In the forms 1st, 2d, 4th, etc., we have ordinal numerals in which an Arabic figure is substituted for the spelled out name of the cardinal number from which the ordinal is derived. The letters added to the Arabic numeral form the specific inflection which changes the cardinal to an ordinal numeral The forms in question, then, are neither abbreviations nor contractions, nor yet mere signs. They are like a humorist's bit for before, only they are not whimsical, as they would be if no one had seen them before and some one should suddenly use them.—Literary Digest.

When Juries Mete.

Up in Alaska there used to be a district attorney who was long on native oratory, but short on education. Once, while prosecuting a big case, he came to the finish of his argument, and, according to Wilson Mizner, who was up there at the time, he leaned across the rail and made this plea:

"All I asts of you, gentlemen of the jury, is that you now retire and mete out jestice as she deserves to be met!"—Saturday Evening Post.

He Made Them Read It.

Daughter—Have you found out yet what it was that papa cut out of the paper? Mother—Yes. I bought a copy. I've read it all through, but to save my life I can't see anything wrong in it. It's an article on the vulgarity and silliness of buying gowns that are beyond one's means.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

BAY CITY — The county grand jury continued its probe into Mt. Forest affairs. The testimony of Henry Bock, former clerk of the township, is believed to have proved of value to the prosecution in matters concerning the alleged solicitations and acceptance of bribes by township officers. City Treasurer Frank T. Wands and City Engineer H. C Thompson testified regarding city matters, principally padded payrolls Coincident with the grand jury investigation of Mt. Forest Charles Gifford, former clerk, pleaded guilty to the theft of township orders. As a result of Clifford's arrest, a complaint was made against James Quigley, a supervisor, on the same charge by Justice of the Peace P. F. Hartley, who alleges the supervisors took fifteen orders for a total of more than $200. Quigley pleaded not guilty and furnished bail for his appearance October 1.

BAY CITY—The twenty mines of the Michigan district are to be closed. Officials of the United Mine Workers notified Handy Brothers that their mines at Monitor, Akron and Unionville would be closed, and they also notified the Robert Gage company that Nos. 5 and 6, which were to have begun work would not resume. The operators had already threatened to close all the mines in the district if the Handy workings were closed. Nearly 900 men are out now and if action is taken as indicated it will mean 3,000 men out of work. The operators expressed a desire to arbitrate, but the miners declined, saying there was nothing to arbitrate. A sum of money is involved, about $35, but the war is being waged on a technical point, interpretation of the scale.

GRAND RAPIDS — A most important step was taken by the city looking forward toward a rehearing of the recent ruling of the Michigan supreme court, which ordered Grand Rapids to change its sewerage system and abolish the depositing of sewerage in Grand river. The change, which would cost more than $1,000,000 was ordered as the result of an injunction obtained by Wyoming township residents, living down the Grand river, who objected to the alleged nuisance and health menace. W. L. Carpenter, former justice of the state supreme court, who has been retained by the city, filed his brief for the city. Upon it depends, it is asserted, the probable changing of the sewerage systems of all Michigan cities on streams which empty into the great lakes or into the lakes direct.

DETROIT — William Alden Smith, Jr., a resident of Grand Rapids, Mich., son of United States Senator William Alden Smith, of Michigan, and Miss Marie McRae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton A. McRae, of Detroit quietly strolled into the county building and got a marriage license. Their engagement was announced some time ago. Miss McRae says they procured the license early merely as both were in the building, but that the marriage will not take place until after the return of Miss McRae's parents from Europe late in the fall.

MUSKEGON — Viciously attacked by a bull and forced to take refuge in a tree which later caught fire from burning brush, was the thrilling experience of R. T. Lane, a farmer. Lane managed to beat out the fire in the tree. His eyebrows were singed and his clothing scorched. He climbed sixty feet into the tree before he was able to check the flames that spread through the branches. The bull kept in the neighborhood of the tree, and Lane was unable to make his escape for several hours.

ANN ARBOR — Mrs. Myra B. Jordan, the dean of women, the officers of the Students' Christian association and the heirs of the Newberry estates in Detroit have approved the plans of the proposed residence halls for women. One of the features will be a kitchenette and a parlor on every floor. Fudge parties, however, will be tabooed. The building is to be four stories high and 50x150 feet, and will contain 60 rooms arranged in pairs. It will be ready in October, 1914.

GRAND RAPIDS — Two desperate thieves entered J. J. Thompson's Two thieves entered J. J. Thompson's jewelry store in Monroe avenue just before 6 o'clock at night and shot dead J. N. Thompson and Edward Smith, besides fatally wounding Paul Townsend, another clerk. They knocked down the owner of the store and escaped.

TWENTY YEARS

Makes a great difference in most women. They are troubled with "nerves"—they suffer from backache, headache, sleeplessness, a sensation of irritability or twitching, hot flashes, dizzy spells, or many other symptoms of female weakness. The local disorder and inflammation should be treated with Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets and the irregularity and weakness of the female system corrected and strengthened with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The strain upon the young woman or the woman of middle age—upon the nerve and blood forming structures—may be too great for her strength. This is the time to take this restorative tonic and strength-giving nervine and regulator. For over forty years sold by druggists for woman's peculiar weaknesses and distressing ailments. The one remedy so perfect in composition and so good in curative effects as to warrant its makers in printing its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. The one remedy which absolutely contains neither alcohol nor injurious or habit-forming drugs.

MRS. SCOTT.

"In the winter of 1908, I became greatly run down and irregular," writes MRS. HENRY SCOTT, of Swan Creek, Mich., Route 1, Box 43. "I slowly but surely grew worse, and, at last, resolved to apply to the doctors for help. The doctor said I had inflammation, enlargement and laceration. I was in bed eleven weeks and got no better. The doctor said I would have to have an operation, but to that I would not listen. My husband purchased two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I started to take this remedy I could not walk across the floor, but after I had taken three bottles I could feel myself gaining, so I dropped the doctor and took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Only for it I think I would have been dead—I really believe it saved my life. I feel better now than in twenty years."

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

HASTINGS-ON-HUDSON, N. Y. —The authorities who are trying to untangle the mystery of the murder of the man whose bleached skeleton was found near Rowleys Ravine, a half mile south of here, found two clues which may lead to the man's identification. Besides this they have a good description of the woman who was seen near the body just before it was discovered and are bending their efforts to find her.

CHICAGO — Four bold robbers, masked and armed, shot to death a stableman in the delivery station of Mandel Brothers at 2655 West Van Buren street just before 5 o'clock in the morning, overpowered and tied up three others who attempted to fight them off and finally cracked the safe and escaped with $2,000, which was to have been used in paying off employes.

MOUNT STERLING, ILL.—James F. Clark, committed suicide in the jail by eating glass that he had pulverized. A lamp chimney had been broken and a bottle from which he had been taking medicine could not be found. A quantity of glass was found in a saucer in a table drawer with a spoon and it is supposed that he had been swallowing it for some time.

Woman's Day

Instance of a Man Who Must Obey a Woman For Twelve Hours

By ELLEN P. BAXTER

A party of German Americans were drinking beer and listening to an orchestrion in a saloon with sawdust on the floor and stunted evergreens standing about in tubs. The sawdust they fancied to be the turf of the fatherland; the evergreens were to them the fir trees of their native forests; the orchestrion was the birds singing in the trees. Happy imagination that can derive comfort from such surroundings.

The conversation fell upon the advancement of women, which is attracting the attention of the world today.

"The advancement of women!" exclaims Carl Becker contemptuously. "Rather the decline of women. Fancy our German mothers and sisters and wives and sweethearts taking on as the English suffragists are now doing. What would the fatherland be today?"

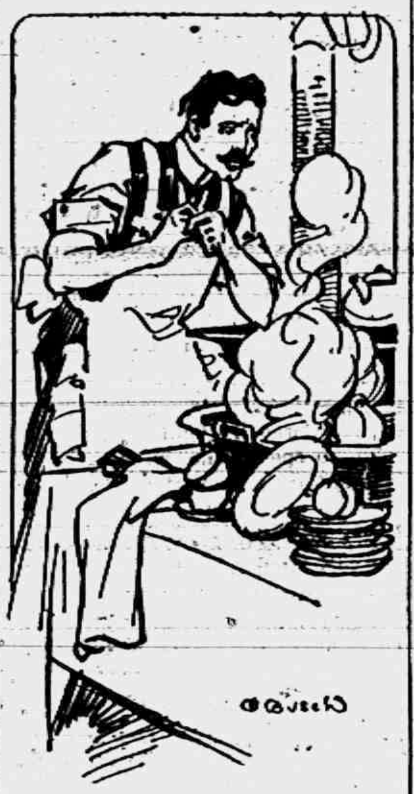
"Ach, Carl," retorted Hans Muller, "you can never advance beyond the little village in which you were born, where the men and the women have occupied the same relative position for hundreds of years. You are not up to these times, in which fewer women marry, and when women are obliged to support themselves they will not be content to play second fiddle."

"Tell us the story, Carl," suggested John Katz, "about the day you spent subservient to a woman. I have heard it myself, but the others haven't."

"Oh, that story! It is not much of a story."

"Tell it, Carl," cried several of the party at once. Rattling their mugs on the table, they called for more beer, and when it was served Carl Becker began as follows:

"My birthplace was Nordhastedt. There is a tradition there that some five or six centuries ago the town was attacked by robbers and the men after a hard fight were obliged to retreat. At this point the women, armed with such weapons as they could lay their hands upon, attacked the robbers and beat them.



"WHEN I PUT MY FINGERS INTO IT THEY WERE SCALDED."

"Ever since that time our people have at intervals set apart one day for a festival, during which the men turn over all authority to the women and are obedient to their slightest commands.

"Not long before I came away to America I courted Lena Reitze—Lena is my wife—and when one of those festival days that the men must obey the women came round I made arrangements to spend it with her. Lena had some brothers and sisters all younger than herself, including a baby. Herr Reitze he said to me: 'Carl, I and my wife go away on the woman's day, and we leave all the children for you and Lena to take care of. It will be a very good preparation for you to be a married couple. You will have a family on which to practice.'

"I thought that a good idea, but at that time I knew nothing about family matters, and it seems to me now that it was not a very good day when I must obey Lena to see how we would get on as man and wife with a family. I told Herr Reitze that I would go to his house and take his place early in the morning and stay there till he and his wife returned at night.

"When I got to the house Lena's father and mother were gone. I thought Lena and I would have a good time together that day, so I was very happy. Breakfast had been finished, but the dishes were on the table. Lena told me that she would only expect me to do half the work; but, of course, I must do what she tell me to do. She said I must clear the breakfast table. I thought that very easy work, so I take off all the dishes, while I sing a song to myself. Lena she give the baby his bath, for she say she would not trust me to do that. When I get the breakfast table cleared I shake the crumbs on the floor and fold up the cloth carefully and put it away. Then I sit down to rest.

"After awhile Lena come in and tell me to go get a broom and sweep up the crumbs. I don't like this very much, but I must obey, and when I get the crumbs in the dustpan I hit my foot against it and scatter them all over the floor again. Next time I was more careful and didn't have to sweep them up any more. When I got through with the job I call Lena, who was giving the baby his bath, to come and we go out to walk together.

"'Have you washed the dishes?' Lena called from above.

"'No. Must the dishes be washed?'

"'Of course,' she answered. 'You don't suppose we can eat on the same dishes forever without washing them. You'll find hot water on the stove.'

"I went into the kitchen and poured the boiling water into the pan, and when I put my fingers into it they were scalded. I danced around the kitchen in pain and called out to Lena to know if I must wash the dishes in boiling water. She said I was stupid not to put some cold water in too. I did this and washed the dishes and dried them and put them away.

"By this time it was 10 o'clock and I had had no fun at all. I thought surely now Lena would come downstairs and we could go out to walk and listen to the birds sing. Lena did come down, but with the baby in her arms, and she put him in mine, saying that I must take care of him while she attended to the wants of the younger children.

"I don't like this at all, but what could I do? It was the day when I must obey, so I took the baby from her, but he didn't wish to leave Lena and come to me, so he set up a yell loud enough to wake up his ancestors out in the churchyard. I talked to him and walked him and danced him up and down, but the more I persuaded him to be quiet the louder he yelled and kicked. I said to Lena, 'Take this baby yourself; I can't do anything with him.' To this she replied that I must keep him.

"I began to wish that the robbers who had brought about this custom had killed all the women so that we would not be afflicted with it, but I dare not disobey Lena; no man in the town dare disobey any woman in that town, for if he did all the people would turn against him for not respecting the time honored custom.

"I did one thing that shows that even in taking care of a baby a man, if he really brings his mind down to the problem, can do it better than a woman. They haven't the inventive power men have. I put the baby to sleep. How did I do that? Why, I began to blow into his eyes. He was obliged to shut them and keep them shut, and so he could do nothing but go to sleep."

The story teller paused to empty his beer mug, and all the others cried: "Bravo, Carl! You have shown that you are superior to a woman on her own ground."

Carl went on with his story:

"But putting the baby to sleep didn't do me any good, for Lena said the children would soon come in hungry and I must get the dinner.

"'Dinner!' I exclaimed. 'Why, I have only just got rid of the breakfast!'

"'We can't help that,' Lena answered. 'We must all eat, especially children.'

"'They eat all the time, don't they?'

"'Pretty nearly.'

"There were four dishes to be prepared for dinner and every one of them was burned, for how was I to attend to them all at once? My hands, which had been scalded in the morning, were burned at noon. When the dishes were set on the table the children made a howl, the baby began to cry and the dog barked. I put my hands to my ears and ran away from the house, and I didn't go back that day either.

"Soon it was known all over the town that I had been disobedient on woman's day, and everybody was talking about me. Some persons on meeting me cut me dead. It was 'Carl, how could you show such disrespect to woman's day, which has come down to us for five or six centuries? No man has ever done so before.' 'Himmel!' I cried. 'If it is so bad to obey the woman for one day, what must it be to obey her every day? I'm going to leave this village and go to America. If they have there a woman's day I will go somewhere else and keep on going till I find a place where no man has ever to obey a woman.'

"When Lena heard I was going to America she said she was going with me. 'If you do,' I said to her, 'and we find there is a woman's day there, you must understand that it is not to be observed in our family.' She agreed to this, and here we are in America. Lena takes care of the house and the children and I make the money for the family."

"Are you going to let your wife vote?" asked Hans Muller.

"No. If Lena votes I have to go back to that woman's day and do her work. You bet I don't do that. But I think Lena wouldn't have time to vote. She would be like the man who heard that the bank where he kept all his money had failed. He ran to the bank and demanded his money. The teller handed it out to him and the man said, 'If you got him I no want him.' I think my wife be like this man. If she can't vote she will want to vote. If she can vote she say to me: 'You vote in my place. I got to give the baby his bath.'"

"Nonsense, Carl," rejoined Muller. "The day for children is past. There's fewer marriages than formerly and seldom more than one child to a family. There's no reason why a woman should stay away from the polls all her life because of one or two years devoted to a baby."

"Well then," grunted Becker, "if the human race die out, what's the use of anybody voting?"

"I give it up," said Muller. "Let us listen to the music."

SPORTING AFFAIRS.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Two veterans of the ring, both former lightweight champions, whose last battle at Point Richmond, Cal., made ring history that will go down for ages, will probably come together again in a Milwaukee arena. Bat Nelson, the greatest of all assimilators of punishment and also a punisher of merit, has agreed to a ten-round bout with Ad Wolgast, his old enemy, the bout to take place Oct. 13. The battle is up to Wolgast, and his acceptance will mean that Bat will get into training once more.

NEW YORK—The Columbus, Ohio, baseball club is out a little less than $10,000, this because the management refused to accept Garry Herrmann's offer of $12,000 for King Cole. When the owner of the Cincinnati Reds made the bid it was promptly refused, yet the Yanks came along and drafted the former Cub for $2,500.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Henry D. Worrell, of Carthage, Ill., train auditor for the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad company, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor in a local hotel.

WOMAN LURED AND KILLED

No Clue to Murderers of Mrs. Mildred Allison, Rexroat Tango Teacher.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—The mutilated body of the well dressed woman found murdered under a viaduct of the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad near Wayne, a suburb, Friday night, has been identified as that of Mrs. Mildred Allison, Rexroat dancing teacher, who specialized in tango. The woman had been shot, the bullet entering the jaw and lodging in the brain.

The woman was enticed to Wayne Friday night on the pretext of giving a lesson in the tango to a class of young men of Wheaton. She was lured for a walk at nightfall.

She was shot through the head. Her body was dragged and thrown on the tracks. The murderer evidently hoped a train would obliterate the traces of the bullet which pierced her brain. She was robbed of such money as she had and of $400 worth of diamonds. A suit case and other effects were taken by the slayer.

A warrant has been sworn out charging Everett A. Rexroat, the victim's husband, with murder, and Sheriff Kuhn of Du Page county and two deputies will soon make the arrest.

Rexroat and his wife had been living apart, and he was under suspicion when the woman's body was found. He established what looked like a good alibi by convincing the authorities that he was at his father's farm near Macomb, Ill., on Friday night. Later information has been received that the Macomb alibi is false, and in consequence the warrant was taken out.

Engineer Who Figured in Wreck Disaster Drops Dead.

When a train on the New Haven road crashed into the rear end of another on June 12, resulting in the instant death of six persons, Engineer Charles Doherty asserted that the brakes on his engine were no good. The officials of the road said the engine was in good condition. The engineer escaped death in the wreck, but could not stand the criticism, and three months after the catastrophe dropped dead. In this picture he is shown testifying at the investigation into the wreck.

Jury Clears Husband Who Shot Detroit Doctor on Wife's Story.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29.—Charles Newman, charged with shooting Dr. Hugh Mulheren of Detroit following an alleged attack on Newman's wife by the doctor, was acquitted by a jury in Judge Connolly's court after an all-day session of court.

The spectators in the courtroom crowded to the box and clamored to shake the hands of the jurors. Many of them congratulated Newman as he walked in a dazed fashion toward his wife, who sat just inside the railing of the court.

MANY KILLED IN RACE RIOT

Two Drunk Negro Boys Start Trouble in Mississippi.

WHISKY AND COCAINE CAUSE

Four White Men Killed and Several Seriously Injured—Assailants Opened on Their Own Race, Killing Nine and Wounding Many More—Both Afterwards Lynched.

Vicksburg, Miss., Sept. 29.—As a result of a drunken spree by two negro brothers, Walter and Willie Jones, aged sixteen and eighteen respectively, three prominent white citizens of Harristown, Miss., are dead and five others are dangerously wounded and nine negroes are dead and quite a number wounded.

Whites Dead and Injured.

The white dead are: Sheriff Hammett, Claude Freeman and B. E. Kingsley. The white dangerously wounded are: Conductor Ed. Appleby, Flagman Will Bond of Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroad; Circuit Clerk Whitmore, L. McCaulay, Robert Kingsley.

Negroes Start on Negroes.

The trouble started at an early hour in the morning when the Jones brothers went down to "negrotown" and there fired several shots at random in their drunken debauch and a negro or two were killed.

When Sheriff Hammett was informed of the trouble he started out immediately with a posse. The negroes were surrounded and barricaded in an old house from which they fired continually and killed the white citizens who were attempting to capture the barricaded negroes.

Walter Jones was killed by the posse and later in the morning Willie Jones was captured and hanged to a post in front of the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley passenger station. The Town of Harrison was wildly excited from the time the trouble started and when the white citizens were killed the people formed in a large posse and went out to conquer the young desperadoes. The only cause of the triple tragedy in "negrotown" which opened the hostilities, as far as anyone can learn, was that the two Jones boys were full of whiskey and cocaine and ran amuck.

Officials from Vicksburg went to Harriston on the morning train to assist in the quelling of the trouble. They were headed by Sheriff J. L. Hyland, Chief of Police Groon, Assistant Chief of Police States, a number of deputies and police officers, Special Agent Appleby of the Y. and M. V. railroad, and Special Agent Earls.

A special train was also run from Natchez to Harriston, conveying a detachment of state militia ordered out when there seemed to be a feeling that the trouble might terminate in a race war.

Kingsley was called to his door and shot from ambush, afterward dying. Conductor Appleby, Night Clerk Kingsley and McCaulay and Thad. Ross also were shot and seriously wounded while they were on the depot platform.

Citizens from Natchez, Fayette and surrounding country headed by Judge Jeff Truly and Sheriff Mike Ryan of Natchez formed the posse of original searchers.

A white man, apprehended late at night and charged with the elicit sale of cocaine-whisky, was hurriedly taken to Natchez under heavy guard.

INMATES' ESCAPE IS FOILED

Doubling of Force at Pontiac Stops Plot of One Hundred Boys.

Pontiac, Ill., Sept. 29.—The plot of one hundred inmates employed in the chair shop of the Illinois state reformatory here to escape by rushing the south gate in the wall surrounding the institution was frustrated when the number of guards at that point was doubled.

The playground of the institution is directly opposite the south gate and it was the plan of the boys to rush this gate when it was opened to allow some one to pass through, while they were enjoying their recreation hour. Officials learned of their plans. Officer Hoke was attacked by an inmate and both were injured.

MISSING BOY WRITES HOME

Bernard Kaessn of Quincy, Mourned as Dead, Is With Army in China.

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 29.—Two years ago Bernard Kaessn, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Kaessn of this city, mysteriously disappeared from his home, and, as all efforts to find him were fruitless, the parents mourned him as dead. Mrs. Kaessn was surprised and overjoyed by receiving a letter from the lost one dated Tien Tsin, China, saying that when he left home on May 8, 1911, he enlisted in the Fifteenth infantry regiment, United States army, which was soon ordered to the Philippines, and from there to China.

He gave his parents assurance of returning home when the term of his enlistment expired in 1914.

VICTIMS COVER THREE STATES

Heaviest Losers By Miss Sturtevant's Alleged Swindle.

GIRLS TREATED SHAMEFULLY

Earned Hundreds of Dollars Under Promise of Going to College and Compelled to Settle for Pittance—All Forced to Abandon Cherished Plans—Only One Paid in Full.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—A list of a large number of college girls, who are victims of the alleged swindling operations of Miss Mabel Sturtevant, head of the Associated College workers, was given the United States authorities. The following is the list, the amount of their earnings and what they settled for:

Some of the Victims.

Florence Schreuder, of Kalamazoo, Mich., now living at the Y. W. C. A., was given a promise of sufficient funds to take a course at the Emerson School of Oratory at Boston. Not less than $200. Settled for $10.

Elenor Schmalzried, of Maywood, Ill., had earned $400 and planned to enter University of Chicago. Settled for $100. Had to abandon her plan to go to college.

Gertrude Schellhorn, of Des Moines, Ia., had earned $500. Settled for $15. Was forced to abandon her plan of entering the Pratt Are institute, New York. Now employed as a teacher in Chicago.

Bertha Milward, 1435 East Sixty-fifth place. Earned $300 during the summer. Settled for $26. Was forced to abandon her plan of studying at the Chicago Kindergarden college.

Abigail Shipley, of Oak Park, Ill., earned $400 and forced Miss Sturtevant to pay her the full amount. Miss Shipley said she was one of the first girls to become suspicious when she received two checks from her on the Maywood State bank. Miss Shipley was a student at the University of Chicago and gave the checks as payment for tuition. The checks were returned marked "insufficient funds."

Gertrude Burke, 729 West Forty-eighth street, earned $400 and settled for $180. She was compelled to accept aid from the Gordon Strong estate in order to continue her studies.

Edna Walker, 17 North Pine street, Austin, Ill., earned $400 by working all summer in Miss Sturtevant's office in the McCormick building. Settled for $10. Had to abandon her plan to attend the University of Illinois.

Helen Weichel, of Elgin, Ill., had earned $300 and settled for $25. She was a student at Lewis institute.

Elizabeth Brophy, of Elgin, Ill., had earned $300 and settled for $30. Also a student at Lewis.

Mabel Keeg, of Lockport, Ill., co-ed at Northwestern university, earned $400 and settled for $15.

Victoria Jorjorian, 1121 Ainslie avenue, student at the University of Chicago medical school, earned $330 and settled for $13.

Julia Collins, of Chicago, a student at the Valparaiso college, earned $350 and settled for $20. An instructor at the college gave her work so she could finish her course.

Safe Assumption.

Apropos of a marriage that threatened to turn out badly a society woman uttered an appropriate and very true epigram.

"So Mr. Blanc," she said, "is saying at the club that he's sorry he ever married."

Then she smiled and added:

"Well, when a man tells his friends he's sorry he married it's safe to assume that his wife is sorry too."—New York Tribune.

AMERICANS TO GAIN MILLIONS

Claim of Great Importance Made for Currency Bill.

AMERICAN BANKS ENLARGED

Provision for Chartering Branch National Banks in Foreign Countries Will Protect United States Merchants from Throat Cutting Tactics of Competitors.

Washington, Sept. 29.—The saving of millions of dollars each year is predicted as a result of the provision in the administration currency bill permitting national banks of the United States to establish branches abroad.

It is declared that American exporters have been paying an annual tribute of millions of dollars to European banks having branches in the countries with which the United States trades most. This is especially true of conditions in South and Central America. The leaders in South America trade with whom Americans are engaged in the severest competition are Great Britain, Germany and Italy. All of these countries have banks in South American countries, through which the American exporter must do business.

Foreign Banks Cut American Throats.

Not only have these banks reaped tremendous profits out of the business but there is a vast amout of evidence to show that they deliberately endeavor to cut the throats of their American competitors. It has been repeatedly shown that banks handling invoices of American exports to South America copy the information as to prices, etc., contained therein and pass on such information to exporters of their own nationality. This of course, puts the Americans at a tremendous disadvantage, as it puts in the hands of his competitor all confidential knowledge about his business on the basis of which the foreigner can go ahead and cut in on the American trade.

It is believed that the branch banks which the currency bill contemplates will prove of inestimable value as sources of information alone.

Representative Bulkley of Ohio, is one of the members of the majority party in the house, who has given this matter some attention and he has reached the conclusion that the provisions for branch banks abroad is one of the strongest arguments in favor of the pending bill.

WANTED TO GO TO OXFORD

Department Store Errand Boy Steals $1,400 from His Employers.

New York, Sept. 29.—Wilbert Foerste, a seventeen-year-old high school boy, robbed the Cleveland department store for which he worked as an errand boy of $1,400 and was arrested with the money in his pockets here on a New York Central train.

He stated that it had been his ambition to enter Oxford university, and that when he suddenly found $1,400 in cash in his hands, he could not resist temptation. He had planned to sail on the Mauretania at 1 a. m., Wednesday. He had determined, he said, to go straight to Oxford and to enter a preparatory school which could fit him for a university course.

Pindell Goes to Russia.

Washington, Sept. 29.—It is announced that President Wilson has offered H. M. Pindell of Peoria the post of ambassador to Russia. Mr. Pindell is now on his way to Washington to confer with the president and the secretary of state. He will accept the position.

HOW IS THIS FOR A CORONER'S JURY?

Morgan, Astor, Gould, Belmont. Vanderbilt and Old John D.

New York, Sept. 29.—Coroner Feinberg has served summonses on thirty-eight of the best known business men in New York city requiring them to be present at the coroner's court next Friday as a panel from which to select a jury for the inquest into the death of Anna Aumüller, the rectory maid, who Hans Schmidt has confessed he murdered.

The coroner's reason for calling so exceptional a jury, he said, is to provide a precedent in case any question of the corpus delicti, the identity of the body should come up. Coroner Feinberg believes that future juries would be guided by the decision of this jury.

Among the men it is proposed to select a jury from are: Theodore P. Shonts, Robert L. Gerry, Harry Payne Whitney, J. P. Morgan, Vincent Astor, George Gould, August Belmont, Cornelius Vanderbilt and John D. Rockefeller.

REWARD FOR RUMSEY GEMS

Burns Agency Offers $20,000 for Return of Stolen Jewelry.

New York, Sept. 29.—A reward of $20,000 has been offered by the Burns detective agency for the recovery of the jewelry stolen from the home of Mrs. C. C. Rumsey at Narragansett Pier on the night of July 26.

There was $75,000 worth of jewelry stolen, including two necklaces containing 360 pearls.

SHERIFF CANDIDATE KILLED

"Bill" Schuster, Proprietor of Savoy Hotel, Shoots Otto Hoefer.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 29.—Otto Hoefer, candidate for sheriff on the Democratic ticket was shot and killed by "Bill" Schuster, proprietor of the Savoy hotel. Hoefer was shot in the left cheek under the eye. Schuster was arrested and is in jail without bonds. He refuses to make a statement.

Only two eyewitnesses, George Coyner and H. J. Lake, were present when the shooting occurred. According to their versions of the shooting there were practically no words. The shooting took place in the barroom of the Savoy. Coyner and Lake assert the men were quarreling, but what it was about they do not know.

Gen. Booth to Visit U. S.

London, Sept. 29.—General Bramwell Booth, chief of the salvation army, sails on the Imperator October 24 for a stay of a month in the United States and Canada, visiting New York, Chicago, Toronto and Winnipeg.

THAW GETS ANOTHER WEEK

Gov. Felker Gives Two More Days for Filing Briefs.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 29.—Governor Felker granted Harry Thaw's counsel an additional two days in which to prepare their briefs. Consequently, the briefs will not be filed until Monday, Oct. 6.

The governor promises that his decision to extradite Thaw or to give him his liberty in New Hampshire will be given Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

Republicans Must Travel.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 29.—Republican postmasters in Illinois will be replaced with Democrats just as soon as postoffice inspectors, acting under a general order from Postmaster General Burleson, can get around and prefer the necessary charges. This word is brought to Illinois by Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman.

The Color Schemer

He Schemed Not Wisely, but Too Well

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Timothy Brooks paused before Ben Marshall's gate and whistled shrilly for his friend.

Ben thrust shirt sleeves and a rumpled head through the window of his room. "Wait a minute—I'll be down," he called; Timothy heard his spasmodic gurgles as Ben's whistled melody was interrupted by a struggle with the "choker"; his sunburned throat resented.

At last he appeared, flushed of face, rather wrinkled as to choking collar, with a brand new scarf of brilliant orange streaking down thin his vest. Timothy's watchful eye saw the scarf and marveled, for it was of the same hue as Ben's orange hair and a few shades lighter than his freckles. On top of the brilliant hair was one of those little green hats, tipped rakishly over one eye and cocked aggressively upon the opposite side with a foolish little red feather stuck in the band.

As they went down the street Ben Marshall was acutely conscious of Timothy's inspection.

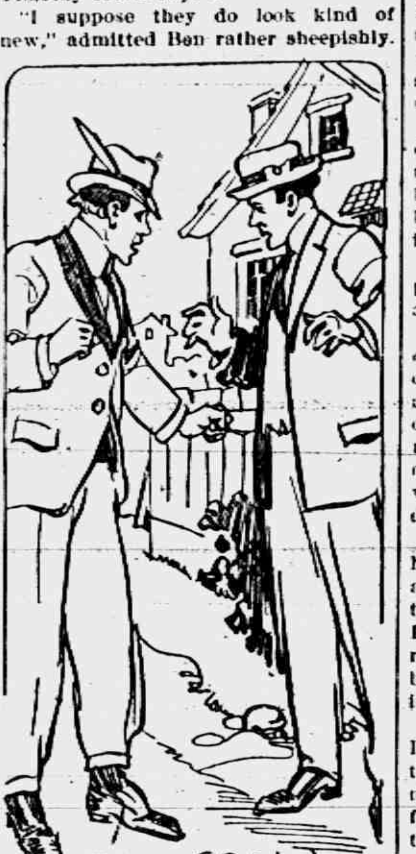
"Well?" he asked sharply. "What's the matter with you?"

"What's the matter with you?" exploded Timothy wrathfully. "You look like—look like"— He stopped and searched for a happy simile.

"I look like what?" demanded Ben.

"Just like a yellow carrot with a little bunch of green on top," finished Timothy scornfully.

"I suppose they do look kind of new," admitted Ben rather sheepishly.



"I LOOK LIKE WHAT?" DEMANDED BEN.

"I got 'em over to Hampden, and the clerk there said he'd pick out a color scheme for me."

"It's a scheme, all right, Benny, if you bought that hat and necktie at Bloomer's."

"I did."

"Was the clerk a black haired fellow with a narrow face?" asked Timothy with interest.

"Sure. Do you know him?"

"No, but I guess Flora does." Timothy's tone was significant in its emphasis.

Ben reddened deeply, further developing his "color scheme." "You mean he goes to see her?" he asked in a surly tone.

"I've seen him taking her to ride in a Hampden rig," explained Timothy. "And his putting that color scheme on you makes me think he did it to make you look like a fool before Flora Mills.

Ben stopped short and faced about. "I'm going back home to take these off," he choked, pulling at the offending orange scarf. "No fellow's going to make a fool out of me—not if I know it!" he fumed.

"It's getting late," suggested Timothy. "We told those girls we'd stop for 'em at 7:30, and it's that now. If we want to get to the moving picture show on time we got to take the 7:45 ferry across the river."

"Oh, well!" growled Ben, now quite dissatisfied with his appearance, and he turned and walked on beside his companion.

On the front porch of the Mills house the two sisters, Flora and Dora, were awaiting them. Both were dressed in white, and they were equally pretty. Only Timothy and Ben disagreed about that. Timothy thought that Dora was the loveliest, and Ben contended that Flora's beauty was superior in every way to that of her younger sister.

When the two young men came up the walk a very queer look came into Flora Mills' gray eyes. In one flashing glance she saw the green hat, the red feather, the orange necktie, the flaming hair and the freckles. Ben Marshall had always dressed quietly in grays or browns. What strange freak had prompted him to array himself as no self respecting peacock would have done?

Perhaps the answer to that question was in Flora's heart, for all at once a lovely flush tinted her cheek and the queer look in her eyes changed to something softer. Without apparently noticing the vivid attire of her escort she talked commonplaces all the way down to the ferry landing.

Timothy and Dora, walking behind, smiled once as a vagrant breeze lifted the green hat from Ben's head to lead him a merry chase before he recovered it and once more placed it on his ————.

"What possessed Ben to do it?" whispered Dora, her eyes brimming with mirth.

"You know Willie Perkins?" asked Timothy, by way of reply.

Dora nodded scornfully. "I detest him and I believe Flora does, too. I don't see why she permits his attentions unless it is because she is too soft hearted to turn him away. Do you know he is going to sing tonight at the show?"

"I didn't know it. Ben bought those things from him in Bloomers, and he told Ben it was a 'color scheme.' If he knew we were going to the show tonight I'd say he did it on purpose."

"He did know we were going. So he's the one who rigged Ben up like a minstrel, is he?" Dora was indignant.

"New way to foil your rival, you know," said Timothy dryly.

Ben Marshall's brilliant attire attracted more attention than that modest young man desired, and before they entered the darkened interior of the picture show he was wishing he had never attempted to make himself more attractive in the eyes of the girl he loved. "I'm too blamed homely to play tricks with myself," he thought moodily. "I expect Flora thinks I'm pretty mean to make myself and the rest of 'em so conspicuous. When I get home I guess I'll make one bonfire!"

The reels passed before their eyes, revealing one picture after another, weaving romance and tragedy until the last scene vanished. The pianist paused for breath and then broke into a soft prelude, a colored sheet of music was thrown on the screen and William Perkins appeared upon the stage.

If Ben Marshall was a color scheme in his orange and green tints, Mr. Perkins was a symphony in lavender and gray. For an instant the spot light held him in its white circle and displayed a perfectly fitting gray suit, a pale lavender shirt with a scarf of violet silk. A lavender silk handkerchief protruded from his upper coat pocket, and his low cut shoes displayed silk hosiery of the same delicate hue. Mr. Perkins might not have been appropriately dressed for the occasion, but certainly the effect was most pleasing to the young women of the audience.

Mr. Perkins sang a love song illustrated with sentimental pictures, and he rolled his light eyes at Flora Mills and shook his dark locks of hair and exercised the tremolo of his voice in the tender passages. Flora looked at the pictures, a scornful smile curving her lips. Poor Ben thought she was comparing his outlandish garments with the sartorial glories of the singer and was very miserable. Willie Perkins had the same idea and was equally happy.

Another picture song flashed upon the screen, and the little group of four were startled into close attention. There upon the cover was a Tyrolean peasant waving the duplicate of Ben Marshall's foolish green hat. Then the page turned, the piano rippled and was still, and then burst forth a startling yodeling song from the triumphant lips of Willie Perkins.

Poor Ben crushed his green hat under the seat and stared miserably at the pictures on the screen. Flora sat beside him, very straight and cool, and beyond her were Dora and Timothy, indignant and uncomfortable.

Surely Willie Perkins had spared no pains to present his rival in a foolish aspect before his sweetheart.

Poor Ben's interest in the show was entirely gone. His whole mind was occupied with very bitter thoughts against his rival, who had rigged him out in such an outlandish color scheme merely to be a foil to his own exquisite selection. He was thankful when the entertainment came to a close.

The four were very silent on the homeward way. The night was warm, and a full moon silvered the river. As they left the ferryboat Ben tucked Flora's hand under his arm and was rejoiced that she did not resist his boldness. In the shadow of a drooping tree he stopped for an instant.

"Flora," he choked, "you must think I'm an awful fool to rig myself up like this. And I don't suppose you'd marry me, Flora?" This last question popped from Ben's agitated throat with startling suddenness and was prompted by a realization that Flora was close to him, that her hand was not withdrawn, that his pressure was returned by her fingers and her face was temptingly near his own.

So he had his answer, and Flora told him that she knew why he had arrayed himself in such gorgeous plumage, and he kissed her again. When they reached home they found Timothy and Dora just cementing their betrothal in the approved manner, and for a moment the congratulations were confused and happy.

At last Dora laughed merrily. "I suppose we can thank that color schemer, Willie Perkins, for this." She swept the porch with a little gesture

Ben Marshall tossed his green hat in the air with an exultant whoop. "Flora, I'm going to keep this hat forever," he said.

"If you don't I shall," said Flora calmly.

It was only a few weeks later that the engagement of the two sisters was announced. Then it was that Willie Perkins discovered that his "color scheme," so nicely planned for his rival, had not worked to his own advantage.

This Time the Lawyer Scored.

A lawyer appeared before one of the New York city boards asking that damages be awarded to certain clients because of a change of grade in their street. When he had completed his argument the president said: "Mr. Blank, you ought to know better than to take up the time of this board in this manner. You are too good a lawyer not to allow that on your own presentation of facts these people have not the shadow of a legal claim against the city." "Your remarks are fully justified, Mr. President," said Mr. Blank. "I not only expected them, but you have done me a favor by making them. There are times when a lawyer is so pushed by his clients who seem to know more about the law than he does that the only thing he can do is to let them come up against it themselves. They probably know as much about it now as I did before. I thank you for your attention." With that he took up his books and left the room, followed by a half dozen crestfallen clients.

Coast Guards In England.

Should a coast guard in Great Britain stationed at any particular place fall in love there, say, with the village beauty, his marriage is instantly followed by his transfer to another and generally far distant station. The reason for this is that in the old days, when smuggling was universal at small coast towns, the marriage of a coast guard with a girl living in the locality was considered dangerous, as it might interfere with him in the discharge of his duties should any of the smuggling parties be among his wife's relatives, and a regulation was framed compelling the newly married man to be instantly transferred elsewhere. To this day, therefore, and in places where smuggling is an unheard of practice, the unfortunate coast guard, directly after his marriage, must drag his wife away from the home of her youth and her family ties and dwell where she could have little chance of revisiting her people.

AMUSEMENTS

THE GREAT DIVIDE

The management of the Bradley announces "The Great Divide" as the attraction this week, Thursday October 2. Henry Vaughn Moody, the author of this great American play totally unlike those protrayed in trashy offerings usually depicted in cheap dramatic sensations. A play of deep and vital passions written with rare naturalism and beautifully acted, "The Great Divide" sets a new mark in American drama.

In no story of Western American life have we come in touch with characters so strangely contrasted in nature as those of Stephen Ghent and Ruth Jordan, the central figures in the play. This man and woman are untrammeled in mind and action, the woman in whose life and habits are ingrained the traditions and conventionalities of a long line of Puritan ancestors. Strange as has been their wooing, stranger still is their life together, their separation and their final reconciliation. In the unfolding of this intensely interesting story, its three acts are crowded with interest, charged with passion and filled with action. The big second act will be familiar to every one with a knowledge of the Cordilleras, a plateau on "the roof of the world" from which summit is seen the vast expanse of mountainous country, "its valleys and foot hills winding their way to the top of the great divide, truly named one of the seven wonders of the world.

Mr. C. S. Primrose, the producer, has secured a complete scenic production.

"THE GIRL AND THE BARON"

A small but well pleased house greeted the Girl and the Baron at Bradleys Opera House Friday evening September 26.

The parts of Baron Von Hefes was well taken by Nat S. Ferber who succeeded in keeping the house in good humor.

Miss Eva Malvin as the girl, Alice Gay was exceedingly well taken while the singing and chorus work was very good.

The company carried some fine scenery and the costumes used were very pretty and worthy of mention.

The company is composed of about 30 people.

A FRENCH PRESIDENT'S REQUEST TO LEARNING

As a young man who had received his diploma from the University, Louis Adolphe Thiers found himself face to face with the problem of abandoning his ideals of scholarship and research or of enduring personal hardships that threatened to undermine his health and diminish his future usefulness. With a brave heart he made the necessary sacrifices, sometimes living literally upon bread and water, in order to obtain the books necessary for his studies. When in later life he became a celebrated writer, a minister of state and finally President of the French Republic, he never ceased to recall the privations of his youth, and to meditate upon a plan for providing a certain number of meritorious young men with the means of prosecuting their favorite studies and arrivion at eminence in them without the hard struggle and privations which had embittered his unhappy youth.

Preoccupied until his death with important public duties, Thiers was never able to carry out his intention. Faithful to her husband's noble purpose, Madame Theirs, at her death, made her sister, Mademoiselle Dosne, her residuary legatee, on condition that she should found an institution which would realize the dream of the great historian.

With a spirit of devotion that enentitles her to the highest praise, Mademoiselle Dosne resolved to execute in her own lifetime the trust imposed upon her, and to create a home for a limited number of young men, where, in perfect tranquility, under the guidance of an accomplished director, and without anxiety regarding peouniary matters, they might pass a number of years in proseeuting their researches, and thus be fitted for careers of distinguished usefulness. In fulfilment of this resolve, the institution was founded by her in the year 1892.—From "The 'Foundation Thiers,'" by David Jayne Hill, in the American Review of Reviews for October.

Brazil's Wonderful Tree.

The most marvelous tree in the world is the Carnahuba palm, which grows in Brazil. Its roots produce the same medicinal effect as sarsaparilla. From parts of the tree wine and vinegar are made. Its fruit is used for feeding cattle. Of the straw, hats, baskets, brooms and mats are made. It is also used for thatching houses. The pulp has an agreeable taste, and the nut is sometimes used as a substitute for coffee. Its stems afford strong, light fibers and serve also for joists, rafters and other building materials. It yields a saccharine substance, as well as a starch resembling sago. Of the wood of the stem musical instruments, water tubes and pumps are made. From the stem a white liquid similar to milk of the cocoanut may be extracted. Moreover, salt is extracted from the tree and likewise an alkali used in the manufacture of common soap.

Father's Reason.

Young Harold was late in attendance for Sunday school, and the minister inquired the cause.

"I was going fishing, but father wouldn't let me," announced the lad.

"That's the right kind of a father to have," replied the reverend gentleman. "Did he explain the reason why he would not let you go?"

"Yes, sir. He said there wasn't bait enough for two."—Harper's Magazine.

A Duty Well Done.

The teacher had been giving a long lecture to the juvenile class on the subject of morals.

"Now, Harry," she said, "what is our duty toward our neighbors?"

"To keep an eye on 'em," was the reply.—Exchange.

High School Notes

We see by the Adrian paper that we were not the only high school to get a beating by the Blissfield eleven. They were beaten by the same method that we were: the forward pass. Blissfield outweighed us tremendously, they were heavier than Adrian high also.

The "Prof." has issued a law against putting up colors on the High School; we were very sorry.

We cordially invite all taxpayers and voters to visit our school building and if they don't go to the poles and vote us a new one it won't be because we don't need it.

Most of the different classes have taken their regular monthly "exams"

The Daily Alhambran Advocate of Alhambra, Cal., bearing date Sept. 23, 1913, is before us. It is a very neat little sheet 15x22 inches with six columns, is printed in a very clear type. It has some thirty advertising cards with three large display ads of the banks. The classified advertising department is quite large and interesting.

DR. HARTZOG'S LECTURES

For four years it has been Dr Hartzog's custom to deliver a special course of Sunday evening lectures during the fall and winter months. They have been a feature of his ministry. Last year his course on "Influential Religions", attracted the attention of college men and he was invited to deliver them before the students and professors of Hillsdale College. He has been invited to give another course of lectures there this year. Next Sunday he begins his fifth year as pastor of the Baptist church. He will lecture at 7 o'clock on, "Are world conditions favorable to the extension of the Kingdom of God?"

The public is invited.

89th BIRTHDAY

Mrs. A. J. North, mother of Dr. L. G. North celebrated her 89th birthday Sept. 27. Her daughter-in-law invited her granddaughter and great grandchildren, Mrs. Chas Williamson and four children, with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hyde who had been her next door neighbors since 1867 some forty-six years. Mrs. North is in fairly good health, though quite feeble, and enjoyed the social gathering very much.

JAMES A. SMYTH

Died at his home in Grand Rapids, Saturday Sept 20, 1913. James A. Smyth aged 56 years. The funeral was held Tuesday the 23rd with burial in Oakhill cemetery.

Mr. Smyth was at one time a resident of Tecumseh and was employed by the late A. W. Slayton in his furniture store and later was in the Grocery with James Lowery.

He married Miss Emma Smith daughter of Charles Smith who were then residents of Tecumseh later making their home in Grand Rapids.

DAUGHTER OF AUNT LAURA HAVILAND DEAD

Mrs. C. A. Slayton has received word of the death of her aunt, Mrs. Mira Laing Blancher at Santa Barbora Calif. Sept. 25. She had gone to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Laura Laing Mitchell who is Supt. of Cottage Hospital at Santa Barbara when taken with the serious kidney trouble that caused her death.

Mrs. Blancher was the youngest daughter of aunt Laura Haviland and like her mother was one who truely lived for others and her happy cheerful personality was an inspiration to all who came in touch with her.

Aged Preachers In Germany.

The shamefully inadequate provision made for the support of the aged ministers of the gospel of most denominations in this country is in marked contrast to the superb provision made for them in Germany. There, it is stated, the young minister gets a minimum salary, usually $500 and a parsonage. This salary is increased every few years until at sixty-five the minister, even if he has changed his parish, receives $2,500, the largest compensation permissible, to which is to be added the use of the parsonage and certain fees given him. At sixty-five the minister can withdraw on a pension if he shall so elect or if the parish shall so desire, or he can continue by general consent five years longer. On withdrawing he receives as a pension for the rest of his life two-thirds of his last and highest salary. On his death his widow receives an adequate pension for the remainder of her days and also each of her children until their sixteenth or eighteenth year.—Christian Herald.

MICHIGANDERS AT LONG BEACH

Through the courtesy of Charles Eldridge our old Tecumseh boy at Alhambra, Cal., we have before us The Daily Alhambran Advocate with a glowing account of the mid year picnic of the Michigan State Society of Southern California, held at Long Beach.

Alhambra was represented by about forty guests and the crowd numbered over 4000. After a basket dinner had been disposed of the Municipal band of Long Beach favored the company with some fine selections, and opened up the program of the day. Mayor Ira S. Hatch of Long Beach gave the address of welcome Oto Blain President of the State Society responding.

Dr. G. P. Waring an old friend of Ridgeway and Tecumseh, was introduced and favored the company with an original poem. "California and My Michigan" being his theme. Mr. Waring's affections seem some what divided between the two States, but we fear he is becoming alienated from his old Michigan home. One would think that we were in the midst of cyclones and blizzards most of the time, which we are not. California is all right but Michigan is all right also.

Mark Twain's Retort.

At a hotel in Jericho was an American who had accompanied Mark Twain on his camping trip through the Holy Land.

"No, sir," said he in the course of the evening's conversation, "I cannot recall a single instance when the humorist was caught napping. Once we thought we had him sure. Mr. Twain came late to the dinner table, when we had sat down, and before he appeared we had invented a clever trap.

"He was still several courses behind when the rest of us were ready for salad, but every one stopped eating until Mr. Twain caught up. He had started intently on a crisp leaf of lettuce before he noticed that no one else was eating. He paused questioningly. That was our opportunity.

"'Now, Mr. Twain,' some one asked, 'why are you like Nebuchadnezzar?' expecting that the answer would imply that it was because he was eating grass like an ox. Instead, and without an instant's hesitation, came the retort:

"'Because I am feeding with the brutes.'"—Pearson's Weekly.

PRACTICAL BAKING LESSONS

PAPER BAG COOKERY

Cooking in Paper Bags, for meat, vegetables and pastries is becoming so popular that recipes for this method are greatly in demand. Many articles are greatly improved by using paper bags. One can buy the especially prepared bags at all grocers in assorted sizes at a very small cost. Below I will give you a few recipes which I have found are much finer in the bags than baked in the open oven.

Nevada Briggs

3

Apple Dumplings
Paper Bagged

2 cups sifted pastry flour ½ teaspoonful salt
2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder
About ¾ to 1 cup milk ¼ cup shortening
Cinnamon or nutmeg Sugar

Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder and salt; work in the shortening and mix to a dough with milk as needed; roll into a square sheet one-third inch thick and cut into four pieces. Lay a cored and pared apple on each piece, fill the center with sugar and cinnamon, then draw up the dough to cover the apple; make smooth and place in a well-buttered paper bag, giving plenty of space in the bag for the dumplings to rise. In using the bags, oil the entire inner surface, have the seam side up and pin mouth of the bag securely. Place the bag on a shallow pan. Have a slow oven when the bag is placed in the oven and increase heat later. I find the most frequent mistake in using bags is to have the oven too hot. It takes much less heat to bake in a paper bag than in the open oven. To determine when the apple dumpling is baked, make a small hole in the top of the bag and test with a fork. You will find apple dumplings baked in bags are delicious, the pastry being very light and soft. So often apple dumplings baked in the old way in the open oven have a very hard crust.

Serve dumplings with cream or Hard Sauce.

Hard Sauce

Beat half a cup of butter to a cream, gradually beat in one cup of sugar and press into a dome shape on a glass or china plate. Grate a little nutmeg over the top.

Beef Roll in Paper Bags

3 cups flour 1 teaspoonful salt
¼ cup shortening Sweet milk
2 beaten eggs Grating of onion
3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder
1 cup each, chopped cooked beef and ham
1 teaspoonful mixed mustard
¼ teaspoonful each, salt and pepper
Broth or water

Mix a biscuit dough of the flour, salt, baking powder, shortening and milk, and roll into a sheet half an inch thick, having the ends even. Mix the other ingredients by themselves, using liquid as needed to make a paste. Spread the paste over the dough and roll like a jelly roll.

Other cooked meats may be used in the same way. Often we have several different kinds of cold meats left, with not enough of any one kind for a particular purpose. One can use these several kinds putting them through the food chopper, using two cups of this chopped meat, seasoning as desired. For baking in the paper bag prepare the bag as for apple dumplings and bake by same rules. Serve with a brown gravy.

Brown Gravy

2 tablespoonfuls of butter, ½ teaspoonful of beef extract; brown this with one tablespoonful of flour, add 1½ cups of cold water, salt and pepper to taste and cook ten minutes. 2 tablespoonfuls of beef frying may be used instead of the butter for gravies. Always use cold water to avoid lumping.

Left Over Sausages
In Paper Bags

2 cups sifted flour ½ teaspoonful salt
Milk or water Cooked sausage
2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder
2 to 4 tablespoonfuls shortening

Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder and salt; work in the shortening and add milk or water to make a dough. Roll into a thin sheet, cut into squares or rounds according to shape of sausage. Lay the sausage on the pieces of dough, brush the edges with cold water and fold to cover sausage. Place in the paper bags the same as apple dumplings. Serve hot with gravy made by browning flour in sausage fryings instead of butter or beef fryings as in brown gravy.

General Rules for Paper Bag Baking

1. Use only bags especially made for cooking.
2. Always grease the entire inside surface of the bag for meats and pastries.
3. Lay bag on the pan seam side up.
4. Always pin the mouth of the bag securely.
5. In a gas oven place the bag on the grate of the broiler pan, placing the broiler pan in the upper oven.
6. Above all don't have a hot oven; it burns the bag and makes it brittle and easily broken. Have a slow even heat for bag cooking. Remember food cooked in bags will cook more quickly and with less heat.
7. All kinds of meat, fish and fowl are excellent cooked in bags, all the natural flavor and juices being retained. Place the meat, fish or fowl in the well oiled bag, using the oven directions above. Allow 15 minutes to each pound.
8. For all kinds of pastry, I recommend the use of K C Baking Powder, especially where slow baking is required. K C is really a blend of two baking powders, one of which acts as soon as moisture is added; the other is inactive until heat is applied; the two together keep up a sustained raise until the dough is thoroughly cooked, insuring light, fine textured biscuits, pastry and cakes and eliminating all danger of falling.

LOUIS A. SARECKY

Sulzer's Secretary Is On Hand to Testify at Trial.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

Managers of the impeachment committee now hearing the charges against William Sulzer thought that Louis A. Sarecky, the governor's private secretary and custodian of certain campaign funds, had fled from the state to avoid testifying at the trial, but when they went to subpoena him he was found sitting in the lobby of an Albany hotel. It was expected that Sarecky's testimony would be most important. This picture was taken in Albany immediately after he had been served.

Globular Lightning.

Professor Thomson says of this rare phenomenon, the reality of which has frequently been called in question, that, after having been for a long time in doubt about it, his doubts have disappeared. The nearest he has ever come to observing a "lightning ball" was the hearing of its explosion. The ball itself was seen by a friend, who happened to be looking in the right direction when Professor Thomson himself was looking another way. No rational hypothesis, he says, exists to explain such a phenomenon, as there is nothing in the laboratory which closely resembles it. From descriptions the balls appear to vary from one inch to one foot in diameter. When they disappear there is usually an explosion, generally with slight damage. Some have been described as entering buildings and going out of a door or window.—London Spectator.

Famed For Her Dancing.

Countess Lambsdorff, who in her youth was an enthusiastic dancer, states in her memoirs that prior to her marriage she attended 225 balls and after her wedding 557 more. At the different dances she received eighteen offers of marriage. This was before her marriage. Afterward 272 men sent her love letters, and a hundred of her admirers threatened to shoot themselves in their despair. The number of dances which the countess takes to her credit is stupendous. Altogether she took part in 2,934 square dances, 4,500 waltzes and 600 polkas, her partners numbering 1,700. Of the latter she describes 1,200 as stupid, 300 boresome, 120 offensive, 22 nice and 3 witty. Countess Lambsdorff estimates the total distance danced by her at not less than 16,000 miles.

GO RIGHT AT IT.

Friends and Neighbors in Tecumseh Will Show You a Way.

Get at the root of the trouble.

Rubbing an aching back may relieve it,

But won't cure it if the kidneys are weak.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right at it;

Reach the cause; attack the pain.

Are recommended by many Tecumseh people.

A. C. Aylesworth, W. Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About four years ago I had an acute attack of lumbago and my kidneys were disordered. I at length heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procuring a supply at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store, I began using them. In a short time I was relieved and I have had no return attack of the trouble. I hope other kidney sufferers will read my statement and be led to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. adv.

A great deal of the milk of human kindness is only butter milk.—M. M.

Foleys Kidney Pills cure obstinate cases of kidney and bladder trouble, rheumatism and lumbago, because they remove the cause. You can not take this honest curative medicine into your system without getting the right results. Try them. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Advt.

Waiting for dead men's shoes usually necessitates walking barefoot a long time.

Facing a Serious Proposition.

The man or woman who has kidney trouble is facing a serious proposition, where grave complications readily follow neglect. Foley Kidney Pills are an honest curative medicine that once taken into your system mean restored kidney and bladder action, and a return of health and strength. For sale by all druggists. Advt.

Where the river is deepest it makes the least noise.

Strengthen Weak Kidneys

Don't suffer longer with weak kidneys. You can get prompt relief by taking Electric Bitters, that wonderful remedy praised by women everywhere. Start with a bottle to-day, you will soon feel like a new woman with ambition to work, without fear of pain. Mr. John Dowling of San Francisco, writes:—"Gratitude for the wonderful effect of Electric Bitters prompts me to write. It cured my wife when all else failed.' Good for the liver as well. Nothing better for indigestion or biliousness. Price, 50c and $1.00, at C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

We are apt to rail at little things. Remember that "little strokes fell great oaks."

Can't afford to have Kidney Trouble

No man with a family to support can afford to have kidney trouble, nor need he fear it with such a remedy at hand as Foley Kidney Pills. An honest medicine, safe and reliable, costing little but doing much good. Foley Kidney Pills eliminate backache and rheumatism, tone up the system and restore normal action of kidneys and bladder. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Advt.

Analyzing a Name.

When Poincare, the famous mathematician, was formally received into the French academy Frederic Masson in welcoming him gave the desirable mathematical tinge to his address by questioning the correctness of the name. Geometrically, he said, the notion of a square point was intolerable. Therefore it was obvious that "point carre" could not have been the true derivation of the name. It must have been "pont carre." The philologists took M. Masson seriously and began poking around in their musty records for a better original source than either "point carre" or "pont carre." And they soon found it in the person of Petrus Pugniquadrati, a student of record in the year 1403. Furthermore, in 1418 a French namesake of Pugniquadrati appeared in the person of one Jehan Poingquarre. From all of which it seemed plain that the original Poincares were not square points, but clenched fists.—New York Post.

Dust In Flour Mills.

It has been many years since there has been an explosion of flour dust resulting in serious loss of life and great property damage. This is due to the fact that millers have learned more about the explosive nature of finely powdered material, and the former carelessness in providing receptacles for the dust has been succeeded by a system of dust catching and disposal which makes a flour mill perfectly safe from this danger. In old fashioned milling methods flour dust was turned into a room provided for the purpose, but large quantities were allowed to accumulate on the mill floor and become distributed over the machinery. When these deposits were disturbed the atoms floated about in the atmosphere, creating danger from fire and making it difficult for workmen to breathe. Asthma frequently resulted from this condition, and incipient explosions were not infrequent.—Northwestern Miller.

"Bob White" Likes Music.

A baby quail was captured and brought to the house. The large cage provided for him stood upon a square of oilcloth, and this was little Bob White's ranch. The door of his house was always open, but he seldom wandered beyond the limits of his own domain. One thing invariably tempted this little recluse to venture forth, this was the sound of music. Like a small boy racing after the band, the moment the tones of the piano reached his quick ear he started on a run, and the quick pat-patting of his tiny feet announced his approach. He would circle about the piano and, with a fluff fluff of his short wings, mount to the keyboard. The little square corner at its end was his opera chair, where he cuddled down contentedly as long as the music continued, at times expressing his appreciation by a contented soft, purring sound.—Suburban Life.

Money Value of a Woodpecker.

The slaughter of migratory birds is surely followed by the increase of destructive insects. Among the best of the farmer's bird friends are the woodpeckers, especially the redheaded members of the species. In proof one careful observer says: "A pair of them nested in a dead cottonwood tree near my uncle's orchard one year. One day I watched them through a pair of opera glasses. The young birds were about half grown. The parents made ninety-six trips in one hour, each time with a worm. It is safe to say that they saved ninety-six apples in that hour—a box worth, say, $1. If the birds worked ten hours a day they were worth $10 to my uncle, or in the three weeks the birds were in the nest $210. Can a farmer afford to kill a woodpecker?"—Youth's Companion.

How Capital Grows!

Two centuries ago the sum of £5 was bequeathed for the education of the children of poor inhabitants of Lytham. In course of time the fund grew to nearly £500, and this sum was invested by the trustees of the Lytham charities in a plot of land which now forms the center of Blackpool. Within the last fifty years the corporation of Blackpool has paid about £400,000 for the freehold rights of small sections of this estate, and it is believed that in course of time the value of the property owned by the charities will reach £500,000.—London Express.

TWENTY YEARS.

Makes a great difference in most women. They are troubled with "nerves"—they suffer from backache, headache, sleeplessness, a sensation of irritability or twitching, hot flashes, dizzy spells, or many other symptoms of female weakness. The local disorder and inflammation should be treated with Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets and the irregularity and weakness of the female system corrected and strengthened with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The strain upon the young woman or the woman of middle age—upon the nerve and blood forming structures—may be too great for her strength. That is the time to take this restorative tonic and strength-giving nervine and regulator. For over forty years sold by druggists for woman's peculiar weaknesses and distressing ailments. The one remedy so perfect in composition and so good in curative effects as to warrant its makers in printing its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. The one remedy which absolutely contains neither alcohol nor injurious or habit-forming drugs.

MRS. SCOTT.

Following letter selected at random from a large number of similar ones and cited merely to illustrate these remarks:

"In the winter of 1908, I became greatly run down and irregular," writes MRS. HENRY SCOTT, of Swan Creek, Mich., Route 1, Box 49. "I slowly but surely grew worse, and, at last, resolved to apply to the doctors for help. The doctor said I had inflammation, enlargement and laceration. I was in bed eleven weeks and got no better. The doctor said I would have to have an operation, but to that I would not listen. My husband purchased two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I started to take this remedy I could not walk across the floor, but after I had taken three bottles I could feel myself gaining, so I dropped the doctor and took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Only for it I think I would have been dead—I really believe it saved my life. I feel better now than in twenty years."

Bells of Old England.

To one sixteenth century visitor at least the English seemed to be a nation of bell lovers. This was Paul Hentener, a German, who wrote of his travels in this country during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. "The English," he said, "excel in dancing and music, for they are active and lively, though of a thicker make than the French. They are vastly fond of great noises that fill the air, such as the firing of cannon, drums and the ringing of bells, so that in London it is common for a number of them, that have got a glass in their heads, to go into some belfry and ring the bells for hours together for the sake of exercise."—London Chronicle.

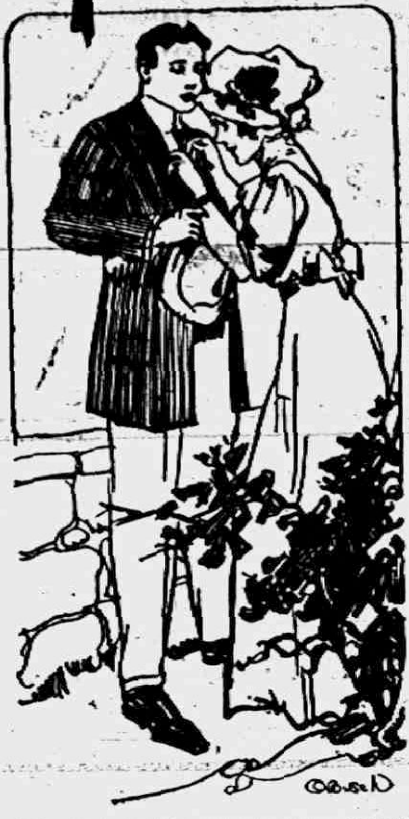
The Garnet Heart

What It Meant Was a Secret Until Its Capture.

By F. A. MITCHEL

Melville, having worked his way through college and received a legacy of $500 a few days after graduation, concluded to spend the money in a trip abroad before settling down to his life work. To take the outing on so limited a sum he was obliged to economize in his traveling expenses and proposed to do a good deal of walking. Switzerland being the favorite country for pedestrians, he took steamer for Genoa, from which city a short railroad journey brought him to Geneva.

At the hotel where he put up in that city was an American family, consisting of father, mother and a daughter about twenty years of age. They were tourists drifting from point to point as the spirit moved them. Something in the appearance of the young lady attracted Melville's attention, not to say curiosity, mingled with admiration. On her face was a sadness, indicating that she had suffered; vindictiveness, pointing to some injustice that had been inflicted upon her, and there was an air about her of indifference to everything and everybody.



DREW THE GARNET PIN FROM HER BOSOM AND FIXED IT IN HIS SCARF.

But Melville's curiosity was especially excited by an ornament the young lady wore upon her bosom—a stickpin, the head of which was a garnet heart. It was not in her neckwear, but stuck in her dress directly over her real flesh and blood heart.

Melville had intended to walk eastward around the north bank of Lake Leman, stopping frequently by the way, but on the morning of his departure he saw the American family leaving for the lake boat, and he yielded to a temptation to see more of the girl who had attracted his attention by making a part of the journey himself by water. So, going down to the landing, he took passage for Lausanne.

There is a quick telegraphy between two young persons of opposite sex, and very little time was required for the girl to perceive that Melville had especially noticed her. He spoke some English words with his American accent in her hearing, and this made her aware that he was a fellow countryman. He scraped an acquaintance with her father, hoping that it might lead to an introduction to the daughter, but in this he was for the time disappointed. When the boat reached Lausanne, Melville disembarked with regret that he must leave the object of his curiosity unsolved.

The next day he walked to Montreux, and the first person he saw on the piazza of the hotel as he mounted the steps was the girl of the garnet heart. As their eyes met it seemed to Melville that he saw in hers that revengeful look he had noticed, though it suddenly gave place to one which he could only account for as an invitation for him to seek an acquaintance.

Such impressions are usually vague and readily give place to others. Of the two mentioned Melville remembered only the latter. He was by no means sure of his interpretation, but he proposed to act upon it at the first opportunity. From the hotel register he learned that the family name was Huntington. Melville again addressed the father and found a bond of fellowship in that they were graduates of the same university. Thus followed an introduction to the family.

Alma Huntington on learning that Melville was fond of walking sympathized with him, telling him that she was devoted to it herself. Throwing aside conventionality, she accepted invitations to go about with him freely, unaccompanied by a chaperon. Melville found an additional feature in the puzzle in an evident disapproval on the part of Mrs. Huntington of his attentions to her daughter. This disapproval did not appear to result from any antagonism to him personally, nor did the lady appear to blame him for the growing intimacy with her daughter. It was plain from the mother's treatment of him that she was holding Alma solely accountable for it.

It was also plain that Alma was bent on following her own inclinations. When she suggested a morning walk with Melville to Villeneuve and back or an excursion on the lake her mother would look pained rather than angered, and when her efforts to induce her daughter to desist met with ill success the good lady would sigh as one much troubled.

What all this meant Melville was at a loss to discover. There was evidently something back of it of which he was unaware. The young lady was evidently bent on an affair with him, and her mother was trying to dissuade her. Had the girl really become attached to him? He did not believe that she had. Her interest in him had come too suddenly and developed too quickly. Now and again, while resting on their walks, turning his eyes upon hers, he would catch her looking at him with a singular glance that he could not interpret. Then she would arise, and as they strolled on would put her arm through his confidingly.

The Huntingtons lingered at Montreux, and Melville lingered too. Alma was pleased to remain, and she apparently dominated her family. For Melville there was something so curiously fascinating about her that he could not tear himself away. And every day that fascination grew stronger. He wished that he dare ask her to solve the mystery hanging about her, but something in her manner, he knew not what, prevented him. Once he ventured to refer to the garnet heart, but she gave him a look so strange, so forbidding, that he stumbled in his speech and was silent.

At last Melville, seeing that his attentions, or rather Alma's encouragement of his attentions, was producing something that looked like discord in the Huntington family, resolved to depart. He announced his intention to Mrs. Huntington before speaking of it to Alma. The mother appeared grateful to him.

When he announced his intention to depart to Alma they were standing on an eminence overlooking the lake, "Clear, placid Leman," as Byron has described it, its bosom dotted with various kinds of craft, was spread out before them, and the view had its effect on Melville. He did not wish to leave the girl who in so short a time had become so much to him. She did not hesitate to dissuade him from his purpose, and she was aided by their beautiful surroundings. After a long silence between them, during which she was waiting for his decision, he said:

"I will remain on one condition. I love you; assure me that my love is returned."

As he spoke the words he turned and faced her. A struggle was going on within her, but what that struggle was he could not tell. She put her hands to her face to conceal it from him. He waited for her emotion to pass. At last she took away her hands, and looking into his face with an expression entirely changed from that seeming revengeful spirit he had at times noticed, she drew the garnet pin from her bosom and fixed it in his scarf.

No words passed between them, only a caress. Then she added, "Go to mother; tell her what has occurred and she will explain what has naturally been a puzzle to you."

When Melville told Mrs. Huntington that he had captured the garnet heart she gave a deep drawn sigh of relief.

"You have broken a spell, Mr. Melville," she said to him, "that I am very happy has been broken. When Alma was passing from childhood to womanhood she met one of those young men who consider a girl's heart a thing to be played with. He may have been excusable on account of his youth; in many cases such flirtations are innocent. But Alma is a girl of deep feeling. When she discovered that what was an absorbing passion to her was a mere matter of amusement to the man she loved she was so far broken down that we at one time feared for her reason. Her love was turned to hatred, not only of the man who put no value upon it, but of all men.

"Not long after this I noticed the garnet heart on her bosom. She never explained its meaning to me, but I knew. Indeed, her actions since she has worn it have confirmed my interpretation—a challenge to men of her class who might be inclined to repeat what she had received from the one she first loved. These tournaments of the heart have worried us. We have tried to prevent them. Your having captured her signal of revenge indicates that you have ended a condition which should never have existed."

Melville accompanied the Huntingtons in their tour, which they adapted to his requirements. Indeed, they were making it entirely on account of the daughter they idolized. Melville was too deeply in love to blame her for her past unreasoning desire to punish him for the fault of another. Indeed, the fact that he had succeeded like a knight of old in slaying the dragon and winning the imprisoned maiden was a matter of pride with him.

Mrs. Melville is now a young matron bringing up a daughter, whom she watches with the utmost care. She declares that a young girl's heart needs more guarding than the great war chest of the German empire. After she had become old enough to feel ashamed of her youthful freak she asked her husband to return her the garnet heart. But he declined and has never since consented. He says he prizes it more than he would a medal of honor acquired in battle. Therefore the strange situation exists in the family that what the wife considers a token of her folly the husband cherishes as a decoration for his prowess.

The beauty and virtue of women are superior to the virtue and beauty of men, but no one can be beautiful when in the throes of a deep-seated hacking cough or cold. One of the wonders of the Guatemala jungle is the "water vine," a black, snakelike, leafless stem, dropping from the ceiba and mahogany trees to which it has climbed. It is said to contain a quart of water to every foot. When the stem is cut the water spurts forth in a refreshing stream. Moisture is drawn up from the soil, and filtered through the pores of the plant.

NEW TARIFF BILL

Measure Finally Adjusted by Conference Committee.

REPUBLICANS REFUSE TO SIGN

Underwood Presents the Conference Report to House—Senate Amendment Relating to Cotton Futures Is Only Matter Left Unsettled—Important Alterations in Bill.

WASHINGTON — The conference report on the tarifff bill, representing the final adjustment of disputes between the senate and house, was made public when the Democratic managers submitted it to the Rebublican colleagues on the conference committee. Many of the senate alterations in the house bill stand.

After a brief discussion it was approved by the eight Democrats, but the six Republicans, who had taken no part in the conference deliberations, refused to sign it.

Majority Leader Underwood presented the conference report as soon as the house met.

Important Alterations.

"After the report is acted upon," said Mr. Underwood, "we expect to take up and act upon the senate amendment relating to cotton futures, which is the only thing unsettled."

The report shows the following important alterations of the original Underwood house bill:

The tax rate on incomes above $75,000 was increased by a graduated scale from 3 per cent to 7 per cent, and the income tax exemption reduced from $4,000 to $3,000.

Articles added to the free list include pig iron, ferro manganese ore, cheap grades of iron, cattle and other food animals, wheat, flour, flax, hemp, sugar refining machinery, school text books, sand blast machinery, indigo dyes, photographic moving picture films, cement and asphalt.

Woolen Stockings, Gloves. Mittens.

A new classification for woolen stockings, gloves and mittens makes a reduction from the house rate on those valued at less than $1.20 per dozen, and an increase on those above. Angora wool and articles made from it have a higher duty than in the house bill.

The house rate on silk ribbons and narrow fabrics was increased from 40 to 45 per cent.

In addition to putting cattle and sheep on the free list, the conference agreed to reductions on oats butter, beets, extracts of meats, currants, chocolate and other provisions and vegetables.

SULZER TRIAL PROGRAM

Week at Albany, N. Y., Will Be an Interesting One.

ALBANY, N. Y. — The main fire of counsel for the board of managers in the Sulzer impeachment trial will center this week on the governor's alleged bartering of political influence.

This it announced by Attorney Isador Kresel. Not only will members of the legislature who are alleged to have made deals with the governor be called, but others who are said to have been threatened by him if they did not vote for certain administration measures, as well as a few Democratic leaders.

Among those who will take the stand are Assemblyman H. G. Prime Jr., of Essex, J. Lewis Patrie of Greene and Thaddeus C. Sweet of Oswego. With the first two named the governor is said to have made trades giving his support to highway bills in return for their support to his direct primary legislation.

JOHN F. LACEY DEAD

Former Iowa Congressman Drops Lifeless at His Home.

OSCALOOSA, IOWA—Maj. John F. Lacey, a former Iowa congressman for the Sixth congressional district, dropped dead from heart disease. Mr. Lacey fell dead at the doorway of his home after having returned from a trip downtown.

Major Lacey, who was prominent as a Union officer in the civil war, represented the Sixth Iowa district in congress from 1889 to 1907, being elected as a Republican.

PREACHER GOES TO PRISON

Rev. U. T. S. Rice Pleads Guilty in Court at Mattoon, Ill.

MATTOON, ILL.—The Reverend U. T. S. Rice, whose financial operations in this vicinity caused him to be indicted on eleven counts by the grand jury here, pleaded guilty on one count and was sentenced to an indeterminate term of one to ten years in the penitentiary at Chester.

BATTLE CREEK — Elijah N. Forsyth, who was forty-seven years old, contractor and builder, known throughout the state, is dead here. He erected the first flake food machinery to be brought to Battle Creek, and was superintendent of construction on the Grand Trunk railroad, during the early days of that road.

BAY CITY GRAND JURY INDICTS TWO MORE

City Officials Are Believed to Be Caught in Net.

BAY CITY, MICH.—Two more true bills have just been returned to Judge Collins by the grand jury but the indictments were sealed and no intimation as to who is named was given out.

Bench warrants will be issued and the arrests made. It is believed that the men named in the indictments are former city officials, who are alleged to have been guilty of padding payrolls and grafting on public works contracts. The jury will continue its probe this week.

Carl Schweinsberg, a member of the county road commission, was a witness and it is believed that his testimony had to do with some alleged illegal work on county jobs, especially in Pinconning.

TEMPLARS PLAN FIELD DAY

Three Hundred Sir Knights Expected to Take Part at Monroe, Mich.

MONROE, MICH. — The Monroe Mich., district Knights Templers have been summoned by the eminent commander for a field day at Monroe city on Tuesday, September 30. Monroe Commandery No. 19 has made preliminary arrangements. Headquarters will be at the Park hotel.

Commanderies will assemble at the Custer statue. The parade will begin at 1:30, proceed to Monroe and Sixth streets, thence to the Driving park north of the city, where the field day drills will be held.

There will be probably 300 swords in line. In addition to the commanderies from the immediate surrounding cities, the celebrated "Number 1" of Detroit, will be present.

GENERAL NEWS.

WASHINGTON — The name of Representative Martin D. Foster of Illinois was presented to the secretary of war for the position of governor of Porto Rico. Mr. Foster has the indorsement of the Illinois delegation and a number of other congressmen. He is now the only candidate for the place whose name has been presented formally. He is serving his fourth term as a member of congress from the Twenty-third Illinois district. He is one of five practicing physicians in the house and senate and is chairman of the house committee on mines and mining and a member of the committee on rules.

NEW YORK—The beginning of a suit for a million dollars damage by Mrs. Catherine Ketchum Blake against Mrs. Clarence A. Mackay for the alleged alienation of the affections of Dr. Joseph A. Blake has solved a series of mysteries which have puzzled New York society for many months. The sudden departure for Europe a short while ago of Clarence A. Mackay, the defendant's husband, with his children, and Mrs. Mackay's moving to Portland, Me., are among the most recent of the unusual happenings the suit is believed to explain.

WASHINGTON — The report of the interstate commerce commission putting the responsibility for the Wallingford wreck with its twenty one fatalities squarely on the shoulders of the management and directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, is the harshest finding ever handed down by that body. The report sets forth the names of the directors, beginning with William Rockefeller and J. P. Morgan and extending through a long list of men well known in the financial and railroad world.

ODD SOIL DEFECTS PUZZLE FARMERS

Expert Believes Spots Due to Salt in Strata.

EAST LANSING, MICH. — One of the most interesting bits of news from a scientific point, that has drifted into the Michigan Agricultural college in some time, came the other day from Saginaw county, regarding a mysterious soil sickness.

In some of the fields in the southern part of the county a small spot is said to appear in a fertile field, and grow slowly in size until it covers a considerable part of an acre. Plants will start on these spots and grow for a week or so, and then die.

Professor Robinson, of the experiment station, was sent out, and made a collection of the infected soils.

At the present time he is unable to give any very positive explanation of the peculiar spots, but is of the opinion that they are due to salt solutions that have been forced out through small breaks in the strata.

The entire thumb district is known to be underlaid with salt layers.

HITS AT TOURING ROAD

Congressman D. W. Shackleford Advocates "Business Highways."

DETROIT, MICH. —, Representative Dorsey W. Shackleford, chairman of the house committee on roads, in an address before the American Roads congress in session here, admitted he was "not in harmony with the dominant spirit" of the congress and vigorously opposed the so-called "touring road" advocates. He urged support for the "business roads" class, which, he said, aimed for cheaper transportation and lower cost of living.

"I want a million miles of business and post roads to be built in five years," he said. "I appeal to you to withdraw your opposition to a plain people's plan, which we desire to pass through congress at the next session. Our plan will not be expensive, and a vast majority of the people are in favor of it."

SAVES BOY BY A HIGH DIVE

Former Baseball Umpire Jumps from Train on Trestle.

MUSKEGON, MICH.—Taking a leap from the lofty trestle of the Pere Marquette railway over the Muskegon river, James A. Murphy, of Grand Haven, former Michigan state league umpire, brought to shore the unconscious form of Theodore Handy, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Handy, of Muskegon, who had been struck by a Pere Marquette train, inbound from Pentwater and hurled into the stream.

The child is suffering from concussion of the brain and may die. He and a boy companion were crossing the trestle for a jaunt to North Muskegon

Mr. Murphy, a passenger on the train, witnessed the accident and leaving his seat dove from the platform of the coach into the stream, thirty feet below.

USE WAGON TO ROB TAILOR

Thieves Enter Store and Take Clothes for Whole Winter.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—City police made known one of the biggest robberies perpetrated in Kalamazoo in a long time.

Burglars entered the R. C. Weaver tailoring shop and carried away more than one thousand dollars' worth of goods. Nearly 40 complete suits and hundreds of dollars' worth of goods that had not been cut were taken. A back window in the store was opened and the goods were apparently loaded into a wagon and taken away.

Aged President of Michigan University Has Pneumonia.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. — A slight pneumonia of one lung complicated the heart trouble of Dr. James B. Angell, president emeritus of the University of Michigan. Dr. J. S. Breakey considers his condition critical. He passed a restless night, but insisted upon being up in the day.

SACRAMENTO, CAL. — All the additional charges against Maury I. Diggs and F. Drew Caminetti, convicted of white slavery, which have been pending in the courts here since their arrest, and the criminal charge of contributing to the delinquency of the minor children of Diggs and Caminetti which were pending against Lola Norris and Marsha Warrington were dismissed by Superior Judge Hughes and Township Justice Clarken on the motion of the district attorney.

LONDON, ENGLAND—A dispatch to the Times from Pekin confirms the report that the Japanese government has sent an ultimatum to China. "Ten Japanese warships," the dispatch adds, "crowded with marines, are awaiting the issue on the Yang-tse river. General Chang Hsun is credited with a willingness to apologize, but the demand that he parade his regiment before the Japanese consulate will be difficult of attainment."

CHICAGO — The representatives of Illinois banking interests are meeting in Chicago. More than 2,000 delegates to the annual convention of the Illinois Bankers' association arrived here or were on their way from cities of the state. The visitors represent more than 1,500 private, state and national banks, which in turn represent a banking capital of $1,757,000,000.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The court of impeachment for the trial of Governor Sulzer unanimously voted in favor of admitting all testimony in reference to alleged campaign contributions received by the governor, whether specified in the articles of impeachment or not.

PEKIN—Japan has finally agreed to a compromise in regard to the affair at Nankin in which three Japanese were killed and an insult was offered to the Japanese flag. It will accept an apology from General Chang Hsun in modified form.

WHAT PAULINE LEARNED

She Was an Apt Pupil

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Waving aside an obsequious attendant Pauline Fenn passed between rows of glass inclosed desks to her father's private office. She tapped before opening the heavy door and found him sitting in grave meditation before a wood fire on the hearth.

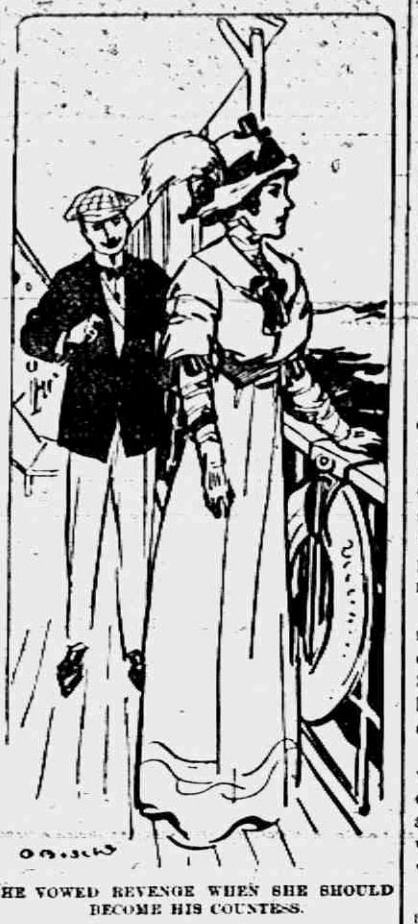
He turned his head as his youngest daughter entered and sat down in the opposite chair.

"I've done it at last, father," she said, rather breathlessly.

"Done what?" he asked in a startled tone.

"Broken my engagement to Roger."

"My dear!" He jumped up and paced the floor thoughtfully, now and then his keen eyes searching her young face. "Are you wise?"



HE VOWED REVENGE WHEN SHE SHOULD BECOME HIS COUNTESS.

"It is best."

"I thought you were fond of Roger—loved him, in fact."

"I—I did." She was speaking nervously now. "But you know he is in no position to marry now; the doctor has ordered him to go west and live in the open for five years, otherwise he predicts a total nervous breakdown. I had a note from him this morning. He has sold his seat on the exchange and is going to buy a ranch in Montana. He wanted me to marry him at once and go with him."

"And you have seen him?"

"I went to his office. I told him what you said—that if he must give up business, why, you would back him with money to any extent and when we were married we could live in the same style to which I am accustomed. I could go with the same people and enjoy the same amusements of my set. I simply couldn't give up all those things and sort of grub along, now, could I, father?"

He frowned thoughtfully.

"I thought you could, Polly, but it seems I am mistaken. Roger Dale went into Wall street when he was nineteen. For fifteen years he has worked like a steam engine, but the engine has been overworked; it is a fine piece of mechanism, and if it continues to work without rest and repair, why, it will go snap some day and one of the cleanest and squarest men I know will spend the remainder of his days in the madhouse."

"Father!"

"Ah! That is the plain truth. I had Roger here yesterday and offered to do anything for him that money and friendship can do; he was engaged to my daughter and I wanted to help him for that reason, as well as because I admire his pluck. He refused point blank to accept any help. Said the sale of his exchange seat would set him up on a paying sheep ranch in the west, and he also declared that he had an old fashioned notion that he wanted to provide a home for his wife with his own hands."

Pauline was silent for a moment. Her cheeks were burning now.

"But mother would be broken hearted if I married Roger now and went on to a ranch. It is a primitive life at the best, and I would be shut out of the society of my friends, and the other girls would be so mortified. They have married so well, you know. Mother never did approve of my engagement to Roger," she explained hurriedly.

"No, she did not approve of it," he returned coldly. "Your mother and I began life humbly; your mother worked in a millinery store and never had a pair of kid gloves until she was married. Now she has married three of her daughters to penniless but titled foreigners, and the fourth she withholds from an honest American. I should think two countesses and a princess quite enough glory for one plain American family to acquire and quite all I can afford," he added grimly.

"I thought you'd be rather glad," said Pauline uneasily as she arose to go. "Under the circumstances, I wonder if you care if I go abroad with Helen."

"Just as you please, Polly," he said sadly. "All I live for is to make you happy."

When he was alone John Fenn drew his chair to the hearth and gazed long into the fire of apple tree wood. A close observer might have noticed that something very like tears glittered in his fine blue eyes.

* * * * * * *

Six months afterward Pauline Fenn stood on the steamer at Southampton and watched the passengers coming aboard for the homeward voyage. Her lovely face was a trifle thinner and there was an air of restlessness about her that disconcerted the dark little monkey-like man who stood at her elbow, chattering.

"Mademoiselle, ah, yes, tees a gay scene—like Cherbourg—but England ees what you call tame, dead!"

"Do you think so, count?" murmured Pauline indifferently.

"Ha! There is no country like France, no city like Paris!"

"You have never seen America or New York," said Pauline over her shoulder.

"I go the happiest of men now to interview mademoiselle's papa," grinned the count delightedly, for it was quite true that Pauline's sister, the Countess de Laon, had arranged a match between her beautiful sister and a money hunting little patrician, Count Servan Lagres. Helen was accompanying her sister to New York, and Lagres had taken passage on the same steamer.

She tried not to regret the step she had taken in breaking her engagement, but every hour of her stay abroad had been spent to the accompaniment of burning remorse and useless regret. She had not given her promise to Lagres. She had not even encouraged him, but Helen was pushing the affair in her high handed way, and Pauline was meekly being led. She blushed when she thought of what her father would say when he saw this fourth foreigner presented as a possible son-in-law.

"Mademoiselle is weary. Come and sit down and I will send a cup of tea," twittered the count at her elbow.

"Please go away!" cried Pauline crossly.

Pauline moved slowly along the rail until she could look down upon a little group of second cabin passengers.

Two were separated from the others, a pale, anaemic looking man and a little pink and white roly poly woman. The woman was speaking despairingly.

"George, I don't know 'ow it 'appened; I 'ad the purse sewed tight in my skirt and now it's gone, every shillin' that I've scraped and saved for this goin'!" Her voice broke suddenly and the man's thin hand gripped her shoulder.

"Cheer up, Sally, old girl; maybe Joe 'll 'elp us out; 'e promised to meet us you know."

One day during the voyage Pauline found them out and heard their story. It was a simple one. They had been engaged for many years. George Marston was butler and Sally was upper housemaid in the same noble family. George's health had deserted him, and a brother in Canada had offered him land on which to build a home and plenty of work if he would come to the northwest.

When Pauline left them they were riotously happy. Her generous pocketbook had replaced the contents of Sally's wallet, and they were to repay her when they could. They were independent.

The remainder of the voyage Pauline went about with shining eyes. Helen could not understand the new mood, and the count broke through his conventionality and proposed outright and was refused.

He proposed again and was refused, and yet again with kindly but monotonous regularity. When they reached quarantine he borrowed funds from Helen and morosely decided to take the next boat home without that important interview with John Fenn.

* * * * * * *

Roger Gale stood on the veranda of his ranch house and looked away over the slopes where his sheep were crowded, huddled flocks of dusty gray against the green grass. From the flocks and the rippling hills his eyes turned to the winding trail that led from town.

A light buckboard was approaching the ranch, and he saw that while the outfit was his own and one of his men was driving there were two passengers in the rear seat. One was a citified looking man; the other was a girl dressed in blue. Now, Roger Dale was not in the habit of receiving girl visitors, and his interest was quickened at the sight of the newcomers. He stepped into the house to make anxious inquiries of the Chinese cook.

When he passed through his sitting room to the front porch Pauline Fenn was standing there looking at him with wet, wistful eyes.

"Polly!" he cried, with unbelieving eyes.

She nodded. "Roger, I have come. Father came with me. I cannot be happy without you. I want to be a rancher's wife"— She never finished her confession, for Roger's arms were around her and his bronzed cheek was against hers.

"You are sure, sure you won't regret it, love?" he asked over and over again.

And Pauline clung closer to him and whispered softly what George and Sally had awakened in her heart.

"I won't regret anything so long as we are together," she said.

The Idea of Suggestion.

Richard Mansfield once said that when he was a lad in London he often nearly starved. There was a certain bakeshop where he would go and feast upon the odors coming from the door. That boyhood notion gave him the idea of putting those lines in his play, "Beau Brummel," about "dining on the names of things"—a suggestion he used with powerful dramatic effect.

This idea of suggestion has done many a good deed. About ninety years ago a thirsty man walked up Wall street—I understand the habit of getting a thirst no longer prevails there, or maybe it is only the manner of allaying it—and pumped a tin cup full of water from his own well. "Not so good as I used to get from my father's well," or something to that effect he remarked to his wife. "A pretty idea for a song," said she, and so he sat down and in an hour wrote "The Old Oaken Bucket."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Votaries of Church Bells.

The church bell has its votaries. Tennyson sang of "the mellow lin-lan-lone of the evening bells." And do you remember that experience of "Henry Ryecroft?" "I once passed a night in a little market town where I had arrived tired and went to bed early. I slept forthwith, but was presently awakened by I knew not what. In the darkness there sounded a sort of music, and, as my brain cleared, I was aware of the soft chiming of church bells. Why, what hour could it be? I struck a light and looked at my watch. Midnight. Then a glow came over me. 'We have heard the chimes at midnight, Master Shallow!' Never till then had I heard them. And the town in which I slept was Evesham, but a few miles from Stratford-on-Avon. What if those midnight bells had been to me but as any other and I had reviled them for breaking my sleep?"—London Chronicle.

BORDEAUX, FRANCE.—Two rich Spanish noblemen, Marcel Calzada and his brother-in-law, Marquis de la Roca, were burned to death as the result of an automobile accident. The Marchioness de la Calzada was seriously injured.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.— The relatives received word that Victor East of this city had been murdered in Mexico. He has been manager of the Mexican Lumber and Development company in Campechi, His wife was with him in Mexico.

LIGHT ETERNAL IS WONDERFUL DRAMA

DEVOTIONAL PLAY OF EARLY ROME WHICH WAS SEEN AT BRADLEY OPERA HOUSE LAST SEASON COMING AGAIN MONDAY NIGHT

CAST IS STRONG ONE

Beautifully Staged, Show Scores Big Hit—Here Before and a Packed House Should Prevail

The Racine Wisconsin Journal says of The Light Eternal which comes to the Bradley Opera House Monday, October 6 for return engagement.

"The Light Eternal," produced for the first time at Racine Theatre, last night, is one of the best productions ever seen on a Racine stage. Those who braved the disagreeable elements to witness the play, were well repaid for their efforts. It is a devotional drama of early Rome, by Martin V. Merle, and the cast of characters embraces dramatic talent of the highest character, in fact no better could be desired by the most careful critic.

The scenery and costumes are most attractive and elaborate.

Those people who are in the habit of making sweeping denunciation of the theatre and stage in general will change their views after witnessing "The Light Eternal," for the play presents a fundamental lesson in a most impressive manner.

Aptly, the programme describes the play as a "devotional drama." The scene is laid in Rome in the fourth century, the theme being the Martyrdom of early Christians, typified in the specific instance of a young soldier and his loved one, a princess royal. The plot reveals the struggle between the love of God and love of woman between duty and desire, and contrasts the cruel debased, even bestial nature of the pagans with the calm, secure, steadfast nobleness of the worshippers of one God

In every way the story is told with a statelinees and solemnity befitting the subject, and while sombre in the extreme and lightened by no flash of light or humor, the play never for one moment loses interest There is no question but that in its literary construction and dramatic properties it is perfect, while the scenic effects are exceedingly strong.

There are no poor characters in the company, and they all carry the difficult roles with earnestness and convincingness that are admirable, There is nothing overlooked and even the minor parts are exceptionally good.

Louise Dunbar, in the leading feminine role, the Princess Artemia, daughter of Diocletian, displayed ability, marking her as both an emotional and dramatic artist that would bring forth favorable comment from ninety-nine out of a hundred people

John Milton, as Marco Valerius, the Martyr's son, filled the role splendidly and with great dignity.

James Nelson, Diocletian, Emperor of Rome, made the character one of prominence; in fact all of the others, did equally as well.

The audience last evening was highly delighted with the production.

TO OUR READERS.

The attention of our readers is called to an article written by the School Board which appears in this issue. A full vote is desired at the coming Special Election so as to ascertain the true feeling of our voters on this High School proposition.

The Herald as stated before, stands for the new school.

Not because it is an extravagance but because we feel it is a necessity. We are not proud of this old building we call our High School nor do we point to it with pride as one of the beauty spots of this beautiful village We do not feel that it would be an extravagance to pull down this old building and replace it with a new modern building, fully equiped to take care of the present day needs of High School work.

Do you in your homes, and Tecumseh is noted for its beautiful modern homes, allow yourselves to live in old buildings, poorly heated, poorly ventilated and in most every way unfitted for the enjoyment of home life? No you do not. You are burning the midnight oil planning improvements to your homes and you have them too, cessity.

Why then do we deprive our children and neighbors children of a new School Home, a bright cheerful place to live in fully equiped for High School work, with good ventilation, well heated, sanitary toilets and above all two floors instead of three.

Most every point, as we see it, is in favor of this new school. Let us figure that the old is worn out and we must replace it with the new. A ne

We all desire for the young people of this community the best education possible for us to give them. Let us shoulder our responsibility in this matter and by our vote give this School District what other cities and towns about us already have. A NEW HIGH SCHOOL, fully suited for the wants of this community

"The Great Divide" a drama in three acts appeared at Bradley Opera House Thursday evening. A small house greeted the preformance and it is a matter of regret that the attendance was not larger as the company deserved a literal patronage.

The parts were well taken The work of Miss Melbourne as Ruth Jordan and Mr Gowelaud, as Stephen Ghent in the leading roles were exceedingly well done. The scenery was good and mostly characteristic of our great Western country.

German Coffee Cake
Made Without Yeast

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

There is no warm bread quite as appropriate for Sunday morning breakfast as German Coffee Cake, yet it is seldom made by housewives who do not bake their own bread. If K C double raise Baking Powder is used it will be just as good as if raised with yeast and it will have the further advantage of being fresh and warm. Save this recipe and try it next Sunday.

K C German Coffee Cake

Two and one-fourth cups sifted flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; 1 level teaspoonful salt; 3 tablespoonfuls melted butter; 2 tablespoonfuls sugar; 1 egg; milk.

Sift dry ingredients together, beat the egg, add milk and butter to the egg to make one and one-quarter cups; stir all together with inverted spoon to a stiff batter. Turn into biscuit pan and spread even. Brush top lightly with melted butter. Sprinkle sugar and ground cinnamon over the top. Bake in moderate oven.

Dutch Apple Cake or Prune Kuchen can be made with this same batter by covering the top with pared and sliced apples, or cooked prunes with the pits removed, skin sides down. Dredge with sugar and cinnamon the same as for Coffee Cake.

"The Cook's Book" contains 90 just such delicious recipes. You can secure a copy free by sending the colored certificate packed in 25-cent cans of K C Baking Powder to the Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago, being sure to write your name and address plainly.

PRACTICAL BAKING LESSONS

FRITTERS AND DOUGHNUTS

I am pleased to submit to you choice recipes for doughnuts and fritters. These few recipes I have selected from my large collection with a view of giving you the most practical, as well as the very best. If these meet with your favor, I am greatly pleased.

Nevada Briggs

German Doughnuts

4 cups flour ¼ teaspoonful salt
1 cup milk 1 cup sugar
4 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder
¼ teaspoonful of mace or nutmeg
2 eggs or 1 egg and 2 additional yolks

Sift together, three times, flour, K C, salt and spice. Beat the eggs very light, using the rotary egg beater, then gradually beat in the sugar, making a very light creamy mixture of the egg and sugar; beat in the milk and stir into the flour. Make a soft dough, roll into a sheet, cut into rounds, pinch a hole in the center with the finger and fry in deep fat. Fat for frying should not be hot enough to brown the doughnut until it has risen. When the doughnut is dropped into the fat it sinks to the bottom. As soon as it comes up it should be turned and turned a number of times while cooking. This recipe is excellent as they do not take the fat in frying and will stay moist for days.

Potato Doughnuts

Will remain moist for days
3½ cups flour ½ teaspoonful salt
2 eggs ¼ teaspoonful mace
1 cup sugar 1 cup cold mashed potato
4 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder
¾ cup milk, or more, if needed

Sift three times, the flour, salt, spice and baking powder. Beat eggs with rotary beater, then still using rotary beater, gradually add sugar, then work in the mashed potato with a spoon and alternately add milk and flour mixture, fry as German Doughnuts.

Apple Fritters

1 cup sifted pastry flour ¼ teaspoonful salt
1 egg, beaten light ½ cup milk
1 level teaspoonful K C Baking Powder
1 level teaspoonful powdered sugar
2 apples, pared and cut in small pieces

Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Add the milk to the beaten egg and stir in the dry ingredients. Then stir in the bits of apple. Drop batter into hot fat by spoonfuls and let fry until delicately brown, and apple is tender. Drain on soft paper. Serve with powdered sugar or jelly sauce. Bananas, peaches, fresh or canned, and other fruit may be used in the same way.

Jelly Sauce

½ cup sugar ½ glass jelly
1 tablespoonful flour 1½ cups cold water
1 tablespoonful lemon juice
Mix all together and cook until smooth.

Pineapple Fritters

1 cup flour ¼ teaspoonful salt
1 egg ½ cup milk
½ cup chopped or grated pine apple
1 level teaspoonful K C Baking Powder
1 teaspoonful powdered sugar
Mix as apple fritters and fry in deep fat, serve with Pineapple Sauce.

Pineapple Sauce

½ cup sugar 1 teaspoonful flour
1 tablespoonful lemon juice
Cook until smooth with pineapple liquid and water, using enough water added to the pineapple liquid to make 1½ cups.

Cheese and Rice Fritters

1 cup boiled rice, grains distinct
2 tablespoonfuls milk or melted butter
½ cup grated cheese 1 egg, beaten light
1 level teaspoonful K C Baking Powder
¼ teaspoonful salt
2 level tablespoonfuls pastry flour.

Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder and salt. To the egg, add the rice, butter or milk, cheese and lastly the flour mixture. Drop by spoonfuls into butter melted in the blazer of a chafing dish (or frying pan). Let cook until a delicate brown color, then turn to cook the other side. Serve with

White Sauce

2 tablespoonfuls rounded of butter
1 tablespoonful rounded of flour
1½ cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste.
Rub butter and flour together, add milk and cook until smooth.

Helpful Hints

Never let the fat be hot enough to brown before the doughnuts and fritters rise and expand. Often soggy fritters and tough doughnuts are made by having the fat too hot.

K C Baking Powder is especially adapted for doughnuts as one cannot fry all at once, and with K C the food can be mixed and stand for hours before cooking. This is an advantage over the old fashioned one-action baking powders, cream of tartar and soda or sour milk and soda.

I urge every housekeeper to try a can of K C Baking Powder. The ease with which it can be used is very gratifying. One can mix any amount of batter and cook it as needed. For instance a large amount of biscuits can be mixed and cut out ready for the oven and baked as wanted through several hours. This is due to the double action of K C, which also makes it impossible for cakes to fall. Purchase a can of K C and be convinced for yourself just what it will do. Follow the directions carefully and success is sure to follow.

MISS EMMA J. SMITH

Miss Emma J. Smith was born in East Jorden New York, June 27th, 1824 and died Oct. 2nd. 1913.

She lived for many years in Springville Mich. where she cared for her father, Henry Smith until his death at the age of 93. She then made her home in Clayton for a few years where she will be remembered with love and affection by all who knew her. She was a life long member of the Methodist church. She died at the home of her neice, Mrs. J. J. Belcher where she has been for the past 15 months.

The funeral will be held tomorrow (Sat.) at 9:30 at the house, Rev. Whitney officiating burial at Brookside beside her brother William Smith who died seven years ago.

REUNION

The Tuesday a. m. train brought two members of the 9th Michigan Calvary, Andrew Fuller and wifes of Hillsdale, Elmer Bowen and wife of Detroit to meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Lawrence.

There were originally six of them. Capt. Cairnes, Capt. Lester and Lieut. James Wood with first named three who held a reunion once a year at the home of one of the number. Cairnes, Lester and Wood have answered the last roll call and are on the other shore waiting for the others. At these reunions the past is brought to the present, the virtues of the dead comrades are not forgotten, the good deeds they did in life are given new life.

The old, old story is ever new to the boys in blue, the long silent hours of out post duty, the lively times around the campfires, the long hard march over the mountains of East Tenn., the fording of streams of ice cold water, the cold new years day when with clothes as wet as they can be without shelter of any kind they passed that awful day the first of 1864, the seige of Knoxville, the Atlanta campaign and on with uncle Billy to the sea some one would tell of a funny incident and the laugh goes around ever and anon some one would tell of the loss of a comrade, the story of which would leave a tear in the eye, like a marine in the gang way, you wonder why these old men like to talk it over. Nothing on earth bind men closer than the active field life of a soldier

I know of no place where one can show the best or worse that is in him, like the tented field. Some of these stores may seem like fairy tales to one who never has been there, but I know they are true. These men have wrapped their fallen comrades in blankets and have laid them to sleep as kindly as a mother or sister could have done and breathed a silent prayer over their graves forever we will be "Amici esque adaras"

JEWISH HOLIDAY SEASON

Wednesday Oct. 2 ushered in the Jewish Rosh Hoshana or New Year 5674, and in all the cities where the Jews have synagogues, a proper observance of the day was celebrated.

Yum Kippur or the day of atonement occurs on Oct. 11 and is the most sacred day in the jewish calender. The next special day will be the Feast of the Tabernacle, which comes on Oct. 16 The ten days between Rosh Hoshana and Yum Kippur are called the penitential days and are faithfully observed by all good Jews

Mrs. M A. Ide goes to Adrian today. From there she with her brother, C. A. Haynes of Adrian, will go to New York City to visit her son, Vern Ide and wife. Mr. Haynes returns in about a week, making several stops on the way, while Mrs. Ide remains for a longer visit.

The Research Circle will hold their open meeting Wednesday Oct. 8th, at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. F. Raymond. The program will be as follows: Greeting, President: Sketch of Lincoln's Life, Mrs Mobbs: Observation on the war. Mrs Eaton: Music: Roll call; Vacation Reminiscences. Pot-luck supper.

The pastorate of the Friends church having been left vacant by the resignation of Elizabeth Mott a call has been extended by that congregation to Lewis and Mary Barrett Pim, of Cleveland, O., to take charge of the work as pastors. Mr. and Mrs. Pim arrived here this week to assume their duties. Mrs. Pim has for several years been a member of the Cleveland Bible Training School faculty, before that having been engaged in pastoral work. Mr. Pim has for many years been an efficient worker along various lines in Ohio Yearly Meeting. They will occupy the Swan residence on Pottawatamie street.

THE HIGH SCHOOL QUESTION

The time approaches when the question of a new school that will properly house our high school pupils must again come up for discussion and decision.

At the special election of last June the vote polled was so small in numbers that much doubt was left in the mind of the Board of Education as to the real wishes of the District in the matter.

That there may be a fuller expression of opinion at the coming special election of Oct. 14th it is urged that each parent and tax payer in the District become interested in inquiring into the need for a modern building and then be at the polls to register their wishes on the above named date.

The drawings and plan of the building as contemplated have been changed in no way since the last election as the Board is well satisfied with the arrangement now under consideration. There are a number of reasons why the Board favors the building of a new high school at the present time.

Conditions in school house construction have greatly changed since 1856 and the school of today is built nearer the ground or not so high in the air thus avoiding the great danger of calamity in case of fire.

The lower building is also of no little aid to both teacher and pupil in getting rid of the tedious climb to the third story class rooms.

Ventilation which in early days was little thought of is now becoming one of the most important points in school house as well as in all public building construction, where people must meet and breathe. In the building now being considered the specifications call for a ventilating system that will change the air in every room and corridor six times each hour of the day.

In our present high school building, the heating problem is to say the least discouraging. During the extreme weather which must be counted on more or less each winter season, it has of late years been an impossibility to make the class rooms comfortable for the scholar or teacher.

This should of course not be so and, ought to receive attention in some way at no distant date.

In the matter of fire, our schools have been fortunate indeed, yet, we have before us the constantly reoccurring example and warning of some school house conflagration, coupled only too frequently with great loss of life. It teaches the lesson that each community should safeguard in every possible way the pupil attending its public schools.

In the new building as proposed all the dangerous parts, the corridors, stairways, and the auditorium are to be of fire proof construction as is also the walls and ceiling of boiler and fuel room.

Another point to be considered, is the tendency that is constantly growing in the smaller as well as the larger cities, to teach boys and girls something that will be of practical use to them after they have finished school duties, and go out into the world—some work they can do with their hands. This need not necessarily mean additional teachers in the schools but possibly the elimination of some less practical subject in favor of a domestic science course for the girl who may be so inclined and some sort of manual training for the boy who has an adaptability in this direction,

With the present building and its limited facilities, there is but little encouragement that can be offered toward broadening the present plan of education.

In the new plans, however, space has been allotted with this special line of study work in view the details of same to be worked out as occasion demands and as opportunity presents itself.

Last but not least comes the matter of pride—the pride that each citizen of the District should feel in keeping abreast of the times (a step in advance if possible) the pride that each citizen must feel in giving his children or to his neighbor's children better educational advantages through a modern school and its consequent improved facilities and sanitary equipment.

Every town of consequence in Lenawee County, Tecumseh excepted, has a modern building for high school work.

Is there a substantial reason why Tecumseh should wait longer?

Respectfully submitted,
Board of Education.
C. F. Patterson, Sec'y.
E. H. Halladay, Pres.

WHAT PAULINE LEARNED

She Was an Apt Pupil

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Waving aside an obsequious attendant Pauline Fenn passed between rows of glass inclosed desks to her father's private office. She tapped before opening the heavy door and found him sitting in grave meditation before a wood fire on the hearth.

He turned his head as his youngest daughter entered and sat down in the opposite chair.

"I've done it at last, father," she said, rather breathlessly.

"Done what?" he asked in a startled tone.

"Broken my engagement to Roger."

"My dear!" He jumped up and paced the floor thoughtfully, now and then his keen eyes searching her young face. "Are you wise?"

HE VOWED REVENGE WHEN SHE SHOULD BECOME HIS COUNTESS.

"It is best."

"I thought you were fond of Roger—loved him, in fact."

"I—I did." She was speaking nervously now. "But you know he is in no position to marry now; the doctor has ordered him to go west and live in the open for five years, otherwise he predicts a total nervous breakdown. I had a note from him this morning. He has sold his seat on the exchange and is going to buy a ranch in Montana. He wanted me to marry him at once and go with him."

"And you have seen him?"

"I went to his office, I told him what you said—that if he must give up business, why, you would back him with money to any extent and when we were married we could live in the same style to which I am accustomed: I could go with the same people and enjoy the same amusements of my set. I simply couldn't give up all those things and sort of grub along, now, could I, father?"

He frowned thoughtfully.

"I thought you could, Polly, but it seems I am mistaken. Roger Dale went into Wall street when he was nineteen. For fifteen years he has worked like a steam engine, but the engine has been overworked: it is a fine piece of mechanism, and if it continues to work without rest and repair, why, it will go snap some day and one of the cleanest and squarest men I know will spend the remainder of his days in the madhouse."

"Father!"

"Ah! That is the plain truth. I had Roger here yesterday and offered to do anything for him that money and friendship can do; he was engaged to my daughter and I wanted to help him for that reason, as well as because I admire his pluck. He refused point blank to accept any help. Said the sale of his exchange seat would set him up on a paying sheep ranch in the west, and he also declared that he had an old fashioned notion that he wanted to provide a home for his wife with his own hands."

Pauline was silent for a moment. Her cheeks were burning now.

"But mother would be broken hearted if I married Roger now and went on to a ranch. It is a primitive life at the best, and I would be shut out of the society of my friends, and the other girls would be so mortified. They have married so well, you know. Mother never did approve of my engagement to Roger," she explained hurriedly.

"No, she did not approve of it," he returned coldly. "Your mother and I began life humbly; your mother worked in a millinery store and never had a pair of kid gloves until she was married. Now she has married three of her daughters to penniless but titled foreigners, and the fourth she withholds from an honest American. I should think two countesses and a princess quite enough glory for one plain American family to acquire and quite all I can afford," he added grimly.

"I thought you'd be rather glad," said Pauline uneasily as she arose to go. "Under the circumstances, I wonder if you care if I go abroad with Helen."

"Just as you please, Polly," he said sadly. "All I live for is to make you happy."

When he was alone John Fenn drew his chair to the hearth and gazed long into the fire of apple tree wood. A close observer might have noticed that something very like tears glittered in his fine blue eyes.

* * * * * * *

Six months afterward Pauline Fenn stood on the steamer at Southampton and watched the passengers coming aboard for the homeward voyage. Her lovely face was a trifle thinner and there was an air of restlessness about her that disconcerted the dark little monkey-like man who stood at her elbow, chattering.

"Mademoiselle, ah, yes, tees a gay scene—like Cherbourg—but England ees what you call tame, dead!"

"Do you think so, count?" murmured Pauline indifferently.

"Ha! There is no country like France, no city like Paris!"

"You have never seen America or New York," said Pauline over her shoulder.

"I go the happiest of men now to interview mademoiselle's papa," grinned the count delightedly, for it was quite true that Pauline's sister, the Countess de Laon, had arranged a match between her beautiful sister and a money hunting little patrician, Count Servan Lagres. Helen was accompanying her sister to New York, and Lagres had taken passage on the same steamer.

She tried not to regret the step she had taken in breaking her engagement, but every hour of her stay abroad had been spent to the accompaniment of burning remorse and useless regret. She had not given her promise to Lagres. She had not even encouraged him, but Helen was pushing the affair in her high handed way, and Pauline was meekly being led. She blushed when she thought of what her father would say when he saw this fourth foreigner presented as a possible son-in-law.

"Mademoiselle is weary. Come and sit down and I will send a cup of tea," twittered the count at her elbow.

"Please go away," cried Pauline crossly.

Pauline moved slowly along the rail until she could look down upon a little group of second cabin passengers.

Two were separated from the others, a pale, anaemic looking man and a little pink and white roly poly woman. The woman was speaking despairingly.

"George, I don't know 'ow it 'appened; I 'ad the purse sewed tight in my skirt and now it's gone, every shillin' that I've scraped and saved for this goin'!" Her voice broke suddenly and the man's thin hand gripped her shoulder.

"Cheer up, Sally, old girl; maybe Joe 'll 'elp us out; 'e promised to meet us you know."

One day during the voyage Pauline found them out and heard their story. It was a simple one. They had been engaged for many years. George Marston was butler and Sally was upper housemaid in the same noble family. George's health had deserted him, and a brother in Canada had offered him land on which to build a home and plenty of work if he would come to the northwest.

When Pauline left them they were riotously happy. Her generous pocketbook had replaced the contents of Sally's wallet, and they were to repay her when they could. They were independent.

The remainder of the voyage Pauline went about with shining eyes. Helen could not understand the new mood, and the count broke through his conventionality and proposed outright and was refused.

He proposed again and was refused, and yet again with kindly but monotonous regularity. When they reached quarantine he borrowed funds from Helen and morosely decided to take the next boat home without that important interview with John Fenn.

* * * * * * * *

Roger Gale stood on the veranda of his ranch house and looked away over the slopes where his sheep were crowded, huddled flocks of dusty gray against the green grass. From the flocks and the rippling hills his eyes turned to the winding trail that led from town.

A light buckboard was approaching the ranch, and he saw that while the outfit was his own and one of his men was driving there were two passengers in the rear seat. One was a citified looking man; the other was a girl dressed in blue. Now, Roger Dale was not in the habit of receiving girl visitors, and his interest was quickened at the sight of the newcomers. He stepped into the house to make anxious inquiries of the Chinese cook.

When he passed through his sitting room to the front porch Pauline Fenn was standing there looking at him with wet, wistful eyes.

"Polly!" he cried, with unbelieving eyes.

She nodded. "Roger, I have come. Father came with me. I cannot be happy without you. I want to be a rancher's wife"— She never finished her confession, for Roger's arms were around her and his bronzed cheek was against hers.

"You are sure, sure you won't regret it, love?" he asked over and over again.

And Pauline clung closer to him and whispered softly what George and Sally had awakened in her heart.

"I won't regret anything, so long as we are together," she said.

The Idea of Suggestion.

Richard Mansfield once said that when he was a lad in London he often nearly starved. There was a certain bakeshop where he would go and feast upon the odors coming from the door. That boyhood notion gave him the idea of putting those lines in his play, "Beau Brummel," about "dining on the names of things"—a suggestion he used with powerful dramatic effect.

This idea of suggestion has done many a good deed. About ninety years ago a thirsty man walked the Wall street—I understand the habit of getting a thirst no longer prevails there, or maybe it is only the manner of allaying it—and pumped a tin cup full of water from his own well. "Not so good as I used to get from my father's well," or something to that effect he remarked to his wife. "A pretty idea for a song," said she, and so he sat down and in an hour wrote "The Old Oaken Bucket."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Votaries of Church Bells.

The church bell has its votaries. Tennyson sang of "the mellow lin-lan-lone of the evening bells." And do you remember that experience of "Henry Ryecroft?" "I once passed a night in a little market town where I had arrived tired and went to bed early. I slept forthwith, but was presently awakened by I know not what. In the darkness there sounded a sort of music, and, as my brain cleared, I was aware of the soft chiming of church bells. Why, what hour could it be? I struck a light and looked at my watch. Midnight. Then a glow came over me. 'We have heard the chimes at midnight, Master Shallow!' Never till then had I heard them. And the town in which I slept was Evesham, but a few miles from Stratford-on-Avon. What if those midnight bells had been to me but as any other and I had reviled them for breaking my sleep?"—London Chronicle.

LIGHT ETERNAL IS WONDERFUL DRAMA

DEVOTIONAL PLAY OF EARLY ROME WHICH WAS SEEN AT BRADLEY OPERA HOUSE LAST SEASON COMING AGAIN MONDAY NIGHT

CAST IS STRONG ONE

Beautifully Staged, Show Scores Big Hit—Here Before and a Packed House Should Prevail

The Racine Wisconsin Journal says of The Light Eternal which comes to the Bradley Opera House Monday October 6 for return engagement.

"The Light Eternal", produced for the first time at Racine Theatre, last night, is one of the best productions ever seen on a Racine stage. Those who braved the disagreeable elements to witness the play, were well repaid for their efforts. It is a devotional drama of early Rome, by Martin V. Merle, and the cast of characters embraces dramatic talent of the highest character, in fact no better could be desired by the most careful critic.

The scenery and costumes are most attractive and elaborate.

Those people who are in the habit of making sweeping denunciation of the theatre and stage in general will change their views after witnessing "The Light Eternal," for the play presents a fundamental lesson in a most impressive manner.

Aptly, the programme describes the play as a "devotional drama." The scene is laid in Rome in the fourth century, the theme being the Martyrdom of early Christians, typified in the specific instance of a young soldier and his loved one, a princess royal. The plot reveals the struggle between the love of God and love of woman between duty and desire, and contrasts the cruel debased, even bestial nature of the pagans with the calm, secure, steadfast nobleness of the worshippers of one God.

In every way the story is told with a stateliness and solemnity befitting the subject, and while sombre in the extreme and lightened by no flash of light or humor, the play never for one moment loses interest. There is no question but that in its literary construction and dramatic properties it is perfect, while the scenic effects are exceedingly strong.

There are no poor characters in the company, and they all carry the difficult roles with earnestness and convincingness that are admirable. There is nothing overlooked and even the minor parts are exceptionally good.

Louise Dunbar, in the leading feminine role, the Princess Artemia, daughter of Diocletian, displayed ability, marking her as both an emotional and dramatic artist that would bring forth favorable comment from ninety-nine out of a hundred people.

John Milton, as Marco Valerius, the Martyr's son, filled the role splendidly and with great dignity.

James Nelson, Diocletian, Emperor of Rome, made the character one of prominence; in fact all of the others, did equally as well.

The audience last evening was highly delighted with the production.

TO OUR READERS.

The attention of our readers is called to an article written by the School Board which appears in this issue. A full vote is desired at the coming Special Election so as to ascertain the true feeling of our voters on this High School proposition.

The Herald as stated before, stands for the new school.

Not because it is an extravagance but because we feel it is a necessity. We are not proud of this old building we call our High School nor do we point to it with pride as one of the beauty spots of this beautiful village. We do not feel that it would be an extravagance to pull down this old building and replace it with a new modern building, fully equiped to take care of the present day needs of High School work.

Do you in your homes, and Tecumseh is noted for its beautiful modern homes, allow yourselves to live in old buildings, poorly heated, poorly ventilated and in most every way unfitted for the enjoyment of home life? No you do not. You are burning the midnight oil planning improvements to your homes and you have them too, cessity.

Why then do we deprive our children and neighbors children of a new School Home, a bright cheerful place to live in fully equiped for High School work, with good ventilation, well heated, sanitary toilets and above all two floors instead of three.

Most every point, as we see it, is in favor of this new school. Let us figure that the old is worn out and we must replace it with the new. A ne

We all desire for the young people of this community the best education possible for us to give them. Let us shoulder our responsibility in this matter and by our vote give this School District what other cities and towns about us already have. A NEW HIGH SCHOOL, fully suited for the wants of this community.

German Coffee Cake

Made Without Yeast

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

There is no warm bread quite as appropriate for Sunday morning breakfast as German Coffee Cake, yet it is seldom made by housewives who do not bake their own bread. If K C double raise Baking Powder is used it will be just as good as if raised with yeast and it will have the further advantage of being fresh and warm. Save this recipe and try it next Sunday.

K C German Coffee Cake

Two and one-fourth cups sifted flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; 1 level teaspoonful salt; 3 tablespoonfuls melted butter; 2 tablespoonfuls sugar; 1 egg; milk.

Sift dry ingredients together, beat the egg, add milk and butter to the egg to make one and one-quarter cups; stir all together with inverted spoon to a stiff batter. Turn into biscuit pan and spread even. Brush top lightly with melted butter. Sprinkle sugar and ground cinnamon over the top. Bake in moderate oven.

Dutch Apple Cake or Prune Kuchen can be made with this same batter by covering the top with pared and sliced apples, or cooked prunes with the pits removed, skin sides down. Dredge with sugar and cinnamon the same as for Coffee Cake.

"The Cook's Book" contains 90 just such delicious recipes. You can secure a copy free by sending the colored certificate packed in 25-cent cans of K C Baking Powder to the Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago, being sure to write your name and address plainly.

PRACTICAL BAKING LESSONS

FRITTERS AND DOUGHNUTS

I am pleased to submit to you choice recipes for doughnuts and fritters. These few recipes I have selected from my large collection with a view of giving you the most practical, as well as the very best. If these meet with your favor, I am greatly pleased.

Nevada Briggs

K

German Doughnuts

4 cups flour ½ teaspoonful salt
1 cup milk 1 cup sugar
4 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder
½ teaspoonful of mace or nutmeg
2 eggs or 1 egg and 2 additional yolks

Sift together, three times, flour, K C, salt and spice. Beat the eggs very light, using the rotary egg beater, then gradually beat in the sugar, making a very light creamy mixture of the egg and sugar; beat in the milk and stir into the flour. Make a soft dough, roll into a sheet, cut into rounds, pinch a hole in the center with the finger and fry in deep fat. Fat for frying should not be hot enough to brown the doughnut until it has risen. When the doughnut is dropped into the fat it sinks to the bottom. As soon as it comes up it should be turned and turned a number of times while cooking. This recipe is excellent as they do not take the fat in frying and will stay moist for days.

Potato Doughnuts

Will remain moist for days

3½ cups flour ½ teaspoonful salt
2 eggs ½ teaspoonful mace
1 cup sugar 1 cup cold mashed potato
4 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder
¾ cup milk, or more, if needed

Sift three times, the flour, salt, spice and baking powder. Beat eggs with rotary beater, then still using rotary beater, gradually add sugar, then work in the mashed potato with a spoon and alternately add milk and flour mixture, fry as German Doughnuts.

Apple Fritters

1 cup sifted pastry flour ¼ teaspoonful salt
1 egg, beaten light ¼ cup milk
1 level teaspoonful K C Baking Powder
1 level teaspoonful powdered sugar
2 apples, pared and cut in small pieces

Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Add the milk to the beaten egg and stir in the dry ingredients. Then stir in the bits of apple. Drop batter into hot fat by spoonfuls and let fry until delicately brown, and apple is tender. Drain on soft paper. Serve with powdered sugar or jelly sauce. Bananas, peaches, fresh or canned, and other fruit may be used in the same way.

Jelly Sauce

½ cup sugar ½ glass jelly
1 tablespoonful flour 1¼ cups cold water
1 tablespoonful lemon juice

Mix all together and cook until smooth.

Pineapple Fritters

1 cup flour ½ teaspoonful salt
1 egg ¼ cup milk
½ cup chopped or grated pine apple
1 level teaspoonful K C Baking Powder
1 teaspoonful powdered sugar

Mix as apple fritters and fry in deep fat, serve with Pineapple Sauce.

Pineapple Sauce

½ cup sugar 1 teaspoonful flour
1 tablespoonful lemon juice

Cook until smooth with pineapple liquid and water, using enough water added to the pineapple liquid to make 1½ cups.

Cheese and Rice Fritters

1 cup boiled rice, grains distinct
2 tablespoonfuls milk or melted butter
½ cup grated cheese 1 egg, beaten light
1 level teaspoonful K C Baking Powder
¼ teaspoonful salt
2 level tablespoonfuls pastry flour.

Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder and salt. To the egg, add the rice, butter or milk, cheese and lastly the flour mixture. Drop by spoonfuls into butter melted in the blazer of a chafing dish (or frying pan). Let cook until a delicate brown color, then turn to cook the other side. Serve with

White Sauce

2 tablespoonfuls rounded of butter
1 tablespoonful rounded of flour
1½ cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste.

Rub butter and flour together, add milk and cook until smooth.

Helpful Hints

Never let the fat be hot enough to brown before the doughnuts and fritters rise and expand. Often soggy fritters and tough doughnuts are made by having the fat too hot.

K C Baking Powder is especially adapted for doughnuts as one cannot fry all at once, and with K C the food can be mixed and stand for hours before cooking. This is an advantage over the old fashioned one-action baking powders, cream of tartar and soda or sour milk and soda.

I urge every housekeeper to try a can of K C Baking Powder. The ease with which it can be used is very gratifying. One can mix any amount of batter and cook it as needed. For instance a large amount of biscuits can be mixed and cut out ready for the oven and baked as wanted through several hours. This is due to the double action of K C, which also makes it impossible for cakes to fall. Purchase a can of K C and be convinced for yourself just what it will do. Follow the directions carefully and success is sure to follow.

REUNION

The Tuesday a. m. train brought two members of the 9th Michigan Calvary, Andrew Fuller and wifes of Hillsdale, Elmer Bowen and wife of Detroit to meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Lawrence

There were originally six of them, Capt. Cairnes, Capt. Lester and Lieut. James Wood with first named three who held a reunion once a year at the home of one of the number. Cairnes, Lester and Wood have answered the last roll call and are on the other shore waiting for the others. At these reunions the past is brought to the present, the virtues of the dead comrades are not forgotten, the good deeds they did in life are given new life.

The old, old story is ever new to the boys in blue, the long silent hours of out post duty, the lively times around the campfires, the long hard march over the mountains of East Tenn., the fording of streams of ice cold water, the cold new years day when with clothes as wet as they can be without shelter of any kind they passed that awful day the first of 1864, the seige of Knoxville, the Atlanta campaign and on with uncle Billy to the sea some one would tell of a funny incident and the laugh goes around ever and anon some one would tell of the loss of a comrade, the story of which would leave a tear in the eye, like a marine in the gang way, you wonder why these old men like to talk it over. Nothing on earth bind men closer than the active field life of a soldier

I know of no place where one can show the best or worse that is in him, like the tented field. Some of these stores may seem like fairy tales to one who never has been there, but I know they are true. These men have wrapped their fallen comrades in blankets and have laid them to sleep as kindly as a mother or sister could have done and breathed a silent prayer over their graves forever we will be "Amici esque adaras"

THE HIGH SCHOOL QUESTION

The time approaches when the question of a new school that will properly house our high school pupils must again come up for discussion and decision.

At the special election of last June the vote polled was so small in numbers that much doubt was left in the mind of the Board of Education as to the real wishes of the District in the matter.

That there may be a fuller expression of opinion at the coming special election of Oct, 14th it is urged that each parent and tax payer in the District become interested in inquiring into the need for a modern building and then be at the polls to register their wishes on the above named date.

The drawings and plan of the building as contemplated have been changed in no way since the last election as the Board is well satisfied with the arrangement now under consideration. There are a number of reasons why the Board favors the building of a new high school at the present time.

Conditions in school house construction have greatly changed since 1856 and the school of today is built nearer the ground or not so high in the air thus avoiding the great danger of calamity in case of fire.

The lower building is also of no little aid to both teacher and pupil in getting rid of the tedious climb to the third story class rooms.

Ventilation which in early days was little thought of is now becoming one of the most important points in school house as well as in all public building construction, where people must meet and breathe. In the building now being considered the specifications call for a ventilating system that will change the air in every room and corridor six times each hour of the day.

In our present high school building, the heating problem is to say the least discouraging. During the extreme weather which must be counted on more or less each winter season, it has of late years been an impossibility to make the class rooms comfortable for the scholar or teacher.

This should of course not be so and, ought to receive attention in some way at no distant date.

In the matter of fire, our schools have been fortunate indeed, yet, we have before us the constantly reoccurring example and warning of some school house conflagration, coupled only too frequently with great loss of life. It teaches the lesson that each community should safeguard in every possible way the pupil attending its public schools.

In the new building as proposed all the dangerous parts, the corridors, stairways, and the auditorium are to be of fire proof construction as is also the walls and ceiling of boiler and fuel room.

Another point to be considered, is the tendency that is constantly growing in the smaller as well as the larger cities, to teach boys and girls something that will be of practical use to them after they have finished school duties, and go out into the world—some work they can do with their hands. This need not necessarily mean additional teachers in the schools but possibly the elimination of some less practical subject in favor of a domestic science course for the girl who may be so inclined and some sort of manual training for the boy who has an adaptability in this direction.

With the present building and its limited facilities, there is but little encouragement that can be offered toward broadening the present plan of education.

In the new plans, however, space has been allotted with this special line of study work in view the details of same to be worked out as occasion demands and as opportunity presents itself.

Last but not least comes the matter of pride—the pride that each citizen of the District should feel in keeping abreast of the times (a step in advance if possible) the pride that each citizen must feel in giving his children or to his neighbor's children better educational advantages through a modern school and its consequent improved facilities and sanitary equipment.

Every town of consequence in Lenawee County, Tecumseh excepted, has a modern building for high school work.

Is there a substantial reason why Tecumseh should wait longer?

Respectfully submitted,
Board of Education.
C. F. Patterson, Sec'y.
E. H. Halladay, Pres.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Herald readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. What other remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit?

W. C. Witherell, W. Pottawatamie St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have had no reason to change my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I publicly expressed some years ago and I willingly confirm all I have previously said in their praise. I had acute pains across the small of my back and I and in my hips and often after stooping, a sharp twinge darted through my loins, obliging me to lie down. I was laid in bed for several days and I believe that my trouble was caused by excessive stooping. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I obtained a supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and the contents of a few boxes restored me to good health. Since then, whenever I have felt in need of a kidney medicine I have taken this preparation and the results have been very pleasing."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

OFFICER SHOOTS PRISONER

Young Man Arrested Doing Tenderloin Wounded Under Heart.

SAGINAW, MICH. — As the result of a street fight Herman Yaster, twenty-five years old, whose home is near Clio, Genesee county, was shot below the heart by Detective Parker Owen, of Saginaw.

Yaster with three friends, whose names are unknown, were found in the tenderloin causing a disturbance. Yaster was placed under arrest. On the way to jail Yaster, it is alleged, started to rough the officer. Owen used his gun as a billy, striking Yaster over the head. Both fell, Owen on the bottom.

Owen declares he does not know whether he pulled the trigger of the weapon or whether it went off during the scuffle. Yaster's chances of recovery are said to be good.

Anxious Milwaukee fans awaited returns from Louisville and the news of the Brewers' victory started a celebration which continued far into the night.

EVANSVILLE, IND. — Charles W. Meissner, seventy-one years old, was found guilty of manslaughter for killing Henry Berger on July 15. Meissner shot Berger, a saloonkeeper, after having been ejected from the saloon. He is a veteran of the civil war and there were two soldiers on the jury, which was out eleven hours.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — The dead body of Joseph Schlansky, a merchant, was found in a room at a hotel which had been occupied by a young man who registered as "W. R. Anderson, Louisville, Ky." A strong cord had been tied around the victim's throat and he had been shot through the head.

RUSHVILLE, IND. — Erba Price, who has been under arrest charged with involuntary manslaughter for causing the death of his father, William Price, former county sheriff, who died shortly after being struck by his son, was given a suspended sentence by Judge Megee in the circuit court.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

BAY CITY — The very alarming statements accredited to State Geologist Allen to the effect that at the present rate of production, Michigan coal deposits will be exhausted within fifteen or sixteen years are regarded as amateurish by men in the Saginaw valley who have gained their knowledge of Michigan coal through years of experience in coal mining. Coal men assert that Mr. Allen's statements are based on an inaccurate knowledge of the deposits. Men connected with the Consolidated company have frequently made the statement that when the present mines are exhausted they will open shafts which they do not expect to mine during the life of the present members of the corporation. It is a matter of common knowledge among coal men, however, that in Tuscola county alone Handy brothers control by lease or otherwise coal lands which contain upward of 25,000,000 tons of coal, and they are not the only ones who own coal rights in Tuscola, nor has all the Tuscola coal field been tested.

DETROIT — Jack "Bum" Ryan, who is about sixty-six years old, confirmed cocaine fiend, burglar, pickpocket, drunkard, once a classmate of Judge Connolly in the Detroit college and a student at the University of Michigan, prospective heir to a quarter share of a $100,000 estate, was convicted in Judge Connolly's court of having cocaine in his possession illegally. Records show 31 arrests and many convictions for various offenses from August 11, 1897, to January, 1906. Ryan has served time in Jackson, Ionia, Marquette, and the house of correction for various offenses, including drunkenness, disturbing the peace, picking pockets, burglarly and assault. Ryan has served twenty-two years of his life in prison.

LANSING — As the numerous replies to Governor Ferris' letter arrive at the executive office from the members of the legislature on the much-discussed subject of a special session the majority against the calling of a special session grows larger. Twenty-six letters have been received and only six members expressed a belief that a special session was advisable. Some of the letters are amusing as many solons are doing some high and artful dodging to prevent committing themselves.

KALAMAZOO—Norman D. Jewett who was thirty-five years of age married, of Calumet, fell to his death from a third story window in Bronson hospital after witnessing an operation on his brother for appendicitis. His skull was fractured and his neck broken. His brother, D. C. Jewett, of Richland, had been brought to the hospital early in the afternoon for an operation. Apparently becoming faint at the sight Norman Jewett walked to the window, opened it and fell out.

SAGINAW — Sebastian Nothheffer, who has been the proprietor of a saloon in Saginaw for the last nineteen years and has represented his ward in the common council for the last three years, has just taken out his naturalization papers here. The alderman says that he thought he was a citizen under papers taken out by his father in Pennsylvania. When he appeared as a witness for a friend who desired to take out his papers he discovered the mistake.

QUEBEC, CAN.—As the result of a blaze in a three-story wooden building in St. Francois street, eight children of the family of Ulrich Trudel, the proprietor, were cremated.

SPORTING AFFAIRS.

VASSAR, MICH. — Haxen Ferguson, about sixteen years old, living six miles from here, was fatally wounded while hunting rabbits with his father and brother. His gun was accidently discharged while he stood on a stump, the shot entering the flesh and muscles from the abdomen. Little hope is entertained for his recovery.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. — Assuming that the New York team will win the National league pennant, the members of the national baseball commission decided that the first game between that club and the Philadelphia American league team for the world's championship shall be played in New York on Oct. 7.

RACINE, WIS.—Matty McCue, Racine's crack featherweight pugilist, handed "Young" Togo, the Fort Smith, Ark., Japanese boxer, a pretty beating. The local boxer scored a knockout in each of six rounds, when the go was stopped by Referee Hazey.

A BOUQUET OF FLOWERS

It Told a Story Without Words

By EMILY WESTBROOK

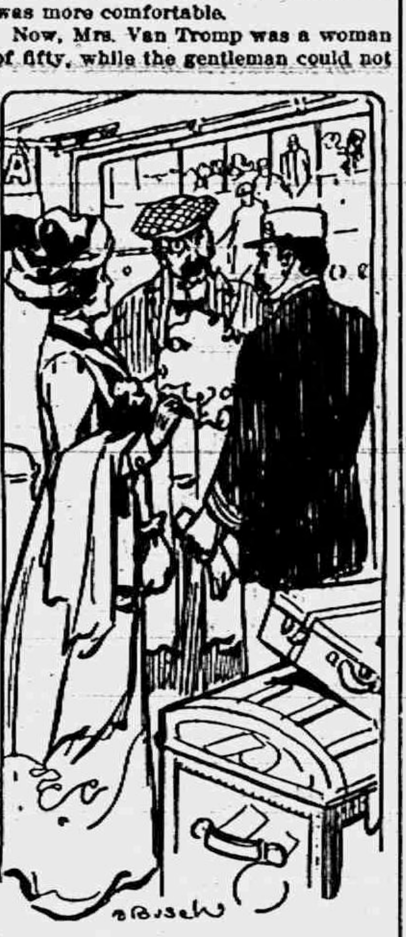
Mrs. Van Tromp of New York was a globe trotter. She was a widow with one daughter, Madeline, who was obliged to trot with her mother, but would rather have remained at home, for Miss Madeline was a sensible girl and, although not averse to seeing foreign lands, was not minded to spend her life in circling the world.

In their wanderings the Van Tromps found themselves in Bombay, India, having done that country so far as women tourists could. Mrs. Van Tromp was much impressed with the display of wealth of the rulers and especially the jewels with which they decorated themselves, for ornaments are dear to the feminine heart. It is quite likely that if a rajah, covered from his waist up with gems, had asked for the hand of her daughter she would have given her consent instanter.

But a globe trotter cannot remain in one place or the term would be a misnomer. The Van Tromps left the city of Bombay to sail across the Arabian sea and pass through the Red and Mediterranean seas to London. Such a journey in a single vessel requires a great deal of time, and those cooped up together in her are apt before the end to become pretty well acquainted.

Mrs. Van Tromp was sitting one day on deck in a steamer chair reading an erotic novel when the wind blew her veil off her head and sent it sailing astern. It was picked up by a gentleman with a tawny, drooping mustache, who handed it to her with a profound bow. He was so distinguished looking that instead of giving him the conventional thanks that she would have accorded an ordinary person she bestowed them with her most charming smile. The gentleman assured her that she was welcome and further remarked that since the day was a trifle windy perhaps he had better find a more protected spot for her. She accepted the offer, and the gentleman removed her chair and rugs to the lee side of the wireless telegraph office, where she was more comfortable.

Now, Mrs. Van Tromp was a woman of fifty, while the gentleman could not have been much over thirty. There was therefore no impropriety in her entering into conversation with him about the weather, the ennui occasioned by so long a confinement within such narrow limits, and other small talk incidental to shipboard. The gentleman spoke with an English accent such as Mrs. Van Tromp had heard among certain swell acquaintances she had made in London. While they were chatting Miss Madeline came up breasting the wind and joined her mother.



HE THOUGHT IT ODD THAT A MAN SHOULD BE CARRYING FLOWERS.

"My daughter, Mr. ——," said Mrs. Van Tromp by way of introduction, stopping for her new found friend to supply the deficiency of his name.

"Mackridge."

"Mr. Mackridge has been kind enough to keep my veil from going overboard and to move my chair out of the wind."

The gentleman bowed, and Miss Van Tromp inclined her head in recognition. He provided her with a chair that stood near and received an invitation from her mother to occupy one himself in their company.

This was the beginning of one of those tourist acquaintances that, informally made, often ripen into strong friendships. Mr. Mackridge was especially attentive to Mrs. Van Tromp, who was especially gratified at being an object of consideration from one so much younger than herself, and she regarded it a proof that he had been brought up by some aristocratic family who had not broken away from the tradition of respect for age. This view was confirmed by Mr. Mackridge himself, who when accused of it confessed it, stating that he was the next younger brother of the Marquis of Goldingay, one of the oldest families in Ireland. He furthermore let it be known that the marquis was a bachelor and in ill health.

This was quite enough to induce Mrs. Van Tromp to lay plans for a union between Mr. Mackridge and her daughter. The mother cast off her regret that she couldn't marry Madeline to a rajah and became interested in the more practicable scheme of marrying her to a man who was likely to become a marquis. The first time after having received this information that Mr. Mackridge joined her and her daughter on deck she made an excuse to go below in order to leave them together.

Miss Van Tromp had become such a traveler that she was not averse to picking up acquaintances during a voyage, but she seldom became familiar with them. Mr. Mackridge evinced a desire for her companionship, but found as the journey proceeded that he was not permitted to come to terms of intimacy. Mrs. Van Tromp watched his attentions to her daughter and could not understand why Madeline gave no more cordial response.

"My dear," said the [illegible] mother, [illegible] Mackridge it might be of great benefit to us. He tells me that his brother has a house in London and is usually there during the season. We may be invited there and meet many persons of rank."

"I thought his brother was a bachelor. Bachelors don't usually entertain."

"Oh, Madeline, you don't grasp things as you should. You will never take the position you should because you have no push. The fact that Mr. Mackridge's brother is a bachelor should lead you all the more to cultivate him."

"I have thought, mother, dear, that you preferred I should cultivate Mr. Mackridge himself."

Mrs. Van Tromp made a grimace, but accorded no reply to such stupidity, for she certainly considered any girl stupid who would encourage a younger brother of a marquis, even though the marquis himself was in bad health.

During the passage of the Red sea Mr. Mackridge continued his attentions, and Mrs. Van Tromp was pleased that Madeline seemed more disposed to accept them. This acceptance could not be construed to mean encouragement, but Mrs. Van Tromp felt more hopeful, and Mr. Mackridge took advantage of it to be more attentive. He gained a point with Mrs. Van Tromp by letting out the fact that he was a captain in a British regiment stationed in India, all the officers of which were noblemen. He had procured a leave of absence to go home, having been informed that his brother, the marquis, was failing rapidly.

After receiving this additional information Mrs. Van Tromp conceived the idea of going ashore in Captain Mackridge's company on the ship's arrival at Gibraltar. He, being a British officer, would doubtless be hand in glove with the officers of the garrison and would be able to secure for the Van Tromps special privileges. She hinted to Mackridge that she would be pleased to have him with her and her daughter when they visited Gibraltar, and he accepted the invitation with alacrity. But when they reached the port the captain was confined to his stateroom with a severe indisposition and was unable to leave the ship.

All went well with the trio who were performing this little comedy during the latter part of the voyage. Just before leaving the steamer Captain Mackridge managed to obtain a large bouquet of flowers. Whether he bought them from a bumboat or they had been cultivated aboard the ship does not matter. The important feature is that he presented them to Miss Van Tromp. The gift was made while the mother and daughter, accompanied by the captain, were about to pass down the gangway. The young lady inhaled their perfume and started down for the dock with them in her left hand, carrying a piece of hand baggage in her right. On reaching the dock she suddenly remembered leaving some article in her stateroom.

"Please take these," she said to Mackridge, handing him the hand baggage and her bouquet, "and keep them till I return. I'll be back in a few minutes."

Mackridge took the articles, a certain whiteness appearing about his mouth and an anxiety in his eyes as he did so. Miss Van Tromp ran up the gangway, passing with difficulty those coming down, and disappeared within the ship. A customs inspector, who was watching for smugglers, noticed a gentleman standing with a large bouquet in his hand and pondered. Had a lady been carrying it his attention might not have been attracted. Suspicious as all custom house officials are, he thought it odd that a man should be carrying flowers, and possibly it might be used as a means of concealing dutiable goods.

"I'll look into that, sir, if you please," he said to Mackridge.

The whiteness about the latter's mouth turned to a sickly pallor as the inspector took the bouquet from his hands. Pulling it apart, several articles wrapped in white tissue paper fell on the dock. The inspector picked them up, unwrapped one and a large diamond glistened in the sunlight.

When Madeline Van Tromp rejoined her mother she found her alone.

"Where's Captain Mackridge?" she asked.

"Gone under arrest for smuggling." And she recounted the discovery of the jewels.

"And all he wanted of me," said Madeline, "was to carry the bouquet ashore for him. I suspected something of the kind and turned it back into his hands on purpose."

To admire, to love, to regret is to live, said a great writer. Do not let the regret be brought on by a cough or cold which if treated when it first appeared would have easily been controlled. Allen's Cough Balsam brings welcomed relief in such cases. Contains no harmful ingredients. 25c., 50c. and $1.00 bottles at all dealers.

Significance of Small Duties.

Don't object that your duties are so insignificant. They are to be reckoned of infinite significance and alone important to you. Were it but the more perfect regulation of your apartments, the sorting away of your clothes and trinkets, the arranging of your papers—"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might" and all thy worth and constancy. Much more, if your duties are of evidently higher, wider scope; if you have brothers, sisters, a father, a mother, weigh earnestly what claim does lie upon you on behalf of each and consider it as the one thing needful to pay them more and more honestly and nobly what you owe. What matter how miserable one is if one can do that? That is the sure and steady disconnection and extinction of whatsoever miseries one has in this world.—Thomas Carlyle.

Rochefort In Court.

Henri Rochefort went to court oftener, it is said, as plaintiff, defendant or witness than any other man in Paris. Partly this was because of his articles, partly because of his continual dealings with the picture dealers, with whom he often disagreed. In his later years, moreover, he was often called as a "witness" by parties in political suits, not because he had any pertinent testimony to present, but because he had a happy faculty when on the witness stand of making the government, the police and all that set appear a set of fools or scoundrels. The French code of procedure allows a witness much more latitude in "telling his own story" than does ours. And Rochefort's stories, whether relevant or not, were sure to have a sting in them for the folk in authority.—New York Sun.

SLAIN GIRL IS LEFT ON PRAIRIE

Victim Believed to Be Miss Ida Leegson of Iowa.

WAS A UNIVERSITY GRADUATE

Also Attended Art Institute and Was a Teacher—Officers Believe She Was Killed in Auto—Clothing Scattered Around 200 Feet—Known As Quiet and Refined Woman.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The almost nude body of a young woman who had been attacked and strangled to death was found in the afternoon on a prairie at Seventy-first street and South Fortieth avenue, near Argo.

From cards and papers found near by, from the initial "L" on a handkerchief, and from a telegram from Mason City, Ia., asking her to come there at once, it is believed that the body is that of Miss Leegson or Ligston, a graduate of the University of Chicago, who studied art at the Art Institute last summer and who was a native of Oshkosh, Wis.

The body was unclothed except for a combination suit, which had been rent asunder from the collar down; a stocking on the right leg; and a blue coat of fine texture, matching a skirt found 200 feet away.

She was a woman perhaps thirty-five years old, a blonde with blue eyes and golden hair, weighing about 135 pounds, and 5 feet 6 inches tall. Her ears were pierced for rings, and there were marks of rings on her fingers, but no jewelry.

Man's Footprints Seen.

The gound was trampled all about where the body lay, and there could be plainly seen her own footprints, and the marks of a man's shoe, No. 7 or No. 8. The body and face were terribly beaten and bruised.

The officials believe that the girl was killed and partially disrobed in a motor car, and her body cast aside where it was found. The tracks of an automobile were seen near by.

She had been dead, apparently, five or six hours when found.

Her own shoes, black Oxfords, No. 2, lay about twenty feet from the body. They had been bought at Carson, Pierie, Scott & Co.'s store in Chicago.

Tells of $665 Sent.

This telegram was found in her coat, which is held to establish her identity:

"Mason City, Ia., Sept. 6.—Miss Ida Leegson: Am sending $665. Come immediately. HUGH GILMORE."

In the pocket of the coat was found a room rent receipt to October 26, signed "Frank Dougan," but without her name or address. But there were cards bearing the name "Ida Leegson, 6021 Monroe avenue."

W. K. Morris and his mother live at that address. They said that Miss Legiston or Leegson lived with them during four years she attended Chicago university and also when she attended the Art Institute. She was a very refined and well educated woman, about thirty-five years old.

"I have been forwarding her mail to Iowa ever since she left," said Mrs. Morris. "I have not heard from her since she left. I do not remember the name of the town to which she was going.

"I can't believe that she is the murdered woman. It is preposterous. I am sure that she is in Iowa."

ACCUSED LAWYER DISBARRED

Thomas G. Moorehead Ordered Suspended in Fort Wayne.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 6.—Thomas G. Moorehead was suspended from practice in the Indiana bar because of misrepresentations made when he was admitted to the bar. He stated that he was a citizen of the United States when he was really a citizen of Canada.

Moorehead's supension grew out of hi sacquittal on the charges of blackmail recently brought against him when it was alleged that he tried to get money from prominent citizens because of their connection with young girls, whose delinquency the grand jury was investigating.

ACCUSED OF ASYLUM ARSON

Former Employe at Kankakee Charged with Fire in Laundry.

Kankakee, Ill., Oct. 6.—On complaint of a woman that she had seen him fling a lighted cigar into a bundle of clothes, James Dixon, former night watchman at the state asylum for the insane, was arrested charged with arson in setting fire to the institution's laundry building on May 24, 1912.

Miss Ella Wilson, a former attendant, gave the state's attorney information that after throwing the cigar into the clothes Dixon had said: "Oh, well, the state is rich."

The fire was $18,000. Another arrest is expected.

Vindictive.

CHURCH HOLDS FANS' SERVICE

Letters from Mack, McGraw and Billy Sunday.

SUNDAY HAD THE REAL "PEP."

Leaders and Evangelist Tell Why They Like Baseball—All Pay Tribute to Wholesomeness of Pastime—Sunday Will Quit Working Long Enough to Peep at Score Boards.

New York, Oct. 6.—Connie Mack and John J. McGraw, who will lead the Athletics and Giants respectively in Tuesday's opening battle of the world's championship series, sent letters telling why they like baseball, which were read at a special baseball service at Grace Methodist church. But it was a brief note from Billy Sunday that the ball players who attended the service seemed to think had the real "pep." He wrote:

Billy Sunday Has "Pep."

"My best wishes to you boys as you enter the world's series. I'll be working to beat hell all next week, but I'll lay off long enough to look at the scores. Here's hoping you and the Athletics are in the pink of condition. There's more joy in victory then. Which ever way it goes I could wish nothing greater for every ball player in our land than that each one should have the peace and joy that has come to me by believing and accepting Jesus Christ as my personal friend and savior."

Connie Mack's Tribute.

Connie Mack sent this in part:

"It is most natural that I should consider baseball the greatest game of all time. Certainly no outdoor game ever developed a greater popularity than baseball enjoys. It is our national sport.

"I can conceive of no more enjoyable recreation for an individual than the playing of baseball. Its element of danger is limited. The fatalities during a playing season are very few and not within my recollection has there been a fatal accident in the major leagues.

"To the spectator the game contains an exhiliration that has no parallel resulting from an athletic exhibition.

"Baseball never can lose its popularity, never die as long as the American public retains its confidence in the men who conduct it."

"Most Admirable Pastime."—McGraw.

John J. McGraw's letter follows:

"Naturally I think baseball the most admirable pastime in the world. It is not a sport in the common acceptance of that phrase, but it is a keen competition of wit, intelligence and muscle against similar qualities. It develops the mind, establishes discipline and gives to those who take part in it, sound bodies, clear heads and a better sense of life."

The Rev. Christian F. Reisner, taking as his topic "Who will win?" quoted from conversations with famous players and drew parallels between winning plays in the game and in life.

Blanche Bates Injured.

New York, Oct. 6.—The friends of Blanche Bates, who off the stage is Mrs. George Creel, heard that she had been injured in a runaway accident while driving with her husband near Lake Mahopac, N. Y., and that owing to her delicate condition serious results were feared.

MRS. REXROAT'S SLAYER CAUGHT

"Henry Spencer" Confesses He Murdered Nine Others.

HE HAS REXROAT SUITCASE

It Is Found In Rooming House Where Police Captured Him—Prisoner Says He Has Made Away with Seven Women and Three Men in Past Year—Killed to Rob.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Captain Halpin of the detective bureau announces that he has caught the man believed to be guilty of the Rexroat murder, and that he has confessed the murder, and that he has also confessed having killed nine other persons, seven of them women, within the last year.

In confirmation of this almost incredible confession, Captain Halpin declared that the suitcase which Mildred Allison-Rexroat carried with her to Wheaton on the night of her murder was found, bloodstained and positively identified, in the room where the arrest was made.

The man under arrest gave the name of Henry Spencer. He was captured in a rooming house at 2215 Michigan avenue. Previously he had lived, he said, at 3212 Rhodes avenue. He had used at convenience in addition to the name of Spencer, the names of "Burke" and Scallop."

"I Killed Mrs. Rexroat!"

"I killed Mrs. Rexroat," is declared to have been Spencer's first statement when he was brought into the detective headquarters and confronted by a group of detectives and stenographers.

"I killed her to rob her. I have killed many others for the same purpose," the man is alleged to have continued. And then came the most sensational declaration of all, spoken as calmly as a man might speak of a dinner engagement for the next evening.

"If I had not been caught just at this time," Spencer is quoted by the detectives, "I would have killed Mrs. A. J. Scofield, proprietor of the rooming house where I have been living."

Spencer was captured because he was afraid.

For several days he has felt, he said, that he was closely watched. And it was only two days ago that he made the move which ultimately brought about his arrest. Two men approached him on the street near the rooming house where he was staying. One asked him for a match.

"My first thought," Spencer said, "was that they must be detectives. Instead of a match, I pulled out a revolver, and the men at the sight of it ran away."

Watched for Days.

These were the men who afterward told the police. And then it was a matter of watching. Detectives were vigilant in the neighborhood of Spencer's room for nearly thirty-six hours before they got a look at him.

They saw that he answered the description of the man wanted, and then the arrest was made.

MINER FREED FROM TOMB

Man Imprisoned in Colliery for Several Days Is Rescued.

Centralia, Pa., Oct. 6.—Thomas Tohesky, the miner imprisoned for several days in the Continental mine, was rescued at 7:25 a. m. His wife and children were waiting at the mine when the rescuers broke down the last rock barrier between Tohesky and freedom.

He almost collapsed when his wife took him in her arms and his children wept with joy.

"LADY LIGHT KEEPER" WILL RETIRE NOV. 1

The Only One on Great Lakes; Forty-four Years' Service.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 6.—After serving forty-four years as the keeper of lights on Lake Michigan, Mrs. Daniel Williams will retire after Nov. 1 and, with her husband will live at Charlevoix.

There never was a lighthouse like the one on Harbor Point, Little Travers Bay, where Mrs. Williams had been stationed the last twenty-nine years. The place is an ideal home, comfortably furnished and clean. Mr. and Mrs. Williams pride themselves on their lighthouse home, where during the season they are daily visited by interested summer resorters, who have heard of the "lady light keeper" the only one on the great lakes.

Mrs. Williams was formerly Elizabeth Whitney. She was married in 1864 to Clement Van Riper, a teacher in the schools of Garden Island. For several years they lived on the island, Mrs. Van Riper aiding her husband in his studies. In 1869 they retired and Mr. Van Riper was appointed keeper of the Beaver Island lighthouse, where he remained in charge till his death by drowning in 1872, when his widow was appointed keeper. Three years later she was married to Daniel Williams, a friend of her childhood days on Mackinac Island. They looked after the Beaver Island light till 1884, when they took up their abode in the new lighthouse erected on Harbor Point.

BROKEN BONE ENTERS LUNG

Gibson County Farmer Injured in Fall from Load of Hay.

Princeton, Ind., Oct. 6.—Isaac James, a farmer, sixty years old, fell from a load of hay and sustained a fracture of two ribs and internal injuries. One of the broken bones penetrated his left lung.

E. Yancy, a water bailer at the coal miners here, in attempting to dodge a mule pulling a coal car, fell beneath the car and was run over. His right leg was fractured between the knee and the ankle.

PATTISON CAN NOT GET JOB

Support of Lorimer Alleged as Reason for Denial of Appointment.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Because of his connection with the Lorimer election Douglas Pattison of Freeport, Ill., will not be appointed first assistant district attorney in Chicago. This was the notification given Senator Lewis by the department of justice.

Several days ago Senator Lewis received a protest from Jacob Groves, formerly a member of the Illinois state legislature, against the naming of Pattison. Groves said Pattison had attempted improperly to influence him and other Democratic legislators for Lorimer. He referred to his testimony before the senate investigating committee.

Kind That Glows.

It is worth recalling just now that there is etiquette to be observed even in being warm. In an old volume for the instruction of youth a young lady declares herself to be "all of a muck of sweat," and is at once severely rebuked by her governess with "Hush, miss! Horses sweat, men perspire, but ladies only glow."

Ancients' Concerning Dreams.

Plato, Aristo and Cicero believed that dreams foretold future events if rightly interpreted. Artemidorus of Epresus, who lived about the middle of the second century, wrote books of elaborate rules telling how to interpret dreams. Among other things he says that he who shall dream he has lost a tooth shall lose a friend.

The wheel of forune has turned many a man's head.

The Word Cocoanut.

It really should be "coco-nut," but custom compels the inclusion of that superfluous "a." The term coco or cocoa by which the nuts are known is said by several authorities to be of Portuguese origin, and the derivation is quite out of the ordinary. According to Bauhin, cocoa or coquhen is derived from the three holes at the end of the nut, giving it the resemblance of a species of monkey. Another writer, Piso, would have us believe the name is due to the sound emitted when air is blown into one of the holes of the nut, it being likened unto the voice of an ape. The Portuguese for monkey is macaco or macoco. Perhaps the best explanation offered is that "coco" means a grin or grimace, for the three eyes of the nut certainly convey the impression of a hideous laugh. For the unnecessary "a" the blame has been laid on the head of a careless proofreader, who allowed the name in its present form to creep into Johnson's dictionary, although the learned doctor had used the correct spelling.—London Telegraph.

Good Discipline.

"Our American militia is the best in the world," said the president of the Descendants of the Signers.

"How strict it is! During the annual encampment of our Virginia militia a private was riding one hot day on a trolley car with his uniform coat unbuttoned. This caused a sergeant on the smokers' seat behind to say:

"'Button up that coat! Haven't you got any sense of military decency at all?'

"But here a gentleman on the left interfered, saying to the sergeant:

"'How dare you give commands with a cigar in your mouth? I'm Major Fitzhugh Calhoun.'

"At this point an elderly gentleman, with a white military mustache leaned over and murmured in the major's ear:

"'Colonel Brewster Fairfax is sorry to remind you, sir, that to scold a sergeant in the presence of a private is a military offense hard to overlook.'"—Washington Star.

Hens That Swim.

School Inspector (to the infant class)—Can a hen swim?

"Yes," says Maggie, with a significant nod of the head.

"What! Do you say a hen can swim?"

"Yes," with repeated nod.

The infant mistress is appealed to regarding the instruction imparted to the class.

"Maggie," says the infant mistress, "surely you are not thinking. Do you say a hen can swim?"

With persistent nod Maggie says "Yes."

Head master enters the room. Inspector calls his attention to Maggie's repeated answer.

Head Master (to Maggie)—Do you mean to say a hen can swim?

"Yes," says Maggie.

"Did you ever see a hen swim?"

"Yes; a water hen."

Inspector confesses he has still something to learn.—London Answers.

Turkey as "the Sick Man."

Now a collector of old prints comes forward with the proof that the expression, "the sick man of Europe," so persistently applied for years to Turkey, really dates back to the seventeenth century, when John Sobieski drove back the Turks from the gates of Vienna. He shows an old engraving with the Turk on his sickbed in the center and the doctors representing all the nations of Europe gathered about him. As has been the case ever since, they cannot agree as to the treatment. All want to make an end of the Turk, but the Spaniard wishes to apply a bomb, the Pole wishes to give him steel, the Prussian would stifle him with his cloak, etc. Change the names and costumes of the doctors and this cartoon of nearly three centuries ago would answer for any of the numerous congresses that have since then attempted to settle the vexing eastern question.—Argonaut.

Our Limitations.

There are noises louder than thunder which we cannot hear, the roar that lies on the other side of silence, writes Frank Harris in "Unpath'd Waters." We men are poor, restless prisoners, hemmed in by our senses as by the walls of a cell, hearing only a part of nature's orchestra and that part imperfectly, seeing only a thousandth part of the color marvels about us and seeing that infinitesimal part incorrectly and partially.

One Who Knew It.

A very old lady, who was on her deathbed and in a penitential mood, said, "I have been a great sinner more than eighty year and didn't know it." An old colored woman who had lived with her a long time exclaimed, "Lor', missus, I knowed it all the time!"—Exchange.

His Awful Dream.

Sydney Smith had been ill, and a friend having called to see him inquired what sort of night he had passed. "Oh, horrid, horrid, my dear fellow! I dreamed I was chained to a rock and being talked to death by Harriet Martineau and Macaulay."

Don't Wait Too Long.

Do not place too much confidence in the saying, "It is never too late to mend." A big patch is sometimes as conspicuous as a hole.—Youth's Companion.

Strong Hint.

Balladist—Don't you think if I'd cut out one of my four songs it would improve my act? Stage Manager—Yes, about 25 per cent.—Brooklyn Life.

Overspecializing Specialists.

A technically trained engineer has constantly to combat a tendency toward narrowness of view point if he desires to cultivate a wide mental horizon. He has to avoid a complete absorption in detail to the exclusion of the larger relations of his work if he will advance along broad lines, and still he must not neglect details which are essential. The man with the capacity to see the unusual and the significant, the chap with imagination and enterprise enough to look at the relations of his own duties to the welfare of the concern as a whole is the one selected to go higher when the inevitable changes of industrial life come.

Overspecialization often leads to undue emphasis upon the importance of individual tasks in given departments; to a lack of interest outside immediately vital responsibilities; to long continued employment at stated compensation perhaps, and not seldom to final replacement before middle age is past by men with less experience in single grooves, but with better comprehension of interdepartmental relations and the ability to make effective use of men with limited ideas.—Power.

Watch Jewels.

Each watch jewel is shaped to a circle and bored through the center, each boring being just a little less than the diameter of the pinion used in the factory where it is finally to be placed in the upper or lower plate of a watch.

Before the jewel gets to the setter it has been put into a lathe and by means of a minute steel point covered with diamond dust and oil the center has been enlarged to fit the steel pinions which shall be housed in it. In the hands of the setter the cylinder is put into a lathe. With a moistened finger the jewel is picked up and placed inside the cylinder as it rests on the tip of the revolving lathe shaft. With a pointed tool the setter presses against the revolving cylinder edge, forcing the soft metal to overlap and close upon the sapphire or ruby till it is imbedded firmly in the metal cushion. Then a pressure upon a follower at the other end of the lathe brings a cutter to bear upon the metal circumference, turning it to the exact size of the jewel hole in the plate of the watch, with the hole in the center of the jewel exactly in the center of the metal setting.

Weekly Outing of Algerian Ladies.

"On Friday in Algiers I visited the cemetery of El Kettar, a great man who is worshiped as a saint. The cemetery where his body reposes is the one place in all Algiers where the women of the harems can feel the fresh air of heaven on their faces. And that is allowed only once a week, on Friday, when they are permitted to unveil and sit and chat together within the cemetery precincts. It was a curious sight as I entered, and it suggested resurrection morn. Fully fifty shrouded white figures were scattered about the grounds, sitting on graves, their bodies and heads covered by white robes, but their faces partly revealed. There was a small percentage of pretty faces and those belonged to the very young women. The middle aged were plain, with that plainness which proceeds from a dull mind and an uneventful life.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox in National Magazine.

Carlyle and the Book of Job.

Carlyle was once asked to take the reading at family prayers during a short visit paid to his friend, the provost of Kirkcaldy. The Bible chanced to open at the first chapter of the book of Job, and Carlyle immediately became absorbed in his subject and read on and on to the end of the last chapter, when, closing the volume, he remarked:

"That is a marvelous lifelike drama, only to be appreciated when read right through."

It is fair to infer that it was appreciated for once. Any one who has taken a long, solitary afternoon and attempted to give the book of Job an opportunity to be appreciated by reading it honestly through at one sitting can realize the consternation of the provost. Such a one will not be likely to wonder with Carlyle why he was not asked again to assist at family prayers in that household.

Peg Woffington's Farewell.

Peg Woffington was playing Rosalind at Covent Garden on the night of May 17, 1757, for the benefit of two minor actors and a French dancer, when she was overcome with sudden faintness. She struggled bravely on until the end, when she staggered off the stage. Recovering after a few moments, she came forward to speak the epilogue, but had proceeded no further than "If I were among you I would kiss as many of you as had beards that pleased me, complexions that liked me and breaths that I"— when, exclaiming in agony, "O God! O God!" she collapsed in a heap upon the floor. She never returned to the stage.—London Globe.

Glycerin and Shoes.

The labor of boot cleaning may be greatly decreased by the aid of a little glycerin. Brush the boots free from dust; then rub the glycerin well into the leather with a sponge or cloth; then let them nearly dry and brush them with a soft brush. If the boots have been blackened it will give them an excellent polish. If not it will give them the appearance of being new. They will be found to keep their polished state for at least three or four days by simply brushing them occasionally. It not only keeps them a good color, but makes them soft and comfortable.—New York Journal.

Encouragement.

"What's the matter?"

"What's the matter? Wombat says I'm the worst liar in town."

"Don't be discouraged. You may be the worst now, but anybody who keeps at it as persistently as you do is apt to become a pretty good liar in time."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Trade Tactics.

"The young fellow who's coming to see you, Elsie, must be a lawyer."

"What makes you think that, father?"

"Because I notice whenever he comes to court he always pleads for a stay."—Baltimore American.

Watch Your Words.

The consciousness of duty performed gives us music at midnight.—George Herbert.

Educate the Left Hand.

Dr. Haeckel, a well known German physician, writing in the Hamburg Nachrichten, recommends the education of the left hand as a method of mental development by bringing the right lobe of the brain into activity. He says that in this way we can add 50 per cent to our power and that the left hand is actually more deft and has a more delicate touch than the right. The violinist and the pianist exact the same service from both hands, and many of the greatest artists, such as Leonardo da Vinci, Holbein and Landseer, were ambidextrous. The Japanese are taught in school to use both hands alike, and, says Dr. Haeckel, "their astonishing manual dexterity and military genius, I believe, are traceable to this alone."

WIT AND WISDOM

The first meeting of the Wit and Wisdom Club for the season was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Howard Monday evening.

Autos were secured to take the members to and from the Howard farm. A very pleasant time was enjoyed and the first meeting was marked by a large attendance.

A very interesting paper was given on the Russian Empire by H. C. Conkling. Rev. Weld gave a well written paper on Syberia while Miss Caldwell and Mrs Weld each delighted their friends with solos. The resignations of Rev. and Mrs. Weld were presented and accepted. After the program a guessing contest was enjoyed. For refreshments ice cream was served.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 9th at the home Mr. and Mrs. R. Hurrey, at which meeting the countries about the Caribbean Sea will be discussed.

G. A. R.

A good audience greeted the Rev. Isaac Bussing of Adrian, at the open meeting of the G. A. R. The address of the Reverend gentleman was a very fine one and was listened to with close attention throughout, his manner was forceful and his humor of the very best. At the close of his speech Mrs. Kendrick gave a charming solo in her own happy manner. P. W. Adams then followed with a very interesting talk which was all the more enjoyable, that was one of Tecumseh's old boys who spoke and who has always held Tecumseh near and dear to his heart.

35 YEARS AGO

In the Herald Oct. 3.

John J. Orr starts next week for a two weeks trip through New York. He proposes to take a vacation.

Work on the Episcopal Rectory is progressing rapidly, and if the weather should be favorable during October the house will be ready for occupancy by the first of next month.

Lavern Bidwell of this village, led the van on matched horses at the County fair. He took two of his ordinary livery horses and had the best matched team on the ground.

H. Brewer & Co have manufactured and shipped since January, sixty of their celebrated Tiffany Tile machines, and will probably ship ten more before the close of the season. A good record.

Philip Kehoe has brought to our office a stalk of white dent corn which has four ears of corn on it three of them of unusually large size, and the fourth one half size. Next.

The roof of the Opera House is being rapidly put into position, and the masons are laying the brick walls of the gable ends. Every day, adds much to the appearance of the building.

Mr Swan yesterday commenced laying the brick walls of the new Herald building. Cook & Cole will do the mason work, which is a sufficient guarantee that the walls will be expeditionsly and well put up.

The council has concluded to place a hydrant at the Northeast corner of the village building and a water pipe will be laid from the main on Chicago street to connect therewith. The pipe will run through the cellar of Anderson's dry goods store thus saving the ditching of about ninety feet of trench.

The Daily Greenback of Adrian began publication last week. It has suspended operations however, for lack of support.

There will be a special meeting of the several companies of the fire department on Friday October 4 at 8 o'clock p. m.

All members are expected to be present as business of improtance is to come before the meeting.

S. P. HOSMER,
President.

SCHOOL DAYS IN 1864

We have before us a catalogue of Tecumseh Union School for the year 1864, published in Adrian by the Steam Publishing House of S. P. Jermaine & Co.

There is a fine picture of the High School building which was then about eight years old, it was surrounded by a fence and at that time was the pride of the community.

The Board of Trustees were moderator, Dr. M. A. Batterson; director, E. B. Wood, Perley Bills, Moses Wright, Wm. B. Rowland and George Curtis, each one of whom has passed over to the other shore, but while with us, they served faithfully and well.

Their instructors were Principal, C Thomas A. M., Preceptress, Mrs. C. B Thomas. Teachers in Intermediate Departments; Samuel Rundall, C. W. Barney, Miss Cinda Sharp, Miss Libbie Rosbrugh. Teachers in Branch Schools, Miss Maggie Rosebrugh, Miss Mary S. Bruce, Miss Julia A. Hough, a number of these too have passed away from earth to the better country. At that time there were nearly 700 pupils in our schools, 55 of whom were from nearby towns.

At this time there were no graduating exercises but great pains was taken in the school work every one being interested.

To the writer of this article comes a feeling of sadness as she looks over the long list of names and counts ninety-three of those she knew so well that have passed away. Yet, there is a feeling of pleasure as well, when she notes the names of those living who have succeeded so well in life and become an ornament to the community where it has been their lot, to dwell in these later years.

It is worthy of note that a grandson of Dr. M. A. Patterson is now a member of the board Chas. F. Patterson, Sec also a son of E. B. Wood, F. B. Wood one of the directors and we feel that they are both striving to do as well at this time for the good of the schools as did their predecessors.

VOTE YES FOR THE SCHOOL

Remember that Tuesday October the fourteenth is the day set aside for the special election. The day you cast your vote for or against the bonding of Tecumseh School District for $50,000 for the purpose of building a New High School. Whether you favor the plan or not go and vote.

Let us have a full vote.

Think this matter over carefully between now and the fourteenth and we trust you will consider it your privilege and duty to vote yes.

If you have any doubts as to the need of a new building just pay a visit to our High School. The superintendant and teachers will, we are sure be glad to show you through.

DID YOU SEE THEM?

Tecumseh Invaded by 60 Gypsies and Full Equipment

Friday afternoon our streets were in quite a commotion by the rush of wagons, horses, ponies and dogs of a gipsy band. As usual the fortune telling women were busy, and one called at the Slayton & Son office and tried to pursuade Joseph Waring that he should have his fortune told. Not seeing the necessity Mr Waring did not respond to the request but the woman persisted so far as to tell him that his hand indicated that he was about to lose something. This proved true, as no sooner had she left than he discovered his pocket-book had gone with her.

Officers were at once notified and automobiles and other rigs were on their way to overtake the band. A halt was made near Stacyhome but with no good results: but at the next halting place Deputy Sheriff John B. Smith was more successful and recovered the money and costs, the gypsies moving on wiser but no better than before. They camped for the night on the Joe Kerney farm west of town, folding their tents in the morning and moving on to richer fields.

THE UPS AND DOWNS OF A WORD

The word "love" has been a favorite one for the poets and story-tellers of all ages, but the New Testament word for love is unique. It stands for an experience, a possession that did not exist before Jesus came. In fact, the word itself, the very letters of it was almost new when the New Testament authors were writing. It was a word that the editors of the Septuagint Version of the Bible had used when they made their translation of the Old Testament from Hebrew into Greek about two hundred years before the birth of Christ. But the word is not found in classical Greek. It seems to be a word that belongs particularly to the Bible, and, especially to the New Testament.

What did Paul mean by this wonderful word love? It seems extremely unfortunate that the translators of the King James Version called it charity, for that English word has come to mean just what Paul distinctly says he did not mean. "Though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor"—that is charity, as the word is now used in English, and Paul was talking about something much higher than that.—Christian Herald.

Anger Is Not Manly.

Let this truth be present to thee in the excitement of anger—that to be moved by passion is not manly, but that mildness and gentleness, as they are more agreeable to human nature, so also are they more manly, for in the same degree in which a man's mind is nearer to freedom from all passion, in the same degree also is it nearer to strength.—Marcus Aurelius.

Vain Man.

"No," said Smellwort; "I hardly feel justified in saying that Peppers is inordinately vain, but when a fellow has a phonograph in his room arranged to play 'Hail to the Chief' as soon as he opens the door, what is one to think of him?"

New High School Plans

The plans and drawing of the proposed new high school are again being exhibited and each voter should become familiar with them. The Board would be glad to receive suggestions regarding the arrangment shown in these plans from any or all interested residents of the District.

The general specifications, as no doubt many will remember, call for a building to be erected at a cost somewhere inside the figure of $45,600. The exterior of the building to be constructed of pressed brick with stone or terra cotta trimmings.

Corridors, stairways, auditorium, boiler and fuel room to be of fire proof construction.

The entire interior finish excepting store rooms and toilets to be of oak.

Toilets to be of white enamel finish with marblethic or marb'oid or terrazo floors.

Roof to be flat and of asbestos roofing material, making it fire proof.

The gymnasium in back part of basement reaches up through the first flooring and up through half of second floor, thus giving an opportunity to reach an observation balcony from the first floor level, overlooking work on gymnasium floor below.

The girls' and boys' locker and toilet rooms are in direct connection with the gymnasium.

In the basement is also a goodly sized room designed to be used as a club room for Civic work or literary societies in the High School; also two rooms to be used for manual training.

On the first floor proper we have the upper parts of the the gymnasium; two laboratories with lecture room and two class rooms for seventh and eighth grades; also boys' and girls' locker rooms, and superintendent's office with toilet.

On the second floor we have the main auditorium with stage and dressing rooms attached, and large balcony at the rear, giving ample seating capacity for commencement exercises: boys' and girls' toilet rooms; teachers' retiring room, which might also be in case of illness of any of the students: also five recitation rooms on this floor.

The various floors are reached by three stairways, which are fireproof, being encased in fireproof walls with fireproof doors. In case of fire alarm, a student on leaving any room is immediately in a corridor with fireproof floors which renders one fireproof to stairways or tower and thence direct to grade exit.

The latest idea in fire alarm systems also to be installed as part of equipment.

All exit doors to be equipped with emergency or panic bolts, which open at slightest touch from the inside.

The laboratories on the first floor are the only high school recitation rooms, that are not in direct connection with the auditorium or assembly room on the second floor. This arrangement gives the teacher excellent control over the students in passing to and from recitations.

The laboratories being on the first floor minimizes the danger of any vibration which might effect the reading of delicate instruments.

The entire building to be heated with steam blast system of heating and ventilating. In this system we would have the air in the various rooms changed at the rate of six times per hour. This is a requirement of the law in Ohio, Architect Stophlet's home, and seems to be a health measure that Michigan might well afford to copy.

This absolutely guarantees pure air properly tempered to interior and exterior conditons. With the system contemplated there is an automatic control which steadily governs the temperature in each and every corner of the building, automatically opening and closing dampers to regulate the temperature of the air before it reaches the various rooms.

Manfred M. Stophlet, of Toledo, O., the architect engaged by the Board to furnish the plans, has had wide experience both in planning and in supervising schoolhouse and other public building construction and comes with the highest of recommendations from those he has served in the past.

The Board would be pleased to give any additional information not included in the foregoing brief description of the building as proposed and planned.

Special Election, Tuesday October 14th, 1913.

"THE LIGHT ETERNAL"

The second presentation of this wonderful play in no wise detracted from the first, but rather intensified the great theme and those who were unable to attend missed a great treat.

The character of Marco Valerius the Character, who in spite of honors, high position and the love of Artemia the daughter of Ceaser, was able to resist all for the lowly Nazerene to meet death even with a brave heart inspired the audience with the faith that made him steadfast, and they followed him in their hearts to the very gates of heaven.

The Princess Artemea a daughter of Rome, pagan and idolator through her love for Marco and his firm stand for the Christ is led to believe and defying the great Ceaser, proclaims the fact that she to is a Christian and is willing to follow Marco even to the cruel death that is his doom.

Every character was so well taken, the scenery, the electrical effect so perfect that the audience was held spellbound to the last and each one was the better for this portrayal of early Christians.

Why, Indeed?

"Here is a story of a Chicago woman who says that present marriage laws make women the slave of man," said the square-jawed matron as she looked up from the newspaper. "Why don't they enforce the law, then?" meekly asked Mr. Henpecke.

The Power behind the dough

You may use an old favorite recipe and the best of materials and make it carefully, the oven may be just right, yet you will have a failure if "The Power behind the Dough" is not the right one to leaven it properly and make it light, digestible, wholesome.

Good baking without good baking powder is out of the question. K C Baking Powder has wonderful leavening power, and the double action —in the bowl and in the oven—makes good results doubly certain.

Take no chances of failure—use K C and have "good luck" every time. At all Grocers.

"IT'S THE BEST POLISH I EVER USED"

That's What Every One Says Who Tries

Black Silk Stove Polish

DON'T imagine for a moment that all brands of stove polish are the same. Don't get the idea that to keep a nice glossy shine on your stove you must black it every few days. It's not a question of oft-repeated application. It's a question of the stove polish to use.

Black Silk Stove Polish is so much better than other stove polishes that there is absolutely no comparison—it's in a class all by itself.

It makes a brilliant glossy shine that don't rub or dust off. It anneals to the iron—becomes a part of the stove. It makes old stoves look like new and lasts four times as long as any other shine.

Get a can and give it a trial. Try it on your parlor stove, your cook stove, or your gas range. If you do not find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Black Silk Stove Polish has been made by the same formula and sold under one name for 30 years.

Here is what some of the ladies write us:

"I sent to you for a can of Black Silk Stove Polish and found it so much better than any I had ever used that I asked my hardware dealer to order a supply. He did so, and is now selling nearly everyone in the place your polish. I had no idea there could be such a difference in stove polishes."

"I was visiting friends and they used Black Silk Stove Polish on their stoves. It made the best shine I ever saw, and after blacking, the polish did not rub or dust off. It is way ahead of any polish I have ever used."

Ask Your Dealer for Black Silk Stove Polish and refuse a counterfeit brand. Costs you no more than the ordinary kind, so why not have the best. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

Black Silk Stove Polish Works, Sterling, Ill.

Use Black Silk Air-Drying Iron Enamel for grates, fenders, registers, stove pipes, etc. Prevents rusting. Not affected by heat or cold. Produces a permanent glossy black surface. Can, with brush for applying enamel, only 25 cents. Ask your dealer.

Use Black Silk Metal Polish for nickel, brass, silverware or tinware. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

JOHNSON AND DAUBERT

Awarded Chalmers Trophy for Services to Their Ball Teams.

JOHNSON AND DAUBERT WIN

Have Been of Greatest Service to Their Ball Teams.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Walter Johnson of Washington and Jake Daubert of Brooklyn are the winners of the Chalmers trophies for 1913, designating them the players who have been of greatest service to their teams in their respective leagues during the season just closed.

It is the first time a pitcher has won the automobile, emblematic of the honor, although several have come near it in past seasons. Johnson has been prominent in previous years since Hugh Chalmers established the new hall of fame.

BAD AXE, MICH. — George W. Brown, of Sheridan township, thirty-five years old, and unmarried, was killed in an automobile accident on the outskirts of this city. John Wamsley, the driver and owner of the car, of Cass City, was seriously hurt. Howard Pratt and George Anderson, the other occupants of the car, were slightly injured. The latter two were also from Cass City.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Herald readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. What other remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit?

W. C. Witherell, W. Pottawatamie St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have had no reason to change my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I publicly expressed some years ago and I willingly confirm all I have previously said in their praise. I had acute pains across the small of my back and in my hips and often after stooping, a sharp twinge darted through my loins, obliging me to lie down. I was laid in bed for several days and I believe that my trouble was caused by excessive stooping. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills, I obtained a supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and the contents of a few boxes restored me to good health. Since then whenever I have felt in need of a kidney medicine, I have taken this preparation and the results have been very pleasing."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. adv.

Foley Kidney Pills Succeed.

Because they are an honestly made medicine that relieves promptly the suffering due to weak, inactive kidneys and painful bladder action. They offer a powerful help to nature in building up the true excreting kidney tissue, in restoring normal action and relieving bladder discomforts. TRY THEM. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Advt.

Women Who Get Dizzy.

Every woman who is troubled with fainting and dizzy spells, backache, headache, weakness, debility, constipation or kidney troubles should use Electric Bitters. They give relief when nothing else will, improve the health, adding strength and vigor from the first dose. Mrs. Laura Gaines, of Avoca, La., says: "Four doctors had given me up and my children and all my friends were looking for me to die, when my son insisted that I use Electric Bitters. I did so, and they have done me a world of good." Just try them. 50c. and $1.00, at C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

Also a goodly number of people have been done in the name charity.

Home Keeping Women Need Health and Strength.

The work of a home-keeping woman makes a constant call in her strength and vitality, and sickness comes through her kidneys and bladder oftener than she knows. Foley Kidney Pills will invigorate and restore her, and weak back, nervousness aching joints, and irregular bladder action will all disappear when Foley Kidney Pills are used. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv.

THAW HEARING POSTPONED

New Proceedings in Contemplation by New York District Attorney.

Concord, Oct. 6.—Bernard Jacobs, representing William Travers Jerome, and other New York authorities in answer to a request by wire received a telephone message from Governor Felker, agreeing to postpone final action in the extradition proceedings under way in this state in the Thaw case.

Further time is given by the governor, by reason of the new proceedings which have within a day or two been under contemplation by the office of the district attorney of New York.

Governor Felker is also in receipt of an affidavit by Mr. Jerome in which he reiterates his statements, made at the extradition hearing in this city, to the effect that an indictment had been found against Thaw. The affidavit further states that this indictment was subsequently withdrawn at the request of Jerome and that the reason therefor would in due time become apparent.

GEORGE DAVIS

Man Who Made Dynamite Confession and His Captors.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

That a price of $5,000 had been put on the head of Detective William J. Burns by the structural iron workers was the revelation made by George Davis, alias George O'Donnell, arrested for complicity in various dynamiting plots. He has confessed. Likewise a price of $5,000 had been offered for the killing of Walter Drew, head of the National Erectors' association. Davis was caught in New York by Robert G. Foster of Louisville, Ky., who had traced him all over the country. The arrest was made by United States Marshal Henkel. Davis in his confession asserted that he had been offered $1,500 to dynamite the Queensboro bridge, in New York city, and accepted the proposition, but backed out when he found that he could not do the job unless he endangered the lives of thirty or forty workmen, and this he declined to do. In the picture Davis is shown in the center, Foster on his right and Henkel on his left.

Wonderful Reasoning.

We had taken the tram at Dupont circle, and as we strung around into Connecticut avenue I said to my companion:

"Do you see that lady across the aisle?"

"You mean the left handed girl?"

"I mean the one with the blue scarf."

"Yes, the left handed one."

"My dear," I replied, "I acknowledge that you have reduced deduction to a science, but surely you are jesting when you pretend to say that you can pick out a left handed girl at a glance."

"Nothing easier, my dear Watson. By glancing at her hat you will see that she is wearing an enormous hatpin and that the jeweled head of the pin is on the left side of her millinery. Nothing easier, my dear Watson—a mere trifle."—Washington Star.

Optimist and Pessimist.

One of the recent definitions of the pessimist and the optimist is, the pessimist is the man who sits in the last seat of the rear car of the train and sees everything apparently going from him, and the optimist sits on the front of the engine—on the "cowcatcher"—and sees everything coming his way.

TWO YELLOW EYES

He Faced Them Bravely

By ADELAIDE BURNHAM

The Hendersons were writing a book on "The Fauna and the Flora of the Himalayas," and they were occupying a whitewashed bungalow on the edge of the jungle five miles beyond Simla. Sylvia Bradley, Mrs. Henderson's sister, was acting as private secretary to that talented lady, while Robert Orthman fulfilled the same duties for John Henderson.

Mrs. Henderson and Sylvia engaged themselves with botanizing expeditions, surrounded by a capable native guard, while the two men carried guns and notebooks into the jungle and met with several thrilling adventures. The book was progressing well in spite of the blistering heat that shortened the working days to minimum hours, when a little party of American friends who were touring India came up from Simla for the night.

"Bobby Orthman with you?" asked Mr. Delafield, as he strolled around the compound with his host after dinner. "Like him?"

"First rate," cried Henderson.

"They say he's something of a mollycoddle in spite of his six feet two bulk. Wouldn't stand for hazing at college and they say has a deadly fear of wild animals," said Delafield.

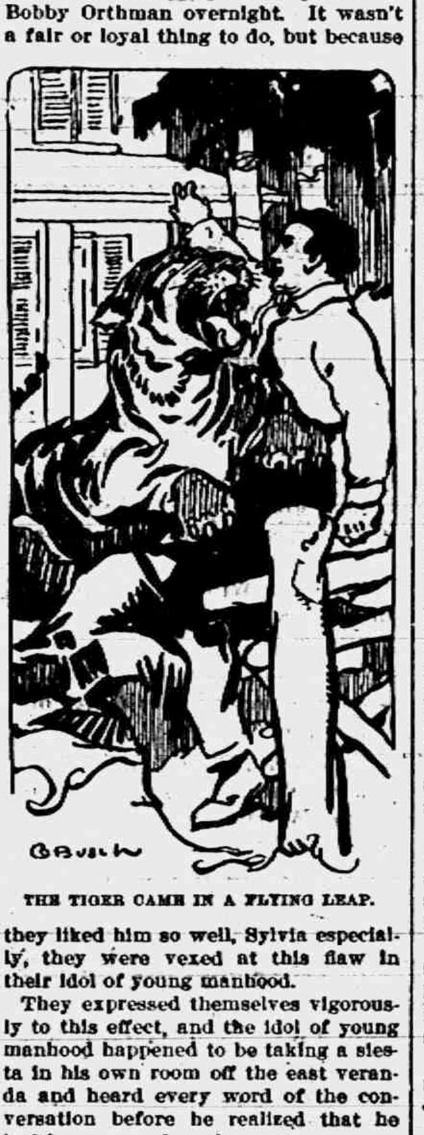
Henderson started ever so slightly.

"Doesn't look like deadly fear when he enters the jungle with me every day," retorted Henderson obstinately.

"Humph! Not much danger around here. The jungle has been pretty thoroughly beaten, they tell me, and, besides, your native fellows can take care of you."

"Shall we join the ladies?" asked Henderson abruptly, and so the conversation ended. But after the guests had departed the seeds of distrust sown by Delafield sprouted in Henderson's mind, and one evening Henderson confided the story to his wife and sister-in-law, hoping they would rout his suspicions with their warm defense of Bobby Orthman.

But Mrs. Delafield had been gossiping, too, and Maud Henderson and her sister, who were hero worshipers, had somehow changed their opinion of Bobby Orthman overnight. It wasn't a fair or loyal thing to do, but because they liked him so well, Sylvia especially, they were vexed at this flaw in their idol of young manhood.



THE TIGER CAME IN A FLYING LEAP.

They expressed themselves vigorously to this effect, and the idol of young manhood happened to be taking a siesta in his own room off the east veranda and heard every word of the conversation before he realized that he had been eavesdropping.

Then he jumped up, had a bath and got into clean linen clothes, and, leaving the compound by the west gate, he went up to Juppor hill to have it out with himself.

He sat down on the scattered rocks and stared at the sunset—an amber sea of clouds beyond the jagged peaks.

Bobby Orthman was proud, and his soul writhed when he remembered Sylvia's light laugh of disdain as they discussed him. His hands clinched until the bronzed knuckles showed white and his strong teeth bit hard into his lower lip.

Sylvia, whom he loved—he was only waiting a favorable opportunity to tell her—Sylvia thought him a coward! If she only knew!

At the compound gate he found his own servant, Mitti Tanduri, conversing excitedly with the other servants.

"What is the trouble, Mitti?" he asked.

"Ah, sahib, a tiger has appeared in the village beyond. Last night it carried away the wife of my Cousin Goona."

Bobby leaned, white and shaking, against the gate. He could have killed himself for this weakness. When he sat down at table his air was constrained, and after Henderson had heard the story of the tiger from Mitti's eager lips he understood what ailed his secretary.

"How dreadful!" shuddered Sylvia, with blanched lips. "I hope it won't come any nearer us. Can't you go out and shoot it, Jack?"

"I'll try," said Henderson grimly. "Anjar better strengthen the stockade tomorrow and see that the gates are locked after sundown. I suppose this is an end to your rambles for the present, Maud."

"It is!" returned Mrs. Henderson decidedly. "We can work on the book. There's enough to do at home until you exterminate that beast."

"And you, Jack—you will continue to go to the jungle every day?" asked Sylvia.

"Of course. How about you, Orthman?"

"Certainly," said Bobby gravely, but he knew that his face was like death and that his hands shook.

Sylvia thought him a coward, and he was too proud to explain to her that his childhood had been spent in India and that when but a tiny lad he had been carried away from his nurse by a tiger. Only his father's bravery had saved [illegible] but his arms and breast still bore the scars of savage teeth.

After dinner he sat alone on the veranda, for the others were gathered around the lamp in the living room reading papers from home.

There was a soft murmur of voices from the servants' quarters, and then silence broke now and then by the bark of a dog or the cry of some sleepy bird.

Bobby thought he was alone out there, but he had a companion near by. A queer thrill down his spine followed a movement in the shade of a deodar tree near the closed gate. Bobby was conscious of being watched. He glanced around at the wire screened window; neither Sylvia nor her brother-in-law had looked his way. He was alone on the veranda, but not alone in the compound.

Straight ahead, under the deep black shadow of the deodar tree, there shone two round yellow lights. They were, perhaps, fourteen inches apart and they moved slowly toward him in dreadful unison.

He struck a match sharply, and the eyes receded before the sudden flare of light. While he held the match to his empty pipe, he spoke hoarsely to the man within the room:

"Henderson! Close your wooden shutters. Get a line on him if you can. I'll draw him off."

Thus calmly, Bobby Orthman, the coward, proceeded to throw himself in the way of a man eating tiger in order to save the girl he loved and the ones that she loved.

He went quietly down the steps, scratching matches as he did so; the eyes remained stationary under the deodar. Unless Henderson got his shutters closed in time and brought the gun the beast would soon lose his curiosity about the flaring matches and bring his prey to the ground. If Bobby Orthman dodged into the bungalow the tiger would rush the nearest open window or ravage the fragile quarters of the servants in the rear.

Henderson was slamming shutters.

The tiger uttered an earth shaking growl and leaped forward. Bobby Orthman dodged aside, but he heard the heavy thud as the beast's padded paws struck the ground beside him.

Bobby darted toward the deodar tree, knowing that the tiger must follow him across the streak of light from the hall window. If Henderson could get in his shot while the tiger crossed the lighted streak Bobby might escape.

In two bounds the tiger had regained the tree and Bobby was fleeing across the streak of light.

Suddenly he turned and waited. Henderson was too late. He might as well have it over with now. There would be no one to care and his honor would be vindicated. They could never call him a coward again. He smiled at the yellow lights creeping stealthily toward him. No one would ever know how he had accepted Henderson's offer to go into the jungle in order to face the jungle beasts and try to subdue that fear in his heart. Well, God knew, and he knew himself.

The tiger came in a flying leap that showed his huge body against the star spangled sky.

As he crossed the streak of light there came two shots in quick succession, and then there remained in the shadow a writhing mass that presently resolved into two quiet forms.

After that pandemonium reigned in the compound. Henderson and a white lipped Sylvia, with other assistance, found Bobby's unconscious form beneath the dead bulk of the tiger.

"Did you notice? His arms were folded!" sobbed Sylvia in Henderson's ear.

He nodded. "His face was toward the enemy, too," he said remorsefully. "He had the stuff in him, Sylvia, only we didn't understand him. God knows I am sorry."

Sylvia was caressing Bobby's blood stained face, and she was surprised when he opened his eyes and smiled at her with wonderful sweetness.

"Don't be too kind to me, Sylvia, if you don't mean it," he whispered. "I'm not going to die yet. I'm only scratched and bruised a little where the beast fell on me. Don't be kind unless you love me."

"I must be kind, Bobby, dear," whispered Sylvia, making amends for her doubt of him; "I must be kind to you because I love you so!"

"If you love me," grinned Bobby, "you may kiss a coward."

"A hero," amended Sylvia, proceeding to take advantage of Bobby's permission.

And the striped skin of the yellow eyed monster became part of the furnishing of their home.

Henri Rochefort and Beranger.

One finds an interesting link with the past in the fact that Henri Rochefort began his literary career as a poet and in that character presented a poem, together with a letter of introduction, to no less a literary master than Beranger, whose reply, carefully preserved by the distinguished journalist, is interesting.

"Can it be true," Beranger wrote, "that you are only sixteen? If I had written verses so well turned at that age I should indeed have believed that a great destiny was in store for me. But then you college gentlemen are brought up, as it were, in forcing houses, whereas when I was sixteen I hardly knew how to spell. Remember, then, all the devices employed for the development of your faculties and do not be too uplifted by vanity at the praises of an old rimer, dazzled by your compliments."

And the letter concludes with a commendation to the young aspirant to return to his studies and not to challenge serious criticism by premature publication.—Wesminster Gazette.

BAY CITY — The Bay City police received a message from Cheboygan saying that a man who committed suicide in that city had been identified as Jos. Ellis, of Bay City. The police have been unable to locate any relatives here.

THIS FARMER OWNS FORTUNE IN CROPS

Will Get Over $23,200 from Ordinary-sized Farm.

CADILLAC, MICH.—All northern Michigan farmers are happy this fall over the outlook in good crops, but in no section more than Wexford county.

Many farmers will make enough from their potato crops to pay all expenses if the price offered does not fall below the present 50 cents a bushel. More Wexford county farmers will get above, rather than below, 200 bushels to the acre this fall.

What hard work will accomplish is shown in the case of Emil Brehm, a German farmer, six miles south of Cadillac. This year he will have 4,000 bushels of potatoes, that he is confident he will sell for 80 cents a bushel. He will have better than 8,000 bushels of onions that will bring $1 a bushel. His other crops will include 100 acres of alfalfa that cuts three times a year two tons to the acre worth $20 a ton.

He has already sold tons of tomatoes, small fruits, and melons, besides much grain.

RAID GETS COUNTY OFFICIAL

Grand Rapids Swoop Lands Some Notables in Law's Net.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Growing out of a suit brought by C. A. Justin, city passenger agent of the Grand Trunk, to recover money lost at poker, a raid was made on a gambling room at the Hotel Cody, by Secretary Porst, of the morals efficiency commission, and warrants have been issued for the arrests of Deputy Register of Deeds William J. Thomas, S. Taylor Peck, proprietor of the hotel, William Thomas, George Belknap and John Drummond.

It is said the game has been going on for at least two years and that Justin's loss there was suffered almost a year ago. When the case comes up for trial there is bound to be a big sensation from the character of the names to be brought in.

Heated Contest on Among Four Cities Seeking 1914 Meet.

DETROIT, MICH. — The third American road congress was concluded here with the reports of various officers and committees, the presentation and adoption of a mass of resolutions with reference to the building and maintenance of good roads, and the selection of the next convention city.

Los Angeles, San Francisco, Spokane, Ottawa and Toronto delegations have already invited the congress to visit their cities in 1915, and a heated contest for the holding of that event is expected.

INSPECTOR SCORES THE P. M.

Says He'll Prosecute Unless Road Cleans Port Huron Yards.

PORT HURON, MICH. — Dr. Ed. Rich, state sanitary inspector, after an inspection of the Pere Marquette yards in this city said he would have the company prosecuted under the penal act unless improvements were immediately made.

The state official declared that he found conditions most insanitary, especially in the railway coach that has been used as a passenger depot here for the last two years.

Lives With Bolt in Lung.

SANDUSKY, MICH. — Alger Jarrett, son of James Jarrett was lying on his back, under a tree with his mouth open when a bolt fell into it. An operation was performed but just as the surgeon touched the bolt the child coughed, drawing it into another tube of the lung. An X-ray examination will be made.

SPORTING AFFAIRS.

NEW YORK — The greed for gold in connection with the world's series will result in the abandonment of the games after this year, according to information obtained from trustworthy sources. The present wrangle between members of the Giants and the Athletics and the national commission because of the rule prohibiting series players from "writing" or allowing the use of their names over newspaper stories, will result in radical reform, it is said.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Ad Wolgast of Cadillac, Mich., and Battling Nelson of Chicago, two former lightweight champions, came to an agreement and signed articles for a ten round no-decision boxing contest to be held here Oct. 13. The men will weigh in at 133 pounds.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Frank Klaus Klaus of Pittsburgh and Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh fought ten rounds to a draw here. The shade, if any, went to McGoorty. After losing the earlier rounds to Klaus he came back strong and evened up the affair.

STATE WILL CURB PROMOTERS' DEALS

Disapproves Selling Their Stock Before Treasury Stock Pays.

LANSING, MICH.—The selling of promotion stock before the treasury stock is on a paying basis is not regarded as a good business proposition by the Michigan securities commission and it was decided at a meeting to put a stop to this practice, which is said to have been carried on extensively by promoters of many new companies in this state during the last few years.

Banking Commissioner E. H. Doyle said that one company, capitalized at $1,000,000, recently gave the promoters $526,000 worth of stock for promoting the enterprise. Hereafter, except in some exceptional cases, the securities commission will not allow the promoters to hold a majority of the stock in any new company, if the commission is convinced that the stock has been handed out as a reward for services in promoting the company.

Commissioner Doyle suggested that the promotion stock be turned over to the custody of the state treasurer until the securities commission is convinced that the treasury stock has been placed on a paying basis. If this ruling is strictly adhered to it is pointed out that it will save money for many innocent investors.

STATE BEAN CROP DISEASED

Michigan Agricultural College Trying to Discover Remedy.

EAST LANSING, MICH. — This winter the Michigan Agricultural college botanical department will spend considerable time investigating bean diseases, hoping to discover some scientific facts about their life history that will enable them to combat the ravages to a better advantage.

Professor Potts, who has been detailed to state field work has found nearly all the bean fields badly infected with the blight and anthracnose two fatal diseases. There was but one county in the state where the beans were found in a healthy condition, that being Kalamazoo.

CAN'T MARK FT. GRATIOT SITE

Daughters of Revolution Find Memorial Fund Useless.

PORT HURON, MICH.—The preparations are under way to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of Old Fort Gartiot. The St. Clair County Historical society and the Daughters of the Revolution are behind the movement, which has aroused interest throughout the county.

The Daughters of the Revolution have for years been putting aside money to erect a suitable memorial on the site of the old fort, but after an investigation it has been found that the exact location of the fort is within the yards of the Grand Trunk locomotive shops.

NEW YORK—New York was badly deluged by the heaviest rain fall in its history. Transportation lines, including the subway, were tied up for hours, hotel cellars and the power plants of loft buildings were flooded, causing a cessation of business and two men were killed by electric shocks for which the downpour was directly responsible.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—John C. Henning of Chicago was arrested here and is held as a fugitive from justice. He is wanted in Chicago on a charge of defamation of the character of Clarence Funk, against whom he brought suit, but failed to prosecute alleging that Funk alienated Mrs. Henning's affections, having skipped out before the case come to trial.

TARIFF BILL A LAW AND NOW IN FORCE

Measure Is Finally Signed by President Wilson.

WASHINGTON — President Wilson affixed his signature to the tariff bill at 9 o'clock this being the last proceeding necessary to make it a law.

The new law becomes effective at once with the exception of schedules on wool and sugar.

The house agreed to the conference report, the final action of that body on the tariff bill. Speaker Clark overruled all points of order made by members who contended that action by the house was not necessary.

Speaker Clark signed the bill affixing his signature at 1:25.

Vice President Marshall signed the bill at 1:34.

President Wilson refused throughout the day repeated requests from moving picture concerns and photographers to be present.

SPENCER IDENTIFIED

Coils Tightening About Him for the Murder of Mrs. Rexroat.

CHICAGO—Henry Spencer, who is held as the confessed slayer of Mrs. Mildred Allison-Rexroat, was positively identified by Carl White, loan broker at 169 West Washington street, as the companion of himself and Mrs. Rexroat on the night preceding the murder, when they visited a south side cafe and had several drinks.

Spencer's drawling voice, the voice supposed to have lured Mrs. Rexroat to her death, was identified by Mrs. Sadie Johnston, with whom Mrs. Rexroat lodged, as the voice she had heard over the telephone the night of the murder.

Mrs. Johnston identified the blood-spattered suitcase found in Spencer's room as the property of Mrs. Rexroat.

But for these identifications, Spencer's confession would not be worth much because reports coming in from places where he alleges he murdered people deny that such crimes took place, and in other instances it would have been impossible for him to have committed them.

In fact Spencer as an entertaining liar, rather than the cold blooded murderer of a score of men, women and children, was held up by police officials and detectives engaged in analyzing the amazing "confession" which was handed them by the opium smoker during a long night "sweating."

NEW YORK—The first game in the world's championship series was won by Philadelphia from New York by a score of 6 to 1.

MRS. WHITNEY WINS DECREE

Wife of Theatrical Man Granted Divorce and Starts Abroad.

DETROIT, MICH. — Mrs. Berram Larned Whitney was granted a divorce from Bertram C. Whitney, the theatrical man, by Judge Lacy in the court of domestic relations. The bill, filed several months ago, was suppressed, and the amount of alimony was agreed upon outside of court.

Mrs. Whitney left for New York and will sail on the Adriatic on Dec. 9 for England. She will visit her sister, Mrs. Frances Arthur Bowen, who has been seriously ill for some months.

NEW YORK — Exactly four days before their golden wedding celebration, for which elaborate preparations had been made, Christopher Rupp, seventy-nine years old, and his wife, Caroline, seventy-seven years old, were suffocated by gas in the home of their daughter in Jersey City.

NOME IS RAVAGED

Alaskan Town Swept by Worst Storm in History.

FIRE ADDS TO THE DISASTER

Greater Part of Town Wiped Out by Storm, and Flames Break Out in the Wreckage—Plant Where Supply of Meat for Winter Is Stored Becomes Prey of Flames.

NOME, ALASKA—A fierce fire has broken out in the city of Nome, closely following a storm that wiped out a great part of the city.

The flames have attacked the Pacific Cold Storage plant where is stored the chief supply of meat for the winter. The fire apparatus was destroyed by the gale.

Seething Mass of Wreckage.

Front street is a seething mass of wreckage into which seas are breaking, while hundreds of homeless people are struggling to save necessaries of life. Receding seas are carrying away the contents of wrecked houses and stores as well as parts of wrecked structures.

None of the buildings on the sandspit remain standing, and the leveled structures there are in flames. This portion of the city is cut off by the turbulent waters. The loss is estimated at close to $2,000,000.

Five Hundred Houses Demolished.

An area of two miles of territory next to the sea was devastated by the storm. Five hundred houses have been demolished.

The storm, beating in from Bering sea, was the worst ever known here. Men and women worked all night in the icy water to save their household effects.

The electric light plant was wrecked and telephone service cut off.

Outside Help Required.

There will be much suffering and outside help will be required. Winter is at hand and it will be impossible to get in supplies needed.

The steamships Victoria and Corwin, which were lying in the roadstead, ran to the open sea and escaped damage. All the small boats on the beach were destroyed.

DETROIT, MICH. — Charles W. Steinke, a molder, fifty-six years old, shot and killed his wife near her home in Hamtramick, a suburb, and then committed suicide. Steinke had been drinking for some time, it is alleged, and when arraigned in court recently was ordered to keep away from his family.

HARRISONVILLE, MO.—Mrs. Ida May Keller, charged with killing her husband and seven-year-old daughter Margaret, was convicted of murder in the first degree by a jury here and her punishment was fixed at life imprisonment in the state penitentiary.

CONSTANTINOPLE — More than 200 persons were drowned as the result of a cloudburst, causing the worst flood ever known here. Those killed lost their lives when the wooden residences they occupied were swept away by the flood.

BARTLESVILLE, OKLA.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Laura M. Reuter, charged with complicity in the murder of her husband, a prominent attorney at Tulsa, Okla., last year, returned a verdict of guilty. The jury recommended life imprisonment.

CERBERE, FRANCE — A terrific thunder storm, which raged for many hours, spread death and ruin throughout this city. Fourteen persons are known to have been killed and thirty injured, and there are many missing.

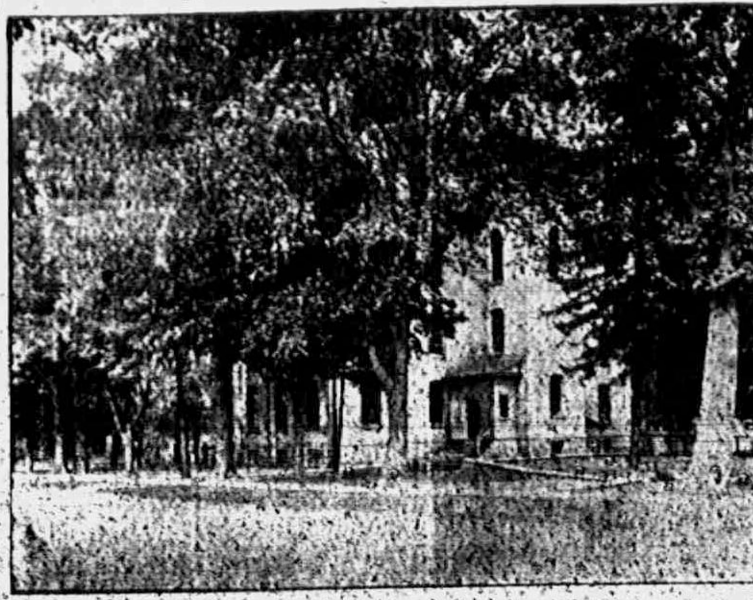
THE OLD OR THE NEW, WHICH?



THE OLD

"There are now but three days left until you, the voters of this School District, will again be called upon to decide a question of deep importance not only to the children of school going age in the District but to each parent, guardian or citizen.

Statistics show that but a small percentage of scholars graduating ever attend a college; so far as the average pupil it is the assistance imparted by the public schools that must afterwards serve him well or otherwise through his business career or other life work.

Of interest to those who perhaps have not as yet made up their minds how to cast their vote is the following briefly quoted from a recent article by a noted Michigan educator:

"For more than a quarter of a century I have made a careful study of the school houses in Michigan. The majority of them are unsanitary and unfit for 'live stock' to occupy. They rarely furnish adequate light, never furnish a proper supply of pure air, are not comfortably heated, and, on the whole are destructive to the health of school children. It should be remembered that the ordinary school room, unlike ordinary dwelling room is frequently occupied by a very large number of children. Probably no one reform would exert a greater influence in reducing the death rate of children than would the construction of sanitary school houses."

That there is need for a new high school building in Tecumseh goes without contradiction.

Can we afford it?

Can we afford any improvement?

If we can is there any investment we can make that will bring larger returns to a community than that which safeguards the health, and gives increased facilities for learning to our own boy and girl of today who become the citizen and the home builder of tomorrow?

The cast of a modern school building is, under the plan now before the people, comparatively small to the average individual.

The $50,000 bonds asked for and payable in fifteen years time would make during this period but an average tax of $3 24 per year on $1,000 valuation of property. The question should be, and is not, can we afford this improvement, but rather can we afford to do without it?

Vote next Tuesday, 9:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.

Sometimes one succeeds by embracing the other fellow's opportunity.—New York American.

CALUMET — Numerous shots fired in two attacks upon strikebreakers and numerous fights between union and nonunion miners marked the copper mine strike in this district. A special car with thirty men from a New York detective agency brought here by the Ahmeek Mining company to assist in breaking the copper strike, was attacked, presumably by strikers, when it arrived at Ahmeek before dawn. A number of shots were fired at the car, and the fire was returned. The car windows were broken, but no one was hurt. When a barricade across the tracks prevented the car from reaching the mine it was then brought back to Calumet. Disorder was rampant in the Calumet and Keweenaw districts, following the dissolution by Circuit Judge O'Brien of the injunction against picketing and interference with workmen by strikers. Attacks on men going to work were numerous and several arrests were made. The strikers were wildly demonstrative and women sympathizers again were much in evidence. Two women were among those arrested.

FLINT—After being trapped in a hotel in Lennon, surrounded by thirty armed men, including several deputy sheriffs of this and Shiawasse counties, a young man suspected of looting the home of Charles Sutton, a farmer near Lennon, fled through the picket lines late at night. He is said to have stolen a quantity of jewelry.

KALAMAZOO — John McCue, who is a resident on the east side, nearly lost his life when he jumped in front of an automobile to save a little girl. McCue stumbled and fell, but managed to roll out of the way of the machine after he had pushed the girl to one side.

KALAMAZOO — Without at all regaining consciousness, Albert Welch, the motorcyclist rider who was hurled from his machine at Recreation park, sustaining a fractured skull, died in Borgess hospital. He rode in the races against his wife's protests.

Marble Pudding

Steamed puddings will not be heavy if made with K C Baking Powder and cooked slowly to give the pudding time to rise before the dough is cooked through. Have a low blaze under the water for at least the first fifteen minutes.

K C Marble Pudding

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

2 cups sifted pastry flour; 2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; ½ teaspoonful cinnamon; ¼ teaspoonful salt; yolks of 2 eggs, beaten light; ½ cup sugar; 4 tablespoonfuls melted butter; ½ cup cold water; whites of 2 eggs, beaten dry; 1½ ounces melted chocolate.

Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon. To the yolks add the sugar, butter and water, and stir into the dry ingredients. Add the whites of the eggs. Divide the mixture into two parts and add the chocolate to one part. Dispose the two parts in a buttered mold to give a marbled appearance. Steam forty-five minutes.

Vanilla Sauce

Boil 2 cups of sugar and a cup of water six minutes; add 2 tablespoonfuls of butter and a teaspoonful of vanilla extract.

The K C Cook's Book containing this and 90 other delicious, successful, recipes sent free upon receipt of the colored certificate packed in 25-cent cans of K C Baking Powder. Write your name and address plainly. Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago.

OPPOSITION.

To the editor

How many of our voters realize that we have more than fifty thousand dollars of bonded indebtedness. In 1915 we pay $2,000.00 on our Water Bonds, and the interest on the remaining $13,000 00; in 1916 our first Sewer Bond of $1,000.00 will be payable, together with interest on $29,000 00. We are compelled to raise $1,000 00 annually to support the Carnegie library. We are paying better than $4500.00 yearly for electric lights, and about $60.00 per month of that light is a gift by the Board of Commerce; about five or six dollars a month is paid for lighting a sigh to tell us when we get home. Now if we add another $50,000 what will be the value of your property? Figure that out and make your decision next Tesday at the School meeting.

MUSKEGON — After receiving a telephone message from Whitehall that a speeding automobile carrying a shrieking woman had just rushed through that village bound for Muskegon, Deputy Sheriffs Wilhamer and Mathews intercepted the machine. According to them the automobile contained John O. Reed, former county school superintendent, and his wife, of Montague. The couple had quarreled and she had threatened to get a divorce. They were coming to Muskegon, it is understood, to see about the settlement, and Mr. Reed threatened to end his life if she attempted to get a divorce, it is said. Mrs. Reed called for aid as they dashed through Whitehall, arousing the citizens there.

CALUMET — Continued rioting at the Allouez mine in Keweenaw county resulted in the arrest of six supposed copper mine strikers. Men going to work were stoned and mounted troops were compelled to use their riot sticks to disperse the mob. General P. L. Abbey was personally in charge of the military activities and ordered the arrests. Warrants have been issued for several other persons. Fifteen hundred strikers and sympathizers, including many women, had gathered to stop workmen from entering the mine. The crowd was in an ugly mood and many of the persons in it were armed with stones and clubs. The cavalry, however, gained control of the situation.

DETROIT — The large freight steamer Joseph S. Morrow of Duluth, bound up the great lakes with grain, collided early in the day with the freighter City of London of Chicago bound down off Pointe Pelee, on the off Pointe Pelee, on Lake Erie. Reports reaching here were that the Morrow had to be beached and the City of London went down soon after the collision, so seriously were the boats damaged. The City of London's crew were taken off their sinking boat by the steamer Briton and they are on their way to Detroit. Wrecking tugs have left for the assistance of the Morrow.

DON'T FORGET TO VOTE.

Oct. 14. We Need a
New High School.

When we consider the condition of our present high school building and the needs of the rising generation; It seems strange that any one should oppose the movement now on foot, for better conditions.

The new building seems an imperative necessity from every stand point.

Let every voter be on hand next Tuesday and with the good of the younger element of our community in their hearts, vote for a new high school, lest we lose these from our midst in their desire for the better things that are provided in other towns.

IN THE TECUMSEH HERALD 35 YEARS AGO TODAY

A. D. Hall raised one hundred and forty bushels of sweet potatoes this season on three quartets of an acre of ground, and they are of excellent size and quality. We have sampled half a bushel of them, so we speak advisebly on the subject. He is selling them for 75c per bushel.

M. E Conklin has presented us with half a bushel of apples. They were the Tompkins County King and just 24 of them filled a half bushel measure. One of them would make a fair meal for an ordinary man.

The Democratic County Ticket has only one representative in Tecumseh, Viz S. H. Merritt for clerk, but what Tecumseh lacks in quantity she makes up in quality in this instance. Mr. Merritt has superior qualifications for that office and will make a good run.

The Republican meeting at Merchants Hall last Tuesday evening was addressed by Dr. Rynd and T. M. Hunter of Adrian. The hall was well filled with an intelligent audience, and the speeches gave good satisfaction.

REASONS WHY.

We beleive that Tecumseh should have a new school building and offer the following reasons for that belief:

1 When the present building was erected the laws of heating, lighting and ventilating schools had not been studied, consequently the house is dark on cloudy days, cold in winter and free from foul air only in sommer when the window can be left open. Every room has a cross light and every teacher must face the light. This is detrimental both to teacher and pupil and contrary all laws of lighting.

2 There is a time in the lives of growing children when excessive and inappropriate exercise is detrimental to proper physical development. Children in our seventh and eighth grades should not be made to endanger health by climbing to the third floor several times daily.

3 In case of fire a panic among the students would be very liable to cause serious results.

4 The moral ideas are fixed largely during the years of childhood and youth. The boys and girls should be free from all immoral suggestions The school toilets are unsanitary and morally vicious.

5 The study of science has become a fixed part of every school course and if it is to be of much value must be taught through experiment, Lack of laboratory room makes it impossible to give modern scientific work.

6 All progressive schools are adding new subjects along practical lines in order to interest and keep in school students not attracted by the present studies. Among these newer subjects are domestic science and manual training. We have no room for installing this work.

7 A school is largely valuable because of ideals it presents to its pupils. To become effective ideals of a school should be common to all students and this condition can only be attained by general exercises attended by all students In other words a general assembly room is needed in order te create a common school spirit.

8 This is an age of accomplishment, Much time and money is spent in discovering efficient methods. We do not retain incompetent workmen, why keep a school plant which lessens the efficiency of teachers?

9 Every town spends money in advertising that people may be induced to visit her places of business even if it be for one day only. A village can have no better advertisement nor one more continuous than an up to date school, It draws students, it draws trade and attracts a good class of citizens.

10 Lastly civic pride prompts us to act. Tecumseh long recognized as one of the best little towns in Michigan cannot afford to be the only town in Lenawee without a modern school building. Neither can we expect to retain the students within our jurisdiction unless we can offer them the advantages of a modern school building such as our neighboring cities and towns like Hudson, Adrian, Blissfield and Clinton are furnishing.

PS.

There seems to be some misunderstanding among some of the citizens as to the limit to which the school district may become responsible in building a New High School as proposed. That all may understand the conditions of the proposed vote to bond, we the school trustees wish to state that the amount asked is $50,000 that we have contract made with the architect that in case the contract can not be let for an amount within the $50,000, that the plans will be rejected and the architect receive nothing for his services The architect has given assurance that the contract may be let for the amount specified, the trustees will not enter into a contract for any amount in excess of the proposed $50,000 unless ordered to do so by a vote of the school district at some future time.

Who Framed the Income Tax Bill Which Will Soon Be a Law.

It now behooves all those with an income of more than $3,000 a year to try to find out how they are going to pay the income tax to the government and what will happen to them if they fail. The matter had been hanging fire for a long time. Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who framed the income tax bill, has issued a statement intended to help taxable persons, and a bureau at the treasury department is at work upon a set of instructions, which will be issued later.

GENERAL NEWS.

LEXINGTON, KY.—What is here considered the greatest performance of a trotter on the American turf was that of Peter Volo in the last heat of the Futurity for two-year-olds here. He won in the sensational time of 2:03½, lowering the world's record for a two-year-old trotter from 2:06¼, made by himself at Columbus last week. This time is also a quarter of a second faster than the world's record for a three-year-old trotter made over the local track by Colorado.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Herald readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. What other remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit?

W. C. Witherell, W. Pottawatamie St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have had no reason to change my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I publicly expressed some years ago and I willingly confirm all I have previously said in their praise. I had acute pains across the small of my back and I and in my hips and often after stooping, a sharp twinge darted through my loins, obliging me to lie down. I was laid in bed for several days and I believe that my trouble was caused by excessive stooping. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I obtained a supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and the contents of a few boxes restored me to good health. Since then, whenever I have felt in need of a kidney medicine, I have taken this preparation and the results have been very pleasing."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

She crossed the sea in safety and had $5 when she arrived in New York. She will continue her journey across the American continent alone.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

RACINE, WIS.—The sudden break of a steering gear of an automobile resulted in the death of one man and the injury of five others, all of Racine. Henry Berchmayer was killed, his back being broken when thrown out of the automobile as it turned over in the ditch. Val. Manderfield, Fred Pfister, George Kosterman, Lennon Plyer and Louis Bassinger, driver of the car, were all injured. They were to a camp up the river when the accident happened, and one of the party managed to reach a farm house and summon aid from the city.

Young America Getting Wise.

"Procrastination is the thief of time."

"Is he the fellow, pa, who takes away the years from a woman's age?"—Boston Herald.

A WOMAN'S GOOD LOOKS

Depend on her general health and freedom from pain. Many a woman looks old before her time because of those irregularities which are essentially feminine. Starting from early womanhood, she suffers from frequently recurring derangements that upset her womanly health. If she be beautiful she grows into that mellow age without wrinkles and crowfeet about the eyes or the blue circles underneath. It is invariably the rule that such women suffer little, or not at all, from womanly derangements which sap the health and leave in the face the tell-tale story of pain and suffering. Dr. R. V. Pierce, the famous specialist in the diseases of women, found a prescription in his early practice that soothed the organism peculiar to womanhood—oiled the machinery, as it were, of the human system—and helped the woman to pass those painful periods that scar-lined and aged her face. This remedy became the well-known Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that has benefited thousands of women and saved them from misery and suffering at different periods in life.

MRS. PIERCE.

MRS. HARRIET E. PIERCE, of 244 [illegible] Street, Sarnia, Ont., writes: "I am now a well woman after suffering for three years and doctoring with several different doctors, each one saying it was something different, and the last one, after going through a thorough examination, said I was suffering from a growth, which, in time, would result in cancer, and said I would not live more than two years if not operated upon right away. I became horribly discouraged but would not consent to the operation as I was too weak and too much afraid, but at last, through the advice of a friend, I tried Dr. Pierce's medicines, and after using two bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I immediately felt a change. I also used two boxes of 'Healing Suppositories' and eight boxes of 'Lotion Tablets,' and can safely praise the name of Dr. Pierce's medicines to all who suffer from any female disease, for these medicines are all they are claimed to be, and I hope will help others as they have helped me."

The Old Painter.

An anecdote which Charles Francis Adams told years ago to the young Henry Cabot Lodge was retold by him in Scribner's. It was one of Gilbert Stuart and of Mr. Adams' grandfather.

Stuart painted a portrait of John Adams in extreme old age, when he was nearing his ninetieth year. It is a very fine portrait of the old man leaning on his cane. Charles Francis Adams, a boy of eighteen, used to keep his grandfather company during the sittings and watch the painter at work. He said that Stuart, who was old, too, and near the end of his career, was physically feeble. Both his hands shook violently. From a quivering palette he would take his color, and with his brush shaking and trembling he would touch the picture. Mr. Adams said it looked as if he might dash the paint on anywhere, but the brush always touched the portrait, extraordinary as it seemed, in exactly the right spot and in the right way. Despite his shaking hands and trembling fingers the old artist never made a mistake.

Bear Hunting In India.

Among the sports of India is the capturing of bears, and to this end curious means are sometimes devised. For example, four or five sturdy men are armed, two with long spears crossbarred on the handles close to the sharp two edged blade, and two or three with ten foot bamboos, of which the ends are smeared with bird lime. These hunters sally forth with dogs before dawn. They pass along the base of the hills with the fresh morning wind blowing up the plains below. Should the hunters be lucky it is not long before the dogs wind the bear. The dogs are slipped and disappear in the semidarkness. Soon their roaring and growling indicate that they have found the game. The hunters run up to the spot where the bear is fighting with the dogs. The men with the limed poles poke the bear in the ribs and adroitly twist the ends in its long hair, thus holding it fast on each flank. The spearmen complete the operation by repeated spear thrusts.

Modern Witches.

Centuries have passed since "witches" were executed in England, but in very recent times they have suffered physical harm. Dr. Jessopp knew a Norfolk man who died in 1883, and in the sixties had joined with his two brothers in a night expedition to the house of an old woman. They took her out of bed, and in the presence of half a dozen other people threw her into a pond, "where she would infallibly have been drowned, but that some who were not so mad as the rest cried out that she was sinking to the bottom and must be saved." The conclusive evidence against her was that she kept a black cat and wore a black silk dress on Sundays. In 1882 there was still alive, and master in an elementary school, one who, as a young man, had scratched a "witch's" arms till the blood poured down, because she had "overlooked" him, and only so could his health be restored.—London Chronicle.

Compulsory Illuminations.

The west end of London is always ablaze with lights on the evening of the king's birthday, but no living Londoner can claim to have seen a general illumination of the metropolis. In his "Recollection and Reflection" J. R. Planche writes: "The last general illumination of London was that celebrating the battle of Waterloo. Now there are more beautiful displays, but this one was really general. Not a window in the smallest court but had its candle stuck in a lump of clay, while in houses of more pretension one blazed in every pane. Mobs paraded the metropolis from Hyde park corner to Whitechapel with cries of 'Light up!' and smashed every window that did not swiftly display a dip in answer to the summons."

Charm of the Nutmeg Tree.

The nutmeg tree has all seasons for its own. Every day in the year it shows buds, blossoms and fruit in every stage of maturing. The shell of the nutmeg is like a bit of polished ebony, and the mace it exposes when it bursts is of a bright scarlet. With all these varied features upon it at the same time, the nutmeg tree is one of the most beautiful exhibitors of the odd and beautiful in vegetation that the world possesses.—Browning's Magazine.

No Fancy Shaves For Him.

The weather was warm, and Pat decided to shave on the back porch. Mrs. Casey, across the way, observed this.

"Pat," she called, "shure an' Oi see ye air shavin' outside."

"Begorra," he responded, "and did ye think Oi was fur lined?"—Judge.

Going the Limit.

Jones—If Mr. Oldboy makes any such assertion I will denounce him as a liar. President—Mr. Jones, I will call you to order. Our bylaws do not allow you to go that far. Jones—Then I call Mr. Oldboy a liar as far as it is permitted by the bylaws of this association.—London Telegraph.

The Other Side.

"You shouldn't be dissatisfied," said the optimist. "Look at all you have."

"Yes," assented the pessimist, "but look at all I haven't."—Judge.

Life's Stage.

Patience—Do you believe this life's a stage? Patrice—Sure, and all the women want to be leading ladies.—Yonkers Statesman.

The man of brains sees difficulties, surmounts or avoids them. The fool knows no difficulties.—La Bruyere.

Nice For the Cows.

Retired Haberdasher (late of London)—Now, then, 'Enry, I'm goin' to have a large party 'ere next week, and I shall expect an unlimited quantity of milk, cream and butter. After that the cows can 'ave a rest till me and Mrs. P. returns from the contenong.—London Punch.

London Juries.

England has been investigating its jury system and finds that charges of unfairness against juries are no new thing. One old bishop remarked, "London juries are so prejudiced that they would find Abel guilty of murdering Cain."

EL PASO, TEX.—John N. Amador, head of the revolutionary junta in El Paso, has returned from Hermosillo where he was in Conference with General Carranza and the other rebel leaders regarding the details of the confederate states of Mexico. He claims that General Angeles, former commander in the federal army, is to be minister of war, Carranza is to be president and Juan Sanches Azcona, secretary of foreign relations.

TO HONOR LINCOLN ADDRESS

Illinois Will Celebrate 50th Anniversary of Gettysburg Speach.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 6.—Illinois started to initiate the centennial of the state's admission to the union with a preliminary celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of Lincoln's address at the Gettysburg battlefield.

The idea has met with the strong approval of officers and members of the centennial commission and of the authorities of the University of Illinois, particularly the faculty members of the history department, who are interested in the historical value to the university of the possibilities to be developed by opening the centennial celebration at this early stage.

Public men, including Senator Sherman, former Governor Yates, many of the members of the general assembly, old time friends of Mr. Lincoln, and representative men in professional and business life, gave strong approval to the suggestion that Illinois proceed to properly celebrate the Gettysburg speech and arouse the state to a realization of its own record and achievements.

The idea seems to be that there shall be an official recognition of the Gettysburg speech semi-centennial through proclamation from Governor Dunne.

Heated Contest on Among Four Cities Seeking 1914 Meet.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 6.—The third American road congress was concluded here with the reports of various officers and committees, the presentation and adoption of a mass of resolutions with reference to the building and maintenance of good roads, and the selection of the next convention city.

Los Angeles, San Francisco, Spokane, Ottawa and Toronto delegations have already invited the congress to visit their cities in 1915, and a heated contest for the holding of that event is expected.

Musical Marvels.

It has been said of Dr. Hans von Bulow and Rubinstein that, if every note of music worth preserving had been destroyed, they could between them have reproduced every line of it. Von Bulow once gave a series of twenty piano recitals without a line of music and striking approximately 1,250,000 notes, each of which had to be retained in its exact position in his memory; and Verdi once, for a wager, played faultlessly an entire opera, drawn by lot, which he had composed fourteen years earlier and of which he was not allowed to see a note.

SHIP REPORTS ON OCEAN FIRE

Rappahannock by Wireless Tells of Victims Aboard.

FIXES LIVES LOST AT 70 OR 80

Has on Board Fifteen Women and Four Children—Belief That Dispatch Does Not Include In Loss Many Who Perished in Lifeboats——Few Details Told.

New York, Oct. 13.—The first definite news of the burning of the steamship Volturno in midocean on Thursday, of the death by fire or drowning of 134 of her passengers and crew, and of the rescue on Friday morning by eleven steamships of 533 men, women and children, has been received.

The Rappahannock, one of the eleven ships that came up in time to assist in the perilous work of rescue, wirelessed to the Uraniam Steamship line the first list of names of persons saved. She is on her way to Halifax with fifteen women and four children.

Names of Saved.

Those on the Rappahannock are:

Feloe Katske, Esther Katske, Maria Isenburg, Esther Lentetske, Bella Recensky, Mrs. Pollick, Mrs. Gaduckparashe, Nikoli Gaduckparshe, Mrs. Maria Vikiszvck, Pedro Vikitszvck, a son; Dimitro Vikitszvck, a son; Katripa Vikitszvck, a daughter; Leckadi Wojcieck, Alexandria Kontkonsha, Esther Popplus, Privie Viks, Perri Viks, Edna Friedman and Bisy Laudin.

"Nine steamers at rescue. Weather rough. One hundred and twelve people missing. Approximately seventy or eighty perished. Report later.

"FURNESS."

The Furness, Withy and Company ship, reported that approximately seventy or eighty perished, but at the same time, reported 112 to be missing. On the other hand, Captain Barr of the Carmania places the number of rescued at 521, which would seem to mean that the loss of life is 130, including the two lifeboat loads of immigrants, who escaped being dashed against the Volturno's side on Thursday morning, but who, it is believed now, were soon after swallowed up in the terrific gale that was raging.

Tells of Few Details.

The wireless dispatch received from the Grosser Kurfuerst supplied with disappointing brevity some of the essential details. It told of a great explosion which killed forty of the crew and passengers, of the disappearance into the storm of two boat loads of passengers, with about 100 in them and of the number of survivors that had been taken on the various rescuing ships.

SENATORS CALLED BY WIRE

Telegrams Urge All to Hasten to Consider Deficiency Bill.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Telegraphic orders calling every absent senator back to Washington went out, in an effort to secure a quorum in the senate. The house action on the urgent deficiency appropriation bill is to be considered and arrangements made for the future program on the currency question.

Senator Hoke Smith and several of his colleagues have decided that unless an agreement is reached to meet and adjourn every three days with the understanding that absolutely no business shall be transacted until the currency bill is before the senate, demands shall be made for a quorum whenever the senate does meet.

TIM L. WOODRUFF IS DEAD

He Was Lieutenant Governor of New York Three Times.

New York, Oct. 13.—Timothy Lester Woodruff, lieutenant governor of New York for three terms (1897-1903) is dead. He was born at New Haven, Conn., on Aug. 4, 1858. He was the son of John Woodruff, who was a Connecticut congressman from 1855 to 1866, and Harriet J. Lester. He traced his descendants on his father's and mother's side to the earliest settlers of the Nutmeg state.

Mr. Woodruff went into the Bull Moose movement in 1912 with much vigor and became the leader of the national Progressive party in Kings.

SPRINGFIELD IS HIT BY $300,000 FIRE

Entire Business Section Saved by Six-story Wall.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 13.—Losses estimated conservatively at $300,000 were caused by fire of unknown origin which destroyed the new four-story building at the southwest corner of Seventh and Adams streets, occupied by the Johnson & Hatcher department store, swept through the adjoining buildings on the west, and threatened to burn the entire business district. The flames were controlled only after a desperate fight.

The six-story fire wall on the east side of the John Bressmer & Co. building saved the business district. Fifty men manned the Bressmer building windows fighting the fire below from that vantage point. The building losses are:

S. Mendenhall Building, occupied by Johnson & Hatcher Company, $50,000, insurance, $34,000.

James T. Jones Building, four stories; first floor occupied by O. B. Caldwell's wall paper store; other floors by the Johnson-Hatcher Company; insurance, $10,000.

Myers Brothers four-story building occupied by the Menter Company, clothiers, first floor, other floors by the Johnson-Hatcher Company, loss $15,000; insurance, $7,500.

M. J. Bartel building, first floor vacant; other floors occupied by Elmer Hotel; loss, $15,000.

Two-story building owned by John Bressmer Company, occupied by the W. M. Ackerman Shoe Company, $2,000.

Six story building occupied by the John Bressmer Company, department store; loss, $1,000.

Losses to stock are estimated as follows: Johnson and Hatcher Company, $150,000; O. B. Caldwell, $5,000; Menter Company, $10,000; Hotel Elmer, $5,000; Akerman Shoe Company, $5,000; Bressmer Company, $2,000.

India's Woven Wind.

New England's or even old England's cotton trade is but in its infancy compared with the industry in India. "For what are 300 years against 3,000?" says a writer. "Fabrics as fine as any that can be turned out at the present day by the most perfect machinery in Lancashire were produced by the nimble fingers of Hindu spinners and the primitive looms of Hindu weavers a thousand years before the invasion of Britain by the Romans. When Britons were shivering in their woad, in fact, the Hindus were glorying in garments of a texture so fine as to have earned the poetic description of 'woven wind.'"

BOASTS OF RICHES; SLAIN BY ROBBERS

Urbana, Ill., Man Displays Money and Is Found Dead.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 13.—William M. Larry, wealthy merchant and farmer, elated over the sale of a federal building site for $12,000, threw a roll containing $1,200 on the floor of a shoe shop with a boast that he was going to the country to collect $1,200 more. His body has just been found in a corn field near the house where he had collected the money. He had been shot in the head three times and robbed.

Larry had been dead at least ten hours when the body was found by rabbit hunters. The victim, who was worth between $80,000 and $100,000, had a mania for carrying and exhibiting large sums of money. He seldom had less than $1,000 in his pockets and often laughed at the fears of friends. The number on an old model 32-caliber revolver found beneath the body furnishes the only clew.

Larry was a bachelor, thirty-eight years old, and lived with a sister. Besides two stores and valuable real estate buildings he owned extensive farm land.

DRULEY DIES IN NEWCASTLE

Former Indianapolis Man, Found Unconscious in Haymow, Succumbs.

Newcastle, Ind., Oct. 13.—Lawrence Druley, fifty-eight years old, the former Indianapolis man who disappeared from his home in this city Sept. 29 and was found unconscious in a haymow three miles west of here two days later, died without recovering consciousness.

An autopsy will be held to determine the cause of his death. His widow and two children, Mrs. Nellie Wernick and H. J. Druly of Indianapolis, survive.

Stricken Blind in Sleep.

Elwood, Ind., Oct. 13.—Arising at the usual hour, Miss Ruth Gibbony, sixteen years old, was horrified to find that she had been stricken blind during the night. It may be months before her vision is restored.

Dead Engineer Is Blamed.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 13. — Blame for the head-on collision between two freight trains on the Chicago, Indiana and Southern railroad in which three persons lost their lives, was placed on Thomas Jefferson, engineer of train No. 92 and one of the men killed. Jefferson, railroad men say, had orders to remain at the Ginger Hill side track until No. 95 had passed and disobeyed them.

GANG ACCUSED OF 68 BOMB SETTING PLOTS

Police Check up Big Assortment of Crimes.

New York, Oct. 13. — The police have checked up the confessions, made by seven of the gang of bomb throwers, who were arrested Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and are now in a position to accuse the gang of sixty-eight bomb setting jobs. There are plenty of other crimes charged against the prisoners, such as extortion, burglary, felonious assault, arson, and the federal authorities suspect them of counterfeiting.

These are the seven men who have confessed: Joe Polaski, alias Anthony Sadallis, alias Burke; Alfred Lehman, alias Eddie Smith, alias Schmidtty; Russo Casatto, alias Correggio Emma; Angelo Sylvestro, alias Rocco Riciello, alias Zump; Sefano Catanzaro and Antonio Rizzo. Burke, in his confession, admits to having committed arson in Brooklyn.

The police are hopeful of being able to arrest soon certain officials of a garment workers' union in the city who are suspected of having hired the gang to place bombs against establishments where strikes were on.

The gang has operated fourteen years, though the personnel of it was changed. When a member retired, or was killed another was admitted in his place.

COWAN'S CONDITION SERIOUS

Progressive Chairman of Terre Haute May Have Fractured Skull.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 13. — Edward B. Cowan, chairman of the Progressive committee and a former councilman, who was thrown from his buggy when it was hit by an automobile, is believed to be suffering from a fractured skull.

At the Union hospital it is said his condition is serious. Mr. Cowan's buggy was struck by an automobile driven by Arthur W. Rigney, who says the machine skidded because the street was wet.

Death Ends Woman's Fast.

Palo Alto, Oct. 13.—Mrs. Grace H. Foss, wife of J. Foss, died at her home here after fasting sixty-nine days. She was forty-five years old.

Loses Job; Cuts Throat.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 13.—Grieving over the loss of his position, James Craig, a painter, thirty-five years old, attempted suicide by cutting his throat. He has five children. He probably will die.

Jealous Man's Queer Freak.

A man named Boure has been arrested at Venice, Cal., charged with shaving the head of his bride in a fit of jealous rage to make her look unattractive in the eyes of other men. The bride, who is only seventeen, and much younger than her husband, complained that he overpowered her, clipped her tresses close, and then applied lather and razor until her head "looked like a billiard ball."

The wheel of fortune has turned many a man's head.

A SINGULAR MARRIAGE

I Was to Serve a Legal Purpose

By EDNA C. TRASK

My father died when I was nineteen, leaving me a fortune. He had made it by building up a business in which he was much interested and always regretted that I had not been born a boy that I might succeed him in its management. Since that could not be he made arrangements before his death for the succession, but left the greater part of the stock of the company to me. At the time of his death his lawyer, Mr. Crocker, who was also his most intimate friend, was abroad, but was expected home within a few weeks. Nevertheless my father had named Mr. Crocker to be my guardian.

Mr. Crocker was taken ill abroad and was a long while regaining his health. Not considering himself fitted for business, he remained away nearly a year longer than had been expected. One morning immediately after his arrival I received a telephone message from him to come to his office at once. It was then 11 o'clock, and I promised him that I would be there within a quarter of an hour.

The moment I arrived he took me into his private office and shut the door.

"Are you engaged to be married?" he asked quickly.

"No."

"Is there any young man whom you would like to marry?"

"No. Why do you ask these questions?"

"The extension of my trip abroad has turned awry your father's intentions for you. He had no faith in a woman's ability to manage property and appointed me your guardian till you reach the age of twenty-one years, or the [illegible] day of November, which is today. He also willed that if you married with my approval of your husband your fortune was to be turned over to you. If you were not so married by noon today the estate was to be kept in the business, you to receive $100 a month from it, the principal to be ultimately used to found an institution to bear the testator's name."

Great heavens! A hundred dollars a month! I had been used to spending more than that for pin money.

"What shall I do?" I cried. "I know no one I wish to marry or who wishes to marry me."

"I think I can save your property to you by formally complying with the provisions laid down. You can marry, but need not live with your husband and in time get a divorce. These persons who try to tie up property after their death usually make a mess of it. I have had only an hour in which to act. I did not read the will till I came to the office an hour ago, but I have already made an arrangement by which you may be married at once. There is now waiting in another room a man who will marry you, with the understanding that the marriage is merely to conform to the law. If you don't care to live with him"—

"Care to live with him! Of course I won't care to live with him!" I exclaimed.

"In that case, in due time I will see that you secure a divorce."

"Why does the man consent to marry me?"

"I will see that he doesn't suffer by the transaction, that is," he added, "in case he does not fall in love with his wife."

"Let me see him," I moaned. "No. I don't wish to see him. I am to marry him to evade the law. I don't care who or what he is."

"Your decision?" queried Mr. Crocker.

"On the terms stated," was my reply. "I'll marry Old Nick."

A touch on a bell brought an attendant, and Mr. Crocker directed him to summon the two gentlemen in the outer room.

"Oh, heavens!" I exclaimed. "Are there two of them?"

"One is a clergyman," Mr. Crocker explained, with a faint smile.

The moment they entered I stared at the groom to be. I gave a sigh of relief, for in case anything should go wrong I felt that I might have every confidence in him. He did not show the same eager curiosity in me that I had in him, looking at me with a reassuring smile. Mr. Crocker introduced him, but I did not hear his name or the complimentary things that were said about him. All the young man said was that he would be happy to help me out of a difficulty and that I need not fear for a moment that he would take advantage of the legal knot that was to be tied between us. As for me, I didn't open my mouth, but submitted to be led like a lamb to the slaughter.

In order to keep up appearances—that is, to avoid a swoon or a breakdown of some kind during the ceremony—I exerted my will power to fancy that I was a happy bride, marrying the man of my choice. I got on [illegible] well till I heard the words "man and wife;" then things began to grow confused about me, and I knew nothing more till I found myself lying on an office lounge, looking up into the most sympathetic, kindly, loving—yes, it was loving—face I ever saw.

Then I heard persons leaving the room, and presently all was still. I judged that I was alone with my—legal—husband.

"Poor child!"

"I hope," I said, "that you don't consider my breaking down in this way any want of compliment to you. It was the suddenness of it, the—the"—I was stalled.

"It would be very foolish in me," he said, "to consider my individuality of any importance whatever in the matter. I am simply that legal party Mr. John Doe, who is constantly disputing with Richard Roe. You, being a woman, can't be Richard Roe. I suppose, however, you might be Richarda Roe. But we need never have any of the legal squabbles of these two ancient and honorable parties, for we are not to be together, and you can rely on Mr. Crocker to get you out of it without any trouble whatever. I see no necessity of your giving up your maiden name except in signing documents. This legal condition need not last a year. I am here, and will be scarcely a ripple on the surface of your life."

"You are very nice about it, and I have every confidence in you. How did Mr. Crocker come to select you for the purpose?"

"I am under great obligations to your late father."

"You! Under obligations to papa?"

"Yes. Fifteen years ago, when I was a boy, he took me into his business and advanced me to be at the [illegible] his death I was his principal [illegible]."

"You are not Edward Keane?"

"I am."

How singular! I was married to her ward Keane. Ten years before a young man of twenty had come one day to the house [illegible] my father's office with a message for him. I was then a girl of ten and saw him. A few months since then I had heard of Edward Keane, whom my father was intending to place at the head of his business when he should leave it. The young man had been to the house a number of times since, but I had always been away, either at school or visiting, at the time of his coming. I was lost in wonder at this happening and was [illegible]. Presently I asked him if this marriage was the carrying out of a plan laid by my father before his death.

"I only know," he replied, "that not two hours ago Mr. Crocker summoned me here in great haste and told me that my benefactor's daughter must be married before noon or lose her inheritance. He asked me if I would consent to be a legal husband till the property could be turned over to you and would pledge myself to leave you free and consent to a divorce at any time you desired. I told him that I would do anything in my power for your father's daughter. Besides, I have seen you once or twice when you have not seen, or perhaps have not noticed, me."

"And you did not marry me for a—for a consideration?"

"Yes; the consideration of being of service to you."

We chatted some time longer, when my husband prepared to call in Mr. Crocker and ask him for a full statement of the case. He came and told us that it was my father's wish that I should marry Edward Keane. My father had stipulated that I was to do so or the provision already stated was to be enforced. Mr. Crocker was relied on to make this match, if possible. His failure to return as soon as expected came very near costing me a fortune. When he found that he must act at once he did so with his accustomed rapidity and talent for management. He had married me as my father desired, and it remained with me and my husband whether we should make the marriage real as well as legal. After giving us this explanation he retired, leaving us again alone together.

"What shall we do?" I remarked, as much to myself as to him.

"You can do nothing unless I ask you to be my wife till death do us part, as your father desired. Will you?"

We remained together where we were for an hour longer. At first I was disposed to put off a decision, but before we left I had consented. There was nothing more to do but make an announcement of our marriage and go on our wedding journey.

SURRENDERS IN ARSON CASE

Young Farmer Faces Five Charges in Daviess County.

Sullivan, Ind., Oct. 13.—Perry Drake, a young farmer living near here, who was indicted recently by the grand jury at Washington, Daviess county, on a charge of arson, left for Washington and has surrendered himself to the sheriff there. Five warrants for his arrest were received by Sheriff K[illegible]y. He is charged with firing a barn containing stallions that had been covered with heavy insurance.

Drake says he was employed to buy a stallion by Van Allen of Washington and that he delivered the animal to him at Martinsville, Ind. This, he says, is all he knows of the affair.

Joke of a Sultan.

The sultan of Turkey once played a joke at the expense of some medical experts at Constantinople. When the plague broke out in his capital the sultan asked if anything was known as to the cause. On being informed that it was to be found in the state of the drinking water, he called at once for six empty bottles, which he had filled in his presence, all from the same one of the palace wells, placed his own seal upon them, and then, without divulging their community of origin, handed all six to a prominent analyst. To his amazement the report sent in was that four of the samples contained plague microbes. The fifth was merely putrid water, and the sixth was quite pure. Abdul Hamid calmly shrugged his shoulders and kept his thoughts to himself.

A Loud Hiss.

TO JAIL WOMEN WHO WEAR BIRDS

Senator Chamberlain of Oregon Has Measure.

HAS MODEL FOR ALL STATES

Law Against Importation Praised, but Needs Supplemental Act Fixing Penalty on Wearer—He Enforced Such a Law in Oregon and Recommends it for Other States.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Senator Chamberlain of Oregon is preparing a bill to prohibit, so far as it is possible through federal law, the ownership, possession or use of aigrettes and other plumage of birds, the importation of which is prohibited in the new tariff law. He said that he would press it upon the attention of the senate at the earliest possible moment.

When Senator Chamberlain was governor of his state, in 1907, he put a measure through the Oregon legislature that absolutely prohibited the ownership or the wearing of the plumage of birds and saw that it was rigidly enforced.

Praises Tariff Provisions.

"The provisions in the tariff law," said Senator Chamberlain, "is a good one and intended to correct an evil that has grown to alarming proportions in the United States.

"The slaughter of the birds to meet the millinery demands of the women of this country has been frightful. It is all very well to prevent the importation of the prohibited plumage, but the law cannot be effectively enforced until the actual possession of the prohibited article is made an offense.

"We can control the matter as far as it relates to interstate commerce, or the wearing of such aigrettes, etc., in interstate journeys and travels.

Wants States to Act.

"The most effective means to prevent the slaughter of birds and stop the use of their plumage as articles of adornment is for the states to take the attitude of congress, as expressed in the tariff bill, as their cue and enact legislation to prevent the possession and use of the prohibited feathers.

"About such legislation there can be no doubt, and its effectiveness would be apparent immediately. We drove the business out of Oregon under our law, and it can be done in every other state."

Two Ways to Catch Rabbits.

By the first method "you take a lot o' salt, mix some pepper with it, strew it on a very hard rock, then watch. The rabbits cum and eat the salt, and the pepper makes 'em sneeze so vilent they bump their noses on the rock till they fall in a swound and you step up and pop 'em in your bag."

The other method was to "build a bustin' fire in the woods when the snow is plenty. Now, rabbits, you must know, is a mite cold blooded little critters, so they'll cum and set round it and warm their toes. Well, pretty soon they'll drop off asleep and the fire'll melt the snow into slush. And pretty soon the fire'll die out and the mornin' 'll cum on sharp and 'll freeze the slush into ice and ketch the little critters fast by the paws. Then all you have to do is cum round with yer ax and chop 'em out."—Robert Haven Schauffler in Metropolitan Magazine.

ARRESTED

For Obtaining Money on False Pretenses, Harry T. Curtis gets 90 Days in Detroit

Harry T. Curtis whose home is near Onsted was arrested Friday on a charge of obtaining money on false pretenses

He represented himself as a Telegram solicitor and took subscriptions for cash only at $2 a year, the regular price being $2.50 except for bargain week the last week in December.

Suspicions being aroused Prosecuter Michener was notified and Dept. John B Smith took the case and arrested him as he returned from a trip west of town. He was taken before Justice Hesmer Saturday and was given 90 days at Detroit. He also represented himself as agent for the Adrian Times and called at the Herald Office each morning for the latest paper but this also seems to be another mistake of his, as seen by the following which appeared in the Saturdays edition of that paper.

"The management of The Times wishes to state to the people of Tecumseh and vicinity that Harry E. Curtis convicted this morning of receiving money under false pretenses was not an agent of The Times. He never was authorized to make collections or in any way handle business for The Times at Tecumseh. If anyone has paid him money on subscription the management of this paper [illegible] that such fact be made known to them at once."

ACROSS THE STATES IN 5 DAYS FROM TACOMA TO NEW YORK CITY

Mrs. J. F. Rentschler has been entertaining her cousin George Manning, U. S. Immigration Inspector of Tacoma, Washington, who has just crossed the States to New York City in charge of 35 emigrants who are to be deported. On his return trip he is making short calls on relatives. Mrs. D. J. Oliver of Pontiac, another cousin came with him to Tecumseh. He has enjoyed a trip down the Hudson river, a stop at Washington D. C., Wheeling, Toledo, Detroit, Pontiac, Jackson, and Tecumseh.

He has been very favorably impressed with the beautiful harvest season and expresses great favor for Tecumseh and surroundings noting the clean neat appearance and amount of business compared with the population. He thinks he will arrange for a longer stay on his trip in 1914.

Mr. Manning made the trip across the States in 5 days leaving Tacoma Sept. 25, arriving in New York Oct. 1. He had two cars for the convenience of his charges, a diner and a sleeper for their exclusive use.

NIPPUR SCHOOLS 4,200 YEARS AGO

Tablets Reveal Some Oldest Text Books.

TASKS MUCH SAME AS NOW

Professor Langdon, of Jesus College, Oxford University, Deciphers Interesting Facts—School Boy's Slate Shows Erasure of Part of Spelling Lesson and Job Left Uncompleted.

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—Professor Langdon, of Jesus College, Oxford university, who is spending some time in this city at the University of Pennsylvania, has discovered that one of the famous Nippur tablets reveals some of the oldest school books which are known to exist. They show that the children of the ancients learned much that the boys and girls of today have to study and his deciphering has led to the discovery of some important educational relics.

Had Same Studies as Now.

Some of the tablets show that the pupils of 4,200 years ago in the college at Nippur studied geography, history, geology and theology. Their grammers and histories show that the Sumurians were a highly developed people and that they paid great attention to the education of their children.

One of the tablets records a treatise on the use of the preposition "by," showing the various uses of the word. Another is an exercise on the infinitive. The phrase "to be deep" is exploited in various ways including the nouns "well," "ditch" and other derivatives.

Boy's Unfinished Task Revealed.

About 4,200 years ago, a boy was working at his spelling lesson in the Temple School at Nippur, the ancient capital of Sumuria. His slate consisted of a piece of soft clay in tablet form, about six inches by four and an inch thick. On this he spelled his words by means of a stylus, with a triangular end. The words were made by combinations of these triangles (cuneiform inscriptions, they are now called) and as part of his task he had written down the name of some jewels in the upper left hand corner of his "slate." In the upper right hand corner he had written something else. Suddenly the bell rang, or some other sign was given that school was at an end. Either he had not finished his task or had made some mistakes for with his thumb he marked out what he had written in the upper right hand corner. Perhaps he never came back to school. Perhaps his slate was discarder for another. At any rate, that "slate" was tossed aside and now, after 4,200 years, after many centuries, reposing in the ruins of the temple of Nippur, it now rests in the university museum of this city, precisely as he left it.

The marks of his thumb are as plain as if he had made them only yesterday.

Corrected.

"I wish I had never learned to play cards," exclaimed a man who had been unfortunate at the game.

"You mean you wish you had learned, don't you?" was his wife's rejoinder.—London Tit-Bits.

High School Notes

The foot ball game last Friday with Clinton was an unusually fine one. Tecumseh would undoubtedly have won, had not the referee of Clinton favored his town. Karl Schneider made the touch down for us and his brother kicked the goal. Clinton's best player we think was "Bill" Clack.

The score by quarters:
First quarter, Tecumseh 7, Clinton 0
Second quarter, Tecumseh 7, Clinton 0
Third quarter, Tecumseh 7, Clinton 0
Fourth quarter, Tecumseh 7, Clinton 7

The High school boys and girls made quite a demonstration Monday afternoon and evening. Here's to hope that they get their new building.

We regretted to learn that Elmer Green had his leg broken Sunday evening. He was going to do his chores and a mule kicked him. He is a Senior.

NOTICE

The annual meeting of the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Lenawee Co. will be held on Monday Oct. 27th 1913 in the City of Adrian, No. 39 North Main St. for the purpose of electing a Secretary, and Directors, in 1st, 3rd and 5th districts and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

By order of the board of directors.

UNION YOUNG PEOPLES MEETING

The young peoples' meetings of the Methodist and Baptist churches met at the Baptist church Sunday evening, with a large attendance. The meeting was led by Wilfred Waldron who chose for his subject "Co operation" which he handled in a most interesting manner. The meeting was full of good things and enjoyed by all present.

COUNTY CONVENTION OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS

The Sunday School Convention just held in Clayton was one of the largest and best ever held in Lenawee County. Delegates were present from nearly every Sunday School. Nearly every session the crowd taxed the capacity of the auditorium of the church. Excellent addresses were in order on a variety of subjects.

The presence of Dr. Charles Sheldon of Topeka, Kansas, author of "In His Steps" was a very inspiring feature of the meeting. Dr. Sheldon's address was unexpected but no less enjoyable. The address of Dr. Hartzog was most interesting, his subject being "The trained teacher for Sunday School." He brought out many fine points along this line of work.

A song service was also a most delightful hours's entertainment. The next meeting of this convention will be held in Deerfield.

The officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

Pres.—H. G. Pearce, Morenci
Vice Pres.—Albert Balgoogan, Deerfield
Rec. Sec.—Mrs. A. L. Pangburn, Adrian
Cor. Sec.—Mrs. Alice Condit, Morenci
Treas.—G. Roscoe Swift, Adrian

Duels in France.

A large proportion of the duels in France end without bloodshed. When the offense is not very serious it is agreed beforehand that the words of command shall be given so rapidly that the duelists will not have time to take good aim. Sometimes three shots are exchanged without a hit, and then the seconds step in and—"honor is satisfied." At the word "Fire!" the pistol is raised instantly, and it must be discharged not later than the word "three," so the speed with which these words are given regulates the time in which it is possible to take aim. Therefore the speed with which they are spoken is agreed upon beforehand, this depending upon the seriousness of the duel. The words are timed with a metronome. If the encounter be very serious this is set at the lowest speed, eighty beats a minute, which gives time for taking accurate aim. A speed of 140 beats a minute allows no time for aiming, and therefore is used when the seconds consider the duel should be made as little dangerous as possible.—London Answers.

RED BAND LUMP

For several years we have sold this coal. It always gives satisfaction. In fact, we believe it the best Soft Coal mined. It burns clean like the old Jackson Hill, makes little ash and no clinkers, crackles like hickory wood. As for giving out heat, know of no coal compared with it. We will receive another car within a few days, and would like to put in a supply for you. The price is $5 50 per ton delivered.

MRS, GEORGE TURNER DEAD

Wife of County Agent Passes away at Home on Avon Street

Mrs. Sara Turner, wife of County Agent George Turner and one of the old residents of the County, died Sunday morning at her home, 504 Avon street. She was taken ill about three years ago and had been confined to her bed since last Wednesday. Death was caused by hemorrage of the stomach.

Sarah Elizabeth Scott was born in Pontiac, Mich., in 1843. She was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Scott. She was married to George Turner in 1867 and they came to Flint directly after their marriage residing here 46 years. Mrs. Turner was a member of the Court street M. E. Church and an active worker. Besides her husband she leaves three children, Mrs. J. C. Buchanan of Detroit; Frank S. Turner of Tecumseh, who was first assistant cashier of the First National bank of Flint until last summer, and Gussie Turner of Flint.—Flint Journal.

RECEPTION

CAMERA NEVER LIES

The Decision by the Umpire In Close Play Is Upheld.

The best umpire in the business cannot judge of a play as accurately as the camera. But pictures only go to show the efficiency of the men who arbitrate the world's series. Red Murray of the Giants attempted to steal second. He apparently had the base swiped, but overslid the bag. Collins tagged him, and the umpire waved him out. This play was recorded by the camera man, and in the picture it is plainly seen that the umpire was right.

Eating Your Meals.

A perfect digestion is the secret of the buoyancy and vitality of a really healthy man. The state of your body and mind at the time of partaking of a meal are a big factor as to the ultimate good the food will do you. If physically and mentally tired always rest for at least ten minutes before eating. Bad temper is enough to give you indigestion, while cheerful company and interesting talk causes the muscles and juices of the stomach to work properly. It seems incredible that such ulterior forces should be of importance, but science will not be denied. Sooner than eat when not properly hungry, miss a meal. Never take food more than three times a day; use will soon accustom you to this habit. Take your meals in a well ventilated room.

Ehrlich and His Books.

Nobody ever dares disturb the systematic chaos of Professor Ehrlich's library. "Once he lent a man some books and received others in return.

One day, long afterward, Ehrlich's books came back with a note from his friend, saying he had married, moved and cleaned up his library. Ehrlich replied: "I congratulate you on your marriage and thank you for sending back my books, but if you think that because you have moved and got married I am going to clear up my library and find your books, you are very much mistaken."—"Men Around the Kaiser."

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Herald readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. What other remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit?

W. C. Witherell, W. Pottawatamie St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have had no reason to change my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I publicly expressed some years ago and I willingly confirm all I have previously said in their praise. I had acute pains across the small of my back and I and in my hips and often after stooping, a sharp twinge darted through my loins, obliging me to lie down. I was laid up in bed for several days and I believe that my trouble was caused by excessive stooping. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I obtained a supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and the contents of a few boxes restored me to good health. Since then whenever I have felt in need of a kidney medicine, I have taken this preparation and the results have been very pleasing."

Women Who Get Dizzy.

Every woman who is troubled with fainting and dizzy spells, backache, headache weakness, debility, constipation or kidney troubles should use Electric Bitters. They give relief when nothing else will, improve the health, adding strength and vigor from the first dose. Mrs. Laura Gaines, of Avoca, La., says: "Four doctors had given me up and my children and all my friends were looking for me to die, when my son insisted that I use Electric Bitters. I did so, and they have done me a world of good." Just try them. 50c and $1.00, at C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

Captured by an Orang.

There is an old story told of a native of Borneo who, with a party, went out to hunt an orang outang to sell to show men. This particular hunter got separated, and at the end of the day was still missing. A search was organized, and at the end of the second day he was found high up in a tree with an orang outang by his side. A rifle shot killed the big ape and then the man descended and told of his strange adventure. He had gone into the river to bathe, and as he came out was seized by the orang and carried to its lodging in a tree. To his surprise he was not otherwise molested. What the orang supposed him to be or what would have been the eventual outcome of this strange captivity no one knows, and the hunter willingly gave up the chance of finding out.

Postal Rates In 1830.

According to a table of the post offices in the United States as they were Oct. 1, 1830, the whole number of offices in the United States was 8,610. The rates of postage established by congress in 1825 were: On a single letter composed of one piece of paper for any distance not exceeding thirty miles 6 cents; over thirty miles and not exceeding eighty miles, 10 cents; over eighty miles and not exceeding 150, 12½ cents; over 150 miles and not exceeding 400, 18¾ cents; over 400 miles, 25 cents; a letter composed of two pieces was charged double these rates; of three pieces triple and four pieces quadruple these rates. For newspapers the rate was 1 cent for 100 miles and 1½ cents for over 100 miles.

Illicit Gold Buying.

Most people have heard of I. D. B. (illicit diamond buying), a crime which in South Africa is punished with penal servitude on the breakwater at Cape Town.

The Rand, however, has the lesser known offense of I. G. B. (illicit gold buying). Considering that in the Rand mines only a few pennyweights of gold go to a ton of quartz, it is obvious that the miner does not get much chance of stealing the precious metal. When does the gold thief get his opportunity? The pieces of quartz are ground into dust by powerful hammers known as "stamps." Water then washes the dust over inclined plates coated with amalgam. The gold instantly combines with the mercury in the amalgam, afterward being easily separated by chemical process.

It is of this gold laden amalgam that the dishonest employee will scrape off portions which, though small, will mount up to a good bit of gold in time—Pearson's Weekly.

Well Qualified.

The drapery magnate was bombarding the applicant with the usual questions.

"Speak French?"

"Yes."

"Good salesman?"

"Yes."

"Can you tell a good lie?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Well, I'll give you a start."

The young man got on famously for a few weeks, until one fine morning a dainty Parisian damsel approached him and sweetly stated her requirements in the native tongue. The poor young man was flabbergasted, not comprehending a single word. Five minutes later he was facing his indignant employer.

"This is scandalous, sir. When I employed you did you not tell me that you could speak French?"

"True," mildly replied the culprit; "but did you not also ask me if I could tell a good lie?"—London Tit-Bits.

Jenny Lind's California Debut.

At Monterey, Cal., formerly a part of Mexico and ceded to the United States during the Mexican war, is the first public building built in California and now a broken down, weather racked ruin of adobe. In this building Jenny Lind made her first California debut, and when the gold the enthusiastic miners had thrown upon the stage after her performance was gathered up it was found to fill two five-gallon oil cans—about twenty pounds of gold and equal in value to about $8,000. Another curious building is a police station which is built within the braces of an oil derrick and for unique buildings certainly establishes a record.—Health Magazine.

Wise Old Doctor.

Patient (abed and very sick)—But, doc, if physicians never agree on anything, what's the use of calling any two of them for this consultation you propose?

Old Family Doctor—I'll fix that all right. I'll just go out and get a couple of these young fellows running around in the same make of automobile. When you get 'em agreed on that they generally think alike in everything else. Take it from me, the three of us will find out what's the matter with you in about ten minutes.—St. Louis Republic.

A WOMAN'S GOOD LOOKS

Depend on her general health and freedom from pain. Many a woman looks old before her time because of those irregularities which are essentially feminine. Starting from early womanhood, she suffers from frequently recurring derangements that upset her womanly health. If she [illegible] be beautiful she grows into that mellow age without wrinkles and crowfeet about the eyes or the blue circles underneath. It is invariably the rule that such women suffer little, or not at all, from womanly derangements which sap the health and leave in the face the tell-tale story of pain and suffering. Dr. R. V. Pierce, the famous specialist in the diseases of women, found a prescription in his early practice that soothed the organism peculiar to womanhood—oiled the machinery, as it were, of the human system—and helped the woman to pass those painful periods that scar-line and aged her face. This remedy became the well-known Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that has benefited thousands of women and saved them from misery and suffering at different periods of life

MRS. PIERCE.

MRS. [illegible] PIERCE, of 241 [illegible] Street, Sarnia, Ont., writes: "I am now a well woman after suffering for three years and doctoring with several different doctors, [illegible] it was something different, and the last one after [illegible] through examination, said I was [illegible] from a [illegible], which, in time, would result in cancer, and said I would not live more than two years if not operated [illegible]. I became hopelessly discouraged but would not consent to the operation as I was too weak and too much afraid, but at last, through the advice of a friend, I tried Dr. Pierce's medicines, and after using two bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I immediately felt a change. I [illegible] used two boxes of 'Healing Suppositories' and eight boxes of 'Lotion Tablets,' and can safely praise the name of Dr. Pierce's medicines to all who suffer from any female disease, for these medicines are all they are claimed to be, and I hope will help others as they have helped me.

THE BAMBOO UMBRELLAS

An Incident In the Lives of Two Tourists

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The narrow, crooked streets of the walled native city blazed hotly under the direct rays of the sun. The little breeze that puffed over the pointed roofs merely swayed the hanging signs at the shop doors. Below, under the thin cotton awnings, it was stifling, and the air was heavy with the multifarious odors of a Chinese city.

In the shadow of the temple of the Ten Gods an umbrella vender squatted, exchanging doubtful compliments with a seller of sweetmeats who was resting in an opposite doorway. Save for these two the long, tunnel-like street was empty.

In the distance appeared two men, white skinned and clothed in snowy linen. Both were lean jawed American tourists, and one of them mopped his heated face and peered anxiously into the narrow windows of the little cell-like shops.

"If you're thinking of something to drink, Vaill, you're up against it," remarked one of the men testily.

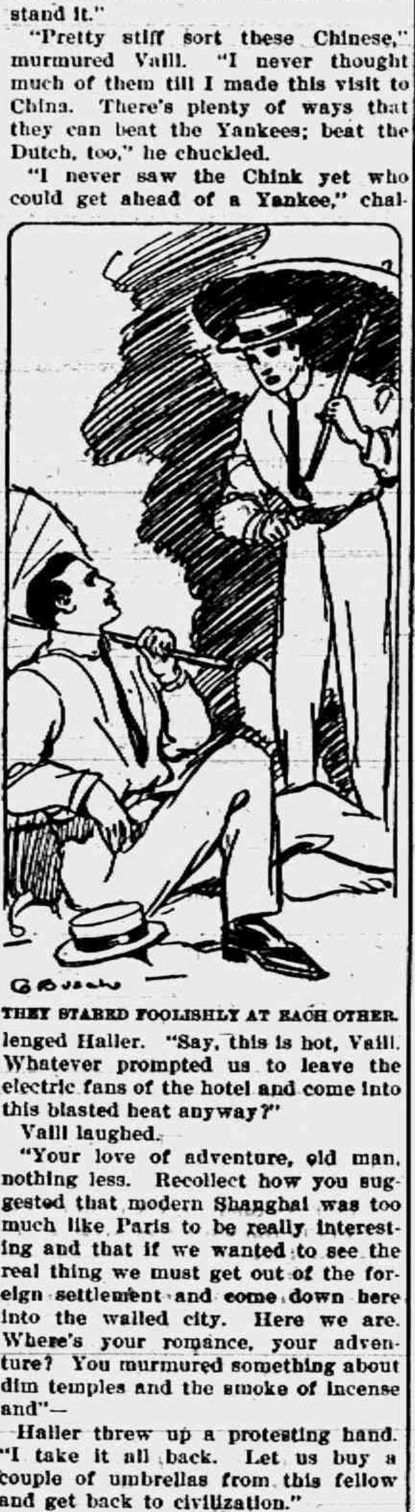
"Thought we might try some of the stuff they call 'tsew.' Fellows at the hotel said to be sure to get some if we came in here," explained Vaill.

Haller snorted scornfully.

"Guess the chaps at the hotel wanted to see us brought home on a stretcher," he growled. "I happen to know a man who drank some of the deadly stuff. Took him six months to get over it. No one but a Chinaman can stand it."

"Pretty stiff sort these Chinese," murmured Vaill. "I never thought much of them till I made this visit to China. There's plenty of ways that they can beat the Yankees; beat the Dutch, too," he chuckled.

"I never saw the Chink yet who could get ahead of a Yankee," challenged Haller. "Say, this is hot, Vaill. Whatever prompted us to leave the electric fans of the hotel and come into this blasted heat anyway?"



THEY STARED FOOLISHLY AT EACH OTHER.

Vaill laughed.

"Your love of adventure, old man, nothing less. Recollect how you suggested that modern Shanghai was too much like Paris to be really interesting and that if we wanted to see the real thing we must get out of the foreign settlement and come down here into the walled city. Here we are. Where's your romance, your adventure? You murmured something about dim temples and the smoke of incense and"—

Haller threw up a protesting hand. "I take it all back. Let us buy a couple of umbrellas from this fellow and get back to civilization."

"Done," agreed Vaill readily.

The vender of umbrellas straightened himself as the sound of European boots echoed on the pavement. He peered across at the seller of sweetmeats and said that two foreign devils were approaching and that he meant to sell them his finest umbrellas.

The seller of sweetmeats cracked a melon seed with his strong teeth and rearranged his basket of confections. There were hundreds of foreign devils in the settlements outside, but few of them ever strayed within these high walls into the noisome native city.

"Buy!" screeched the umbrella vender out of his small stock of English words picked up in the settlement.

"Buy!" echoed the seller of sweetmeats over the way.

The Americans looked at the umbrellas.

They were quick to choose from the assortment of gayly colored paper and printed silk sunshades a pair of handsome ones whose covering was a delicately woven network of fine bamboo threads. So closely was it woven that no lining was required to shut out the rays of the sun, and the covering was as soft and pliable as silk.

"How much?" asked Vaill.

The vender named a price far above the value of his entire stock in trade.

Vaill dropped the umbrella and turned away with a gesture of disgust. The umbrella man blocked his going by a swift movement.

Whereupon in a dolorous chant he gradually lowered the price of bamboo umbrellas until his customers were convinced that he was not charging more than double their actual worth; then they purchased.

As the Chinese thrust the money in his capacious sleeve, which did duty as money drawer or cash register, he shook his head sadly.

"I have been robbed," he mourned. "Much virtue here!" touching the bamboo umbrellas with a long nailed finger.

"Virtue, eh? How?" The imaginative Haller was instantly interested. When one buys umbrellas in crooked streets it is not unreasonable to hope for an adventure of some sort, even if the day is beastly hot and there is not a drop to drink short of the Astor House beyond the wall.

"Much virtue, much virtue," repeated the vender suggestively.

"Virtue? Tell us about it," insisted Haller, producing some copper cash that immediately disappeared into the voracious sleeve.

In spasmodic English, punctuated by shrill screeches to properly emphasize the interspersed Chinese words, the vender of umbrellas managed to convey the legend of the extraordinary nature of the bamboo umbrellas just purchased by the two Americans.

It appeared that the umbrellas had once belonged to a very learned physician, who, sitting beneath their shade, had in deep concentration of mind become possessed of the wisdom of all the past ages; consequently he became the wisest man in the entire world.

"Pshaw, the umbrellas have lost their virtue by this time!" laughed the skeptical Vaill.

But the narrator of the legend protested loudly and called upon the seller of sweetmeats to substantiate his statements. And this the latter did, swearing by his ancestral tablets and the grave of his great grandfather in so convincing a manner that the tourists tossed each of the rascals a dollar and grinningly entered the temple of the Ten Gods to put the story to a test.

The temple of the Ten Gods was supposed to offer the quiet and seclusion necessary to carrying out the scheme of concentration of mental forces, all of which was quite essential to attaining the wisdom of all the ages through the medium of the bamboo umbrellas. Thus had spoken the two Chinese.

Within the temple it was dim and dark and cool, and it smelled of dead incense smoke. The squatting idols in their shrines showed here and there a glimmer of gilt. There were no priests in attendance, and the tall prayer screens afforded a deep shadow where one who desired to meditate might hope to do so quite undisturbed.

"Of course it's all rubbish," remarked Vaill carelessly as he opened his umbrella and twirled it over his shoulder; "but, inasmuch as we are going to rest in here awhile and cool off, we might as well have a try for the wisdom end of the affair, eh?"

"Surely I shall try it," declared Haller solemnly. "As nearly as I can recollect, he said that he who meditates for three hours under one of these bamboo umbrellas will at the end of that time be possessed of all the wisdom of the ages. In other words, be the wisest man in the world."

"There will be a pair of us. We will have to divide the honors," laughed Vaill as he sat down on a pile of mats in the shadow of a prayer screen.

"Of course some of these oriental beliefs sound foolish," said Haller.

The air grew warmer as the day advanced, and finally the meditations of the tired tourists became merged in somnolence.

At last the rays of the declining sun pierced the carved screen in front of the doorway and awakened the sleepers.

They stared foolishly at each other, and with one accord each one reached for his timepiece to mark the hour.

Their pockets were empty.

An incredulous smile dawned on Vaill's face and faded. Slowly he arose and closed his bamboo umbrella with a sharp click.

"I've discovered the wisdom of the ages," he said dryly.

"Yes?" muttered Haller, his round face wearing a dazed, hurt expression. "What is it?"

"That we are fools. I recollect a Chinese proverb that says, 'He who discovers himself a fool, no man can tell him more; therefore he is a sage.'"

They stumbled out into the deserted street, and they knew that among the thousand mazes of the ancient city it was useless to search for the two thieves.

Silently they tramped toward the gate that gave upon the Bund, where were life and civilization.

When they reached a favorable spot on the river front, with one accord they flung the bamboo umbrellas far into the sluggish waters of the Hungpo.

And the long look they exchanged was an unspoken interchange of promises that the affair of the bamboo umbrellas was a closed incident.

Back in the walled city, on another crooked street, squatted the vender of umbrellas and the seller of sweetmeats. They were in high good humor, for each one was admiring his American gold watch. The seller of sweetmeats cracked melon seeds with his strong teeth and grinned as he listened to the words of the umbrella vender. Said the latter:

"'He who discovers himself a fool, no man can tell him more; it is the wisdom of the ages!'"

Then they both laughed heartily.

SHIP BURNS AT SEA

Scores of People Perish by Fire or Are Drowned.

LINER VOLTURNO DESTROYED

Explosion on Board Causes the Death of Forty Persons and Two Boat Loads of Passengers Are Missing and Probobly Lost—Only Wireless Details Received of the Disaster.

NEW YORK — The first definite news concerning the burning of the steamship Volturno in midoceon on Thursday, of the death by fire or drowning of 134 of her passengers and crew, and of the rescue on Friday morning by eleven steamships of 533 men, women and children, has been received.

The Rappahannock, one of the eleven ships that came up in time to assist in the perilous work of rescue, wirelessed to the Uranlam Steamship line the first list of names of persons saved. She is on her way to Halifax with fifteen women and four children.

Those on the Rappahannock are:

Feice Katske, Esther Katske, Maria Isenburg, Esther Lentetske, Bella Recensky, Mrs. Pollick, Mrs. Gaduckparasha, Nikoli Gaduckparshe, Mrs Maria Vikiszvck, Pedro Vikitszvck, a son; Dimitro Vikitszvck, a son; Katrina Vikitszvck, a daughter; Leckadi Wojcieck, Alexandria Kontkonsha, Esther Popplua, Privie Viks, Perri Vika, Edna Friedman and Bisy Laudin.

"Nine steamers at rescue. Weather rough. One hundred and twelve people missing. Approximately seventy or eighty perished. Report later.

"FURNESS."

The Furness, Withy and Company ship, reported that approximately seventy or eighty perished, but at the same time, reported 112 to be missing. On the other hand, Captain Barr of the Carmania places the number of rescued at 521, which would seem to mean that the loss of life is 130, including the two lifeboat loads of immigrants, who escaped being dashed against the Volturno's side on Thursday morning, but who, it is believed now, were soon after swallowed up in the terrific gale that was raging.

The wireless dispatch received from the Grosser Kurfuerst supplied with disappointing brevity some of the essential details. It told of a great explosion which killed forty of the crew and passengers, of the disappearance into the storm of two boat loads of passengers, with about 100 in them and of the number of survivors that had been taken on the various rescuing ships.

Panic was the first cause of the great loss of life, when the Volturno burned. Members of the crew and men of the steerage passengers pushed aside women, with babies in their arms, and sprang into the first boats. These boats were crushed against the ship's side and all in them perished. Captain Inch terrorized stokers with his revolver and finally cut the life boats tackle to prevent more boats being lowered.

A dispatch from the Grosser Kurfuerst, Cape Race Radio, says:

"Four Volturno boats smashed. Forty persons were drowned. Two boats with 100 souls are missing. Forty men were killed by the explosion. The Touraine has 42 survivors, the Narragansett 28, the New York 18, the Seydlitz 46, mostly women and children; the Devonian 60, the Kroonland 90, including Captain Inch, who is wounded, the chief engineer, two engineers and the two wireless operators; the Kurfuerstt 106, including officers and engineers; the Carmania 1, the Czar 92, including the doctor and the purser, the Minneapolis 31, and the Rappahannock 19."

BOY HORSE THIEF CAPTURED

Roy Kidd, Eleven, Owosso, Is Again Arrested.

OWOSSO, MICH. — Roy C. Kidd, eleven years old, is again entangled with the law.

This time his brother, Frank, eight years old, is with him, having learned the first lesson in lawlessness in a daring horse theft which incidently appears to be Roy Kidd's specialty—that and escaping jail.

It has been hardly a week since Roy confessed to stealing five bicycles. He was placed in the detention home, and almost before the attendant had his back turned was sliding down a sheet-rope ladder to the ground. It was twenty-four hours before he was captured and on the recommendation of the county agent was placed on probation.

STATE TO CURE SICK BABY

Met Hovat Will Have a New Chance In Life.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — Met Horvat, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horvat, of this city, is the first child in Calhoun county, perhaps in Michigan to come under the new state law which provides that poor children having curable maladies shall be cared for at the expense of the state at the university hospital at Ann Arbor.

The baby although only a years old, has a face shriveled like an old man's. He was sent to the hospital.

DOC. ASHTON PUTS ONE OVER ON VIOLA

Her $6,000 Goes Into Petition in Bankruptcy.

DETROIT, MICH. — Viola Schram will receive no heart balm from Dr. Frederick B. Ashton—not if the doctor knows it. Although awarded $6,000 in a breach of promise suit Jan. 9, 1912, Viola may never see a cent of the money, for Dr. Ashton filed a petition in bankruptcy.

Nor is this likely to be the final chapter of a romance which is alleged to have lasted ten years or more. Attorneys for Viola filed a petition with Circuit Judge George P. Codd asking a warrant for the arrest of Dr. Ashton as a fraudulent debtor. It is alleged that he did not give a satisfactory explanation of the disposal of $500 raised by a mortgage on his automobile and other chattels.

The liabilities are given in the bankruptcy petition at $6,649.75. The judgment and interest are $6,089.75.

Viola, who is thirty-eight years old, has been on the trail of Dr. Ashton, a prominent Highland Park physician, since Oct. 2, 1910, when she first started a suit for breach of promise to wed. He married Margaret Galley, May 24, 1910, and this precipitated the legal action. The suit attracted much attention on account of the nature of the testimony.

FIRE AT STRIKERS' PARADE

Bullets Pass Over Marchers' Heads But Causes Line to Halt.

CALUMET, MICH. — A parade of striking copper miners was fired on here as it was passing the Centennial mine.

No one was struck, the bullets passing over the head of the paraders. The shots were fired by one of an automobile party of four men. Mounted militia stopped the car and arrests followed.

The shooting took place while strikers from the Keeweenaw district were marching to attend a mass meeting at Calumet. The man who did the shooting stood up in the automobile to aim his weapon and the ranks of the strikers were broken up in confusion for some minutes.

The strikers were incensed by the attack. In speeches at the mass meeting Vice President C. E. Mahoney of the Western Federation of Miners, and others accused the companies of employing gunmen.

GRAND RAPIDS—As Miss Stacia Restecka lay dead of typhoid fever her sister and four other children played near her coffin. Within six hours the sister had died and the four children had been taken sick.

ATTORNEY IS SHOT AS RESULT OF JOKE

Thomas J. Mahon Believed Fatally Hurt by Policeman.

YPSILANTI, MICH. — As the result of a practical joke, Attorney Thomas J. Mahon, of Detroit, was shot here shortly before midnight by Patrolman August Rehil. The shooting took place in front of the First National bank building, and the bullet from the officer's revolver struck Mahon on the left side, close to his heart. He was carried into a pool room near by, where local physicians stopped the flow of blood and dressed his injuries. At 1 o'clock in the morning he was taken to the University of Michigan hospital, where his condition is said to be serious.

Attorney Mahon, in company with his brother, Frank and Attorney Ed Kennedy, of Detroit, motored from there Saturday evening. Shortly before the tragedy occurred, Mr. Kennedy is reported to have approached Rehil and "confidentially" told him there was a suspicious looking man across the street, who was a smooth crook and who, evidently was going to pull off something. The man referred to was Frank Mahon.

The policeman is said to have been in the joke. The officer approached Mahon and proceeded to ask him his business, where he lived and to give an account of himself. This led to a quarrel with Thomas Mahon and in the mix-up hat followed, Mahon was shot.

JOLIET — Being trapped inside a boiler which he was cleaning, C. H. Pope, colored, employed by the Joliet Rolling Mill company, was cooked to death when boiling water was turned into the boiler. Fellow workmen were scalded about the arms in trying to get him out.

RACINE, WIS. — A large, empty beer keg hurled from the second floor of the residence of Charles Hersch, following the celebration of the christening of a child, resulted in the killing of Henry Pacher, and the arrest of four men.

WABASH, IND. — William W. Jackson, a Montpelier (O.) section laborer, who was being rushed to a Peru hospital after having been struck by a Wabash train, was found dead in a baggage car here by a physician.

EVANSVILLE, IND. — In grief over the loss of his position, James Craig, a painter, thirty-five years old, attempted suicide by cutting his throat. He has five children. He probably will die.

467 MEN BELIEVED KILLED IN A MINE

Explosion Wrecks Big Colliery Near Cardiff, Wales.

CARDIFF, WALES—A most terrific explosion occurred at the Universal colliery near here, entombing 900 men. The shaft gearing was blown away, cutting off the escape of the miners and leaving them apparently in the gravest position.

Rescuers succeeded later in bringing 427 of the entombed miners to the surface alive. The bodies of six dead were also recovered.

It was Feared that the 467 men remaining in the mine were all dead. Rescuers worked frantically to get them, but they made little progress.

The rescuers were hampered by the presence of coal gas and frequent cave-ins.

Great crowds of frantic men and women—relatives of the dead and imprisoned—gathered at the entrance of the mine soon after the news of the disaster reached them.

The Sulzer Case.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Instead of at once proceeding toward a verdict the impeachment court unexpectedly halted to allow the lawyers to argue a question of great significance to both sides—testimony of Morganthau and Ryan.

There are times when God asks nothing of his children except silence and patience.—Robinson.

GAVE THE DOCTOR RELIEF

Good Samaritan Takes $40 Roll to Get Help and Flees.

REED CITY, MICH. — When Dr. Reuben Rath's automobile turned turtle after a front wheel had broken while he was returning from a hunting expedition, near Luther, he was pinned under the car and lay unconscious for several hours.

As he recovered consciousness a stranger drove up, tried to lift the machine, failed, helped himself to the doctor's "roll," $40, and drove on to get help with it, he said. Neither the stranger nor the $40 has been seen since.

Dr. Rath was released later slightly bruised.

Retains Accused Officer.

OWOSSO, MICH. — "A city policeman is not supposed to be a saint," said Mayor Brandel in explanation of his retention on the police force of Harvey Thomas, the officer whom Henry Lecuraux say cursed him roundly on the street because he had violated an ordinance by tying his horse on the wrong side of the road.

Cadet Life at West Point.

Briefly, at 3:45 p. m. the academic work is over for the day and drills for all classes occupy the hour from 4 to 5, followed by a dress parade at 5:25, excepting Wednesdays and Saturdays. This is the schedule from Sept. 1 to Nov. 1 and from March 15 to June. On Saturdays academic work ends at 12:30, and, with the exception of inspection at 1:50, the afternoon of the cadet is free until 6:25 supper call. His amusements are much like those of college students generally. Football is perhaps the most popular organized sport. Games are played on the West Point grounds with teams from many colleges, and the season closes with the annual army-navy game, when the West Pointers meet the midshipmen from Annapolis on Franklin field, Philadelphia. Basket ball follows during the winter months, many contests with teams from other schools occurring during the season, and then in the spring comes baseball of course.—Popular Mechanics.

Woman and Her Hat.

A woman cannot stick a hat on her head as you stick a stamp on a letter. There is an ingenious machine that sticks stamps on letters at the rate of several thousands an hour. But nobody has invented a machine for sticking hats on the heads of women.

A man can buy a hat in five minutes, but no woman would dream of buying a hat in less than an hour. Often a woman will acquire a splitting headache in the attempt to find one hat to suit her out of a hundred, and not seldom she carries away the headache without a hat on it.

The hat hunt is only a small part of the daily agony of shopping, and yet a man would rather cut his throat than engage in a hat hunt as a dispassionate spectator. Men prefer to hunt the fox or the stag, the tiger or the lion, the grizzly or the grouse. A tiger hunt is not nearly so perilous as a hat hunt.—London Opinion.

Profits in Waste Paper.

The sale of waste paper used to afford perquisites for government officials. When John McCulloch (of Dictionary of Commerce fame) was appointed comptroller of the stationery office in 1841, he discovered that the proceeds from the sale of government waste paper were divided among his subordinates, who thus more than doubled their official incomes. The new comptroller prohibited this practice on the ground that all moneys derived from such sales belonged to the exchequer. Some of the officials disregarded this prohibition and continued to sell waste paper and pocket the proceeds. When this came to the ears of McCulloch they were prosecuted for "systematic appropriation of public property." For many years past the stationery office has made over £10,000 a year from the sale of waste paper.—London Mail.

Painting Pictures on the Floor.

Albert Moore, the great artist whose works may be seen in the Tate and other public galleries, scorned the ordinary poses of the painter. He preferred his ease to an easel and painted all his great pictures, so dainty and charming, on the floor. His tubes of paint and his brushes and other accessories of his art were scattered about him, and he lay flat on his stomach, seldom remaining in one position five minutes at a time.

The celebrated painter of "Christ Leaving the Pretorium" and the illustrator of Milton and Dante, that strange genius, Gustave Dore, had the same habit. The floor was his easel whenever possible, and, as he was a stout, heavy man, he seldom rose to an upright position except for his meals, and not always then.—London Telegraph.

Edward Young's Tragedy.

In Garrick's time the church had a decided leaning toward the stage. The great actor suffered a plague of stage struck clergymen. He read many of their plays and produced at least one. The Rev. Edward Young of Welwyn parish and of "Night Thoughts" fame wrote a tragedy of "The Two Brothers," which Garrick produced. Its reception was a tragedy. It "was only fit to make an icehouse of a theater." Young, however, had counted his chickens. He had promised £1,000, the expected proceeds of his author's rights, to the Society For the Propagation of the Gospel. And here he shone. He dipped deeply into his private purse and made up the thousand.—London Chronicle.

Don't Worry.

"Don't worry" was the recipe for long life recently given by an aged physician who had preserved his youth.

"Good advice, but impractical," you say. But did you ever give it a real trial? A person can't stop worrying merely by saying, "Go to, now; I am not going to worry any more." The more he thinks about stopping the more impossible it is to stop.

There is a way, though. Don't consciously try to stop worrying, but get interested in something else.

If you have something to worry about and give yourself the opportunity you will do a lot of worrying. But if you keep busy you won't give worry a chance. When a great sorrow comes a person may simply abandon himself to it by letting his other interests lag. But by looking about for something to absorb his attention he can put himself in a wholesome frame of mind.

Worry can be fought the same way. —Kansas City Star.

John Bright and Queen Victoria.

In the "Life of John Bright" the author relates that the great man's first visit to Queen Victoria was an ordeal, but it passed off well. The incident was described in a letter from Lord Granville to Mr. Gladstone in which the writer says:

The beginning of dinner was awful—the queen with a sick headache and shy—Princess Louise whispering unintelligibly in my ear and Lady Clifden shouting ineffectually into the still more impenetrable receptacle of sound belonging to Charles Grey, Bright like a war horse champing his bit and dying to be at them. At last an allusion to children enabled me to tell Bright to repeat to her majesty his brother's observation, "Where, considering what charming things children were, all the queer old men came from." This amused the queen, and all went on merrily.

When Buzzards Are Helpless.

Some of nature's most active creatures show strange helplessness under certain conditions. Place a buzzard in a pen six or eight feet square entirely open at the top, and the bird will be as absolutely a prisoner as if it were hermetically sealed in the inclosure. This is because buzzards never begin a flight from the ground without starting on a run of three or four yards. If they cannot have that preliminary run they either cannot or will not attempt to fly, and so a buzzard will remain a prisoner for life in a jail with a wide open top.

So with the bumblebee. One of these lively insects dropped into a goblet or tumbler will remain there always unless taken out, because it never notices the means of escape at the top.—New York Sun.

Musical Epigrams.

Walter Damrosch, the noted musician, answered at a luncheon a toast on music. Mr. Damrosch was in good vein, and the following are by no means the best of the epigrams that illuminated his remarks:

"Some pianists play from note, some from ear and some from spite.

"A drinking song need not necessarily have a rest in every bar.

"Composers are musicians with memories."

Women and Love.

Women for the most part do not love us. They do not choose a man because they love him, but because it pleases them to be loved by him. They love love of all things in the world, but there are very few men whom they love personally.—Alphonse Kerr.

Suspicious.

Mother (after the wedding)—Well, our daughter and her husband are off at last. What is it that troubles you, John? Father—I don't quite like that young fellow's parting words. He didn't say "Goodby:" he said "Au revoir."—Boston Transcript.

Austria.

As the Austrian empire consists of a great variety of different races, speaking different languages, so is the area embraced within the Vienna consular district characterized by a great variety of speech, of customs and of industrial habits.

Stirring Up Trouble.

Mrs. Crawford—I was so glad to find her out when I called. Mrs. Crabshaw—I knew you didn't like each other, so I told her when you were going to call.—Judge.

The Prosperity Pose.

When you are down on your luck keep a stiff upper lip and a smiling countenance. Don't let the world know that you are down or everybody will want to give you an additional kick. Put on an air of prosperity; everybody will help to boost you upward. Men will want to hang on the coattails of your success in the hope of tearing a strip off for themselves.—Dramatic Mirror.

Keep the Air Fresh.

Nothing causes chills more than hot, stuffy rooms. We often hear people complaining that they took cold when they came out into the night air. Yet it was not the night air which did the mischief, but the poisonous atmosphere in the room itself, due to the accumulated exhalations of many lungs, etc. Had the apartment been well ventilated the so called chill would never have occurred.—From "Nervous Breakdowns."

Treading the Grapes.

In the wine region of Spain the method of treading the grapes is everywhere about the same. The grapes are well spread out in the press, and barefooted men or men wearing sandals or wooden soled shoes tread them.

Fifth, those who oppose every movement that does not originate with themselves.

Sixth, those who hate to see others make money.

Seventh, those who put on long faces when a stranger speaks of locating in their town.

Eighth, those who oppose every public enterprise which does not appear of personal benefit to themselves. —Devil's Pi.

Lick's Luck.

James Lick, the founder and endower of the great astronomical establishment in California, was born in very humble circumstances, we are told, at Fredericksburg, Pa., Aug. 25, 1796. Having made a small fortune of $20,000 or $40,000 by commerce with South America he invested it in San Francisco land while as yet the great city of the Golden Gate was but a strip of wind blown sand between the mighty Pacific and the now famous bay. The gold fever broke out in the spring of 1848, and the little cluster of wooden shacks became all at once a center of attraction to thousands from all over the world. The 600 inhabitants increased to hundreds of thousands; hotels, villas, places of business, rose like magic for mile after mile along the bay, and in the sudden phenomenal rise of the price of land James Lick found himself one of the rich men of the world. It was thus that he got the money for his large bequests to science.—New York Mail.

When Freedom Shrieked.

It is much to be feared that the great Pole, Kosciusko, is known to most Americans simply from the line in a famous poem, "And Freedom shrieked when Kosciusko fell."

One might suppose that the hero fell in battle. In fact, he died serenely in Switzerland at seventy-one after failing to maintain the independence of Poland. His fall was political and military, but not physical.

It should be remembered that the great Pole was the most distinguished engineer officer in the armies commanded by Washington; that he fought and labored long and well for the patriot cause. It was he who laid out the defenses at West Point which Benedict Arnold tried to betray to the British, and in a sense the Military academy is a monument to him, for he lived to see it started on its glorious career.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

That's Different.

"A man may adore every hair on his wife's head."

"Well?"

"But he regards those on her dresser with mixed emotions."—Pittsburgh Post.

WELCOME TO TECUMSEH MICHIGAN U. S A.

To welcome the family of John Hamilton to the United States of America and more especially to Tecumseh from their home in Ireland about 35 of their old country friends made them a surprise visit Monday evening. Mr. Hamilton has been in this country about a year and his wife and children joined him about a week ago.

The surprise was in the nature of a shower and the gifts were very timely in making up the equipment for the home, as the household goods had to be left behind

Congratulations and good wishes on the reunion of the family were given with a hearty cheer Refreshments were served during the evening. We join in wishing that they may be happy and contented in this country.

D. T. & I. TO BE BOUGHT BY THE BOND HOLDERS

It is claimed that the D. T & I. railroad is to be purchased by the bond holders committee Jan. 20, 1914. The purchasers will then endeavor to put the road in a condition where it can take care of its business.

George P Johnson of Detroit receiver has made this statement to Atty. Generals Hogan of Ohio. According to his letter the committee has agreed with Judge Tuttle of U. S. District Court of Michigan to bid in the road and advance enough money to make the necessary improvements.

If these promises are carried out the attorney general will take no action against the road at present.

Muffins.

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

When muffins are on the breakfast table, nobody cares for meat or eggs and they would be served more often if this meal were not prepared so hurriedly that there is no time to make them. If K C, the double-raise baking powder is used, the batter may be stirred up the night before, put in the pan ready for baking and nothing to do in the morning but bake them.

One-Egg Muffins

2 cups flour; 2 slightly rounded teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; 1 teaspoonful salt; ¼ cup sugar; ¼ cup melted butter or lard; 1 egg; 1 cup water or milk.

Sift dry ingredients together three times. Add to this the unbeaten egg, melted shortening and water or milk. Then beat all together until perfectly smooth. Oil muffin or gem pans and have oven slow until the muffins come to the top of the pan, then increase the heat to bake and brown the muffins. This recipe makes 12 large muffins. Raisins or currants may be added if desired.

Graham Muffins

1 cup graham flour; 1 cup pastry flour; 2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; 1 to 2 level tablespoonfuls sugar; ½ teaspoonful salt; 1 egg; 1¼ cups milk or water; 2 to 3 tablespoonfuls melted butter; mix and bake as One-Egg Muffins.

Graham batter should always be quite soft to insure light and moist muffins.

To get 88 other recipes as good as these, send us the certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder, and we will send you "The Cook's Book" by Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill. Handsomely illustrated. Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago.

The man who wrestles with the cow, and learns the calves to suck, who cast the corn before the swine, is now in greatest luck, for butter's on the upper grade, veal's higher than a kite, pork to is climbing up the scale and beef is out of sight, the eggs he gathers every day from his Poland chicken coop, are almost worth their weight in gold, and we are in the soup. His corn brings him a fancy price its using every day, and he racks all kinds of money, for a half a load of hay. The farmer's in the saddle, and when he come to town, the rest of us by right should go, way back and then sit down.—Devil's Pl.

Made Their Escape

Four Young Girls From St Joseph's Academy Adrian Came to Tecumseh Thursday Night.

TAKEN BACK BY THE SISTERS FRIDAY MORNING.

Four young girls ranging from 12 to 14 years of age and giving their names as Marjorie Martin, Josephine Brockway, Lena Trembley and Leona Mullroy were in town Thursday afternoon having made their escape from St. Joseph's Academy, Adrian They were enroute to Chicago where some of them claimed to have a home. One of them claimed to know Mrs. Mrs. Charles Deery, who took them to her home for the night. The sisters came for them by six o'clock this morning taking them back to the Academy.

BOOST TECUMSEH

At the special election held Tuesday for a new school building, 356 votes were cast, 223 against and 123 for the new building making a majority of 90 against the proposition and this after all the appeals that have been put forth.

Who is striving to boost Tecumseh? About the first question that is asked when a man talks of moving into another town is, "Do you have good schools, does your high school have all the modern advantages?" if not "I will have to go elsewhere as I have children to be educated," and so for lack of interest Tecumseh not only loses pupils for the high school but patrons for the business part of town, more taxpayers, more good citizens. To be sure, our taxes would be higher but who paid the taxes for the old building, for your education all these years and is it not fair that we should do our part for the rising generation, that they may receive an education that will fit them to be good citizens, well equipped to run the affairs of town and state.

Lost—by 90 votes, the school building that is so badly needed for the safety of our young people; for the better education of our pupils for the honor of Tecumseh. All about us every little village boasts a better school buildings, more modern equipments and Tecumseh is pointed to as too devoid of interest for the good of the community to sacrifice a little of their hoard to help build up our town.

MRS. N. L. BRYAN

Mrs. Newton L. Bryan passed away Thursday morning Oct. 16, 1913, aged 55 years.

For the past three weeks she has been in Ann Arbor, where she under went an operation. She was brought to her home Wednesday afternoon feeling most comfortable and happy to have returned so soon. She passed a peaceful night but with the awakening of a new day, she went to sleep With the eyes of faith one could see at the dawn of this beautiful October day, an invisible hand waving a signal, and hear a gentle voice whispering "Come up higher" After a busy useful life she died as she had lived honored and loved by all.

A host of friends will mourn her loss, for to know her was to love her. She ran the journey of her life quickly, and her path was marked with deeds of kindness and cheer, she scattered flowers and sunshine every where. The funeral will be held at the home Saturday at 1:30 with burial in Brookside Cemetery

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

CHICAGO — Four persons who met Miss Ida G. Leegson, teacher and art pupil of Lorado Taft, as she was led across the prairies to her death near Argo have described the negro who was her guide Saturday evening and his arrest was believed near. Part of the jewels which were torn from Miss Leegson after she was strangled were found in a pawnshop at 3020 South State street and Pawnbroker Nierman gave a detailed description of the man who pawned the jewelry—a description tallying in every detail to that given of the negro who enticed Miss Leegson to her death.

FORTVILLE, IND. — Sherman H. Chappell, sixteen years old, was instantly killed and Tom Faffett, fifteen years old; Homer Camp, sixteen years old, and Fred Whetsel, seriously hurt shortly after midnight when an auto skidded, struck a steel culvert and went down an embankment three-fourths of a mile north of McCordsville.

JEFFERSON, WIS. — Lorenzo W. Bronpe of Chicago, who resigned as vice president of the South Side Savings bank in Chicago two months ago because of ill-health, was drowned in shallow water when his duck boat overturned while he was on a shooting expedition at Rome lake, in the northern part of this county.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Herald readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. What other remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit?

W. C. Witherell, W. Pottawatamie St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have had no reason to change my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I publicly expressed some years ago and I willingly confirm all I have previously said in their praise. I had acute pains across the small of my back and I and in my hips and often after stooping, a sharp twinge darted through my loins, obliging me to lie down. I was laid in bed for several days and I believe that my trouble was caused by excessive stooping. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills, I obtained a supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and the contents of a few boxes restored me to good health. Since then, whenever I have felt in need of a kidney medicine, I have taken this preparation and the results have been very pleasing."

BARON ALVERSTONE

Who Has Resigned His Position As Lord Chief Justice.

LONDON, ENG.—Confirmation of the resignation of Baron Alverstone of the lord chief justiceship has been given out.

The choice of his successor seems to lie between Sir Rufus Isaacs, the attorney general, and Sir Samuel Evans, president of the probate, divorce and admiralty courts. The opinion prevails in official circles that Sir Rufus will be appointed.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Eddie Heydon, former catcher for the local American association baseball club and later with the Washington American league club, died at his home of curvature of the spine, which resulted from injuries received on the diamond.

NEW YORK — The Philadelphia Athletics of the American league won the world's championship pennant, winning four out of five games from the New York National league club.

Why Women Are Not RICH.

Man is a millionaire many times over in the possession of blood cells. Woman is not quite so rich, for scientists have proven that the normal man has five million—the woman only four and a half million to a cubic millimetre of blood.

A decrease in number of red blood corpuscles and a person "looks pale"—in fact, is anaemic, the blood does not get the right food and probably the stomach is disordered.

Dr. R. V. Pierce found years ago that a glyceric extract of golden seal and Oregon grape roots, queen's root and bloodroot with black cherrybark, would help the assimilation of the food in the stomach, correct liver ills and in Nature's own way increase the red blood corpuscles. This medicine he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By assimilating the food eaten the system is nourished and the blood takes on a rich red color. Nervousness is only "the cry of the starved nerves for food," and when the nerves are fed on rich red blood the person looses those irritable feelings, sleeps well at night and is refreshed in the morning.

J. D. LIVELY, Esq.

"I was attacked with a severe nervous disease, which was caused by a disordered stomach and liver," writes MR. JAS. D. LIVELY, of Washburn, Tenn., Route 2, Box 33. "All my friends thought I would die and the best physicians gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and derived much benefit from same. My case had run so long it had become so chronic that nothing would effect a permanent cure, but Dr. Pierce's medicine has done much for me and I highly recommend it. I heartily advise its use as a spring tonic, and further advise ailing people to take Dr. Pierce's medicines before their diseases have run so long that there is no chance to be cured.

BOY RESENTS WIFE'S ABUSE

Ten-Year-Ald Youngstetr Shoots Man Abusing Spouse.

SAGINAW, MICH. — Becoming inspired with the spirit of a hero, ten-year-old Albert Campbell, residing in Spaulding township, shot and seriously wounded Albert Cheney, sixty-one years old.

Young Campbell is in the county jail, and Cheney is in St. Mary's hospital. Bird shot from an old double-barrel shotgun took effect in Cheney's right leg, necessitating amputation.

According to the sheriff, Mr. Campbell had a row with his wife, who is twenty-four years old. The young wife ran to the Campbell home, remaining their over night. In the morning Cheney went for his wife, and practically forced her to return with him.

Young Campbell returned to his home, loaded the gun and went to the Cheney home where he shot the aged husband.

The Gates of Paradise.

Once in a year and at one place in the world, there is a crush that surpasses anything else of its kind in the world. It is the great fair of Bawa Farid, which is annually held in the town of Pak Pattan, in British India. It is held in honor of the famous St. Farid ud Din, surnamed Shakar Ganj, or sugar store, from the fact that his body had become so pure by continual fasting that whatever was put into his mouth, even earth and stones, was instantly changed into sugar. The principal ceremony consists of passing through an opening made in a wall adjoining the shrine measuring 5 by 2½ feet and always fervently called "the gates of paradise." Whoever between noon and night is able to pass through this opening is assured of paradise, and when there are 50,000 striving to pass through at the same time the crush is something terrific. Women faint, bones are broken, and the heat is stifling.

No Team Work in France.

The French nation is a mass of individual particles, scintillating, assertive—strangers to all the ethics of cohesion. They are incapable of team work, writes Samuel P. Orth in the Atlantic. You never read of French football or baseball or organized sports. They are a nation of individualists, brilliant individualists. Their philosophy, poetry, art, music, science, literature, all bear the imprint of a superindividualism that has filled the world with its radiance. They defy every known law of human gravitation and fly off in a million fragments, careless of results. In truth, they never think of results. They have the child's love for the doing and the child's scorn for the thing done. They begin more processes, inventions, contrivances, experiments, and end fewer than all the rest of Europe put together. The French propose; the Germans and the English dispose.

Magnetized by Booth.

The late Bishop Potter of the Episcopal church and Edwin Booth, the actor, were very great friends, and the bishop, in telling of his first meeting with Mr. Booth, said: "I was preaching a sermon at Newport, R. I., and it was a very hot summer's day. The door of the church was open, and I noticed a gentleman get up from a rear pew and go and sit down on the doorstep, but thought nothing of it until after awhile I realized that I was talking to this man only. When the services were over I found out that he was Edwin Booth—that I by some unknown influence had been drawn to speak to him—as if my sermon was to him alone."

ADOLPHE PEGOUD

Who Continues to Amaze World by His Daring Stunts in the Air.

PARIS — Adolphe Pegoud, the inventor of fantastic aerial somersaults, caused thousands of persons to hold their breath in amazement at Buc by looping the loop ten times at an altitude of 1,500 feet, and then dropping head downward for a distance of 2,000 feet.

GENERAL NEWS.

GRAWFORDSVILLE, IND. — Mrs. Lucinda McMullin, of New Market, Ind., a real daughter of the revolution, was the honored guest at the meeting of the Indiana D. A. R. conference. The routine of business was laid aside when Mrs. McMillin was almost carried to the platform. A special tribute was paid to Mrs. McMullin when the members rose to their feet and applauded for several minutes. Although more than eighty-nine years old, she spoke for about three minutes in a voice perfectly audible in all parts of the room. She said: "I am a real daughter, my father, John Hardee, having served in the war."

WASHINGTON — Representative Hobson launched a hot attack against the senatorial campaign of Oscar Underwood, Democratic leader, in the house when he charged that his support of Underwood's presidential candidacy at the Baltimore convention was obtained under "false pretenses." Hobson, himself a candidate in the Alabama contest, referred to printed reports of a recent speech in which he charged that Mr. Underwood was "the tool of Wall street and the liquor interests."

NEW YORK—The New York police have checked up the confessions, made by seven of the gang of bomb throwers, who were arrested Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and are now in a position to accuse the gang of sixty-eight bomb setting jobs. There are plenty of other crimes charged against the prisoners, such as extortion, burglary, felonious assault, arson, and the federal authorities suspect them of counterfeiting.

MELUN — The report that the Princess Sophia of Saxe-Weimar, who committed suicide at Heidelberg palace, owing to an unfortunate love affair, was in France last month with Baron Von Bleichroeder, the man she was forbidden to meet, was confirmed at the hearing of the charge against an English chauffeur. Walter Palmer, who was driving an automobile which killed a little gypsy girl, in the forest at Fontainbleau Sept. 1.

PARIS—The cordial relations between the French government and the Vatican may soon be restored, according to an article published in a newspaper here. A sensation was caused by the report, which has it that the government is disposed to open negotiations "for the restoration of peace between Pope Pius X and the government.

GREENCASTLE, IND.—Miss Grace Morrison Everett, the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Everett, of Terre Haute, a DePauw university student, was awakened early in the morning, forced to leave her bed, unlock her trunk and give a robber $10, the only money she had. The man also attacked her, but she beat him off.

MEXICO CITY, MEX.—Private dispatches received here tend to confirm rumors of a great massacre of Spaniards by the rebels after the capture of Torreon. The advices are that there was a slaughter of 175 Spaniards in the city. The dispatches come from Madera, midway between Torreon and Saltillo.

AN IMPERATIVE DUTY.

The beginning of manhood is to keep one's will acting freely and vigorously, to protect one's intellect from the false coloring which comes from emotion and feeling, to assert oneself in the face of the passions and influences that assail the stability of a man's integrity and independence. This is never an easy thing to do, but it is always an imperative thing, something which no man can leave undone and be a man in the full sense of the word.

Bad Judgment.

"There is one discordant note in your garden, my dear madam," remarked the aesthetic landscape architect.

"What is that?" asked the lady, much alarmed.

"I notice," he replied, with a shudder, "that you have a dogwood planted near some pussy willows."—Philadelphia Ledger.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

JACKSON—Being made very desperate by his tormentors C. H. Wylie, fifty-eight years old, a Michigan Central crossing tender, shot and instantly killed Thomas Campion, thirty-two years old. Campion has repeatedly tormented the old man. He, in company with other men, have made life miserable for the crossing tender, it is alleged. Several men who had vexed him while he was on the Elm avenue crossing followed him to the new job which he was given upon complaining to the company. Wylie obtained permission to carry a revolver to protect himself. Campion, it is said, with other men abused the aged man. Wylie unlocked the door to the shanty and started toward the Junction office with the intention, he says, of quitting. Campion followed him and Wylie drew his revolver and warned him to leave him alone. Campion continued to advance and Wylie fired one shot. Campion fell dead, the bullet penetrating his heart.

DETROIT — Constant business worries and ill health combined to make the life of Ignatz A. Freund, prominent Detroit business man and president of the poor commission, less attractive to him than death, and he shot himself at his home here. Little more than a block away from the Freund home, on the same street, George J. Wahl, thirty-five years old, manager of the Wahl Auto company, was found dead in a garage at the rear of his home a few hours earlier. A bottle that had contained carbolic acid, which lay beside him, told the manner in which he had sought death. He had been dead for several hours when found.

LANSING — The official statistics compiled by the industrial accident board show that 1,766 accidents have occurred among the miners of Michigan since January 1, while compensation amounting to $71,680 has been paid out by the mine operators. In the copper mines of Michigan where 18,256 men were employed, 895 accidents occurred. The iron industry which gives employment to 15,939 men has reported 817 accidents this year, while in the coal mines where 2,971 men are employed only 54 accidents occurred. The Calumet & Hecla Mining company has reported 388 accidents and has paid $15,008.56 in compensation since January 1.

DETROIT—Despite the well known fact that John D. Rockefeller is only a few miles away, in Cleveland, and Standard Oil company officials have acknowledged through a Detroit paper that they sold the City of Detroit "short measure" in road oil, Police Justice Matthew Gainey issued a warrant charging E. C. Conkling, resident manager of the Standard Oil company, with selling oil in falsely marked containers, and the state dairy and food department will prosecute the case.

SAULT STE. MARIE — Warrants have been issued at the request of Charles E. Benson, special deputy in the United States Indian service, for the arrest of thirty bartenders. The charge in each case was the sale of liquor to Indians. John Driver, an Indian, procured the necessary evidence. The movement originated in the department of interior and is part of a general one to prohibit the sale of liquor to Indians.

PONTIAC—Forty or fifty stockholders of the Mexican Lumber and Stock company, one of the Jossman ventures, have decided to raise $20,000 to meet the defalcations of the banker. His resignation as secretary of the company was accepted. Manley Davis was chosen to succeed him. Future meetings of the company will be held at the office of Mr. Davis in Detroit.

GRAND RAPIDS—The mysterious disappearance of James F. Brigton, of this city, for whom Ottawa county officers are dragging Grand river near Spring lake may soon be explained. An anonymous letter, local authorities say was received at the Brighton home last week. Brighton then dropped out of sight. Kent county officials scout the drowning accident theory.

BATTLE CREEK—The city police were notified that Lewis Wesley, colored, brought here from Omaha, Neb., with a bullet hole in his cheek and another through his heart, shot himself after being shot by the police while he was attempting a burglary. When his body was sent here the death certificate said homicide in one place and suicide in another.

JACKSON — Running suddenly in front of an automobile driven by C. M. Nielson, Robert Davey, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davey, was knocked to the pavement and so badly injured that he will probably die. The accident occurred in front of the Davey home.

CALUMET — James Pollack, a deputy county sheriff, was killed by copper mine strikers at the Isle Royale mine near Houghton. He was shot in the back of the head and attacked with clubs by a party of ten men and died an hour later.

Musical.

It was at a musicale given in an old fashioned country house, and the soprano was screeching her loudest.

"The room is cold," complained one of the guests, "and I would like to stir the fire in the grate, but I don't know how to do it without interrupting the music."

"That's easy," suggested his companion; "stir it between the bars."

WILL RESORT TO HUNGER STRIKE

Mrs. Pankhurst Makes Threat in Case of Deportation.

CASE TO BE ACTED ON TO-DAY

Militant Leader Says She Will Start Strike at Once if Order for Deportation Is Issued—Thinks She Would Die from Effect—French Ship May Take Her.

New York, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant leader who upon her arrival here on La Provence Saturday morning was sent to Ellis Island and ordered deported because her convictions in England involve "moral turpitude," has let it be known that in case the decision on her case at Washington expected to be made is against her, she will immediately begin a hunger strike.

In her present condition, she said in answer to a question, she believes she could not survive a hunger strike longer than twenty-four hours. She is quite resigned to starve to death if that be necessary, according to her own statement.

"But suppose the immigration authorities," Mrs. Pankhurst was asked, "do what it is said they will do if you go on a hunger strike—place you aboard a ship of the French line immediately?"

"Then they will carry me to my death," the militant leader answered. "After five hunger strikes since the first of the year, my stomach is in so bad a condition that I don't think I could survive the trip. I was so deathly seasick, and seasick for the first time in my life, too, on my way here from Havre last week that it was necessary to have me moved into one of the officers cabins which was kindly vacated for me because of my illness. The ship's surgeon gave me especial attention, even to seeing to it that I had much fresh air on the deck to revive me."

At Washington, where an informal discussion of Mrs. Pankhurst's detention was gone into between Commissioner General of Immigration Caminetti on the one side and Lawyers Herbert Reeves and Frank S. O'Neil of New York, for the militant, on the other, announcement was made early that no official action would be taken on the case until the next day.

STRINGER MAY BE CHOICE

Many of President's Friends Favor Lincoln Man for Senator.

Washington, Oct. 20.—It was learned on good authority that when Mayor Harrison reaches Washington he will consult with President Wilson on the senatorial situation in Illinois. The mayor will inform the president that he is not a candidate for the senate unless Roger Sullivan actively seeks the nomination. He will make it plain to President Wilson, however, that if Sullivan enters the race, or if his friends place his name on the Democratic primary ballot, he will become a candidate against him. If Sullivan stays out, Mayor Harrison will stay out.

Many think the president will be friendly to Representative Stringer, because the latter was one of those who worked hardest for him in Illinois before and after the convention. It is known that certain officials high in the administration have offered their services to Mr. Stringer, when he starts his campaign. Although the downstate anti-Sullivan men will unite behind Stringer, in all likelihood, the congressman refuses to commit himself now as to whether he is Sullivan or anti-Sullivan. He is going to be a candidate no matter who enters the race against him.

WIRELESS AT PIKE'S PEAK

Secretary Lane May Select It as Location for Station.

Colorado Springs, Oct. 20.—Pike's peak probably will be chosen by Secretary Lane as the location for a government wireless station to be used by the weather bureau in a transcontinental chain of similar stations.

When Mr. Lane was here a few weeks ago, he made a trip to the peak and collected data as to what had been done here in the past by the war department and by government weather bureau men, who for a time operated a kite flying station to get information as to the upper air strata.

WOMEN BALK JAIL DELIVERY

While Sheriff Is Away Prisoners Nearly Reach Freedom.

Princeton, Ill., Oct. 20.—A daring attempt at jail breaking was discovered by two daughters of Sheriff Beyer, and the women, at the point of revolvers, forced the prisoners back into the cell room and prevented their escape. Abraham Flathut, of Spring Valley, was the man who planned and nearly succeeded in a sensational escape from the county jail.

The sheriff and his deputies were absent from the jail.

TWELVE KILLED, FIFTY ARE HURT

Troop Train Crushes Through Trestle Near Mobile, Ala.

TRAIN CREW ALSO VICTIMS

Picked Members of U. S. Coach Artillery Crushed on Way to Drill at Alabama-Mississippi State Fair—Names of Dead Difficult to Obtain—No Officers Hurt.

Mobile, Oct. 20.—The worst wreck that has occurred near Mobile in many years happened at 2:40 o'clock in the afternoon when a special train on the Mobile and Ohio, running as second section of Northbound No. 4, carrying 175 enlisted men from the One Hundred and Ninety-ninth companies, and Thirty-seventh companies, coast artillery companies, stationed at Fort Morgan, and four officers went into a deep ravine off a trestle three miles and a half from Bucatunna, Miss., and seventy miles from Mobile, sent twelve enlisted men to death and injured between forty and fifty, including several of the train crew. The only names obtainable up to this time on account of the remoteness of the scene from a telegraph station is as follows:

Dead: Corporal M. Kohler.

Injured: Harvey E. Jones, passenger agent in charge of movement, hurt about lower part of body; S. R. Pruitt, conductor of the train, jawbone broken.

The soldiers were en route to Meridian, Miss., to give an exhibition at the Alabama-Mississippi state fair. None of the officers in the train are hurt.

A telegram sent to Major Burgess, in command of Fort Morgan, states that several bodies are pinioned under the wrecked cars and that the wrecking crews with the aid of the soldiers who escaped unhurt are making desperate efforts to get them out.

Wreck Is at Holdup Scene.

The scene of the wreck is at the same spot where in 1889 Rube Burrows, a noted outlaw, held up and robbed a Mobile and Ohio train of several thousand dollars, stopping the express car on the same trestle from which the troop train toppled.

Special trains bearing physicians and nurses were sen out of Mobile and Meridian and they reached the scene of the disaster at 7 o'clock and the work of rescuing the injured from the wreck was done by the aid of lanterns and bonfires.

The injured were placed in the special trains and some of them brought to Mobile and others were taken to Meridian.

Most of these killed were crushed and maimed by the coaches falling on them.

Names of Dead Unobtainable.

The other officers on the train with men besides Captain Taylor, were Captain Greer, Lieutenant Barlow and Smith. The full list of injured and names of the dead will not be obtainable until the special train returns to Mobile.

VOLTURNO SURVIVORS UNITE

Relatives Separated in Midocean Find Each Other in Port.

New York, Oct. 20.—The work of reuniting the families rescued from the burning ship Volturno began when eleven women and children arrived on the steamer Florizel from Halifax, where they had been taken by the Rappahannock.

Survivors who reached Philadelphia on the Seylidtz also arrived to join relatives brought here by the Kroonland Grosser Kurfuerst.

ORGANIZED BALL IS SUPPLIED FOR WAR

Chest of Major Leagues Contains Over $2,500,000.

New York, Oct. 20.—While organized baseball men say they take no stock in the Federal league's threat to declare war upon them, they are ready for battle. For ten years the major league clubs have been turning over ten per cent of their receipts to the league treasuries until, it is said, there is more than $2,500,000 on hand for meeting any outlaw opposition. The National commission has managed nine world's series of which ten per cent of the gross receipts has netted about $190,000. Of this sum nearly $100,000 has been set aside for just such an emergency as the Federal league threatens to bring about.

While the ball players fraternity as a body has assured the organized leagues that there will be no affiliation with the Federals, the National and American league men are prepared to go the limit in keeping headstrong players away from the so-called outlaw.

THE WILSON APPLE IS HERE

New Jersey Farmer Has Originated a New and Tart Species.

Montville, N. J., Oct. 20.—A large gold and crimson apple, pleasing to the eye, but of tart flavor, has been originated by John W. Van Wynt, a farmer here. He has called the new species the Wilson apple, in honor of the president.

The Wilson apple tree came from a stray seed in an unused corner of the farm. It was so thrifty when discovered that it was allowed to grow without grafting. The first fruit was gathered a few days ago and proved to be different from any thing known hereabouts. A sample of the fruit will be sent to Mrs. Wilson to try in pies.

ONE KILLED; SIX ARE HURT

Touring Car Crushes Into Curb and Turns Over on Occupants.

Erie, Pa., Oct. 20.—One young woman was fatally injured and six other persons were seriously hurt when a large touring car crashed into the curb at Sixth and Poplar street and turned over pinning the occupants under it.

The dead: Miss Minnie Ethridge aged twenty-four. The injured: Alfred Matson, Mrs. Matson, James Matson, aged three; Samuel H. Bright, Mrs. Bright and Oscar Johnson.

Demented Man Fires on Bishop.

St. Johns, N. F., Oct. 20.—While celebrating mass at Cass Harbor, Grace, Bishop Marsh was fired upon twice and slightly wounded by James Hare, one of the congregation. He is believed to be demented.

Loses Foot Under Wheels.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 20.—In attempting to climb over some cars in the Monon railroad yards here, William Fowler lost his right foot beneath the wheels.

THINKS FRATERNITIES EVIL

Acting President of Cornell Thinks Influence Bad on Scholarship.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 20.—That fraternities have a bad influence on the scholarship of their members, is the statement made by Thomas P. Crane, acting president of Cornell university last year, to the board of trustees in his annual report.

Professor Crane urges that the regulations and control exercised over fraternities and clubs at the university of Michigan and the University of Wisconsin be carefully studied by Cornell and hints that it is time that the university exercised greater control over fraternity life.

FELIX DIAZ ON WAY TO MEXICO

Disregards Huerta's Order to Proceed to Japan.

BONILLA CHARGES MURDER

Senator and Former Member of Madero Cabinet Says Dictator Imprisoned Congress to Prevent His Murder of Dominguez from Becoming Public—Eight Slain, He Says.

Havana, Oct. 20.—The steamship Corcovado with General Felix Diaz and party aboard did not get away at midnight as was expected but sailed at 11 o'clock the next morning for Vera Cruz. The members of the special mission to Japan, of which General Diaz was the head, disregarded the orders from President Huerta that they should return to Paris and accompany Senor De la Barra, who has been appointed to succeed General Diaz as chairman of the delegation to Japan. They remained aboard the Corcovado and sailed with General Diaz for Vera Cruz.

Says Dominguez Has Been Murdered.

Among the passengers who arrived here on board the steamship Kron Prinzessin Cecilie was Manuel Bonilla, who was a member of the late President Madero's cabinet and who has since that time been a senator. In an interview Senor Bonilla said President Huerta had dissolved the Mexican congress ostensibly because it was infringing on the powers of the executive. This was merely a subterfuge, the real motive being his fear that the congress would force an investigation into the disappearance of Senator Dominguez, who, according to Senor Bonilla, had been murdered by Huerta.

After Maderistas.

Senor Bonilla says that since the dissolution of congress, President Huerta has been seeking Maderista senators of which he (Bonilla) is one, for the purpose of throwing them into jail and probably murdering them. Senor Bonilla says that he remained in hiding until the steamer was about to sail when he embarked in disguise and under an assumed name.

Senor Bonilla declares that President Huerta has killed eight Maderistas deputies.

Other passengers on the Kron Prinzessin Cecilie confirmed the assertion of Senor Bonilla that the Mexican army officers are disaffected and that they are sure to join General Felix Diaz as against President Huerta.

TAXI DRIVERS MAY STRIKE

Want Bigger Per Cent of Fees and Gasoline Free.

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—Twelve hundred taxicab drivers of this city will go on strike, according to officers of the taxicab operators union, unless their demands for an increase in pay is granted. The grievances of the chauffeurs will be discussed between representatives of the various taxicab companies and officers of the union.

Among the demands asked by the chauffeurs is an increase of their present pay which is twenty cents on every dollar collected in fares and also that the company should furnish the gasoline.

How It Was Answered

The Prayer of a Lonely Woman

By LILLIAN WARTZ

Mrs. Tompkins rocking in the shade of her vine wreathed porch, peered down the short length of the street.

"An automobile in front of Pikes'," she murmured bitterly. "I expect it's her brother-in-law from Marlin. He's in the business. I declare it ain't right, it ain't fair!" Her black eyes snapped angrily as she drew back and plied her crochet needle.

"Honk, honk!" sounded defiantly, and a small motorcar turned into Willow street and stopped in front of Mrs. Tompkins' house.

She arose, and an expectant light came into her eyes. Was it possible that she was to have "automobile company" at last? Thus far she was the only resident on the street who could not boast an acquaintance who owned a motorcar.

As she reached the head of the steps a becapped and begoggled head was thrust from under the top, and a man asked quickly:

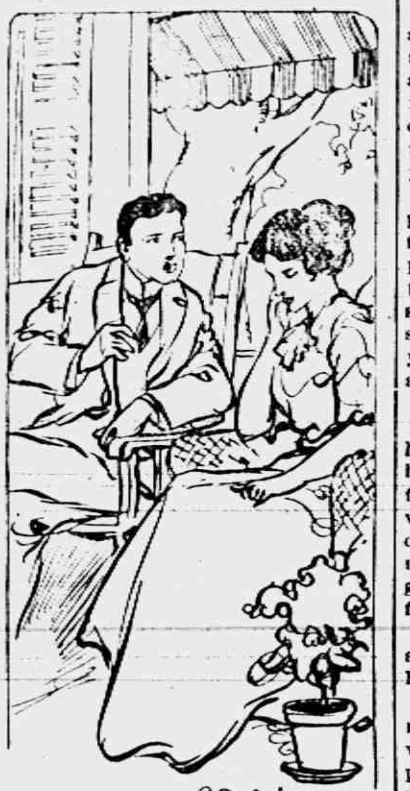
"Does Mrs. Mills live here?"

Amelia Tompkins drew herself up stiffly.

"Next house," she said grimly, and a dull flush reddened her cheeks as she went back to her chair.

"You might have known it was for me," tossed Susie Mills across the space that separated the two houses as she came around from the side door to greet her visitor.

Amelia Tompkins made no reply as she rolled up a length of crocheted lace and tucked it in her workbasket. Her lips were set grimly as she gathered up workbasket and the weekly newspaper and went into the house, carefully latching the screen door behind her.



HE WAS LEANING EAGERLY FORWARD NOW.

Her movements were very deliberate. She went through the house and set the teakettle on the stove; then she went upstairs to her bedroom and locked the door. After that she knelt down beside her bed and prayed with real anguish of soul.

Her neighbors in Willow street might have been horrified if they had heard the prayer of Amelia Tompkins. Undoubtedly they would have called her worldly, for she prayed earnestly that the Lord would send her "automobile company."

There were six houses in Willow street, and the only house that knew no automobile company was the white cottage of Amelia Tompkins. It stood at the end of the little blind street and faced all the others, three on a side.

Not one of Amelia's kind hearted neighbors realized how the lonely widow longed for the flash of big lamps before her gate on a summer evening and the gay summons of a motor horn. So many times had she run to door or window at the sound only to see the much desired vehicle pause at the gate of one or another of her more fortunate neighbors. She was glad when night closed down and she could retire to her room, undisturbed by honkings or brilliant flashes of lanterns.

One might say that Amelia Tompkins was foolish, but who can blame her? She was one of a small community. Willow street was a little settlement by itself. Everybody owned his own home, and all attended the same church. Beyond Willow street the city went its own way. To the Widow Tompkins Willow street was life.

And life was very dull without automobile company.

One morning she stood on the front porch watering her hanging baskets. Amelia was fond of flowers, and her little place was a perfect bower of beauty.

"You're looking kinder peaked, Amelia," called Susie Mills, whipping around the corner of the house, very trig in her green veil and brown duster. "What you need is a good spin into the country."

Amelia's pale cheeks flushed, and she looked really pretty. She had a certain plump prettiness that had been much admired when she was a girl. Since her husband had died Amelia had clung tenaciously to black and white gowns, which were not at all becoming. Wearing the right sort of clothes Amelia would have regained much of her youthful prettiness. She was lonely, and she was sad, and she seldom found cause to smile, which is very sad when one is only forty-five and a comely widow.

"A little spin in the country is what you need, Amelia," repeated Susie, hanging over the gate expectantly.

"I s'pose that's what you're going to take," said Amelia, with what grace she could muster.

"Oh, yes! Fred's going over to Winslow and said he would take me along."

"In the yeast wagon?" flew off the end of Amelia's tongue.

Mrs. Mills turned sharply.

"Yeast automobile is better than walking," she said loftily.

Amelia agitatedly snipped off an unoffending lobelia blossom.

"It's too hot even to walk," she retorted. "I'm going to have a car myself," she said impulsively.

"Humph!" sniffed Susie Mills. "I guess it's coming now," she added sarcastically.

There came a honk from the end of the street, and a large motorcar turned from the avenue into Willow street and came unerringly up to the little white cottage. As it wheeled about and came puffingly to a standstill the solitary occupant stepped to the ground and shook out his long linen duster.

Susie Mills was agog.

"You looking for me?" she chirruped. "I'm Mrs. Mills."

The man smiled pleasantly. "I am looking for Mrs. Tompkins," he informed her, his hand on Amelia's front gate.

"Oh!" cried Mrs. Mills enviously, and she was enraged because the yeast car came noisily up the street just then and bore her away. She could not see the meeting between Amelia Tompkins and the man in the beautiful car.

As for the other motor enthusiasts of Willow street, every man, woman and child found imperative business near the respective front gates.

The stranger pushed open Mrs. Tompkins' front gate and in three long strides had reached the front porch.

Amelia, outwardly calm but inwardly exulting at this answer to prayer, came forward, tall and rather graceful and very attractive in the uncertain light.

"Mrs. Tompkins?" asked the man courteously.

"Yes," said Amelia. "Won't you sit down?"

"Thank you." He placed a chair for Amelia and sat down on a hickory chair. He laid his motor cap beside him, and Amelia noted with a faint stirring of her pulses that his forehead was very nice and it was too bad that his cap had left a red crease there.

It was rather a familiar looking forehead. The way the brown hair was brushed up and back reminded her of some one. The memory was a painful one for Amelia, for it aroused the one grief of her girlhood. She wondered what this man wanted. To sell something, of course.

"I am afraid that you will think I am impertinent, Mrs. Tompkins," he said, rapping the edge of his cap against the seat and looking at her rather doubtfully, "but I couldn't help coming. I've been wanting to for some time—in fact, ever since well, since you were free."

Amelia leaned back in the rocker and panted a little. She felt that something very unusual was about to happen in her quiet, uneventful life. Such things happened in books, but—he was speaking again. "It's twenty years since we met, Amelia. I don't wonder you've forgotten me," he blurted forth at last.

Forgotten him?

Amelia leaned forward, her heart in her blue eyes. Could any girl forget her first lover? Could any woman forget the man she had loved and whom her parents had bade her cast off for another and more advantageous match? If such things could be forgotten then Amelia Tompkins could forget Ralph Blake.

"Oh!" she cried sharply. And after a few moments she cried again, "Oh, Ralph!"

He was leaning eagerly forward now, a good looking middle aged man with boyish eyes and a general air of prosperity that seemed out of place upon a man whom Amelia had known only as a shy country youth.

"Amelia, I've waited and waited, and I can't forget you!" he said tensely. "It will take some time for you to pick up the threads after all these years of separation, but I've never changed. I feel just the same as I did that night when—I told you!" he ended in a whisper.

"Ralph, Ralph!" she cried, with a shaking voice, and so the intervening years vanished with the warm breath of true love, and their hands met and afterward their patient lips.

So "automobile company" came to Amelia Tompkins in a strange way. It came in direct answer to prayer, so Amelia firmly believes, and, while Ralph Blake is in the automobile business and owns many cars, somehow, for Amelia, automobile company has resolved itself into one meaning.

That is the daily homecoming of Amelia's husband.

And I may add that the Blakes are generous, and all of Willow street revels in countless automobile excursions.

Easily Identified.

While rambling around with his father one afternoon little Johnny came to a miniature lake on which two swans were swimming.

"Papa," said Johnny, pointing a chubby little finger out over the lake, "is that the father swan or the mother swan?"

"Which one do you mean, Johnny?" asked the old man, glancing in the direction indicated by the boy.

"I mean the one over there," answered Johnny, "the one with all the feathers pecked off his head and isn't allowed to have the biscuit or nothing."

"Yes, my son," promptly rejoined papa, with just a suspicion of a sigh. "That's the father swan, all right."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Interpreter Wanted.

Curling, like its sister Scottish game of golf, has its own vocabulary. Here is a dialogue in which a Scot in the antipodes tried to illustrate the "kittle pints" of the game to his New Zealand friends.

"What's a pat-lid, Mr. Macpherson?" asked an inexperienced member of the venerable "skip."

"Div ye no see, ye gowk?" said the skip. "Ye ding yer stane cannily, but nae sae fine as tae hog it; nae halfin' fleg nor jinkin' turn, ye ken, but tentiely, that it aye gangs snoovin' an' straucht as an elder'd walk, hog snoutherin' amang the guairds, till ye fan' on the verra tee. When ye've dune that, laddie, ye've made a pat-lid, and ye may bear the gree!"

Mustaches.

A mustache is what you choose to make it. Almost every man has the raw materials at his command, and he can cut them or cuddle them as he sees fit. Some men beat their mustaches savagely back into their upper lips, refusing them growth, shave them remorselessly once or twice, a day and never let a hair of them see the light of day. Other men coax and cajole their mustaches to emerge, pet them, pamper them, protect them and view the resultant hirsute effects in the light of artistic achievements. But not all mustaches are artistic. Some are stubby, and some are scraggly, and some are simply unmowed hair. Now and again we encounter a work of superior excellence, an accomplishment in mustache making, a feat in facial foliage.—Saturday Evening Post.

AMUSEMENTS

"THE GRAND CANYON OF ARIZONA"

The Grand Canyon of Arizona beggers description. Practically everybody, when first seeing it, freely admits that the scene is absolutely indescribable. In its presence language just simply seems to fail entirely because no words have been coined to describe a scene of such grandeur. In such an emergency, a reproduction in animated pictures such as Lyman H. Howe promises to present in an entirely new program at the BRADLEY OPERA HOUSE, next TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28, seems to be the only medium through which the mind may grasp adequately the magnitude of the stupendous panorama. The moment the spectators see it, all standards of comparison are lost. To gaze at the mighty maze of chasms produces a sense of awe mingled with wonder. It affords a sensation entirely unlike any other scene earth can offer. There is no word in the English vocabulary that can define it.

Imagine, if you can, a monster chasm many miles long, a mile deep and from three to sixteen miles wide, with the most wonderful mountain range in the world set down in it; so that viewing the immensity of the panorama from above, you feel as though you were anchored in an airship above the clouds; then imagine further these mountain peaks—hundreds upon hundreds of them—rising one behind the other away into endless distance until the mind staggers at the sight; imagine them too, in all conceivable shapes — pyramids, tabernacles, obelisks, castles, battleships, cathedrals, mosques with minarets, turrets, spires, domes, etc. Imagine still other canyons opening from the main one, each of which would be a marvel were it not for the great central one which predominates the scene. Imagine, also, gigantic walls rising sheer to such enormous heights that all the Seven Wonders of the Old World could be grouped at the base without hardly noticing them. Again imagine, away down at the bottom, a stream winding between these mighty walls of rock—a stream which appears only like a tiny rivulet, but which in reality is a wide, deep, raging river—and if you can imagine all this simultaneously—and much more besides—you can then have only faint and shadowy conceptions of the scenes reproduced by Howe. Here creation seems to be literally upside down and the very heart of the world seems to be laid bare before our eyes. Small wonder that a scene so weird and colossal should stagger the imagination and leave the beholder speechless in amazement.

Below — beyond — strething on all sides, lie the rock-ribbed and semi-buried mountains. After portraying them from this standpoint, Mr. Howe's scenes show the descent down the Bright Angel Trail on mule back. The procession wends its way down a winding foot-path, with the guide in front and the string of "pilgrims" behind—some of them holding on nervously to saddle-pommels with a death grip. As the party moves on, those in advance at times disappear so quickly that the followers fear they have ridden right over the wall of the Canyon. After such an experience, some of the more timid tender their resignations to take effect immepiately. But the party continues on the trail which clings closer and closer to the sheer sides of the dizziest, deepest chasm in the world. The mule may slide a little and stumble once in a while but it is contrary to his religion and politics and all his traditions and precedents to slip off. Instinct has taught the mules that it would be to them a highly painful experience to fall a couple of thousand feet or so and light on a pile of rocks. Arriving at the bottom the Canyon seems to be even more wonderful when viewed from within than it is when viewed from without. It appears more like an optical illusion or a wondrous dream than an astounding reality. Truly, the scenes throughout furnish sufficient thrills, inspiration and amazement to gratify to desires of the most adventurous spirit.

An aeroplane ride over Paris; exhilarating yatching scenes off Monte Carlo; strange forms of deep sea life; an automobile trip through the French Alps; a pictorial study in palmisty; the wreck of an ocean greyhound showing the rescue of survivors during a terrific gale and many other big new features are included in the program.

Then She Recovered.

"For weeks and weeks after my husband died I was unable to sleep."

"I hope you are all over that now," her sympathetic friend replied.

"Yes. The lawyers finally found his insurance policy in a safety deposit box that he had never told me about."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Where He Drew the Line.

"Come, come, don't be too angry at your son. You ought to make allowances for the extravagances of youth."

"Yes, but not cash allowances."—Baltimore American.

How to Sell a Cow.

A Scotch dealer at Clones fair was asked by a countryman to do him a favor. "You see that woman," said he, pointing to a woman. "Well, I've offered her five pounds ten for her cow, but she won't sell. Now, if you, a stranger, should offer her five pounds fifteen she would sell, but would not sell to me for that. Will you be kind enough to take this half crown and bind the bargain with it, and I will then pay the money and take the cow?" The good natured cattle dealer effected the purchase as requested and then turned to find the countryman, but the latter was gone. He was forced to take the cow himself and pay for her, though she was not worth half the money he had thus bid to oblige the missing countryman. It was afterward ascertained that the woman was the countryman's wife.

THE OLD FASHION SCHOOL

Given by B. Y. P. U.

The Old Fashion School was held in the parlors of the Baptist church on Friday evening with a large attendance.

The first on the program was engaging the teacher and among the many who applied Hezekiah Pendergrast was accepted as he believed in using the rod on all offenders.

A piano solo by Bernice Bramble was followed by the opening session of school with the following pupils:

Jeremiah Jenkins, Obadiah Buzzard Sally Brown, Luther Brown, Sim Dipsey, Bobby O'Lee, Faithful Snooks, David Snobs, Billy Crowfoot, Ruth Ketcham, Clarinda Guyser, Mehetible Jones, Dorcas Doolittle, Susan Crowfoot, Matilda Billings, Stephen Samuel Tucker, Samantha Piper, Samuel Snooks.

The teacher, being introduced by one of the directors, made a few opening remarks and then preceeded to classify the pupils. The class in reading quite distinguished itself. Those in the arithmetic class sang their "5 times" in chorus and the geography class seemed quite well informed about the surrounding country. The scholars in reciting were as full of mischief as those of the present day. Exercises in alphabetical alliteration were quite amusing as were the cross questions and crooked answers. School closed by singing America.

The next scene opened with the last day of school exercises. A number of essays were read, the principal one given by Jeremiah Jenkins on "Flies." Four pupils gave "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star" in a very effective manner. "Yankee Doodle," sung by David Snobs and Stephen Samuel Tucker, the school joining in the chorus. This was followed by a farewell recitation in a very teary manner; remarks by the Director, who had a bad attack of hay fever, but managed to say a few words between blows. A closing chorus by the school entitled "School is Over," closed these exercises. Every part was well taken and the audience was kept in a peal of laughter from start to finish. The B. Y. P. U realized about $9.75 and feel that they were highly favored even though the night was dark and stormy. The Board of Directors, Messrs. Belligur, Smith and Perkins expressed themselves as well pleased with the success of the school.

TECUMSEH BOY PROVES LEADER AT KALAMAZOO

Kalamazoo, Mich. Oct. 18.—Earl W. McNeil of Tecumseh has the distinction of holding more important offices during his course at Kalamazoo college, than any other man ever attending the institution.

He was recently elected president of the senior class and now is the president of the M. I. A. A. He has twice won the highest honor his classmates could bestow. He has been president of the student Y. M. C. A. and the newly elected president of the Sherwood Literary society. He has held positions on the index staff and numerous other offices being active in all class and college affairs. He played tackle on the football team for four years and was captain in 1912.

Foster's Negro Melodies.

"For a period of thirty years or so," says the Musical America, "Stephen Collins Foster was so far ahead of all competitors as the most popular American composer that the others were scarcely in sight. While we know little enough about a great many of his melodies today, such songs as 'The Old Folks at Home,' 'My Old Kentucky Home,' 'Old Uncle Ned' and 'Massa's In the Cold, Cold Ground' have sunk deeper and more permanently into the American heart than any other songs ever written in America. For a better understanding of Foster it is well to remember that his melodies had nothing whatsoever to do with negro melodies, the composer's models being the great melodists of the old world—Mozart, Beethoven, Handel. The fact that his songs formed the piece de resistance of negro minstrelsy and therefore in general drew their poetic subject matter from negro life is responsible for the legend, so hard to kill, that his melodies were derived from negro songs."

Hat Island's Unique Rookery.

Hat island, in the Great Salt lake, Utah, is probably the most unique rookery in the world, as well as one of the most densely populated. The island contains about twelve acres, and on a rocky pinnacle a hundred feet above the brine, with not a drop of fresh water to be found and where there is nothing to excite the cupidity or commercial instinct of man, the birds—gulls, pelicans, herons and cormorants by the thousand—make their home. The island can be seen at a distance of ten miles, rising like a "cocked hat" out of the sapphire of the inland sea. The birds are utterly fearless. Protected as they are by the laws of the state, they have had little cause to fear man and his death dealing weapons. It is necessary to use the greatest care to avoid stepping on the nests and eggs of the tens of thousands of sea fowl that have established their rookeries on the islet.—Argonaut.

A Change of Front.

The famous surgeon, the late Dr. William Bull of New York, once asked Dr. Osler to join him in a drive through the park in his gig. On one of the upper reaches of the drive the horse grew restive, rearing and pawing in a spirited way that Dr. Bull was familiar with and not the least afraid of.

"Gently—go gently, William!" said Dr. Osler. "Don't irritate him. Always soothe your horse, William. And I think you will do better without me on the seat. Pray let me down."

When Dr. Osler was once safely landed on the ground, however, he said: "Now, William, touch him up. Never let a horse get the better of you. Touch him up, conquer him, don't spare him. And now, William, I'll leave you to manage him. I'll walk back," concluded the man willing to oslerize anybody else.—New York Tribune.

Obituary

MRS. WM. GASTON

Mrs. Jane Watson-Gaston passed away Saturday at 2 o'clock a. m., after an illness extending over two years at the age of 62 years.

She was born in 1851 in Dougherty County Antrim, Ireland, coming to this country with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Watson in 1861. They settled in Tecumseh which has been Mrs. Gaston's home ever since. Her husband and three children, John Gaston, Edna Gaston and Mrs Charles Burridge, and two grandchildren, Alice Gaston Hall and Charles Gaston Burridge are left to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Gaston leaves a large circle of friends in the community and in the Presbyterian church where she was a faithful member and worker. The funeral was a private one, and was held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. B. R. Weld of Toledo, her pastor for the last three years officiating.

'We saw not the lift of the curtain
Nor heard the invisible door,
As she passed where life's problem
| uncertain.
Will follow and vex her no more.
We lingered and wept on the threshhold
The threshold each mortal must cross
Then we laid a new wreath down upon it,
To mark a new sorrow and loss.'

BENJAMIN REYNOLDS

Benjamin Reynolds passed away Sunday at 6:20 a. m. at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Dell Cairns, in his seventy-seventh year.

He has been in failing health for several years, growing gradually weaker, until death came to his relief. Owing to the poor health of himself and wife, they had planned to spend the winter with Mr. and Mrs Cairns.

Mr. Reynolds was born in Franklin on the farm his father took up from the government, when the country was practically a wilderness and had made Franklin and Tecumseh his home all his life. Besides his wife he leaves three daughters, Mrs Dell Cairns of Tecumseh, Mrs. John Whelan and Mrs Levi Stevens of Detroit, with several grandchildren.

The funeral will be held from his home in town Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. Hewitt officiating. Burial in Brookside.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors who assisted us during the sickness and death of our loved one, for the words of love and sympathy and the beautiful flowers.

MORE MURDERS

Will Follow Unless Authorities Enforce Law, Says Coroner

In his verdict in the case of O. P. Nye, a brakeman, of Tecumseh, Mich., who was killed several weeks ago at Hartwell, Coroner Foertmeyer urges the authorities to combine in their efforts to enforce the law which makes trespassing on railway property a misdemeanor. After stating that Nye's death was due to multiple injuries sustained when he fell off a car, Coroner Foertmeyer adds:

"It is shown that the deceased was struck on the head by a stone thrown by Stanley Merritt, causing the deceased to fall between the cars and be run over. At the time the stone struck the deceased the deceased was sitting on the end of a coal car and looking toward the caboose.

"There exists a practice of riding on trains and stealing coal from cars on the C, H. and D. Railroad between Hartwell and Lockland, Ohio. This is facilitated by the grade on said railroad between these points causing trains to travel slowly. The train crews are unable to prevent this practice through intimidation and violence on the part of those unlawfully riding on trains. Within six months this condition of affairs has resulted in two murders, and will likely result in more bloodshed and robbery unless some method of effectual prevention is established.

"The situation along this section of the C, H. and D Railroad is of such grave character that I believe the city, county and railroad authorities should unite in a conference and determine upon an effectual method of preventing these outrages."—Cincinnati Enquirer, October, 14

JOLLY 16

JANNUS AND HALL

Aviators Searching for Jewell Suffer an Accident Themselves.

When Tony Jannus, an aviator went out in search of Albert J. Jewel, the aeronaut missing since Monday, he carried with him a passenger, John R. Hall, to assist in searching the marshes for some clew to the unfortunate bird man. But the exploring machine met with a mishap likewise. After it had gone up a few feet the machine crashed to earth, slightly injuring Hall. In one picture Hall is seen as he is being carried from the scene of the disaster. He was not badly hurt. The other picture shows the men before the start. It has been generally agreed by friends of Jewel that he was drowned last Monday, and there is little hope of ever recovering his body.

TAYLOR WANTS WARM BERTH

Author Is Also Particular About Diplomatic Post Being Dry.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Senator Lewis is still insisting that Ira Nelson Morris of Chicago be given a diplomatic position. So far the administration has not looked favorably upon Mr. Morris as diplomatic timber. As the post at Athens has been disposed of, the friends of Hobart Chatfield Taylor are seeking his appointment as minister to Persia. Mr. Taylor's health forbids his accepting a post in a cold or damp climate—and the one at Teheran is said to be perfectly satisfactory to him.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Herald readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. What other remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit?

W. Withers, 3, W. Pottawatamie St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have had no reason to change my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I publicly expressed some years ago and I willingly confirm all I have previously said in their praise. I had acute pains across the small of my back and I and in my hips and often after stooping, a sharp twinge darted through my loins, obliging me to lie down. I was laid in bed for several days and I believe that my trouble was caused by excessive stooping. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I obtained a supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and the contents of a few boxes restored me to good health. Since then, whenever I have felt in need of a kidney medicine, I have taken this preparation and the results have been very pleasing."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Women Who Get Dizzy.

Every woman who is troubled with fainting and dizzy spells, backache, headache, weakness, debility, constipation or kidney troubles should use Electric Bitters. They give relief when nothing else will, improve the health, adding strength and vigor from the first dose. Mrs. Laura Gaines, of Avoca, La., says: "Four doctors had given me up and my children and all my friends were looking for me to die, when my son insisted that I use Electric Bitters. I did so, and they have done me a world of good." Just try them. 50c. and $1.00, at C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

CAPTAIN INCH

Volturno Commander Wired Wife As First Act In Landing.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

As soon as Captain Inch arrived in America on board the Kroonland with eighty-seven other survivors of the Volturno disaster the first thing he did was to send a cablegram to his wife in London, assuring her that he was safe in the United States. The last thing he did before leaving the burning vessel was to save the life of his pet dog. The captain is shown in this picture, which was posed immediately on his arrival in America, holding his faithful companion.

FIFTEEN ARE HURT ON C. & A.

Midnight Special Wrecked Between Alton and Granite City, Ill.

St. Louis, Oct. 20.—Fifteen persons were injured, two seriously, when the Chicago and Alton's midnight special, Chicago to St. Louis, while running fifty miles per hour, was wrecked in front of the Lakeside Military academy between Alton and Granite City, Ill., at 7:30 in the morning. All the cars were telescoped. The engine remained on the track but the coaches tore up 500 feet of track stopping only when several cars had completely buried their trucks in the roadbed. Spreading rails are believed to have caused the wreck.

Among the injured are: Mrs. Nora Clark, Springfield, Ill.; Mrs. Joseph Lowe, New York, in serious condition; Samuel Wright, member of the Dandy Girls Theatrical company minor bruises, and William Devonge, of Grafton, Pa., actor, right side, back and leg cut and bruised.

M'FARLAND TO MEET GIBBONS

Chicago Man Will Box Welterweight at 145 Ringside.

New York, Oct. 20.—If Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul welterweight who claims the world's championship in that class, will agree to make 145 pounds ringside Packey McFarland will sign articles to box ten rounds in the Garden in December, if not earlier.

It was said that McFarland, who at first stated that he would meet Gibbons at 142 pounds ringside, had been asked by Managed Gibson of the Garden A. C., to agree to 145 and that the Chicago wizard, after thinking it over, had practically given his consent.

Inch of Snow in Dakota

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 20.—A snow storm resembling a midwinter blizzard broke over the Red River valley shortly after midnight. An inch of snow covered the city streets in half an hour. Traffic was impeded and a portion of the city lighting system was put out of commission.

Why Women Are Not RICH.

Man is a millionaire many times over in the possession of blood cells. Woman is not quite so rich, for scientists have proven that the normal man has five million—the woman only four and a half million to a cubic millimetre of blood.

A decrease in number of red blood corpuscles and a person "looks pale"—in fact, is anaemic, the blood does not get the right food and probably the stomach is disordered.

Dr. R. V. Pierce found years ago that a glyceric extract of golden seal and Oregon grape roots, queen's root and bloodroot with black cherrybark, would help the assimilation of the food in the stomach, correct liver ills and in Nature's own way increase the red blood corpuscles. This medicine he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By assimilating the food eaten the system is nourished and the blood takes on a rich red color. Nervousness is only "the cry of the starved nerves for food," and when the nerves are fed on rich red blood the person looses those irritable feelings, sleeps well at night and is refreshed in the morning.

"I was attacked with a severe nervous disease, which was caused by a disordered stomach and liver," writes MR. JAS. D. LIVELY, of Washburn, Tenn., Route 2, Box 32. "All my friends thought I would die and the best physicians gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and derived much benefit from same. My case had run so long it had become so chronic that nothing would effect a permanent cure, but Dr. Pierce's medicine has done much for me and I highly recommend it. I heartily advise its use as a spring tonic, and further advise ailing people to take Dr. Pierce's medicines before their diseases have run so long that there is no chance to be cured.

Woman.

Without woman, her foibles and eccentricities the novelist would have been out of business long ago.

Humanizing Houses.

Houses are curious things. We take a morsel of illimitable space and wall it in and roof it over. Suddenly it ceases to be part of God's out of doors and becomes an entity with an atmosphere of its own. We warm it with our fires, we animate it with our affections, we furnish it with such things as seem good in our eyes. We do this to get shelter for our bodies, but we acquire as well an instrument for our spirits that reacts on us in its turn.

In other words, as we live our way into a house, adapting it to our need, the bricks and mortar, the paint and plaster, cease to be inert matter and become alive. Superficial sociologists have taunted women with being "more anabolic or plantlike" than man, but I count it her second glory. The plant is an organism that "slowly turns lifeless into living matter," and this is the thing that woman has done from the beginning with her shelter. In our houses we achieve almost "an organic extension of our very selves.—Cornelia A. P. Comer in Atlantic.

Ortolans as Food.

The ortolan, a bird smaller than our quail, an inhabitant of southern Europe in summer and of Africa in winter, is highly prized, especially among French epicures, for the delicate flavor of its flesh. The ortolan is netted alive, kept in a dark place and fed on millet, oats and other seeds until it becomes enormously fat, when it is killed for the table. This artificial fattening of the ortolan dates back to ancient days of Rome. A Parisian paper tells of a financier who invited four friends to a dinner at his country place and sent to Paris to a famous restaurateur to provide a feast for six persons. When the account was presented it footed up 1,200 francs—that is, $240. "Outrageous!" said the financier. "Monsieur," said the restaurateur, "you have had twenty ortolans at 25 francs each. That alone is 500 francs." This would be much like paying $5 each for well fattened English sparrows.

The Flammerton Record

It Overtopped That of Silas Jones

By MARGARET LEE

"Mr. Jones," said Lord Flammerton, "I have called to ask you to do me the honor to give me in marriage your daughter, Miss Sophia."

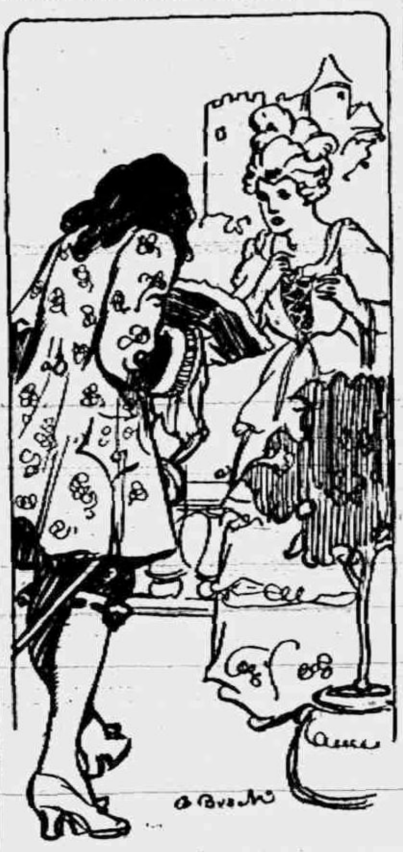
Mr. Silas Jones, who was travelling abroad with his family and sojourning at a London hotel, looked as solemn as if his lordship had asked for his daughter to cut off her head. He slowly turned his eyes up at the ceiling, then lowered them to the floor, while his face indicated that he was suffering from a pain in his stomach. Presently, after clearing his throat, he said:

"I assure you, my lord, that I am sensible of the honor you, a peer of the realm of England, do me, in asking for the hand of my daughter. But there is a reason why it would be better that you should withdraw your request. While it is true that I can make settlements upon Sophia that would enable her to restore Flammerton castle, she would bring a bar sinister to your family arms. It is not proper that so noble a lineage as yours should be marred by a marriage with one who is not only a commoner, but who has descended from a criminal."

His lordship remained silent.

"Yes, my lord, a criminal," continued the other. "Roger Jones, my great-grandfather, in 1703 was convicted of selling rum to the American Indians, was tarred and feathered, ridden on a rail and hanged to an apple tree."

Mr. Jones groaned not only in spirit, but audibly. Lord Flammerton sat watching him with a curious expression on his face. His lordship did not seem so appalled at receiving this information as might have been supposed. Instead of taking up his hat and bidding Mr. Jones good morning, he sat quietly where he was, fumbling with his watch chain, waiting for the paroxysm to subside; then he said:



"I WILL RETURN THIS CHAIN TO YOU IN HIS OWN HOME."

"Permit me to commend you, Mr. Jones, for your candid confession. I will be as candid as you. I am aware that you Americans have an idea that our British aristocracy was reared from seed sent down from heaven. We who know the history of our own families from the beginning do not fool ourselves, though we permit others to fool themselves as to our honorable ancestry.

"The earliest of my ancestors mentioned in 'Burke's Peerage' was Hugh Hunker, a sort of Robin Hood without Robin's better traits, for Hugh robbed anybody, whether a bishop, a miser or a poor peasant. However, he was not considered very bad until he entered a house where a corpse was lying surrounded by burning candles and stole them for the tallow there was in them to grease his boots.

"Nevertheless Hugh Hunker was a good deal of a swell for those times and is recorded as being quite a lady killer. At any rate, he had a son and a grandson, who at a later period, when England had become more civilized, were prominent at court. One of the family is supposed to have been the man whom the Duke of Gloster employed to murder the young princes in the Tower. I have, however, looked into the matter and have concluded that he was merely an assistant at the murder."

The earl paused in the recital, and Mr. Jones gave vent to an expression of disappointment.

"The Hunkers," the former presently continued, "became noble in the time of Henry VIII. I have unearthed a bit of secret history from the records stored in the Tower of London which reveals the fact that when King Henry VIII. beheaded Catharine Howard the state executioner had just died, and no one could be found to do the job until Henry offered Andrew Hunker a baronetcy if he would wield the ax over the unfortunate queen. Hunker consented and was made Baron Worrington. Then when Henry made a wholesale confiscation of the church property he created the baron a sort of sheriff to eject the clergy and seize their belongings. The commission that my noble ancestor received for this amounted to a large fortune and enabled him to take higher rank, which was conferred upon him in the title I bear.

"I have been some time getting to the story of my immediate progenitors, but a candid statement of the case has rendered necessary the details I have given.

"Andrew Hunker made ducks and drakes with his fortune, and his grandson, Andrew, earl of Flammerton, was forced to take to the road to get a living. Don't understand that there was an especial taste in the family for robbery. The calling was at that time one that invited the more adventurous young men. The earl was one day riding alone near the estates of a country gentleman named Forbes when he met a young lady, Elizabeth Forbes, who was out hunting with her falcon. This young robber, who was more on the Robin Hood order, became at once enamored of the young lady, but also anxious for the success of his suit he had recently plundered her home, and her father had sworn to bring him to the gallows.

"On the occasion of this first meeting between the highwayman earl and Elizabeth Forbes he took a gold chain from about her neck, saying at the same time:

"'Tell your father, who has sworn to hang me, that I will return this chain to you in his own home.'

"With that he bent low before the lady, took the tips of her fingers in his and kissed her hand. Now, this young fellow was a handsome rascal, and no calling was more popular with the ladies of that day than the profession of highwayman." Mistress Forbes straightway fell in love with the man who had robbed her and trembled at his boast that he would return her chain to her under her father's nose. Being discreet, she returned to her home and said nothing about the meeting.

"On the coming of age of Robert Forbes, Elizabeth's brother, the old gentleman gave a ball, the guests to be dressed in fantastic costumes. There was a man present who had adopted the garb of a headsman. There is no dress better fitted to show off a handsome figure than that of this official of that period. The man, instead of carrying a wooden ax, held in his hands a veritable steel weapon such as was used in lopping off human heads.

"The moment Elizabeth Forbes saw this person she recognized in his figure—his face was masked—the robber earl. He advanced toward her and, throwing a gold chain about her neck, asked her to dance. She accepted the invitation, trembling for him, for, though he was armed with an ax, many of the men guests present wore swords or were provided with other weapons suited to the characters they represented.

"The presence of this fantastic personage was noted by the guests, and it was not long before the host's attention was called to him. The robber perceived that he would soon be obliged to give an account of himself and in a few quick sentences begged Elizabeth to fly with him. She consented on condition that he would go at once, thinking to get him out of danger, and when they saw her father advancing to ask who this unknown guest might be she slipped her arm in his, and the two were passing out when Forbes, followed by others of his guests, pushed after them. The earl turned and, raising his ax, brought it down on the host's head, splitting his skull. Several men who wore swords drew them, and there was a combat, in which the earl put them out of the fight. Then, drawing Elizabeth with him, he disappeared in the darkness.

"There is no record of a marriage between Andrew Hunker, the robber earl, and Elizabeth Forbes, but since she was a commoner and he a noble it is quite possible that she did not expect marriage. However, she had a son—my grandfather—who was declared legitimate by King Charles II. and given his father's title and property, the latter consisting of plunder acquired on the road. It is quite possible that the king's favor was gained from the fact that Elizabeth Forbes became one of his favorites, though she is not given in the list by historians.

"You see, my dear Mr. Jones, that beside the record of my ancestors for criminality that of your great-grandfather, who sold rum to the Indians, was tarred and feathered and hanged, sinks into insignificance.

"To return to my proposition, I possess valuable estates, but I need ready cash. Your cash made by the sale of the Acme salve has been more honorably acquired than my estates, which were partly taken from the church and partly from unfortunate travelers, many of whom were doubtless murdered. Nevertheless the two together will enable me and my wife to maintain a high social position, and fortunately I am not judged by the deeds of my ancestors. On the contrary, I live in the glamour of what is supposed to be their greatness."

Mr. Jones' views having been altered by the man who would become his son-in-law, he consented, and the earl and Sophia became engaged. A few months later the London society papers printed a notice of the wedding which occurred in a fashionable church between Andrew Charles Dudley Fortescue Blake Hunter, Baron Warrington, Earl of Flammerton, of Flammerton castle, etc., and Sophia Ann Jones, daughter of a prominent American citizen. There was no mention of how the title had been obtained or of the Acme salve.

BIG ENGINE CAUSES FATAL TRAIN WRECK

Rails Spread and Train Goes Into a Ditch.

Tiffin, O., Oct. 20.—An attempt to move a train pulled by a big engine of the latest type over the rails of the Big Four division between Berwick and Sandusky caused a wreck in which three persons were injured, perhaps fatally, and twenty-five others were hurt.

Rails spread under the weight of the locomotive and the train, consisting of two passenger coaches and a combination baggage and day coach, went into the ditch.

The worst injured was James O'Brien, foreman of moulders at the National Machinery company, Tiffin. His spine was wrenched and he sustained internal injuries.

J. W. Spraggins, superintendent of the National Machinery company, was cut on the head and also suffered internal injuries. G. A. Day, fireman, of Springfield, O., was cut on the head. Spraggins and Day are believed to have good chances of recovery, but the condition of O'Brien is grave.

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP GUARDS' TRAIN

Engineer Stops Just Short of Exploding Bomb.

CALUMET, MICH. — The most desperate of the numerous acts of violence in connection with the copper strike was an attempt to wreck the Keweenaw Central train with dynamite at Copper City. But for the watchfulness of Engineer Stephen Cocking some of the sixty passengers would have been blown to eternity. The dynamite exploded a few seconds after the engineer brought the train to a standstill. The explosion blew out a section of the rail tearing it to pieces. So great was the force that a piece of sixty-pound rail was hurled through a window in the second story of a residence some distance from the scene.

An investigation, conducted by the military officers and Sheriff Cruse, disclosed an attempt to derail and wreck the train before dynamiting it.

The attack was directed against a detail of mine guards, forty-two in number, who were en route to Mohawk from the New York Ascher agency. The guards were in two Pullman coaches on the rear of the train. Notice of their coming reached union leaders some time in advance. When the train arrived in Copper City, practically the entire populace was gathered at the station, giving the dynamiters opportunity to plant the mine unobserved. When the signal to proceed was given, a line of strikers stretched along the tracks a distance of 200 feet. The dynamite had been placed beneath the rails at a point about 400 feet east of the depot around a slight curve which obscured the view of the engineer.

FLINT SLAYER ASKS PAROLE

L. A. Weeks, Murderer of Mrs. Parish, Seeks Release.

FLINT, MICH. — Lucius A. Weeks, who had been sentenced from the circuit court here in 1901 to life imprisonment in Jackson for the murder of Mrs. Jennie Parish, has filed an application for parole, according to a statement made by Dehull N. Travis, a local member of the pardon board.

Under the new "lifer" law, Weeks will have to serve four years more before he becomes eligible for the parole. Some of the officers who worked on the case at the time favor Weeks' parole. Weeks killed Mrs. Parish, his alleged "affinity," during a fit of jealous rage.

PASSENGER HITS A FREIGHT

Flyer Sideswipes Engine, Thrusting Nose Out of Siding.

ADRIAN, MICH. — A bad wreck was narrowly averted here on the Wabash when the fast east-bound passenger No. 7, due here at 3:28 crashed into the engine of a freight which protruded on the main track from a siding.

The freight engine was knocked completely off the rails and the passenger engine badly smashed. Passengers were given a severe jolting, but no one was injured.

FARM SCHOOLS TO CONTINUE

M. A. C. Plans to Give Weekly Instruction on Agriculture.

EAST LANSING, MICH.—The Michigan Agricultural college will continue its series of one week schools for farmers this winter, although difficulty is being experienced in getting teachers for them. These schools will be held in the schoolhouse in communities where 50 farmers subscribe for the course and pay $1 as evidence of good faith.

The schools take up practical farm problems, such as seed testing and selecting, alfalfa culture, soil acidity, soil culture, milk testing and many other farm operations.

CROWD AT ADRIAN PARADE

Twenty Thousand Watch Pageant of Nearly 200 Floats.

ADRIAN, MICH. — Approximately 20,000 people witnessed one of the largest argicultural pageants ever seen in this part of the state. The parade was held in the interest of the "Grown-in-Lenamee, Made-in-Adrian" gala week.

In the line were 1,500 persons and nearly 200 decorated floats. Added interest was given by an announcement, based on census statistics of 1910, showing Lenawee to be the second richest farming country in the United States.

H. A. THOMPSON

Installed Grand Master of Michigan Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F.

NEWSPAPER MAN IS GRAND MASTER

H. A. Thompson Installed Head of Michigan I. O. O. F.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—At the meeting of the grand lodge I. O. O. F. of Michigan held in this city H. A. Thompson, publisher of the Williamston, Mich., Enterprise, was installed grand master, having been elected to the position by the various subordinate lodges of the state. There are more than 100,000 Odd Fellows in Michigan and between 2,000 and 3,000 attended the meeting of the grand lodge.

H. A. Thompson was born in Stockbridge, Mich., July 26, 1872. He moved to Williamston in 1895 and purchased a part interest of E. S. Andrews in the Williamston Enterprise printing plant, later buying out the partner and becoming sole owner. He has been for sixteen years proprietor and editor of the American Odd Fellow, a magazine of national scope published in the interests of the I. O. O. F.

For sixteen years he has been active in the grand lodge, I. O. O. F. of Michigan, holding responsible positions.

Mr. Thompson has been active in the Republican party for the past twenty years. He is president of the Zack Chandler Republican club, the largest political organization in Michigan. He is a member of the executive committee of the Michigan State Press association, and a member of the executive council of the International Fraternal Press Association of America.

ALL DANCES GO AT M. A. C.

Faculty Censor Says, However, Students Must Do it "Properly."

EAST LANSING, MICH. — The tango, the bunny hug, the one-step, the hesitation waltz, in fact any old kind of dance that the fair co-ed and gay undergrad may fancy may be danced at the Michigan Agricultural college parties this year without fear of censure by college authorities, ruled Professor W. O. Hedrick, faculty social censor.

"This means, of course, that the dances must be danced properly, or they will not be allowed," said Professor Hedrick. "Last year the vigorous opposition to the new dances was due principally to the fact that very few of the students knew how to dance them properly."

MRS. PANKHURST IS HAPPY OVER VICTORY

Compares Her Visit to Franklin's Pilgrimage to France.

NEW YORK — Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English suffragette leader, who was admitted to the United States through the intervention of President Wilson, virtually styles herself the "Ben Franklin of woman's suffrage."

She compares her visit to America to Franklin's "pilgrimage to France in the time of stress and difficulty, seeking relief and assistance."

Mrs. Pankhurst is highly pleased over what she declares is a direct slap at England by the United States government. The militant leader was almost defiant in her reference to the attitude of England.

"If the British government wants me for any offense, why does it not extradite me?" she exclaimed.

More than 300 members of the Woman's Political union attended the dinner at the Aldine club, which was given as an official welcome to Mrs. Pankhurst.

Prince and Princess Wed.

LONDON, ENG.—Prince Arthur of Connaught, son of the duke of Connaught, governor general of Canada, was married to Princess Alexandra Victoria, duchess of Fife, eldest daughter of the widowed Princess Royal Louise, in the ancient chapel of St. James palace.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

HAVRE DE GRACE, MD.—Floating in the waters of Chesapeake Bay, about six miles from this town, the body of a man supposed to be Dr. C. Bartholomew of Detroit, Mich., was found. It is believed the man walked out on the bridge connecting Havre DeGrace and Perryville and leaped to his death. Uncashed bookmakers' tickets for the Havre DeGrace races, badges of admission to the race track, and letters addressed to Dr. C. Bartholomew at Detroit and Havre DeGrace were found in the man's pockets.

TRENTON, MO.—William Payne, aged fifty years, a farmer, living ten miles south of Trenton, killed his wife, Anna, shooting her in the face and cutting her throat, and then committed suicide. A little daughter witnesses the tragedy and she ran screaming to a neighbor's house. When neighbors arrived both Payne and his wife were dead. They had been separated and Mrs. Payne had refused to return to her husband. They leave five children.

CHICAGO — Henry Spencer, the confessed slayer of Mrs. Mildred Allison-Rexroat, the tango teacher, near Wayne, is a prisoner in a cell at the Wheaton jail. He was taken there after he had re-enacted the murder of the Chicago woman. Captain Halpin turned over the prisoner to the Dupage county authorities and Spencer may be tried next week, according to State's Attorney Hadley.

MARINETTE, WIS. — Confined in the Menominee county jail because he had told the police many people were trying to shoot him, Adolph Waskellivecz, aged twenty-six, hanged himself in his cell with a belt. His home was in Massachusetts. He had asked to be sent to Chicago.

MERIDIAN, MISS. — While the Mobile and Ohio railroad officials say the official list of dead in the derailed troop train wreck near State Line, Miss., is seventeen, telephone reports from Buckatunna place the number of dead as high as thirty-five.

SULZER IS GUILTY

High Court of Impeachment Ousts the Governor.

SULZER MAKES A STATEMENT

Issues a Sweeping Profession of Innocence and Declares He Was Convicted by "Murphy's Court of Infamy"—Tired of Trying to Do His Duty and Being Traduced.

ALBANY, N. Y.—William Sulzer ceased to be governor at 11:56 o'clock, when presiding Judge Cullen finished reading the judgment of the impeachment court that he be removed. The vote of expulsion was 43 to 12, Judge Cullen and Senator Gottfried H. Wende being excused.

Martin H. Glynn immediately became the forty-third governor of New York and was sworn in by Judge Culled at 3:40 o'clock in the afternoon. He will serve until Jan. 1, 1915. Robert F Wagner is lieutenant governor.

Sulzer Is Notified.

Ex-Governor Sulzer was served at the Peoples house with a notice of removal signed by Judge Cullen and attested by Patrick E. McCabe, clerk of the senate.

Mr. Sulzer's long deferred statement, issued at night, proved to be a sweeping profession of innocence and an attack on Charles F. Murphy and the court of impeachment, which he said would be known as "Murphy's high court of infamy." He insists that he never asked Alan A. Ryan to see Wm. Barnes, Jr., or Mr. Murphy and have the trial stopped. He says, he is $76,600 in debt besides the cost of his defense and that his only asset is $11,000 in cash. He says he is glad it is all over for he is "tired of trying to do my duty and being traduced."

Before landing the knockout blow on Sulzer the court found him not guilty on the charges at the tail end of the indictment.

By a unanimous vote he was acquitted on article five, which charged that he dissuaded Frederick L. Colwell from testifying against him before the Frawley investigating committee.

No Larceny Committed.

The vote was also unanimous on article six, which charged that the governor committed larceny in speculating with funds contributed to his campaign.

The governor was acquitted unanimously on article seven, which charged that he bartered his political influence. The same course was taken with article eight, charging use of his official position to influence the price of stocks in which he was interested.

The governor was also acquitted on article three, which charged him with bribing witnesses to withhold testimony from the Frawley committee.

Guilty on Three Counts.

The governor lost his office by being convicted on articles one, two and four, as follows.

Article one—charging the governor with making a false statement of campaign receipts and payments—guilty 39, not guilty 18.

Article two—charging him with perjury in swearing that the statement was true—guilty 39, not guilty 18.

Article four—charging him with "practicing deceit and fraud and using threats and menaces" to suppress testimony desired by the Frawley committee—guilty 43, not guilty 14.

On the question of disqualifying the governor from holding further office the vote was unanimously negative, except in the case of Judge Cullen, who was excused from voting.

NEW YORK—Through his counsel Hans Schmidt, self-confessed murderer of Anna Aumuller, pleaded not guilty to a charge of homicide and was sent back to the Tombs.

COMING

UNITED DOCTORS SPECIALIST

Will Make Their Regular Visit TO TECUMSEH BARRETT HOTEL, FRIDAY, NOV 7.

Hours 10 a m to 8 p m.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this visit, consultation, examination and advice free of charge.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases of the blood, liver, stomach, intestines, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, tape worm, leg ulcers, weak lungs, and those afflicted with long standing, deep seated chronic diseases that have baffled the skill of other physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness has often been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc. By their method these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection. They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife, with blood and with pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

Worn-out and run-down men and women, no matter what your ailment may be, no matter what you have been told, or the experience you have had with other physicians, settle it forever in your mind. If your case is incurable they will tell you so. Consult them upon this visit. It costs you nothing.

Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

Nature's own castles, battlements and temples of infinite variety, wondrous in form and of proportions which make any structure ever conceived by man seem pitifully insignificant will be depicted by Lyman H. Howe at the BRADLEY OPERA HOUSE on TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28. In a reproduction entitled "In and Around the Grand Canyon of Arizona." The panorama portrayed is at once sublime and awe inspiring. After viewing it from above, Mr Howe's reproduction shows a party on mule-back making the descent to the river's edge via a trail that seems to be no more than a mere scratch upon the perpendicular walls and as looked as though it has been blazed by a bolt of zig-zag lightning. At times this trail skirts a precipice where the least misstep would hurl the travelers to destruction a thousand feet below. Some turns are so sharp that first the head of the mule and then the tail projects over the abyss. There seems to be a rare fascination in thus flirting with danger. Although life itself is at stake, there appears to be an inherent desire to match the excitement the adventure affords against the probability of death. When the walls of the Canyon are viewed from below, it seems incredible to regain the pinnacles towering above the beholders.

In pleasing contrast to the scenic granduers of the Canyon, Mr. Howe's series also shows the real Hopi and Navajo Indians in their native haunts around the Canyon. These are not the type of Indians of yore—Indians that are usually exploited by showmen but the real type—unmarred and unsullied by any influences but those of their native haunts and environment. They are truly representative of the strangest tribes of our fellow-countrymen. That they have remained unchanged in our land of perpetual change is shown by the scenes which reveal them engaged in their native industries such as weaving blankets, basket-making, etc., in the same patient but primitive methods that their progenitors evolved. A Navajo war dance is also depicted to the accompaniment of native "musical" instruments and "close-up" portrait studies of Navajo children show the facial characteristics very clearly.

Thrilling rescues of survivors from an ocean greyhound during a terrible gale; a conflagration of several hundred thousand barrels of oil; an aeroplane ride over Paris; the wondrous forms of marine life; a study in palmistry; yatching scenes off Monte Carlo; and a motor ride through the French Alps are some of the other big features to be presented.

HAIR DOESN'T DIE IT HAS TO BE KILLED

Hair often continues to live and grow long after the death of the body. But it is often killed through the neglect or misuse. Almost always the woman or man whose hair is falling out, or is stringy, lifeless and dull-looking, is entirely to blame because of not giving it the proper care. It is easy to take care of the hair—easy to make it more beautiful. Use Harmony Hair Beautifier, to make it glossy, soft and silky, and Harmony Shampoo to keep hair and scalp thoroughly clean.

Harmony Hair Beautifier, delightfully perfumed with true rose, is very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo is most convenient to use, giving an instantaneous rich, foaming lather that immediately penetrates to every part of the hair and scalp, insuring a quick and thorough cleansing. It is washed off just as quickly, the entire operation taking only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair, and leaves no harshness or stickiness—jus a sweet cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops, Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00 Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold in this comunity only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States, Canada and Great Britain, which own the big Harmony laboratories in Boston, where the many celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made. B. J. Pulver, Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich. adv.

The Monday Club have received an invitation to meet with the Clinton Culture Club on the afternoon of Nov 4. An address will be given by Mrs Custard, and a dinner will be served at 6 o'clock.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS ITEMS

We note that the Adrian Water Company has asked for 30 years of additional franchise life. Its proposed ordinance contains provisions for the sharing of profits above 6 per cent between the company and city and for the purchase of the plant should the city so desire, together with the method of ascertaining the value of the property both as a basis for figuring profits and as a basis for figuring at purchase price.

The Monarch Fence Co. and the Peerless Co. of Adrian have joined forces. The Monarch Co. has not been very active of late and the travelling men were called in under the new management. The Peerless Co. will lease the plant of the Monarch Co and manufacture Peerless fence. Some 20 or 25 men have been employed by the Monarch Co and the Peerless intend to operate the plant to its full capacity.

THE OTHER KIND

A Captain of one of the ocean liners was showing a young lady friend of his over the ship during one of his eastward trips. As they passed through the steerage, he called his fair companion's attention to a big, husky Irish emigrant, who was putting away with a knife, fork, and spoon a bountiful supply of corned beef and cabbage, combined with other articles of diet. The Captain eyed him for a moment, then, addressing the young lady, said:

"Just look at the enormous amount of food that fellow is consuming."

"I suppose Captain," said the fair young girl with a beaming smile, "he is what you sailors call a stowaway."—November Lippincott's.

MASONIC MEETING

Between two and three hundred members of the Manchester, Clinton, and Tecumseh Lodges F. & A. M. met together Tuesday afternoon and evening for a fraternal visit. At 3:30 p. m. the Manchester Lodge conferred the third degree, the candidate being George Rollins. Following this came a 6 o'clock dinner that continued until nearly 8 o'clock. At the evening session the Clinton Lodge conferred the same degree on Don Clevland.

The meetings were most enjoyable to every one present, the spirit of brotherly love uniting them as one family.

MRS. N. L. BRYAN

Jennie Greenleaf Gawler was born at Concord New Hampshire. July 20. 1858 When she was thirteen years of age, her family came west to Columbus Ohio.

About 1882 they came to Detroit where Jennie was educated as a trained nurse, at Grace Hospital. She then returned to Columbus which city was her home for more than twenty years. Some time after the death of her parents she went to Oklahoma when she remained two years and then came to Michigan and on March 15, 1906 she was united in marriage to Newton L Bryan and came to live at the farm home which proved to be her last earthly abiding place.

About three weeks before her death she was taken to the University hospital at Ann Arbor, where physicians encouraged her with the hope that she would soon be well again.

She was brought home on one of our bright and beautiful autumn days standing the journey well and glad to be again at home. But, in the early morning of the next day, Oct. 16, she suddenly became worse and it was evident that she must soon depart.

All that loving hearts could prompt and willing hands could do, was done for her relief and to keep her with us, but;—

"She saw a hand we could not see
That beckoned her away.
She heard a voice, we could not hear
That said she must not stay."

And, even as the leaves let go their hold and flutter to the earth, even so, our sister, neighbor, friend, let go her her hold on earth and fell asleep. Naturally, very generous and unselfish, with a sunny, cheerful dispostion and having a good degree of literary and musical ability, she was well qualified to make a happy home.

She was a devoted wife and was very happy in her married life. Of her immediate family, only one brother George Gawler of Columbus, Ohio is left.

Funeral services were held at her late residence on Saturday Oct. 18, conducted by Rev. W. B. Hartzog, pastor of Tecumseh Baptist church. A large number of friends and neighbors were present to pay their last tribute of respect to the memory of her whom they had learned to esteem in life.

Just why her sun has set at noon time, just why her husband has been called to "pass under the rod" again, just why "the places that once knew her shall know her no more forever;" these an things that we shall not know this side the rive.

"We shall know, as we are known;
Never more to walk alone,
In the dawning of the morning
When the mists are cleared away"

Baking Powder Biscuits

Light as a Feather

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Baking Powder Biscuits made by this recipe are so far ahead of ordinary baking powder biscuits that, if once tried, you will never use any other recipe. Try it the next time you run short of bread. Save this recipe. 29

K C Baking Powder Biscuits

Three cups flour; ¼ to ½ cup shortening; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; about 1 cup milk or water; 1 teaspoonful salt.

Sift three times, the flour, salt and baking powder. Work into the flour the shortening, using lard or butter for shortening. Then mix to a very soft dough with the milk. The softer the biscuit enters the oven, the lighter it comes out. Never knead baking powder biscuits; press the dough into shape and roll lightly. Cut in small shapes and bake on a sheet or very shallow pan in a hot oven. In placing biscuits in the pans place well apart, not allowing edges to touch. Small biscuits are better than large ones. Large biscuits do not have the proper amount of time to raise and bake.

Have you seen the new K C Cook's Book? Brimful of appetizing recipes that simply must be successful every time if the few simple directions are carefully followed. You would gladly pay 50 cents for this valuable book, yet we send it absolutely free upon receipt of the colored certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder. JAQUES MFG. CO., Chicago. Small cans do not have Cook's Book certificates.

D. T. & I.

The sale of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad to Otto Bannard and N. W. Buckner purchasing committee for New York interests was confirmed by Judge Arthur Tuttle Oct 20. The sale consisted of the Northern and Southern divisions of the road. The purchasing price of the two divisions was $1,600,000, the sale was made Jan. 28.

It is the opinion of Master Voorheis that with the sale of the D. T. & I., it will be placed on a good financial basis and the receivership may be ended.

Three young couple were married in Onsted Wednesday, and were in town an hour between trains as they were going east on their wedding trip. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Codling left on the same train and the four couple were in the same car as far as Toledo. Those from Onsted were Mabel Cloud of Onsted, and L R. Wilson of Pennsylvania, Harriett Pocklington of Ridgeway, and Fay Britton of Pulaski, Nora Sixbury and John Carney of Phoenix. Elder Cloud was the officiating clergyman at the parsonage.

A PRETTY AUTUMN WEDDING

CODLING-SMITH

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of Mr and Mrs George U. Smith, when Edna, their only daughter, was united to Roy Codling of Bloomington, Ill. To the strains of Mendelsohnn's wedding march, played by Miss Mayme Kaiser, the bridal couple took their places before Rev. F. Hewitt, who in the impressive ceremony of the Episcopal church made the two one. During the ceremony Miss Kaiser played "The Wedding of the Winds".

The bride was attended by Miss Nora Lauer of Monroe, Ralph Smith acting as best man They were preceded by Karl Kaiser and Don Smith who carried the ribbons. A trellis of autumn leaves marked the way, and were used in profusion for decorations throughout the house

The bride was gowned in white charmeuse with silk net draperies and pearl trimmings, She wore a veil and carried a shower boquet of bride's roses; her maid wore a gown of cream white net with pink chiffon trimming and carried pink roses

After congratulations had been received the company adjourned to the dining room where a bounteous repast was served, those who acted as waiters being Misses Alma, Ruth and Doris Kloffenstein, Winifred Hall and Florence Smith The color in the dining room was pink and white, a large basket of cosmos being the central decoration of the table

As a closing event of the evening the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith was christened George Maxwell Smith by the Rector, his grand parents Mr. and Mrs. George U. Smith being sponsers.

Mr. and Mrs. Codling left on the evening train for Chicago enroute to their home in Bloomington, Ill. The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of Saline, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Winterstein of Macon, Mrs. Hattie Kaiser and daughter Mayme of Pontiac, Karl Kaiser of Wyandotte and Robert Codling of Tipton.

High School Notes

The foot ball game with Addison was a very satisfactory one from the Tecumseh viewpoint. We out-played and out generaled them in all points of the game, although they outweighed us. The game was nothing but a runaway one, we scored seven points in the first minutes of play. They only threatened to score once, they had only eight yards to go in four downs, but our line held and we received the ball on downs. We give Addison credit for the fine appearance they made, they say that this was their first game and that nine of their players had never played a game.

The score by quarters:

First quarter:
Tecumseh 28, Addison 0
Second quarter:
Tecumseh 40, Addison 0
Third quarter:
Tecumseh 61, Addison 0
Fourth quarter:
Tecumseh 67, Addison 0

The following is the Tecumseh line up.

Hall	Left Tackle
Kay	Left Guard
Aebersold	Center
Blesing	Right Guard
Meade	Right Tackle
K. Schneider	Right End
McNell	Left Half Back
L Schneider	Full Back
Wilson	Right Half Back
Orr	Quarter Back

H. Rogers played Left End in the second quarter and Quarter Back in the fourth quarter.

Referee, F. Heesen; Umpire, F. Hendershott

SIR RUFUS ISAACS

His Appointment As Lord Chief Justice of England Announced.

LONDON, ENG.—The appointment of Sir Rufus Isaacs, the attorney general, as lord chief justice, has been officially announced. He succeeds Baron Alverstone, who recently resigned. Sir J. A. Simon, solicitor general, is appointed to the attorney generalship. Stanley Owen Buckmaster succeeds to the solicitor generalship. Baron Alverstone has been made a viscount.

SPORTING AFFAIRS.

NEW YORK—If Pugilist Packey McFarland had tried to put all his pugilistic strength in his punches he probably would have put "Harlem Tommy" Murphy to sleep in a ten round bout. McFarland, however, did not have to score a knockout to win. He outclassed Murphy by clever boxing to such an extent that the latter was a pitiful sight as he vainly tried to land his weak blows and also failed to escape Packey's steady attack.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—A replica of the famous forty round bout between Ad Wolgast and Battling Nelson for the lightweight championship of the world was staged here at the Elite rink, when they boxed ten rounds. After thirty minutes of hard, aggressive fighting Wolgast earned the laurels by giving his worthy and game opponent a decisive beating.

ST. LOUIS, MO. — George Stovall, the deposed manager of the St. Louis Americans, said that unless he obtained his unconditional release from the local team by today he will begin negotiations with the Kansas City Federal league club, which has offered him the position of manager.

NEW ALBIN, IOWA—Miss Ruthey Howes, who is dead here at the age of sixty-six years, was reputed to have been the smallest perfectly formed woman in Iowa. She was thirty-seven inches in height and weighed sixty pounds. Not deformed in any way. Miss Howe was a remarkably beautiful and attractive woman in miniature.

Tecumseh Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove it

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Tecumseh given below, you must come to the conclusion: A remedy which proved so beneficial years ago with the kidneys, can naturally be expected to perform the same work in similar cases. Read this:

[illegible] Shurtz, Kilbuck St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for the past ten years and they have always given me relief from distressing symptoms of kidney complaint. I have procured my supply of Doan's Kidney Pills from Wright & Son's Drug store, and my experience has been so satisfactory that I willingly give this public account of it."

A WILLING RE-ENDORSEMENT.

When Mr. Shurtz was interviewed at a later date he said: "I am only too willing to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills, for I know that they act as represented. You may continue to use my name as a reference."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. adv.

It's well enough to hope, but don't loaf on the job while doing it.

Foley Kidney Pills Succeed.

Because they are an honestly made medicine that relieves promptly the suffering due to weak, inactive kidneys and painful bladder action. They offer a powerful help to nature in building up the true excreting kidney tissue, in restoring normal action and relieving bladder discomforts. TRY THEM. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Advt.

No, Alonzo, you can't tip a waiter enough to make him lose his balance

Women Who Get Dizzy.

Every woman who is troubled with fainting and dizzy spells, backache, headache, weakness, debility, constipation or kidney troubles should use Electric Bitters. They give relief when nothing else will, improve the health, adding strength and vigor from the first dose. Mrs. Laura Gaines, of Avoca, La., says: "Four doctors had given me up and my children and all my friends were looking for me to die, when my son insisted that I use Electric Bitters. I did so, and they have done me a world of good." Just try them. 50c. and $1.00, at C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

Also a goodly number of people have been done in the name charity.

Home Keeping Women Need Health and Strength.

The work of a home-keeping woman makes a constant call in her strength and vitality, and sickness comes through her kidneys and bladder oftener than she knows. Foley Kidney Pills will invigorate and restore her, and weak back, nervousness, aching joints and irregular bladder action will all disappear when Foley Kidney Pills are used. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv.

It is well to aim high, but be sure your gun is loaded.

CLEVELAND, OHIO—Rev. Gerard Patterson, rector of the Church of the Incarnation here and former pastor of Adrian, Mich., was granted a divorce. The cross petition of Mrs. Patterson was dismissed and the freedom of the husband granted. It was believed that Mrs. Patterson was in Europe, where she went after the Van Voorhees Lloyd divorce case, in which she was named at co-respondent. The vestry of Rev. Patterson's church adopted resolutions recently supporting his action and pledging its loyalty.

WASHINGTON — President Wilson and the entire cabinet discussed the Mexican situation and the naval policy of the United States at the first cabinet meeting since last June. Notification was sent by Secretary Bryan to John Lind and Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy that the United States does not and will not recognize the Huerta plans for the proposed election and that it will not recognize any one chosen at such election.

PARIS, FRANCE—Official announcement was made of the victory of the American balloon Goodyear in the International race for the James Gordon Bennett cup. The American aeronauts also secured second place with the balloon piloted by Captain H. E. Honeywell. Italy was third.

TOLEDO, OHIO — A young women's class in carpentering, with eighteen enrolled the first day, has been organized in connection with the manual training department of the public schools. Several married women have been admitted with the girls.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—A license to marry was issued here to Miss Ernestine V. Roedelheim, sister of the wife of William Sulzer, deposed governor of New York, and Walter M. Friedenburg, Edge Hill road, Cleveland, O.

CHICAGO—After he had officiated at the dedicatory ceremony at the new Masonic temple, Delmar D. Darrah retired from office as the grand master of the grand lodge of the Illinois A. F. and A. M.

HOW TO PRESERVE YOUTH AND BEAUTY.

One great secret of youth and beauty for the young woman or the mother is the proper understanding of her womanly system and well-being. Every woman, young or old, should know herself and her physical make up. A good way to arrive at this knowledge is to get a good doctor book, such for instance, as "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M. D., which can readily be procured by sending thirty-one cents for cloth-bound copy, addressing Dr. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y.

The womanly system is a delicate machine which can only be compared to the intricate mechanism of a beautiful watch which will keep in good running order only with good care and the proper oiling at the right time, so that the delicate mechanism may not be worn out. Very many times young women get old or run down before their time through ignorance and the improper handling of this human mechanism. Mental depression, a confused head, backache, headache, or hot flashes and many symptoms of derangement of the womanly system can be avoided by a proper understanding of what to do, in those trying times that come to all women.

MRS. WILLIAMS.

MRS. G. H. WILLIAMS, of Lynnhaven, Va., wrote: "It is six years since my health gave way. I had female trouble and all the doctors (I employed three) said I would die. I was not able to do my work, had to hire someone all the time. Finally, I read in the papers about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and decided to try it. I had not taken but one bottle until I found it had done me good. I took, in all, five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I am able to do all my housework, and have gained fourteen pounds. I advise all women who suffer from female trouble to try your 'Favorite Prescription.' It's the only medicine on earth."

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

KALAMAZOO—Victor L. Palmer, who is the secretary and financial director of the Michigan Buggy company, filed a personal statement in bankruptcy here showing liabilities of $1,656,218 and assets of $21,122. Eighteen banks in widely separated parts of the country held notes bearing Palmer's signature. One Chicago bank alone, it was shown, holds more than $100,000 worth of his paper. The financial condition of the Michigan Buggy company has been under investigation in bankruptcy proceedings for the last fortnight. Evidence given by officers of the concern is to the effect that Palmer had full control of its affairs and that his alleged mismanagement resulted in its failure with liabilities of approximately $2,000,000.

GRAND RAPIDS — Joseph Parauk, who was thirty-three years of age, tried to make the kitchen fire burn better by throwing in kerosene oil. The explosion tore the top off the stove and threw blazing oil over Parauk's clothing. His entire body was burned. Parauk carried his year-old daughter from the house slightly burning the child, and drove his wife out before he thought of himself. Passersby rolled him in the grass to extinguish the flames. He died in a few hours.

NEW YORK — James J. Frawley, who was chairman of the senate committee which prepared the material upon which Mr. Sulzer was impeached, said that the first suggestion of impeachment came from Wm. Barnes, Republican state leader, who published an editorial to that effect in his Albany newspaper last February.

CHICAGO — William C. Ellis, a wealthy Cincinnati leather merchant was held to the grand jury, charged with the murder of his beautiful wife, after he had dramatically confessed to the coroner's jury that he had killed her in bed, instead of trying to join her in a suicide pact, as he had at first stated.

WHEELING, W. VA.—Major Matthew M. Neely, a Democrat, by a plurality of nearly 3,500 is returned a winner in the special congressional election, held to name a successor to Hon. John W. Davis, recently appointed solicitor general of the United States. The district is normally Republican.

FLINT — When Charles J. Alvord, who is about seventy-three years old, brother of Police Commissioner A. D. Alvord, stepped to the back door of the grocery store that he and his brother run at 808 South Saginaw street, at 7 o'clock, a gray-whiskered man in a soft hat leaped out of the darkness with an oath, grappled with him and then thrusting a revolver at his breast, fired one shot, and fled. Alvord's condition is critical.

SAGINAW — The Rev. George T. Bennett, who was the pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in Freeland, died in the Saginaw General hospital from virulent typhoid fever. A particularly sad feature of the death is that he and Miss Jennie Stingel, of this city, were engaged to be married, invitations having been issued for the event.

PORT HURON — A black pair of trousers minus the seat was silent evidence of an attempt by Morris Johnsen to rob a stranger in this city. When arrested as a suspect Johnson admitted using a knife to extract the nether end of the stranger's garment, declaring that he was after the man's bank roll.

KALAMAZOO — Nothing whatever will be done by the board of supervisors to stop the grand jury investigation in this county. Judge N. H. Stewart and Attorney General Fellows appeared before the board in executive session and explained in detail what they hoped to accomplish and what was needed.

SEBEWAING — Robert Dillisworth, who is about twenty years old, is in a precarious condition as the result of a hunting accident. By carelessly grabbing his gun by the muzzle when a flock of ducks flew over his boat, the weapon exploded, the discharge striking him under the arm.

GRAND RAPIDS — An alarming epidemic of scarlet fever is raging in this city. Marie Nowack, six years old, is dead and about ten other Polish children lie at the point of death. Within the last week eight deaths from the disease have been recorded at the city hospital.

BRIMLEY—Considerably more than $20,000 damage was done here by fire, which did its greatest damage to the hotel, home and sales stables of Alexander Clark. A. J. Belanger was severely burned and may die.

ADRIAN — While he was eating a dish of fried potatoes Eddie Ely, of Weston, bit something hard, which cracked the enamel of his tooth. The substance proved to be a large diamond.

Pendleton's Lucky Dollar

And How It Found Him a Wife

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Bob Pendleton saw it gleaming in the dust of the road and stooped to pick it up. It was a small round gold dollar of the year 1852, and there was a tiny hole bored through it near the edge.

"Mine for luck," said Bob to himself as he tucked it away in a corner of his cardcase. "Wonder when it begins."

At that moment a motorcar came swiftly around the bend of the road, and Bob having unheeded the warning blast of its siren was unceremoniously hurled to one side as the machine tore on its way.

It was a matter of a broken arm and many bruises, and so Mr. Pendleton, cursing his ill luck, was borne to the nearest hospital and placed under the care of an extremely pretty nurse.

"I'm glad that I have no inclination to sleep in the daytime," said Bob one day to Miss Furniss, the day nurse.

"Why?" she asked absently.

"It would be such a waste of time when I might be"— he paused and blushed. He had been about to add rather a broad compliment, but the pretty nurse was gazing sadly from the window, her beautiful blue eyes heavy with unshed tears.

"I SAY, WHAT IS THE MATTER?" HE ASKED GRUFFLY.

Bob's heart thrilled as it had never thrilled before. He had never cared for girls, but Miss Furniss! She was quite different, and, by Jove, she mustn't cry like that.

"I say, what is the matter?" he asked gruffly. "Any of your folks dead or anything?"

The tears fell in a silvery shower, and one warm drop landed on Bob's handsome nose, and he foolishly imagined that its presence formed a bond of intimacy between them.

"No," Miss Furniss sobbed softly; "it isn't anything like that. I haven't any people. I'm rather alone, you know."

"If you're in trouble it does a lot of good to tell it to some one," urged Bob kindly. "Don't you like your job here?"

"I hate it!" she cried viciously.

This was rather chilling information to the invalid, but Bob persisted:

"What's the matter with it? What would you rather do?" he asked.

Her reply was so unexpected that it left him speechless.

"I—I'd rather be married!" she sobbed.

"Married?" Bob asked this question after a long, long silence.

"Yes, married!" she retorted. "Sounds horrid, doesn't it?"

"Sounds rather interesting," returned Bob slowly. "You ought not to—er—have any worry over that, don't you know."

"It's his—m-m-mother," quavered Miss Furniss sadly.

"Oh, his mother!"

"She is—she is only his stepmother, and I was her nurse during a severe illness, and long convalescence. Of course I met him there."

"Oh!" and Bob winced as he moved his injured arm. "And she didn't approve?"

"She was quite resigned to it, but she was a very eccentric woman and of a suspicious nature. One day I was with her in the motorcar, and she suddenly cried that she had lost something. It was an ornament. She accused me of taking it. She took me home and had me searched."

"And him—what of him?" demanded Bob fiercely.

"Peyton? Oh, he laughed and said it was all Mrs. Winton's nonsense and I was not to mind, but I am proud, and I felt hurt that he did not fly more quickly to my defense, so I said that I would not marry him until the article had been found and both he and his mother had apologized. He made rather a fuss over it."

"When did it happen?"

"Two months ago," she said, glancing at her watch and rising. "Oh, Mr. Pendleton, I am afraid I have given you a dreary half hour! You will forgive me?"

"I will if you will promise to let me help you out of your trouble," said Bob gravely. "Tell me what it was Mrs. Winton lost and where she lost it. I'm something of an amateur detective. Perhaps I can help."

"You are very good," she said, with a tender little smile that brought his heart to his throat. "We were driving on the Merrivale road when she said she had lost the charm from her long gold watch chain. She valued the charm because it had been given to her by her husband, who was dead."

"And the charm—what was it?"

"Oh, just a little gold dollar of the year 1852. Her initials were engraved on one side. Now, Monsieur Detective, what are you going to do about it?" She smiled mischievously down at him, her dainty cap poised like a white moth on her sunny brown hair.

Bob Pendleton's brown eyes flashed in a rare smile.

"I'm going to find it and restore it to the owner," he said briskly. "After that you will give me news of what happens."

She blushed and nodded.

"They are sure to come to you at once," said Bob.

"Oh, you think so?" she asked, with a quick catch of the breath.

"How could they help it?" he asked, and turned away his head so that she could not see the pain in his eyes.

She went away very softly, and Bob threw his well arm across his eyes and lay very still for a long time.

It was two weeks after that conversation that Bob Pendleton was discharged from the hospital. During the period of his confinement his beard had grown, and now, after having it trimmed to a careful and most becoming vandyke fashion, he made his way to the residence of Mrs. Henry Winton on Oakleigh avenue.

"You wish to see me?" inquired Mrs. Winton.

"Yes, Mrs. Winton. I was walking along the Merrivale road a few weeks ago, and I found this." Bob held out the gold dollar, one side of which was smoothly polished and bore three initials. "F. M. W."

"My charm!" she cried with pleasure as she snatched the coin from his fingers. "I rather thought it had been stolen," she said.

"I hope that if you suspected any one my returning it to you will establish their innocence," he said, with a keen glance at her harsh countenance.

She shrugged her shoulders.

"The person is no longer in my employ. It doesn't matter. No harm has been done. I am extremely obliged to you, Mr.—er"—

"Smith," supplied Bob, rising to depart.

"Mr. Smith," she finished, with a smile. "Perhaps you will excuse me now, but my son is to be married this evening, and I have a long motor drive before me."

"Ah, good morning, Mrs. Winton," said Bob dazedly, and he went away from the house with a stunned look in his face.

"Married! Married! What of her?" he muttered over and over again as he went back to his rooms. "The cur! And the woman, of course—they will never apologize to my poor darling." He paced the floor restlessly until the evening papers were in his hands.

There was an account of the wedding of Peyton Winton and some well known society girl at a magnificent country place. Bob Pendleton read every word, and then he put on his hat and went to the hospital.

It was Miss Furniss' evening off, and the attendant told him that he would undoubtedly find her at the Nurses' club near by. Presently he was seated in the empty reception room of the little club waiting with beating heart for the advent of Stella Furniss.

She came, looking strangely unfamiliar without her uniform.

"I have come to report," he said, smiling gravely at her look of inquiry.

"You haven't found it?" she asked, waves of rose color rising in her cheeks.

"Yes, I found it three weeks ago," and Bob told her all about finding the "lucky" dollar which in the beginning had proved so unlucky for him.

"So I restored it to Mrs. Winton today," he ended; "but, Miss Furniss, she impresses me as being a lady who would not trouble to apologize for an unjust accusation."

The color in her cheeks receded, but her eyes met his bravely. "Mr. Pendleton, you will think it strange, but since I had that conversation with you one day somehow I have not cared whether she—they apologize or not."

"Then you don't care a hang?" demanded Bob excitedly.

She smiled faintly, and her eyes dropped.

"Not a hang!" she said demurely.

"Then—then I'll have a chance. Stella, I'm rushing in where angels fear to tread, but I don't suppose you could like me a little bit? I love you, darling, I do, and if you only could care—why, Stella!" Something in the swift, shy glance she sent at him brought him to her side.

"When?" he asked.

"Oh, ever since—ever since you arrived," she whispered softly.

"Dearest!" This time their lips met.

And then later he told her of the wedding of Peyton Winton. She smiled scornfully. "Suppose I had married him!" she shuddered. "This all happened through that blessed dollar, Bob, and I never thought my road of bitter trouble would bring me to the broad highway of happiness."

"I shall always call it my lucky dollar," smiled Bob. "You see, it found a wife for me, and I never knew I needed one until I saw you."

KALAMAZOO — If the unique suggestion made before the board of supervisors by H. L. Jacobson, president of the Comstock school board, is acted upon, Kalamazoo county will soon install a whipping post to be used upon men who become intoxicated. "If a man is arrested for being drunk and then whipped in public for his offense, he would never fall into the hands of an officer again," said Jacobson. The board did not act on the suggestion.

LANSING — Being deeply aroused by the exposure of the illegal sale of "dope" in Detroit, Lansing and other cities of Michigan, state officials are planning a crusade against the continuance of this practice, and Governor Ferris will recommend a radical change in the present laws governing the sale of drugs to the next general session of the legislature or to a special session if one should be called for any reason unforeseen at the present. To such extent has traffic in drugs, especially heroin, grown, that state officials are horrified at the recent exposures. They do not hope to cure the unfortunates who are now addicted to the use of the death dealing drugs, federal laws have not been enacted, which will prevent "snow birds" outside the state from conducting a profitable business by peddling "dope" in Michigan, but they do hope to curb the sale in this state.

DIAZ IS SEIZED; ELECTION FARCE

So Far as Votes Were Cast He Is in Lead.

HUERTA MAY RETAIN POWER

Only Fraction of Vote Cast Where Polls Are Open and in Many Places No Election Was Held—Carranza Declares Balloting Farce and Will Ignore It.

Mexico City, Oct. 27.—A report that General Felix Diaz has been arrested in Vera Cruz caused a great stir in the capital. Diaz is said to be on his way here under an escort of soldiers and his partisans, gathering wherever possible in spite of the vigilance of the patrols, are earnestly discussing the possibility of the ley fuga being invoked under one pretext or another. There is a tenseness in the very atmosphere and rioting may follow at any moment. Machine guns and additional troops have been placed about the president's palace in anticipation of trouble.

Diaz Running Ahead.

Voting throughout the country has been light. In some places there was no voting at all. Dias appears to be running ahead of this three rivals, but the indications are that not sufficient votes will be cast to validate the election. In that event President Huerta will continue as provisional president. Another election would have to wait for his proclamation.

Nueva Leon reports that the rumor of Diaz's arrest reached there early but such voting as there was appeared to be in his favor. Few ballots were cast, however. Several hundred votes were cast at Juarez and Diaz is in the lead there.

Hold No Election.

At Chihuahua the disorder is reported to have been so great as to determine the military governor to render a postponment of the voting for state officials.

Another report from Coahuila says that Governor Maas was unable to be present and that no election was held because he had not issued his official proclamation.

Little interest is being manifested in the election in Mexico City. Reports from a dozen precincts in which more than a thousand voters were registered show that only fifty-nine ballots have been cast. Hundreds of voters who are unfriendly to the Huerta government are remaining at home and the belief is that they have been intimidated.

Rebels Say Election Is Farce.

Whatever the final returns from the elections show the constitutionalists are not likely to regard the voting as conclusive. The whole election is being openly denounced as a farce by the leaders. General Carranza voiced this opinion at his headquarters in Hermosillo. He said:

"The constitutionalists will not recognize the result of the electoral farce, whether it is said that Huerta or any other citizen is elected, because in the actual condition of the country, it is absolutely impossible to hold legal elections. Therefore we will keep on combating with arms the regime which may result."

GENERAL ELECTION IN ITALY

Almost Universal Suffrage Brings Out More Than 8,000,000 Votes.

Rome, Oct. 27.—In the general election throughout Italy, in which the new electoral law providing for almost universal manhood suffrage was tested and brought to the polls more than 8,000,000 voters, the victory of the government is assured but there will be many reballots on Nov. 2 in many districts as no candidate obtained the requisite proportion of the total vote cast. The Socialists have apparently made heavy gains. Many Catholics, including the Bishop of Cesana and several priests, voted in districts where the vatican prohibition against taking part in elections was withdrawn. The Socialist leader Hissolati was elected in the district of Rome, which includes the Quirinal, the royal palace.

Professor Bacelli also was elected. The other three Rome districts went to anti-clericals. Among the prominent candidates who have suffered defeat are Prince Borghese, Duke Di Catani, Campanozzi, a Democrat, and Bicciotti Garibaldi, son of the liberator of Italy, who obtained only twenty-four votes out of 6,000. There was rioting in many places. Altogether six persons were killed and scores injured more or less seriously.

Not the Same.

"He says he is always outspoken in his wife's presence." "He means out-talked!"

In Luck.

"Mamma, do animals know what they are called?"

"No."

Jack uttered a sigh of relief and remarked, "It would have been so unpleasant for the donkey, wouldn't it?"

HENNESSY WILL REVEAL SECRETS

Tammany Threatened with Ex-Senator Stilwell's Tale.

HOT STUFF TO END CAMPAIGN

Sulzer's Champion Says Murphy Received $25,000 from Samuel A. Beardsley Which Sulzer Refused to Accept—Wants Murphy to Sue Him for Libel.

New York, Oct. 27.—John A. Hennessy will speak against Tammany at fusion meetings every night this week. He says that last week's disclosures were mild compared with what he has stored up for the last days of the city campaign. At the meetings this week, he will keep his promise to reveal part of what ex-Senator Stephen J. Stilwell told him in a five hour catechism in Sing Sing prison. He says he will "go into another matter" if two other men who knew about it will "give him a release" which he feels sure they will do.

Tammany is anxious to learn what Hennessy is going to say about Stilwell. Hennessy has always said that the convicted senator made no confession to him. But it is understood that he did tell a long story and named a great many men. Mr. Hennessy, it is believed, is not privileged to repeat much of the yarn because it was to be used only in case Stilwell was pardoned. However, it is said that Mr. Hennessy has obtained release on enough of it to give him considerable ammunition for this week's engagements.

Wants Murphy to Sue.

Mr. Hennessy says there is not a doubt that Samuel A. Beardsley would corroborate, if put under oath, the Hennessy allegation that the $25,000 which William Sulzer refused to accept from Mr. Beardsley last fall was paid to Charles F. Murphy. Hennessy regrets Murphy hasn't had him arrested for libel, for he thinks he could call Judge Beardsley as a witness and thus get the story before a court.

FAVORS CUTTING OWN PAY

Ban Johnson Would Cut Off National Commission Post Series Rakeoff.

New York, Oct. 27.—President Johnson of the American league has made a suggestion that will be seriously considered by the major leagues when the subject of the world's series comes up for discussion. Johnson says that if the big leagues will pay the expenses incurred annually by the National commission, he is in favor of reducing the commission's share of post series receipts from 10 per cent to 5 per cent, or abolishing the rakeoff altogether.

The players have loudly protested against the payment of 10 per cent to the commission. This year the commission took $32,587 out of the world's series, which made a total rakeoff of $180,073 since 1903.

FAVORS CHURCHILL PROPOSAL

Every Citizen May Yet Be Carrying a Soldier on His Back—Official Test of Panama Canal Fortifications Will Be Made in February—Wilson Invited.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 27.—Aboard president's special train en route to Mobile—Secretary of the Navy Daniels, declared himself in favor of a worldwide agreement between all first class nations to close or curtail the construction of battleships for a stipulated period. The secretary's suggestion followed his endorsement of a similar proposition made to Germany by Great Britain's lord of the admiralty, Winston Churchill.

Save for coast defense, the secretary declared that such an agreement joined in by Germany, England, France, Russia, Japan and the United States would result in the greatest benefit to humanity in general from an economic standpoint.

"Unless some agreement is soon reached," he continued, "every citizen will figuratively be carrying a soldier on his back."

The secretary conferred informally with the president on the Battleship Oregon for the coming year. He spent the greater portion of the day with Lieutenant Commander N. L. Jones, his aide, going over estimates.

Mr. Daniels, it is understood, favors a three battleship program and has so told the president. The latter, it is said, views this plan with favor but is rather in a quandary because he does not know what revenue the new tariff will bring.

An official test of effectiveness of the Panama canal fortification will be made next February by the Atlantic fleet in the greatest naval war game in the history of the country. This announcement was officially made by Lieutenant Commander N. L. Jones, naval aide to the president and Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels. The maneuvers to last a week, may be witnessed by the president and the secretary of the navy. Mr. Wilson is being urged to make the journey and it is understood, is seriously considering accepting the invitation. The test will follow maneuvers off Culebra Island, which is being considered for an advance naval base. The entire fleet will steam from there to Christobal, the Atlantic terminal of the canal, where the maneuvers will be directed.

POSSES AFTER AUTO BANDITS

Farmers Search in Vain for Men Who Killed Banker.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Practically every farmer in Dupage county is searching for the two auto bandits who robbed the Addison State bank on Saturday and murdered one of the officials, Edward Rotermund. The aged man died as a result of the gunshot wound inflicted by one of the bandits.

Detectives from Captain Halpin's office are searching the haunts of criminals in Chicago. Thirteen possible suspects are being held at various stations throughout the city. Every known criminal the police suspect could have had any connection with the robbery and murder will be arrested.

Old People Asphyxiated.

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 27.—The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Eliason, both of whom were elderly, were found in bed at their home by neighbors. Death was due to asphyxiation.

THINKS DEPOSITORS WILL BE FULLY PAID

Receiver of Palmyra, Ill., Bank Blames Crops for Failure.

Palmyra, Ill., Oct. 27.—Henry C. Hamilton, president of the State Bank of Girard, assumed the duties of receiver of the Bank of Palmyra, a private institution, which closed its doors.

Discrepancies are shown in the different reports on the bank's condition, the latest figures giving liabilities of $221,000 and assets of $222,000. Earlier figures put the liabilities at $180,000, with deposits of $100,000. Various reports are given for the failure, but the consensus of opinion is that failure of crop conditions in this territory has been a factor. The receiver expressed the opinion that the depositors eventually will be paid in full. He could give no definite date for final settlement, however.

It is said the stockholders of the bank are owners of 1,000 acres of rich farm land, located near here and Modesto, conservately estimated to be worth $100 per acre.

POVERTY SAFER THAN RICHES

President Charles Eliot Disputes Some Well Advertised Theories.

Boston, Oct. 27.—President Emeritus Charles Eliot of Harvard, in an article in the current number of the Harvard Theological Review, enunciates some strong opinions bearing upon industrial and social conditions.

"The moral evils of a community are not due to poverty," writes Dr. Eliot. "Poverty is a far safer moral condition than inordinate wealth. Child labor on the farm is wholesome and desirable. The minimum wage is one of the most deplorable doctrines and practices of trade unions."

PROGRESSIVE LEADERS MEET

Downstate Men Repudiate Plan to Merge with Republican Party.

Duquoin, Ill., Oct. 27.—Progressive leaders from twelve counties of southern Illinois in a conference here formally repudiated any and all forms of amalgamation with the Republican party. Progressive representatives from the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, and Twenty-fifth congressional districts attended the conference, headed by George W. Dewell, state committeeman.

"It is the sense of this body of Progressives that no compromise be made with any party or parties," was the formal resolution adopted by unanimous vote of more than 100 accredited leadrs.

"THE GARDEN OF ALLAH"

At the Detroit Opera House.

The greatest of all stage spectacles, "The Garden of Allah", will be presented at the Detroit Opera House during the whole of the week commencing Monday, Nov. 3, by Liebler Company's fine organization. This will be the first appearance of the wonderful attraction in Detroit, and is the only engagement it will play in Michigan the present season. The Company and the production come intact to Detroit just as presented for a whole season at the Century Theatre, New York. There are few stages in the country that can accomodate the car loads of scenery, properties, effects, and people that are necessary for the proper presentation of "The Garden of Allah". And the stage of the Detroit Opera House is one of them.

The beautiful and engrossing story of "The Garden of Allah" is familiar to and admired by general readers in all parts of the world. It is one of the most wonderful descriptive romances that has been written in modern times. Mr. George C. Tyler, head of the big theatrical producing firm of the Liebler Company, New York, saw the great possibilities for dramatization the book possessed, obtained the stage rights, then formed an expedition and took with him Robert Hichens, the author, a corps of scenic artists and his general stage director to the real Garden of Allah (which is the Great Desert of Sahara). The result is that many of the scenes described by Mr. Hichens in his book are reproduced with great faithfulness in the drama. Some of the main features are the realistic sand storm, gorgeous garden scene in the oasis, the night sky in the Desert, the dance hall scene with the imported Algerian dancers.

The play of "The Garden of Allah" was dramatized by Mr. Robert Hichens author of the book of the same name. In his work he was assisted by Mme Navarre, who was Mary Anderson, the celebrated American actress. A company of superior excellence has been engaged to portray the drama.

Matinees of "The Garden of Allah" will be played on Wednesday and Saturday, at the Detroit Opera House.

Her Only Thought.

The late Duke of Sutherland, who was the largest landowner in Europe, had at Dunrobin castle a small private railway line and often amused himself by driving the engine.

There is a little story that illustrates the reverence in which his highland tenants held the duke.

He was driving his little train one afternoon when he ran down an old woman. She was not seriously hurt—the amateur engineer never went very fast—and after ten or fifteen minutes she came to.

Her first words were these:

"Is the duke very angry?"

Answered.

"Do you dance on your toes, Miss Quickwit?"

"Never, Mr. Clumsey. Other people do that for me."

And he didn't know just what she meant until he tried to get another dance with her.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this visit, consultation, examination and advice free of charge.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases of the blood, liver, stomach, intestines, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bedwetting, tapeworm, leg ulcers, weak lungs, and those afflicted with long standing, deep seated chronic diseases that have baffled the skill of other physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness has often been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc. By their method these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection. They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife, with blood and with pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

Worn-out and run-down men and women, no matter what your ailment may be, no matter what you have been told, or the experience you have had with other physicians, settle it forever in your mind. If your case is incurable they will tell you so. Consult them upon this visit. It costs you nothing.

Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

Hillsdale Leader: An unusual experience happened on the hill Sunday. While Mr. Snyder of Hillsdale street was milking his cow in the barn Sunday morning the stool upon which he was sitting broke and frightened the cow. She attempted to escape and ran up the stairs to the hay loft. Mr. Snyder called in his neighbors to help him get her down. Ropes were attached to each hind leg and to her head. Two men held her head while two others walked her down the stairs backward by pulling on the ropes attached to her legs. The cow stood the ordeal very well, but it is hoped she will not try the experiment again.

L M. IDE RESIGNS.

Forced to Abstain from Business on Account of Ill Health

We clip the following from the Chicago Musical Times:

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—What will be a distinct matter for regret to hundreds in the trade, is the announcement made yesterday at a meeting of the stockholders of Laffargue & Co., to the effect that L. M. Ide, familiarly known as "Pop" Ide to a host of friends, has been compelled to resign as vice-president and general manager of that company owing to ill health. Except to a few who have known that Mr Ide has been in poor health for some months, this action came as a complete surprise. His future plans are not entirely settled but it is likely that within a week or so he will go South for the winter or possible to Europe and in any event it is unlikely that he will become actively engaged in business for a year or more.

After the meeting yesterday Mr. Ide made the following official statement:

"Owing to continued ill health and heeding the advice of his physician, L. M. Ide has decided to take a rest of six months or a year until he has fully recovered his health. In order to fully benefit by the rest, he has decided to sell his interest in Laffargue & Co., to Joseph Oktavec, and the deal was consummated today. By this transfer of stock, Mr. Oktavec acquires all of the stock of the Laffargue Co. Messrs. Ide and Oktavec have labored together in perfect unity in the upbuilding of the Laffargue Co. for nearly seven years and the parting of the ways at this time is greatly regretted by both. Mr Ide retires, wishing the Laffargue Co. and Mr. Oktavec every success and his services are always ready to further their interests as far as within his power."

Immediately following the resignation of Mr. Ide, Miss E O'Reilly, whose work as secretary of the Laffargue Co., has aided largely in its development, was elected treasurer as well and will continue in the dual capacity. Joseph Oktavec, of course, remains president and in control of the company.

The resignation of "Pop" Ide and his ill health will cause a wide feeling of sorrow among all who have come into contact with him. Personally he is one of the most popular men in the industry, and his jovial good nature, common sense and winning smile have added a circle of friends both in the industry and outside of it, which is seldom surpassed in extent.

Coming here about seven years ago to become vice president of the Laffargue Co., and its general manager, Mr. Ide joined forces with Joseph Oktavec and the two have labored incessantly for the upbuilding of the company with the result that the advertising slogan, "Busiest in the Bronx" became to be a recognized condition of the factory and the business today is regarded as being a most substantial and desirable one. With Mr. Oktavec handling the factory end and Mr. Ide directing the sales and finances of the company its progress was rapid and sure.

About two years ago, Mr Ide suffered from a muscular disorder of the heart but care on his part seemed to remedy the malady, and until the latter part of the summer, he believed that he was again in the best of health. A recurrence of the trouble, however, compelled him to remain away from the factory for some time and his condition was such that his physician instructed him to give up business entirely for a while.

Joseph Oktavec, in expressing his regret at the resignation of Mr. Ide, could scarcely contain himself and said that he felt he was losing a brother rather than a business associate.

Mr. Ide is an old Tecumseh boy and his friends will be sorry to hear of his ill health.

Looking Forward.

Who can see the brilliancy of character attained by individuals of our race without feeling that there is a pledge in this that what has been done already in the individual will yet be accomplished in the nation and the race?—F. W. Robertson.

MISS JULIA HENDERSHOT MARRIED.

Artistic to the last detail was the charming little wedding Wednesday evening, October 15, at the home of Mrs. Laura B. Hendershot on 249 John R. St. when her daughter, Julia Louise, became the bride of J. Louis Kenyon of this city.

The home was beautifully decorated with masses of cut flowers, palms and ferns—arches of autumn leaves with huge boquets of chrsanthemums on either side, being arranged in the parlor and on the open stairway, while the dining room and reception hall were equally as attractive with their massive boquets of pink roses; altogether making a most delightful setting for the beautiful bride and her pretty attendants.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white crepe meteor and filet lace, the skirt being draped in the front exposing the beautiful lace at the foot while the tunic and bodice were entirely of the lace and arranged neatly under the high, empire girdle. The bride was most charming in her veil of tulle, it being very tastefully arranged with lilies-of-the-valley and caught up on the train as it fell in graceful lines beneath the lace tunic. In her arms was a huge boquet of bridal roses and lilies-of-the-valley showered with maiden hair fern and silver gauze ribbon. She wore the gift of the groom, a platinum LaValliere of pearls and diamonds.

Miss Adele Stuart of this city and Miss Marian Rosacrans of Tecumseh attended the bride and they were beautifully gowned in white, carrying boquets of pink rose buds. Percy Bowen and George Leonard attended the groom, making a splendid showing.

To the strains of the wedding march rendered by the harpist, the bridal party, as they decended the open stairway banked in autumn leaves, presented a picture of rare beauty. The ribbon bearers, Miss Freda Lurie and her sister Miss Rebecca Lurie, gowned in pink crepe-de-chene were first to appear very gracefully forming a spacious isle for the wedding party.

Following Dr. Vance of the first Presbyterian church who performed the impressive ring ceremony, was the little ring bearer, Marjorie Hueston. She was exquisitely dressed in pink chiffon and carried a basket of pink rose buds, the petals of one of them bearing the ring. She was most pleasing and effective in her manner.

Following her were the attendants and the bridal party. After the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served in the dining room which was typically bridal in effect. The gifts were many and very beautiful.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. Mr and Mrs Fred Rosacrans and daughter Marian of Tecumseh, Miss Clara Hendershott of Mason, and Miss Laura Lewis of Los Angeles, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon left for the East and after Dec 1, will be at home at 249 John R St., Detroit.

RUMMAGE SALE

There will be a Rummage Sale in the east room of the Coller House, first door west of the Opera House, beginning Monday Nov, 3rd. STRONG SHOWING MADE BY OUR LOCAL BANKS

Four times a year National and State Banks are called on to make a report of the condition of their Bank to the National and State Governments and these reports must be made public in a newspaper published in the county in which the Bank is located.

In to-days issue we are publishing the statements of the Tecumseh State Savings Bank and the Lilley State Bank and wish to call the attention of our readers to the excellant showing made by these two Banks.

These two Banks shew a combined capital surplus and undivided profit account of about $110,000.00.

Total deposits of $793,000.00 and total assets of nearly $1,000,000.

We should feel proud of our local Banks and we have no need of going else where for a safe place to put our money. These Banks do a general Banking business pay interest at the rate of 3 per cent on savings account and time certificates of deposits.

The Officers and Directors are local men well known to you all made up of our successful business men and who are giving the details of this business their careful attention.

If we need money borrow at home, if we have surplus money deposit it at home and boost our local Banks.

WHISTLER'S ODD WAYS.

A Portrait That Was Slashed as Soon as It Was Painted.

Lord Redesdale once gave a description of Whistler's methods to a meeting in London in support of a memorial to the great artist. The eccentric master was painting, he said, a portrait of a lady.

Whistler took up his position at one end of the room with his sitter and the canvas at the other end. For a long time he stood looking at his model, holding in his hand a huge brush full of color, such a brush as a man would use to whitewash a house. Then he rushed forward and smashed the brush full of color into the canvas. Then he ran back, and forty or fifty times he repeated this. At the end of that time there stood out on the canvas a space which exactly indicated the figure, the form and the expression of the sitter.

There was a pathetic story attached to the picture. The bailiffs were in the house when the picture was finished. That was quite a common occurrence, and Whistler only laughed, but he went around his studio with a knife and deliberately destroyed all his canvases, including this picture, which was to have been his (Lord Redesdale's).—Dundee Advertiser.

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING.

The first fixed and official day of Thanksgiving was held in the year 1665. In the old public records of the court of Connecticut we find the following order which the court issued on October 12, 1665, appointing a day of general thanksgiving.

"This court doth appoint a solemn day of Thanksgiving to be kept throughout this colony on the last Wednesday of November, to return praise to God for His great mercy to us in the continuation of our liberties and privileges, both Civill and Ecclesiastick and for our peace and preventing those troubles that we feared by forriegne enemies and for the blessings in the fruits of the earth and the general healthe of the plantations."

It will be noted that the appointed day was Wednesday instead of Thursday, as we now celebrate. The spelling is odd in many cases.

Candles and Gas.

It requires fifty pounds of candle to produce as much light as 1,000 cubic feet of gas.

An Iron Tip.

Teacher—Johnny, can you tell me how iron was first discovered?

Johnny—Yes, sir.

"Well, just tell the class what your information is on that point."

"I heard pa say they smelt it."

Its Strong Point.

Young Lady (looking at rooms)—The sun doesn't come in here at all. Landlady—No; that is why I charge so much for this room. You can sit by the window without danger of getting freckled.—Boston Transcript.

Salves Can't Cure Eczema

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this: Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D.D.D. Prescription. This penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

A 50 cent bottle will start the cure and give you instant relief.

We have made fast friends of more than one family by recommendating this D.D.D. Prescription to a skin sufferer here and there, and we want you to try it now on our positive pay guarantee. D.D.D. Soap keeps the pores clean; ask us.

BLACK SILK
LIQUID STOVE POLISH

Keeps Your Stove "Always Ready for Company"

A bright, clean, glossy stove is the joy and pride of every housekeeper. But it is hard to keep a stove nice and shiny—unless Black Silk Stove Polish is used.

Here is the reason: Black Silk Stove Polish sticks right to the iron. It doesn't rub off or dust off. Its shine lasts four times longer than the shine of any other polish. You only need to polish one-fourth as often, yet your stove will be cleaner, brighter and better looking than it has been since you first bought it. Use on your parlor stove, kitchen stove or gas stove. Get a can from your hardware or stove dealer. If you do not find it better than any other stove polish you have ever used before, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. But we feel sure you will agree with the thousands of other up-to-date women who are now using Black Silk Stove Polish and who say it is the "best stove polish ever made."

BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH

LIQUID OR PASTE
ONE QUALITY

Be sure to get the genuine. Black Silk Stove Polish costs you no more than the ordinary kind.

Keep your grates, registers, fenders and stove pipes bright and free from rusting by using BLACK SILK AIR-DRYING ENAMEL. Brush free with each can of enamel only.

Use BLACK SILK METAL POLISH for silverware, nickel, tinware or brass. It works quickly, easily, and leaves a brilliant surface. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

FRANK M. RYAN

Leader of Iron Workers Soon to Know His Fate.

IRON WORKERS TO KNOW FATE

Cases of Men Convicted on Dynamite Charges Up Wednesday.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Thirty of the thirty-nine officers and members of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers who were found guilty of conspiracy and of illegally transporting explosives in the famous dynamiting cases will open their case before the United States circuit court of appeals Wednesday. They will know their fate probably by Saturday, as the court has given government and defense each a day and a half for argument.

Of the defendents, Frank M. Ryan, president of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers union, was sentenced to seven years in Leavenworth penitentiary, eight others to six years, two to four years, twelve to three years, four to two years, and six to one year.

LEPROSY INCREASING IN U.S.

Secretary of Mission Committee Says World Has 1,000,000.

Denver, Col., Oct. 27.—Leprosy is rapidly increasing in the United States, according to William M. Donner, secretary to the United States committee of the mission to lepers. Mr. Lonners says there are 1,000,000 lepers in the world.

The United States, however, has only a small portion of this number. "The disease is not hereditary," he says. "Our mission has maintained homes for untainted children of lepers for years."

Tecumseh Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove it

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Tecumseh given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which proved so beneficial years ago with the kidneys, can naturally be expected to perform the same work in similar cases. Read this:

A. W. Shurtz, Kilbnes St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills at different times during the past ten years and they have always given me relief from distressing symptoms of kidney complaint. I have procured my supply of Doan's Kidney Pills from Wright & Son's Drug Store and my experience has been so satisfactory that I willingly give this public account of it."

A WILLING RE-ENDORSEMENT.

When Mr. Shurtz was interviewed at a later date he said: "I am only too willing to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills, for I know that they act as represented. You may continue to use my name as a reference."

Milwaukee Girl Says She Could Swim to Horizon.

New York, Oct. 27.—Miss Martha Mitchell of Milwaukee was closely guarded on the steamship Baltic on the voyage because Captain Ransom feared she might make a second attempt to jump overboard. Miss Mitchell, who has been studying art in Europe, had told fellow passengers she believed that if she jumped overboard the Almighty would save her from drowning. "He will let me swim to the horizon," she said, and started to climb the railing.

INDICT PYTHIAN HOME HEAD

Charge of Mistreating Inmate Lays Against Rev. Clark.

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 27.—The Rev. Thornton Clark, superintendent of the Illinois Pythian home at Decatur, has been indicted by the Macon county grand jury on a charge of inflicting bodily injury on Otto Beckman, an inmate of the home.

The special board of Pythians who investigated conditions at the home earlier in the week took no definite action against Clark, and the indictment by the jury followed.

SYMMES IS TO SURRENDER

Chicago Railways Lawyer Plans to Go to Holland, Mich.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Thomas J. Symmes, attorney for the Chicago Railways company, made preparations to leave for Holland, Mich., in response to the warrant for his arrest that was issued by Judge J. T. DeRoller, charging him with having bribed or attempted to bribe Prosecuting Attorney Louis Osterhaus of Ottawa county, Mich., and with offering a bribe to Sheriff Hans Dykhus of the same county.

On reaching the Michigan city he intends to present himself to the court and give bail for his appearance on such a date as may be set for the hearing. He spent considerable time in consultation with his brother attorneys. He repeated his denial that he had paid Osterhaus or any one else $150 to secure the arrests of and to prosecute Detectives James Carlin and Thomas V. Flannigan of Chicago.

RAILWAY CUTS OFF BIG RUN OF SALMON

Dominion Experts Report Loss Running into Millions.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 27.—The Dominion fisheries experts report a loss estimated at four and five million dollars annually to the British salmon fishing industry and probably the total disappearance of the famous "Big Run" of salmon every four years as one of the startling results of the construction of the new Canadian Northern Trans-continental line through the Frazer river canyon.

In August last, at the time of the big quadrennial run of salmon up the Frazer river to the spawning grounds, it was discovered that literally millions of salmon were being dammed back from further ascent of the river beyond the narrow pass at Hells Gate where the C. N. R. construction combined with unusually high water in the Frazer had altered the currents and eddies in the river from previous years. In consequence millions of the big four year old fish turned back or died without spawning.

HOW TO PRESERVE YOUTH AND BEAUTY.

One great secret of youth and beauty for the young woman or the mother is the proper understanding of her womanly system and well-being. Every woman, young or old, should know herself and her physical make up. A good way to arrive at this knowledge is to get a good doctor book, such for instance, as "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M. D., which can readily be procured by sending thirty-one cents for cloth-bound copy, addressing Dr. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y.

The womanly system is a delicate machine which can only be compared to the intricate mechanism of a beautiful watch which will keep in good running order only with good care and the proper oiling at the right time, so that the delicate mechanism may not be worn out. Very many times young women get old or run down before their time through ignorance and the improper handling of this human mechanism. Mental depression, a confused head, backache, headache, or hot flashes and many symptoms of derangement of the womanly system can be avoided by a proper understanding of what to do, in those trying times that come to all women.

MRS. WILLIAMS.

MRS. G. H. WILLIAMS, of Lynnhaven, Va., wrote: "It is six years since my health gave way. I had female trouble and all the doctors (I employed three) said I would die. I was not able to do my work, had to hire someone all the time. Finally, I read in the papers about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and decided to try it. I had not taken but one bottle until I found it had done me good. I took, in all, five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I am able to do all my housework, and have gained fourteen pounds. I advise all women who suffer from female trouble to try your 'Favorite Prescription.' It's the only medicine on earth."

One Hundred Varieties of Marble.

Although Vermont occupies only a small space on the map when compared with the great area of some of the other states of the Union, yet its mineral resources are very important. This little state leads the world in the production of marble and granite, and the deposits apparently are inexhaustible. The greatest center of the marble industry of the world is in the vicinity of Rutland, Vt., particularly at Proctor and West Rutland, while the greatest center of the granite industry of the world is in and around Barre and Hardwick, Vt.

Although twenty-six states furnish marble, Vermont supplies about 70 per cent of the finer grades suitable for monumental work and statuary. This state furnishes 41 per cent of all the building marble used in this country, and the demand for this kind of stone is increasing. There are about a hundred varieties of marble quarried in Vermont, ranging from the purest white, suitable for statuary, to jet black.—Walter H. Crockett in National Magazine.

Seventeenth Century Civility.

If the seventeenth century Englishman failed in his manners it was not for want of instruction. "The Rules of Civility," a book published in 1675, contains the following hints on good behavior: "Being in discourse with a man, 'tis no less than ridiculous to pull him by the Buttons, to play with the Bandstrings, Belt or Cloak; or to punch him now and then on the Stomach! 'tis a pleasant sight, and well worthy of laughter, to see him that is so puncht, fall back, and retire; whilst the other, insensible of his absurdity, pursues and presses him into some corner, where he is at last glad to cry quarter, before his comrade perceives he is in danger." And again: "It argues neglect, and to undervalue a man, to sleep when he is discoursing or reading; therefore good manners command it to be forbid; besides, something there may happen in the act that may offend, as snoring, sweating, gasping or dribbling."

Somersault by Aeroplane.

Captain Aubry of the French army accomplished a complete somersault while aboard an aeroplane high above the earth. "I was returning after a thirty-five minute flight," the captain said, "facing a wind of about twenty-two miles per hour. My altitude was about 2,500 feet. At the moment of descent a series of violent gusts struck the machine. As I dipped the nose of the machine a couple of quick gusts struck the top of the main planes and placed me in a vertical position. While endeavoring to manipulate the elevator I found the machine had taken me in a perfectly vertical chute to less than 1,500 feet. It here adopted a horizontal attitude upside down and proceeded to effect a tail first volplane." Continuing, he said: "The machine then gradually took up the vertical position again, describing a gigantic 'S' while doing so. Flattening out, I flew to a spot about two miles distant."

Her Own Way

She Wouldn't Have It When She Could

By HELEN ORMSBY

Walter was an only son. He early developed an individuality and talent. Instead of being made worthless by petting, he was led to consider himself of especial importance. At college he was an honor man and a leader in class politics. He studied the profession of the law and was early picked out for a prominent man.

Such, in a nutshell, was Walter when I first met him. As for myself, I can only say that I was born inordinately selfish.

Both Walter and I, though we were conscious of an attachment for each other, were equally conscious of the difficulty of two persons, each accustomed to expecting all others to bend to their individual will, to get together, or, what would be more difficult still, to live together. However, for my part—I can't answer for Walter—my deliberations on the subject were naturally confined to myself until he proposed to me. Then the subject was opened between us without reserve.

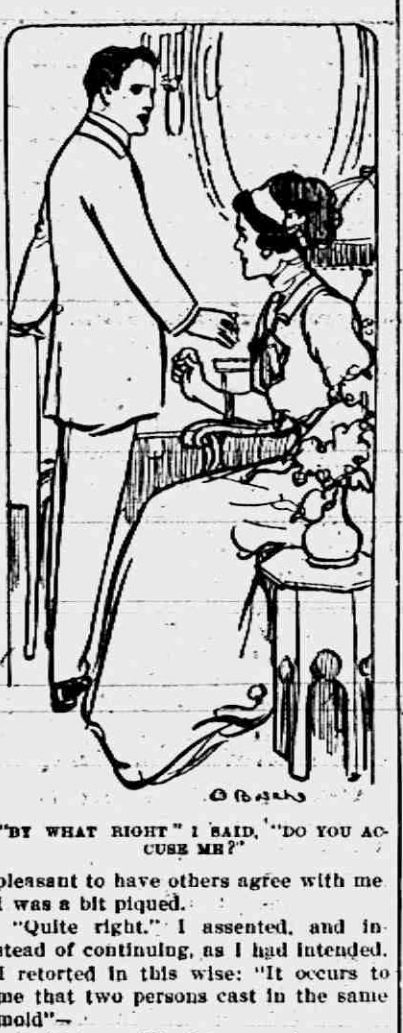
"I confess," I said to him, "that I admire you, respect you, and I am not sure but that I love you. But there is one person whom I confess I love better than you."

He paled at this, supposing that I referred to a man. I quickly set him right.

"This person whom I love is a woman."

"I see. You refer to yourself."

While I am perfectly willing to acknowledge my shortcomings, it is not



"BY WHAT RIGHT" I SAID, "DO YOU ACCUSE ME?"

pleasant to have others agree with me I was a bit piqued.

"Quite right," I assented, and instead of continuing, as I had intended, I retorted in this wise: "It occurs to me that two persons cast in the same mold"—

"Selfishness," he interrupted.

"Yes, selfishness—would not be likely to get on together."

There was a brief pause between us, during which he seemed to be turning the matter over in his mind.

"I admit," he said presently, "that, while I am the most important man in the world to myself, I am not the most important"—

He had got mixed in his construction, and I took advantage of his dilemma.

"You couldn't very well be a woman without being born over again."

"I mean that the requirements of a woman might be of more importance to me than my own."

He had not put me in a good humor by agreeing with me as to my own selfishness, and I was indisposed to do my part in making room for him on the narrow path on which we were trying to walk side by side. Indeed, I concluded not to divide it with him, but to step before him.

"My selfishness," I said, "which, fortunately for an understanding between us, you have noticed"—

"Pardon me; I meant"—

"Never mind what you meant. You spoke the truth. I am quite sure that you could not give way to any one, man or woman."

"Well?"

"Then why do you make this proposition?"

"I have not denied that I could give way to a woman. I referred to a man."

There was a bit of triumph in his tone, and I knew very well that he had intended to trap me for taking advantage of him when he got mixed up in a sentence that brought him out in a reductio ad absurdum—in other words, ridiculous. Possibly had he said that he loved me so well he would be happy to give way to me in all things without this little sting attached to the declaration I would have been more yielding. As it was, the spiteful skirmishing must continue.

"I have not understood," I said, "from your words thus far—words, words, nothing but words—that you are capable of giving way to any one, man or woman. And since, as you have observed, I am inordinately selfish myself I don't see what object there would be for us in tying ourselves together."

"We would fulfill a natural law."

"By living unnatural lives. No, thanks; I prefer to remain single. There are too many couples who fulfill a natural law and live a life of perpetual quarrel and end their effort in a divorce court."

He had taken my hand when making his proposition; now he dropped it, saying that since I would not give way to any man and I had no confidence that he could give way to any woman there was nothing for it but to drop the matter. This was not to my liking. Walter had a disagreeable way of agreeing with me.

"Since it is so soon done for," I said, with some acerbity, "the wonder is what it was begun for."

"It was experimental on my part," he said. "I am looking for a girl who will permit me to give way to her in all things. It seems that I shall have to look further."

What impudence!

He rose and was going to leave me when I [illegible] at him.

"By what right," I said, "do you accuse me of not permitting you to give way to me?"

"Did you not say that you were quite sure I could not give way to any one, man or woman?"

"You have shown no disposition to do so."

"Try me!"

"How?"

"I will put myself under your orders. The first time I refuse to obey you, to give way to you in any disputed point, send me about my business. The first time you refuse to be obeyed or to have your own way you are to accept me for your wedded husband with the words love, honor and obey thrown in."

Good gracious! He quite took away my breath.

There was a lot more talk in the same vein, I affecting to believe that he was not in earnest or that he would not keep his contract. But he adhered to his purpose, and since I must either lose him or yield to him I yielded. I didn't realize that I was yielding at the time or I would not have done it. He left me, it being understood that the next time we came together we were not to speak of the matter between us, but I was to be on trial. It seemed very absurd to suppose that I was to refuse to have my own way about anything, and I felt quite sure of standing the test. I also felt confident that he was so used to leading every one with whom he came in contact that he would try to make me follow him in all things.

A week passed, during which Walter did not come once to see me. The days seemed inordinately long, the evenings endless. All this time I was having my own way, every hour, every minute. What did Walter mean by keeping away? Was he never coming again? I would have sent for him had not my pride forbidden me. I entered upon a second week with misgivings, beginning to conjure up all manner of reasons for his keeping away from me. At last I settled down to this: He had been convinced that it was useless for two such selfish persons to get on together and had made up his mind to drop the matter.

Now, I am not one of those clinging creatures who rather than lose an idol will beg pitifully. Not I. I made up my mind that if this was his game, if he were intending to drop me, I would have the satisfaction of dropping him. I wrote him a note stating that after full consideration of his proposition I had decided that the facts would not warrant his going any further with the matter and I could not consent to receive him should he call again, except with the understanding that his suit was not to be renewed.

I received no reply at once, as I expected I would, but in four or five days a note came from Walter stating that he had been called away on important business soon after parting with me and had not written since he had expected to return every day. His departure had been delayed and he had reached home to find my note. He added, "Your forbidding me to call again as a suitor has broken my heart."

"Oh, heavens!" I exclaimed. "What have I done?" He had evidently taken my note for a dismissal. I must hasten to assure him that it had been sent through a misapprehension. I wrote him an explanation. He replied that the mistake had been very unfortunate, but since I had forbidden him to call except as a stranger he had not the heart to call at all.

How provoking! He should have understood that this prohibition was recalled without my saying so in words. However, I must withdraw it, and I did so.

The same evening he came to see me and, folding me in his arms, exclaimed: "I've won! You must love, honor and obey me, especially the obey."

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"You forbade me to call again as a suitor, and when I gave you your own way in the matter you would not have it."

"How ridiculous!"

"Ridiculous! Do you deny that you have refused to be humored?"

Of course there were a number of ways to get out of it. No woman can be cornered in a way like that. But I'd had quite enough of it in the two weeks I had been waiting for him, and I didn't care to go through any more of it. So I pretended that he had been very shrewd and had beaten me and I was quite content to let him have his own way.

"My own way!" he exclaimed. "I like that. I have proved conclusively that you won't have yours."

On Her Mind.

Speaking of a lobbyist whose lobby had failed, a senator said: "He tried to accept defeat with urbanity, but unconsciously he showed his chagrin. Poor chap, he resembled Mrs. Smythe. Mrs. Smythe called on a friend, expecting to be asked to stay for luncheon. But the friend didn't ask her, and so Mrs. Smythe, secretly much disappointed and put out, rose to go. She didn't intend in the least to show her regret, but involuntarily, as she put out her hand, she said: 'Well, goodby, dear Mrs. Luncheon.'"—Utica Observer.

GAINS A $500,000 ESTATE

Veteran in Marion Soldier's Home Claims Riches in Illinois.

Marion, Ind., Oct. 27.—Henry Bowman, an inmate of the National Military home here, was notified that he is heir to a $500,000 estate left by a nephew, John Bowman, who died recently at Pana, Ill.

The nephew lost all trace of his relative and it was with some difficulty that the administrator located the veteran here. Bowman returned with the administrator to Illinois. Bowman had been a recluse before his admittance to the soldiers' home and was noted for buying five autos for chicken roosts.

7 FIREMEN KILLED

Milwaukee Is Visited by $500-000 Conflagration.

BURIED IN BURNING DEBRIS

Fire Started So Quickly and Made Such Headway That Foes Were Taken Unawares—Fire Truck Precipitated—Catholic Priest Becomes Heroic Figure in Battle.

MILWAUKEE, WIS. — In a half a million dollar fire which broke out in the four story building of the Goodyear Rubber company, in the center of the business district at 8 o'clock at night, seven firemen wer killed under the falling walls when an explosion completely wrecked the building and smashed glass in surrounding buildings within a radius of two blocks.

Flying wreckage injured a score more while many were badly cut by the cyclone of glass which swept through the alley immediately following the explosion.

When the department arrived it was apparent that the blaze was a dangerous one and an extra alarm followed. Fire tugs joined the score of fire engines, defying twenty-two streams of water and the blaze worked its way to the roof. A half hour after the first alarm there was a loud explosion. It came with such a suddenness that the firemen were unable to escape from the danger zone. The huge truck which was plying a stream in front of the structure was twisted in two, precipitating two firemen to the pavement, thirty feet below.

Firemen Buried Under Blaze.

In the rear in the narrow alley a more pitiful scene was enacted. Here the wall crumbled, a smoking heap of wood and bricks. Beneath it were carried a group of firemen. The heap of bricks and wood soon burned anew and the firemen gave their attention t osmothering this heap in an endeavor to render aid to the buried firemen. At the time the heat was so fierce that it was impossible to get within ten feet of the heap. Father Joseph Murphy, of the local cathedral, was the hero of the alley, working his way under the debris in a shaky tunnel of falling bricks, giving absolution to the buried men, then throwing off his robe in which he had hurriedly left the church, worked with the firemen to drag out the battered bodies.

MEXICO ELECTION FAILS

Not Enough Votes Cast to Make the Affair Valid.

MEXICO CITY, MEX.—A report that General Felix Diaz has been arrested in Vera Cruz caused a great stir in the capital. Diaz is said to be on his way here under an escort of soldiers

Voting throughout the country has been light. In some places there was no voting at all. Diaz appears to be running ahead of this three rivals, but the indications are that not sufficient votes will be cast to validate the election. In that event President Huerta will continue as provisional president. Another election would have to wait for his proclamation.

Nueva Leon reports that the rumor of Diaz's arrest reached there early, but such voting as there was appeared to be in his favor. Few ballots were cast, however. Several hundred votes were cast at Juarez and Diaz is in the lead there.

At Chihuahua the disorder is reported to have been so great as to determine the military governor to render a postponment of the voting for state officials.

DIAZ ON U. S. WARSHIP

Applies to American Consulate in Vera Cruz for Protection.

VERA CRUZ, MEXICO — General Felix Dias applied to the American consulate for protection and was taken on board the United States gunboat Wheeling.

Jose Sandoval and Cecilio Ocon, two Mexicans, and Alexander Williams, an American newspaper correspondent, who had made similar application to the consulate, were also taken on board the gunboat with the general.

LIFE JOB AND $25 FOR HANGING SIGN

Girl Performs Steeplejack Task After Men Refuse.

DETROIT, MICH.—Miss Mollie McCafferty, chambermaid at the Hotel Hoffman, is now a life fixture at that hostelry. Because the Irish girl put steeplejacks to shame she has earned $25 and a soft job for the rest of her life.

Mollie climbed out on a sign suspended from the third story of the hotel on Woodward avenue and placed 300 electric light bulbs in it, so it could be in operation that night. From the ground the sign appears to be forty to fifty feet in the air, and there is an iron brace one inch in width. The plucky girl balanced herself for two hours and placed the bulbs.

The sign was placed Friday in the afternoon and when Manager Shaw asked the men to place the bulbs they told him it was quitting time but they would return the next morning. They did not keep their word. Mr. Shaw offered several men about the hotel, some of them electricians, $25 to put the lights in. All refused to take the risk.

CITES SAGINAW CITY COUNCIL

Michigan Supreme Court Demands Answer on Why Election Is Denied.

SAGINAW, MICH. — The Michigan supreme court has issued a writ of mandamus citing the Saginaw common council to appear Oct. 28 and show cause why the election under the charter, which provides for the commission form of government, should not be held Nov. 15.

The council set this date, but refused to make preparation for the election, when an injunction to restrain it was asked. The injunction was denied.

STRIKERS ARRESTED; PICKETING CHARGED

Two Hundred and Fifty Held for Violating Injunction.

CALUMET, MICH.—Just one hundred and eighty-nine arrests of striking copper miners were made by the militia in this district. The prisoners, who are charged with violation of the injunction against picketing, were taken to Houghton in special street cars, guarded by troops, and will be given a hearing before Circuit Judge O'Brien.

There are now 250 prisoners arrested for strike offenses, in the custody of the sheriff of Houghton county.

AUDUBON LEADER IS KILLED

Jefferson Butler Meets Fatal Accident at Hands of Auto Driver.

DETROIT, MICH. — Jefferson Butler, the president of the Michigan Audubon society, nationally known as a lover and protector of bird life, and for many years a prominent Detroit attorney, was struck and almost instantly killed at the intersection of Woodward and Philadelphia avenues, by an automobile driven by Elliott C. Morse, sales manager of the Hudson Motor Car company.

The accident is regarded as unavoidable, Mr. Butler turning the bicycle on which he was riding in front of the automobile which was running close behind him and in the same direction.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—The identity of the woman who was strangled with her own scarf and her face and head beaten to a jelly by blows from a piece of gas pipe supposed to have been wielded by a man giving his name as George Schultz, has been established as that of Mrs. Amelia Wille, aged fifty-two, a widow, who lived in rear of Thirty-fifth and Vliet streets.

HOUSTON, TEX.—A deadly bolt of lightning struck a column of the Sixteenth United States cavalry marching between Texas City and Galveston, killing Privates John Monroe, George Moris and John Zimmer Veterinary Surgeon Devine was slightly injured. Several horses and mules were killed. A number of troopers were unhorsed.

HAMMOND, IND. — Miss Alice W. Gerhard of Algona, Wis., a teacher in the Chicago Heights Public school, was instantly killed in an automobile accident six miles south of here shortly after midnight when her companion, Ralph Johnson, a young Chicago Heights business man, drove his powerful car into a ditch during a fog.

NEW GLARUS, WIS. — Jacob J. Hoesly, fifty-six years old, a farmer residing five miles south of here, met instant death while hunting, his body being found hanging over a fence with the head blown off. Hoesly had evidently started to climb the fence when the trigger of the gun caught and discharged the weapon.

HELEN GARDNER IN CLEOPATRA

This Gorgeous Spectacle at the Bradley Opera House

The height of perfection in motion picture drama is reached in the magnificent portrayal of "CLEOPATRA" by the noted actress HELEN GARDNER and her superb company which will be presented at the BRADLEY OPERA HOUSE, next MONDAY, NOVEMBER [illegible]. This mammoth production is in six reels or over 6000 feet of film. As it takes nearly two hours to give the entire show only two shows will be given, the first one starting at 7:00 o'clock or as near that as possible and the second at about 9:00.

To say that this production is magnificent is putting it very mild. The entire six reels are hand colored and the settings and costumes are beyond anything ever shown here before. Managers all over the country have sought eagerly to book this attraction, and theatre goers are enthusiastic about the beautiful views and costumes, and the artistic acting of HELEN GARDNER (Miss Gardner will be remembered by local theatre goers as one of the leading ladies appearing in the Vitagraph films). The subject of "CLEOPATRA" presents great opportunity for effect and it is doubtful if a person could be found who could do justice to the part as Miss Gardner. Go see "CLEOPATRA." It has been rightly called "a feast for the eyes."

OUR ATTITUDE TOWARD MEXICO JUSTIFIED

The United States occupied Cuba because we had a duty to perform in the interest of the suffering and the weak. A war that was devastating the island had been going on for three years with increasing atrocities. We relieved a deadlocked situation in a very few days, established peace in Cuba, allowed 200,000 young Spanish soldiers to go back to their homes and conferred a blessing upon the people of Spain as well as upon those of Cuba. President Wilson has tried to confer a blessing upon the people of Mexico by offering neighborly and disinterested counsel. He has tried to induce the opposing factions to accept our Government as their friend and unite upon some honorable way to restore order and peace. But the sectional leaders are selfish and headstrong and those who overthrew and assassinated Madero have gone too far to talk in unselfish terms about the welfare of their country. What will happen, therefore, nobody knows; and yet the patient, restrained, moderate course and tone of President Wilson and his agents have strengthened rather than weakened the ultimate power of the United States to be of practical service to the people of Mexico. The opportunity will present itself in some form but what that form may be does not as yet appear.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for Novemoer.

A TRIBE OF TRAMPS.

East African Outcasts That Won't Work and Will Steal.

While on a hunting expedition to British East Africa in quest of pictures of wild horses Paul J. Rainey discovered that even among savages there is a tribe which closely resembles our own "knights of the road." They are the Wandorobo. They are found along the Guaso Nyiro and Guaso Narok rivers and are regarded as outcasts by the other native tribes.

The Wandorobo most closely resembles his American brother, the tramp, in that he refuses to work. He is a hunter and is exceedingly expert with the poisoned arrow, which he uses exclusively. A large club he carries is used to ward off and to scare wild beasts that may come too near.

Although the Wandorobo has settlements in some places, he wanders far from home and usually makes his bed in the top of a tree to be safe from wild animals. He is a notorious thief, and whenever he approaches an encampment the askari, or policeman, who is the only native permitted by the government to wear arms, watches the Wandorobo very carefully, for there is nothing too hot or too heavy for him to try to make off with.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

CUTTING THE BASES.

Mike Kelly Once Scored From Second Through the Pitcher's Box.

Writing on "Take a Chance Versus Play It Safe" in baseball in the American Magazine, Hugh S. Fullerton tells the following story about Mike Kelly, the great Chicago ball player of a generation ago:

"The chances Kelly took were the marvels of his era. I have seen him again and again cut straight across the diamond from first to third base or from second to the home plate and land in safety because the umpire failed to see his reckless move.

"One day Kelly cut from first to third on a slow infield bounder. He ran past the umpire, who was racing toward first, screaming at him to watch the play, and, swinging straight across, he tore for third. Gaffney called the runner out at first and whirled just in time to catch 'Kel' going into third, then called him out. Kelly walked to the umpire, protested an instant; then, knowing Gaffney had caught him in the act, he remarked, 'All right, Mr. Umpire; I've never been on these grounds before and didn't know which was second base.'

"Two innings later he scored from second base through the pitcher's box and was not seen."

"THE GARDEN OF ALLAH"

At the Detroit Opera House

The greatest of all stage spectacles, "The Garden of Allah", will be presented at the Detroit Opera House during the whole of the week commencing Monday, Nov. 3, by Liebler Company's fine organization. This will be the first appearance of the wonderful attraction in Detroit, and is the only engagement it will play in Michigan the present season. The Company and the production come intact to Detroit just as presented for a whole season at the Century Theatre, New York. There are few stages in the country that can accomodate the carloads of scenery, properties, effects and people that are necessary for the proper presentation of "The Garden of Allah", and the stage of the Detroit Opera House is one of them.

The beautiful and engrossing story of "The Garden of Allah" is familiar to and admired by general readers in all parts of the world. It is one of the most wonderful descriptive romances that has been written in modern times. Mr George C. Tyler, head of the big theatrical producing firm of the Liebler Company, New York, saw the great possibilities for dramatization the book possessed, obtained the stage rights, then formed an expedition and took with him Robert Hichens, the author, a corps of scenic artists and his general stage director to the real Garden of Allah (which is the Great Desert of Sahara). The result is that many of the scenes described by Mr. Hichens in his book are reproduced with great faithfulness in the drama. Some of the main features are the realistic sand storm, gorgeous garden scene in the oasis, the night sky in the Desert, the dance hall scene with the imported Algerian dancers.

The play of "The Garden of Allah" was dramatized by Mr. Robert Hichens author of the book of the same name. In his work he was assisted by Mme Navarre, who was Mary Anderson, the celebrated American actress. A company of superior excellence has been engaged to portray the drama.

Matinees of "The Garden of Allah" will be played on Wednesday and Saturday at the Detroit Opera House.

Ancient Time-Telling Methods.

The invention of the sun dial is generally attributed to a Grecian astronomer who died about 547 B. C. The dial was followed by the hour glass and this by the water clock, which marked time by the escape of water through an orifice. These were introduced into Rome about 155 B. C., but are believed to have been in use in Chaldea and Egypt for a hundred years previous to that date.

BASEBALL.

GIANTS AND WHITE SOX

To Make Tour of World, Playing 50 Games While Abroad.

The Giants and White Sox are planning a grand trip around the world, beginning the first of December. After playing 85 exhibition games in the west the two teams will sail from Vancouver to Japan the last week in November.

Their first games in foreign countries will be played in Yokohama in December. Three more games will be played in Japan. They will then sail for Shanghai, China, playing one game, then on to Hongkong for a game. Reaching Manila they will remain two days, then depart for Australia where they will give ten exhibition games in several of the larger cities. In January they will set sail in the Indian Ocean, landing at Colombo for one game. They will arrive at Cairo in February, playing in Cairo and Alexandria. Their next trip will be across the Mediterranean sea, going to Naples, Rome, and Florence, then to Milan, Monte Carlo, Paris, Nice and Marseilles. They will spend five days in Paris, then move on to London for five days after which they will visit Edinburg and Glascow for three days. In Ireland they will play at Dublin and Queenstown. They will then set sail for New York and expect to arrive March 6, 1914.

COMING

UNITED DOCTORS SPECIALIST

Will Make Their Regular Visit

TO TECUMSEH, BARRETT HOTEL, FRIDAY, NOV. 7.

Hours 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases.

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this visit, consultation, examination and advice free of charge.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases of the blood, liver, stomach, intestines, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, tape worm, leg ulcers, weak lungs, and those afflicted with long standing, deep seated chronic diseases that have baffled the skill of other physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness has often been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones tumors, goiter, piles, etc. By their method these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection. They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife, with blood and with pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

Worn-out and run-down men and women, no matter what your ailment may be, no matter what you have been told, or the experience you have had with other physicians, settle it forever in your mind. If your case is incurable they will tell you so. Consult them upon this visit. It costs you nothing.

Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

AGED TECUMSEH MEN IN TROUBLE,

William Corner, aged 80 years, the father of Mrs Ira Lamkin, has been visiting another daughter Mrs. Lydia Ruggles at Three Rivers. While driving to church last Sunday, as he was crossing the railroad track, the rig was struck by a passenger train. The horse was killed instantly. The buggy was wrecked and Mr. Corner was thrown some 40 feet into a ditch. He sustained some very serious bruises and the physician fear concussion of the brain.

Luther Barber, aged 75, father of Mrs. Andrew Wonders, strayed away Tuesday night and the family, becoming alarmed, started out with the neighbors in search of him. He had been husking corn on the Bradley farm leaving there about 4 o'clock for home. He evidently became bewildered for he came through town within half a block of home. When he realized that he was lost he was two and a half miles south of town. Stopping at a farm house he told them he was lost and they kindly took him in and brought him home about 9 o'clock in the evening.

A LOVELY FACE—BUT UGLY HAIR

How often you see an otherwise lovely face spoiled by homely hair—a face that would be most charmingly beautiful if she only had prettier hair. What a pity!—and how foolish! Because that ugly hair, stringy, dull, lifeless looking though it may be, can be made as glossy, soft, silky and beautiful as the heart could desire if only taken proper care of.

Harmony Hair Beautifier is just what it is named—a hair beautifier. It is not a hair dye or hair oil—it is just a dainty, rose-perfumed liquid dressing to give the hair its natural wavy softness, its natural rich beauty. Very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruff free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick and thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly; the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet-smelling cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guarantee to satisfy you in every way or your money back. Sold in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States, Canada and Great Britian, which own the big Harmony laboratories in Boston, where the many celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made. IN THE TECUMSEH HERALD 35 YEARS AGO TO DAY

Oct. 31, 1878

Willis Merritt one of the Republican candidates for Circuit Court Commissioner, has been making quite an active canvas about the County, and we understand that his speeches are being well received. He will pole a good vote.

S. H Merritt for County Clerk is going to pole a heavy vote among all parties in this part of the County. He has a large circle of personal friends and besides he is admirably adapted by natural talent and previous training to fill that position. The party majority is against him but we shouldn't be surprised to see him pull through.

The last brick on the new Herald building was laid this forenoon. The roof will be finished this week and the work on the interior will be pushed as rapidly as possible. We expect to move in, in about four weeks.

The contract for furnishing the windows and doors of the new Opera House has been awarded to Temple & Co.

Tuesday last while Joseph Tilden and family were eating dinner, they were surprised by an alarm of fire given by P. W. Adams who was passing by. They found a fire already finely started in one of the chambers. By hard work the fire was extinguished before doing much damage.

A new railroad project is on foot to run from Toledo to Grand Haven via Adrian, Rome and Addison in this County. Some gentlemen from Coldwater and Marshall were in Adrian last week Tuesday, conferring with the leading citizens of that city on the subject.

Seventeenth Century Civility.

If the seventeenth century Englishman failed in his manners it was not for want of instruction. "The Rules of Civility," a book published in 1675, contains the following hints on good behavior: "Being in discourse with a man, 'tis no less than ridiculous to pull him by the Buttons, to play with the Bandstrings, Belt or Cloak; or to punch him now and then on the Stomach! 'tis a pleasant sight, and well worthy of laughter, to see him that is so puncht, fall back, and retire; whilst the other, insensible of his absurdity, pursues and presses him into some corner, where he is at last glad to cry quarter, before his comrade perceives he is in danger." And again: "It argues neglect, and to undervalue a man, to sleep when he is discoursing or reading; therefore good manners command it to be forbid; besides, something there may happen in the act that may offend, as snoring, sweating, gasping or dribbling."

Curious Ear of the Catfish.

The catfish uses his lungs as an organ of hearing. The needless lung becomes a closed sac filled with air and commonly known as the swim bladder. In the catfish, as in the suckers, chubs and most brook fish, the air bladder is large and is connected by a slender tube, the remains of the trachead, to the esophagus. At its front it fits closely to the vertebral column. The anterior vertebrae are much enlarged, twisted together, and through them passes a chain of bones, which connects with the hidden cavity of the air. The bladder therefore assists the ear of the catfish as the tympanum and its bones assist the ear of the higher animals. An ear of this sort can carry little range of variety in sound. It probably gives only the impression of jars or disturbances in the water.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

"Seventh International Purity Congress will convene in Minneapolis, Minnesota, November 7 to 12, 1913. Sunday, November 9th, has been designated 'Purity Sunday,' the purpose being to create and crystallize intelligent sentiment against the greatest evils of our time, and to direct this stirred conscience into safe and sane action for the annihilation of commercialized vice and the promotion of social and personal morality."

Every state in the Union is expending vast sums of money for the purpose of caring for its imbeciles, epileptics, lunatics, paupers and criminals. This is a commendable characteristic of modern civilization. In recent years the pertinent question has been asked, "Why not give careful attention to the source of these unfortunates?" Every child has the divine right to be decently born. Social and individual purity together with physical and mental vigor constitutes a secure means of making this divine right possible.

The people of our great state must be awakened. They must come to an appreciation of the full meaning and importance of a single standard of virtue, if they are ever to banish white slavery and kindred crimes from society.

On Purity Sunday let all of the clergymen of all of the churches appeal to all of the people in behalf of that purity which Christ taught. Emphasize the positive side of personal righteousness. Much that is printed in books and proclaimed from the platform, in relation to sex problems, is true, yet positively pernicious. Knowledge in itself does not always make for virtue—it may make for vicious conduct. Therefore, awaken and arouse a love for purity. It is the sunlight of righteousness that the that the youth of our land must have if they are to grow into the fullness of noble manhood and womanhood.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State, this twenty-fourth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, and of the Commonwealth the seventy-seventh.

An Everyday Cake

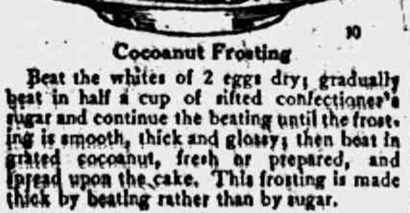
Here is a simple and inexpensive cake that can be varied in many ways with different frostings and icings. It looks a little nicer if baked in a tube pan, but will be equally as good baked in a square loaf.

K C Gold Cake

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

½ cup butter; ½ cup sugar; yolks of 4 eggs, beaten light; 1 cup flour, less 2 level tablespoonfuls; 2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; ½ cup milk; grated rind of 1 orange.

Sift flour and baking powder together three times; cream butter and sugar, beat yolks of eggs, add these to creamed mixture, and lastly add the moisture and flour alternately, beating batter until smooth. Gold Cake can only be made successfully by beating yolks of eggs, very, very creamy and light lemon colored, using a rotary beater. The rotary beater is the only beater that will do justice to the yolks of eggs. The beating kills all egg taste and improves the texture of the cake.



Cocoanut Frosting

Beat the whites of 2 eggs dry; gradually beat in half a cup of sifted confectioner's sugar and continue the beating until the frosting is smooth, thick and glossy; then beat in grated cocoanut, fresh or prepared, and spread upon the cake. This frosting is made thick by beating rather than by sugar.

Save this recipe. You will want to use it frequently. Or better, send us the colored certificate packed in each 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder and we will mail you "The Cook's Book" containing this and 89 other baking recipes equally good—all by Mrs. Hill. Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago.

The football game between the Tecumseh High School and Blissfield High School resulted in another victory for the latter, although it was not nearly so bad as the first one. The The score was 32—22 the first game was 51—7. Coach Cork was well pleased with the result of the game There has been only 38 points scored on Blissfield this year, they havent lost a game Adrian scored 9 points and we scored the rest of the points made off of them.

We have only one fault to find with our treatment at Blissfield. When they came up here we gave them their dinner and supper and a nice room at the Hotel. Wednesday most of us didn't have anything to eat from breakfast until the time we got home. They put us in a coal bin or something of the sort to dress in. We think if we could have had something to eat that we could have given them a good beating Probably they surmised the same thing

First Quarter We won the toss and chose to receive and on the very first play, a long pass from Seymour Orr to Fay Satterthwaite gave us a touchdown and then Orr kicked a goal. Score — Tecumseh 7, Blissfield 0. Blissfield received the ball and finally made touchdown but Green failed to kick goal. Score—Tecumseh 7. Blissfield 6 We received the ball and after a bit of playing sent Howard Wilson across the line for a touchdown. On the punt out the ball dropped without anyone even touching it. Score—Tecumseh 13. Blissfield 6. The quarter ended with Blissfield in possession of the ball on our 25 yard line.

Second Quarter—Blissfield soon sent the ball across our goal line and Green kicked goal Score — Tecumseh 13, Blissfield 13. We received the ball and lost it on our 45-yard-line on downs. Blissfield began to work the pass better and they worked the ball down to our 6 yard line then failed to put it over on three tries, then Green made pass to Parker, who made a beautiful catch of it for another touchdown. Score—Blissfield 19, Tecumseh 13. We received the ball again and worked it down the field and then Karl Schneider put the ball over for our third and last touchdown Orr kicked goal again. Score—Tecumseh 20, Blissfield 19 The second quarter ended with Blissfield in possession of the ball in the middle of the field.

Third Quarter—Blissfield received the ball and working their passes with great skill sent across another touchdown. Green kicked goal Score Blissfield 26, Tecumseh 20. Blissfield kicked off to us and our full-back made quite a bone headed play. He touched the ball and let it roll back of our goal failing to pick it up again. A Blissfield man ran up and fell on it making another touchdown. Green failed at goal. Score Blissfield 32, Tecumseh 20. The third quarter ended with the ball in Tecumseh's possession on their own 5-yard line.

Fourth Quarter—The last quarter was by far the best played quarter of the game. Neither one could score until finally with the ball in Blissfield's hands their center made a bad pass way over the full-backs head. That rattled them a little and the half-back made a fumble behind his own goal and we nailed him before he could carry it out for a touchback. Score—Blissfield 32, Tecumseh 22 The remainder of the period was a battle royal with neither side having the advantage. Final score—Blissfield 32, Tecumseh 22

This game marked to reappearance of one of our best players, "Doc" Hendershott He played a great game at right tackle. his regular position being quarter-back. He was laid out of the game the very first game of the season when he was kicked on the knee.

We play Clinton a week from today and there is a possibility of a game with Adrian High Wednesday. Our last game with Clinton was a tie, 7-7. We expect to have a great game.

EVERYBODY COME!

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

About 40 couple were present at the Hallowe'en Party Thursday evening and a most enjoyable time was spent in dancing until 2 o'clock in the morning Under the supervision of Lester Heesen the hall was decorated in a very artistic manner, corn stalks, pumpkins and Autumn leaves being used with good effect. Many Japanese lanterns gave a subdued light on the scene of fair women and brave men as they tread the measures of the merry dance.

The tables where refreshments were served, were also decorated with Hallowe'en favors, and many candles with pumpkin shaped shades were placed through the center. Cornell's Orchestra of Adrian, furnished fine music for the occasion. Mrs. Alex Reid catered.

Mrs. Dale Hodges is reported as seriously ill.

Mrs. Jennie Law Hardy was a business caller in Detroit Wednesday.

Mrs. George Kay entertained Mrs Sarah Wing of Adrian the first of the week.

The Misses Henrietta and Rose Linger of Sand Creek, are working in the dressmaking department of the Webster Anderson Co. Store.

WOODMEN DANCE.

About 30 couple participated in the dancing party at Witherell Hall on Wednesday evening. Music was furnished by Will Coller and Mrs. Jack Staulter. A most enjoyable evening was spent by the company as they tripped the light fantastic toe, in the giddy mazes of the dance.

THE HOWE PICTURES.

Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival was again presented at the Bradley Opera House Tuesday evening. The house was well filled and the pictures were up to the Howe standard. That those present were pleased is shown by the fact that when the words "Will return again this season" were thrown upon the screen they met with a hearty applause.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The Merry-go round club was most pleasantly entertained Monday evening by Mrs. Nellie Adamson at the home of her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Heesen. The game of the evening was 500, Mrs. R. N. Lowe and G. A. Rathbun were the lucky prize winners. At the close of the games refreshmenes were served. The next meeting of the club will be with Mr. and Mrs. F S Anderson.

EPWORTH LEAGUE

Wilfred Waldron entertained the Epworth League at his home west of town Monday evening. The entertainment of the evening was an old fashioned husking bee on the barn floor. A good supply of red ears were found, and the usual penalty was demanded of the finder. A short program was also given There were about 50 present

BOYD ELECTED AGAIN.

Robert M. Boyd was re-elected secretary of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Co. of Lenawee County at their election of officers last Monday. The total vote cast was 352, Mr. Boyd receiving 307 while Mr. Cavanaugh, his opponent, received 45. Mr. Boyd has held this office for 5 years. The insurance rate of the company at the present time is $2.25.

OUT OF BUSINESS

Bradley F. Scudder who for the last 30 years has run a general store in Macon, has astonished the community by closing out his business to E. M. Dewey of Adrian. A native of Macon, he is well acquainted with every one in the village, and will be greatly missed from his accustomed place at the store.

Tecumseh also will miss his daily appearance on the street with his wagon load of goods for his store. What ever business he may engage in, in the future he will have the best wishes of his many friends in both towns.

GENERAL NEWS.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — Joseph Lomax, [illegible] College avenue, one hundred and three years old, who is believed to be the oldest Mason in the world, received papers notifying him of his election as a life member of the Kalamazoo (Mich.) lodge. Mr. Lomax joined the organization at Marion, Ind., the date he can not remember and the Marion lodge can not find the records of entry. It is believed that they were destroyed by a fire several years ago. Mr. Lomax was the organizer and the first president of the Grand Rapids and Indiana rialway, which ran through Kalamazoo, and he also operated a newspaper in that city at one time.

TOPEKA, KAN. — Samuel Crawford, third governor of Kansas, famous as an Indian fighter, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Capper, at the age of seventy-eight. Fighting on the union side in the civil war, he attained the rank of brigadier general of volunteers. He held the office of governor from 1865 to 1869, resigning to lead an expedition against Indians on the Kansas frontier. His promptness in stamping out incipient rebellions on the Indian territory border gave him a place of honor among the Indian campaigners. Mr. Crawford was born in Lawrence county, Ind., in 1835.

Tecumseh Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove it

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Tecumseh given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which proved so beneficial years ago with the kidneys can naturally be expected to perform the same work in similar cases. Read this:

[illegible] Shurtz, Kilbuck St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills at different times during the past ten years and they have always given me relief from distressing symptoms of kidney complaint. I have procured my supply of Doan's Kidney Pills from Wright & Son's Drug Store and my experience has been so satisfactory that I willingly give this public account of it."

A WILLING REENDORSEMENT.

When Mr. Shurtz was interviewed at a later date he said: "I am only to willing to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills, for I know that they act as represented. You may continue to use my name as a reference."

SPORTING AFFAIRS.

JOPLIN, MO.—Playing in sticky mud and water for a crowd of 4,000 raving Missourians who insisted on being shown the national pastime, the Giants defeated the White Sox. The fact that Walter Johnson had been billed to pitch created some excitement in the town. Walter refused to accept any money for pitching the first three innings, so a committee sneaked away to Kansas City the day before and purchased the finest watch to be had. This was presented to Johnson as he came to bat in the second inning.

MADISON, WIS. — Dr. George W. Ehler, director of athletics at the University of Wisconsin, "put to sleep," as he expressed it in a speech before the athletic council, the much talked of idea of a post-season game between the east and the west to decide the national football championship.

SUPERIOR, WIS. — Spike Kelly added a decision to his record as a result of a savagely fought ten-round bout here with Billy Walters. Kelly had things his own way for most of the battle, especially the last half.

KEOKUK, IA.—Many members of the Daughters of the American Revolution from all parts of Illinois, Missouri and Iowa attended the dedication here of the monument in memory of Chief Keokuk of Black Hawk fame, for whom this city was named. Mrs. William C. Story of New York city, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, was in attendance, and the Iowa members had arranged for the most important conference ever held by the society in this state.

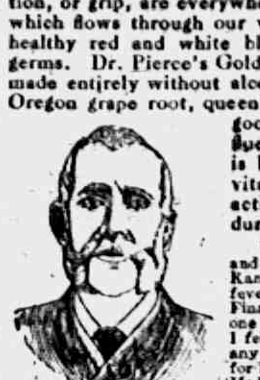
Are the Fly and Mosquito Dangerous?

The fly, with spongy feet, collects the invisible germs of diseases, spreads them over our food and poisons us with typhoid and cholera. The mosquito with its bite injects into our veins malaria and yellow fever. The bacteria of consumption, or grip, are everywhere present for us to breathe into our lungs. The blood which flows through our veins and arteries is our protection. It should contain healthy red and white blood corpuscles—capable of warding off these disease germs. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood medicine and alterative made entirely without alcohol, a pure glyceric extract of bloodroot, golden seal, Oregon grape root, queen's root, mandrake and stone root, which has enjoyed a good reputation for over forty years. The refreshing influence of this extract is like Nature's influence—the blood is bathed in the tonic which gives life to the blood—the vital fires of the body burn brighter and their increased activity consumes the tissue rubbish which has accumulated during the winter.



M. MAGUIRE, Esq.

"About forty years ago while in Newark, New Jersey, I had chills and fever," writes MR. MICHAEL MAGUIRE, of National Military Home, Kans. "I went to Kansas City and in the spring of 1877 the chills and fever returned. Doctors and everything I tried failed to do me good. Finally I saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised. I took one bottle of it and the chills vanished. In about a year afterward I felt them coming back so I got another bottle and have never had any symptoms of fever or ague since. That is all of twenty years ago, for I had the chills about twelve years before I started to take 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are for liver ills.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

LANSING — Governor Ferris said emphatically that he does not care what the Democratic leaders think of his action in appointing Fred L. Keeler, who is a Republican, to the position of state superintendent of public instruction made vacant by the resignation recently of L. L. Wright. "I do not care whether Keeler is a Republican. He has been in the office under Mr. Wright for five or six years and understands the entire system. Here it is October, with the year's school term just fairly under way. The placing of somebody in the office who does not know anything about the working of the office would be suicidal. I would not do it for the simple reason that the educational system of Michigan could not stand it. I am not surprised to hear that in some sections of the state the members of my own party are objecting to Mr. Keeler. For my part, I think that the governor should be above all parties. I am trying to serve the people of the whole state. When it comes to naming a man to be sewer inspector or something of that sort, a business of which I personally known nothing, I would consult somebody else. But when it is the naming of a man in educational lines, my own line and my life work, I think I know what I am doing."

KALAMAZOO — In a remarkably sizzling statement, Harlan E. Babcock, editor of the Kalamazoo Advocate, declared that he was glad the council would give him an opportunity to go before the grand jury and tell all he knows about graft in Kalamazoo. He says among other things: "You will always notice this: Grafters from time immemorial have always courted investigation. It was so in St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Milwaukee, Detroit, Grand Rapids and other cities. Kalamazoo may be the exception, may I say. The developments of the next few weeks will tell. Bluffs are all right as far as they go, but somehow they never seem to appear to good advantage when the searching light of publicity is turned upon them."

ANN ARBOR—Two men who were arrested on the charge of vagrancy in different parts of the state, have been rounded up by the Washtenaw county sheriff on a possible belief that they may have some knowledge of the murder of Elizabeth Stapish a month ago in Chelsea. One is Sam Vetele, an Italian, arrested in Jackson. Deputy Mat Max says Vetele admits having stolen chickens from the woman at about the time of the murder, but has denied knowledge of the aged woman's death. Finley Weller, of Newton, N. J., is in jail in Flint. When he was arrested he had in his pocket a Chelsea newspaper of September 26, which was covered with blood. He said this was caused from a nose bleed.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—What is now believed to have been an attempt to rob the Chicago and Alton Midnight Special was frustrated when switchmen in the Ridgely yards discovered a reversed signal light and telephoned the sheriff's office. A large squad of deputies and police found no trace of robbers.

JACKSON — In order to avoid running down a child, who was playing in the street, Archie House, an automobile tester, ran his car into the curbing on Francis street, in the evening, wrecking the machine and badly injuring himself. It is feared he may die.

PORT HURON — As the direct result of injuries received at a local grease plant when a portion of his hand was taken off in a machine, Leonard R. Oldham, seventeen years old died at the city hospital. Lockjaw was the cause.

Cynthia's Blue Gown

How It Caused Her Husband an Uncomfortable Evening : : :

By CLARISSA MACKIE

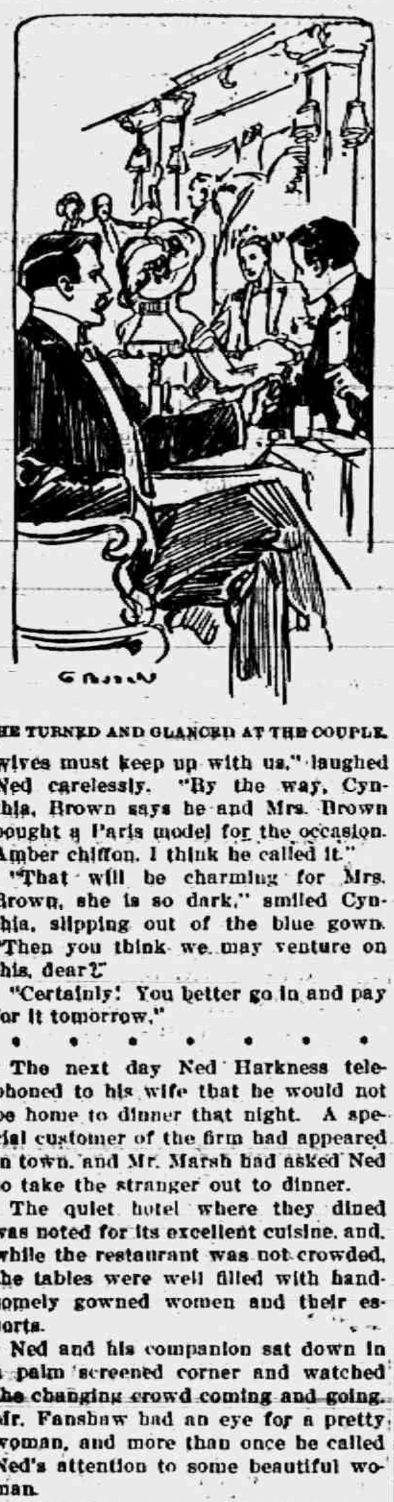
Ned Harkness hurried home that night and found supper waiting for him in the cheerful dining room of the small flat where they lived. Cynthia, his wife, was flying around with pink cheeks putting the last touches to the little dinner she had prepared with her own hands. The Harknesses were a very happy couple, despite the fact that Ned had not yet attained the highest pinnacle of clerkship in Marsh's office and Cynthia still did her own housework with the occasional help of a "woman by the day." Besides, they lived more quietly and saved more money than Ned's fellow clerks, who lived more showily and spent every penny of their incomes.

Tonight was a special night. The blue gown had come home on "approval." Ned and Cynthia had discussed the wisdom of putting so much money into one frivolous dress of blue satin and tissue, but at last they had decided that the blue gown for Cynthia would be a good investment. Ned's employer had invited them to dinner in his own home, and that presaged a promotion, and Cynthia's wardrobe was simple to actual plainness.

"You look like a peach!" admired Ned after dinner as he walked around his lovely wife garbed in the charming gown of delicate blue.

"You're a dear to say such nice things," murmured Cynthia delightedly. "I feel so wicked, Ned, taking all that money out of the bank to buy one foolish gown."

"It's all right, Cynthia. You know, Mr. Marsh expects his clerks to dress well, and I suppose he knows our wives must keep up with us," laughed Ned carelessly. "By the way, Cynthia, Brown says he and Mrs. Brown bought a Paris model for the occasion. Amber chiffon, I think he called it."



HE TURNED AND GLANCED AT THE COUPLE.

"That will be charming for Mrs. Brown, she is so dark," smiled Cynthia, slipping out of the blue gown. "Then you think we may venture on this, dear?"

"Certainly! You better go in and pay for it tomorrow."

* * * * * * *

The next day Ned Harkness telephoned to his wife that he would not be home to dinner that night. A special customer of the firm had appeared in town, and Mr. Marsh had asked Ned to take the stranger out to dinner.

The quiet hotel where they dined was noted for its excellent cuisine, and, while the restaurant was not crowded, the tables were well filled with handsomely gowned women and their escorts.

Ned and his companion sat down in a palm screened corner and watched the changing crowd coming and going. Mr. Fanshaw had an eye for a pretty woman, and more than once he called Ned's attention to some beautiful woman.

While they were eating their soup Fanshaw suddenly laid his hand on Ned's arm.

"Look there, Harkness; that's my ideal woman." He nodded toward a table in the center of the room.

Ned turned around just in time to see a woman in a blue gown sink gracefully into a chair opposite his office companion, James Brown. Brown was a handsome, black eyed young man, and he was paying devoted attention to his companion.

Of course Ned Harkness couldn't tell Fanshaw that the "ideal woman" was his wife. He scarcely believed it himself, though the swift glimpse he had of her profile as she sat down with her back toward him convinced him that it was Cynthia. And she was wearing the blue gown they had chosen last night, and on her head was a large feathered hat that tipped back until the edge of the brim almost touched her bare shoulders.

What was Cynthia doing here with James Brown?

Over and over again that question drummed itself through Ned's jealous mind.

More than once he turned and glanced at the couple sitting so absorbed at the prominent table under the clustered lights. Once Brown caught his eye and nodded good-naturedly. But Ned only glared coldly in return.

He made up his mind that when the meal was concluded he would walk up to Brown's table and—of course he would accomplish it quietly—tell Cynthia that he would escort her home.

He wondered if the blue gown was not at the bottom of it all. He had heard that women's heads were turned by beautiful clothes, and, although he had never thought much about such matters in connection with Cynthia, why, of course, it might happen to Cynthia, and, although his faith and trust in her were unbounded, still he blamed himself for putting temptation in her way in the shape of the blue gown.

As for her being with Brown, why, that was all right if she wanted to, he told himself with a sickly smile. She knew the Browns well, and it was very likely an accident that she and Brown had met in time for dinner.

All this argument was perfectly ridiculous in the face of the fact that he knew Cynthia detested the Browns heartily and that she was not in the habit of dressing herself in an elaborate gown and happening to meet masculine friends in fashionable restaurants. Moreover, at this hour Cynthia Harkness was more likely to be at home preparing a modest dinner or playing Chopin in the parlor of their little flat.

Still, there she was, and who could explain it?

"Well, Harkness, I don't know whether you're married or not, but if you're not you certainly must be dead in love," laughed Mr. Fanshaw at last.

"Why?" asked Ned, startled.

"Nothing, only you've called me 'Cynthia' three times."

"I beg your pardon," stammered Ned; "I was thinking of my wife."

"You're excused," smiled his guest, but Ned was careful after that to keep his wandering thoughts in check.

When they had concluded the meal they arose from the table just in time to see James Brown and his fair companion leave the restaurant. By the time they had reached the lobby of the hotel the pair had entered a taxicab and were driven away.

"There goes my ideal," murmured Fanshaw lightly as they paused at the cigar stand.

Ned was silent. In one brief hour the whole course of his life had changed. He would go home and face Cynthia and then tell her that if she was weary of him he would go away and efface himself from her sight forever. He had an uncle who was a missionary in central China, and there was a wide field for laborers there.

Merged as he was in these gloomy meditations, it is not strange that Mr. Fanshaw excused himself on plea of an engagement and went off to spend the evening in a music hall.

Ned plunged into the nearest subway station and went home.

It might be hours before Cynthia came home, and then again she might arrive within an hour, especially if she feared Ned's disapproval of her action in dining with Brown.

He climbed the stairs to the third floor of their modest apartment house and turned the key in the hall door. A dim light burned there, as usual, the faint red glow that always welcomed him home.

There was a busy humming sound from the dining room, a dear familiar sound that he could not associate with the wearer of the blue gown and the big black hat.

The sound belonged distinctly to Cynthia, his dear, busy little wife!

It was nothing less than Cynthia's sewing machine whirring away.

He pushed open the door and looked in, pale and haggard with his evening's dread.

The sewing machine was pushed under the central light, and at it sat Cynthia in her little blue house gown stitching merrily away at breadths of misty blue satin. A deep rose color stained her cheeks, and her dark brown hair curled distractingly around her pretty ears.

"Why, Ned!" she cried delightedly. "Now, don't be cross, dear, but I've a confession to make."

"I can guess what it is," said Ned grimly.

"Then you've been spying, and it's not fair!" she pouted. "I thought it was a great surprise."

"The biggest surprise I ever had," retorted Ned.

"Let me explain. You see, I got to thinking about the price of that blessed blue gown, and I knew I could duplicate it for one quarter of the price. Miss Cassidy will come tomorrow and help me. And so, when Mrs. Brown came this morning and fell in love with it and wanted to buy it, why, I just let her do it. But I told her I was going to duplicate it, but she doesn't care, for she isn't going to wear it at the same places I shall wear mine. She said they were going to dine at the Humboldt. By the way, dearie, did you have a good time?" Cynthia got up and tucked her hand in his arm.

"Fine time," he said hoarsely. "Cynthia, dear, I don't mind about your changing the gown. You are such a darling! How am I ever going to make up to you for what you are to me?"

Cynthia smiled demurely.

"Well, the next time you dine at the Humboldt and see the Browns don't be jealous of me, Ned! Maybe Mrs. Brown just went there out of mischief to bewilder you with that blue gown. I told her you were going there tonight."

PONTIAC — A number of Clarkston citizens have subscribed stock to the amount of $20,000 for the establishment of a bank. Since the failure of the Jossman institution, the place has been without a bank. Many of the stockholders are those who lost heavily in the recent chash. Papers of incorporation have been forwarded to Lansing and as soon as they are returned the bank will begin business.

BAY CITY — Gilbert Valede, who was formerly highway commissioner of Monitor township, was before the circuit court on two indictments, charging malfeasance in office and larceny. He is alleged to have stolen fifty barrels of cement and $7.75 in cash. W. Alberts, highway commissioner of Portsmouth township is named in a third indictment. He is charged with illegal action in building roads and spending township money.

SAGINAW — Miss Susan Fauley, a resident of Saginaw, has been awarded one-fourth of the estate of $400,000 left by Charles E. Eastman, a timber operator who died in Seattle in 1910. A letter to the woman intended for mailing, but found in his effects was the point on which she was made part heir.

PROGRESSIVES ARE FACTOR

This Vote Will Determine Jersey Election, It Is Believed.

New York, Nov. 3.—The campaign for the election of a governor of New Jersey, a complete set of members of assembly and eight out of twenty-one senators, closes today with both the Republican and the Democratic campaign managers confident of victory.

Outside of the part which the national administration plays in the campaign, politicians are not shutting their eyes to the fact that the extent of the showing to be made by ex-State Senator Everett Colby, the Progressive party candidate, will be one of the determining factors in the contest. The Democrats are convinced that the more votes Mr. Colby gets the better it will be for Mr. Fielder's changes, going on the theory that the Progressive vote will be Republican anyway.

PREDICTS BIG MITCHEL LEAD

Sulzer Says Fusion Candidate Will Have 125,000 Majority Over McCall.

New York, Nov. 3.—Wm. Sulzer says that Mitchell will win by at least 125,000. The ex-governor in a prepared statement says:

"Mr. Mitchel's election by at last 125,000 next Tuesday is a result which was made possible only by the exposure of Tammany misgovernment by honest administration at Albany. If I had not defied Boss Murphy when he sought to control my acts as governor, the election of Murphy's lackey, McCall, to the mayoralty would now ot be a foregone conclusion."

Asthma and Air.

Most cases of asthma are the result of a bad atmosphere. The catarrh has extended down from the nose and throat into the bronchial tubes and set up a spasm, which is the source of this distressing malady. No asthmatic can afford to keep his windows closed. Whether by day or night, he needs a liberal supply of fresh air.—From "Nervous Breakdowns."

WILSON POLICY ON TRUSTS IS SHOWN

Attorney General's Brief in Harvester Case Gives Light.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Persons who have been seeking light on the policy of the Wilson administration toward the dissolution of industrial corporations accused of having violated the Sherman anti-trust law will find it in a brief which Attorney General McReynolds will file with the United States district court at St. Paul in the final argument of the suit to dissolve the International Harvester company. In the suit against the $140,000,000 harvester company, Mr. McReynolds insists that the court shall order things in such a way as to bring about a dissolution in fact as well as in theory.

"I order that the plan may establish a condition in honest harmony with the law, it is imperative that it shall disintegrate the business of the principal defendant in such a manner that no two of the disintegrrated parts shall be acquired by or come under the control of companies, having common stockholders or companies otherwise under common control or influence."

This request by the attorney general is interesting not only as reflecting his views toward the proposed dissolution of the harvester "trust," but as indicating what his attitude is likely to be in seeking the dissolution of the United States Steel corporation.

SUFFRAGISTS HEAD TOWARD MILITANCY

Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge Says Boycotting Points Way.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, president of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, is out with an attack on Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, the head of the suffrage movement in America, because of Dr. Shaw's recent threat to boycott congressmen and other representatives of the people who refuse to pledge themselves to work for woman suffrage. Mrs. Dodge says:

"Disregarding any question of fitness for office they prefer to have in state and national legislatures, their own creatures so long as these creatures, regardless of anything else, follow the hysterical and unreasonable demands of suffragists.

"Here then for the first time, the suffragists frankly admit their position and expose their real creed. Their motto is to succeed at any cost, to force the government to adopt heir views whether these views be right or wrong.

"The situation in the United States today is a repetition of what happened in England. Immediately prior to the era of bomb throwing and arson in that country."

Legend of the Sun and Moon.

One day in China, so the legend runs, the sun asked the moon if she couldn't go out at night. The moon answered very sternly: "No. You are a young lady, and it would be improper for you to go out after dark." Then the sun said, "But the people keep looking at me when I go out in the daytime." So the moon told her to take the golden needles that she wore in her hair and stick them into the eyes of people when they stared at her. This is the reason why no one can look at the sun without pain.

TURNIP CHASING MARSHALL

Vice President Will Probably Run Across It in Arizona.

Washington, Nov. 3.—A huge Indiana turnip is following Vice President Marshall around the country via parcel post. The turnip weights five pounds, and is traveling in mail pouches in its natural state, just as it was dug from the ground back in Indiana, except for an identification tag tied on the turnip top.

The turnip reached the vice president's office in the capitol. It was sent by William H. Bush from R. F. D. No. 5, Columbus, Ind. The vice president's office force redirected the tag and sent the turnip hurrying out to Arizona, where the vice president and his wife will visit.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Pain in Back and Rheumatism

Torment thousands of people daily. Don't be one of these sufferers when for so little cost you can get well rid of the cause. Foley Kidney Pills begin their good work from the very first dose. They exert so direct an action on the kidneys and bladder that the pain and torment of backache, rheumatism and kidney trouble is soon dispelled. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Adv.

If we put a price tag on ourselves somebody will expect to buy at a greatly reduced figure.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. F. L. Willis suffered greatly from asthma and bronchitis. He writes: I got no relief until I took Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. In entirely removed those choking sensations and never failed to produce easy and comfortable condition of the throat and lungs." For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Advt

You can't blame a boy for getting tired when he knows where the fish would bite.

A Maker of Health.

A good honest medicine like Foley Kidney Pills gives health to many families. Mrs. O. Palmer, 655 Willow St., Green Bay, Wis., was seriously ill with kidney and bladder trouble. Mr. Palmer writes: "My wife is rapidly recovering her health and strength due solely to the use of Foley Kidney Pills." For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The man who is guided only by his doubts, is bound for a very doubtful end.

More Bottles Sold Each Year.

It is easy to understand why an increasing number of bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is sold yearly. Thos Verran, 286 Edward St., Houghton, Mich., gives an excellent reason when he writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has always proven an effective remedy, quickly relieving tickling in the throat, and stopping the cough with no bad after effects. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv

Looking inward gives you mental strabismus, a peevish personality and an ingrowing disposition. Look out.

Nervous and Sick Headaches

Torpid liver, constipated bowels and disordered stomach are the causes of these headaches. Take Dr. King's New Life Pills, you will be surprised how quickly you will get relief. They stimulate the different organs to do their work properly. No better regulator for liver and bowels. Take 25c. and invest in a box today. Recommended by C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

Occasionally man can be judged by the company he keeps away from.

Saved His Foot

H. D. Ely, of Bantam, O., suffered from horrible ulcer on his foot for four years. Doctor advised amputation, but he refused and reluctantly tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve as a last resort. He then wrote: "I used your salve and my foot was soon completely cured." Best remedy for burns, cuts, bruises and eczema. Get a box to-day. Only 25c. Recommended by C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

It's all right for you to see through your friends. But if you help the public do the same thing, pretty soon you won't have any friends to see through.

COMING

UNITED DOCTORS SPECIALIST

Will Make Their Regular Visit—

TO TECUMSEH, BARRETT HOTEL, FRIDAY, NOV. 7

Hours 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this visit, consultation, examination and advice free of charge.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases of the blood, liver, stomach, intestines, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, [illegible], leg ulcers, weak lungs, and those afflicted with long-standing, deep seated chronic diseases that have baffled the skill of other physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness has often been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gallstones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc. By their method these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection. They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife, with blood and with pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

Worn-out and run-down men and women, no matter what your ailment may be, no matter what you have been told, or the experience you have had with other physicians, settle it forever in your mind. If your case is incurable they will tell you so. Consult them upon this visit. It costs you nothing.

TRIST PLANNED BY PROVIDENCE

Groom Will Not See Bride's Face Until Wedded.

FOLLOWER OF STRANGE SECT

Prominent Throat Specialist, with two Names, to Marry Pretty Widow He Has Never Seen—Says His Wedding Has Been Planned by Providence.

Philadelphia, Nov. 3.—After one of the strangest courtships on record, Mrs. Marion C. Arnett, a pretty widow of this city, will marry a man she has never seen and whose face she will not look upon until after the wedding ceremonies. He is Dr. Francis W. Hartley, a prominent throat specialist of Baltimore. He has never seen his bride.

After courting the widow for several months by mail and telephone, the specialist received his answer over the long distance telephone with the request that they arrange an immediate meeting. Dr. Hartley was unwilling and so it was agreed that they should not see each other's face until after they are married.

Will Hide Her Face.

In accordance with the specialist's wishes, Mrs. Arnett will hide her pretty face behind a heavy black veil until after the second ceremony. Two services are necessary because the doctor has two names, his real one being James H. Hellyer. He assumed the other when he represented his foster father, a former specialist of that name in this city.

Dr. Hartley says that he does not want to see his bride's face until after they are married, because their wedding was planned by providence. The doctor says that his faith in providence is strong enough to take a chance. He is a member of a religious sect whose members "live by faith." He is one of the best known of their preachers.

A Cuban friend of Dr. Hartley's advertised for a wife. Mrs. Arnett answered the advertisement, but the wife seeker was compelled to go to Cuba without making a proposal of marriage. The specialist then took up the courting. The wedding is to take place within a week or two.

[illegible] a Man.

"John," she said, "I have an awful pain in my right side. I'm afraid it's appendicitis."

"Are you sure?" he replied, without looking up from his paper.

"John," she wailed a moment later, "it's getting worse."

"Is it?" he asked, still interested in the sporting page.—Chicago Record-Herald.

HOUSEKEEPERS Must be Watchful

For great efforts are being made in this vicinity to sell baking powders of inferior class, made from alum acids and lime phosphates, both undesirable to those who require high-grade cream of tartar baking powder to make clean and healthful food.

The official Government tests have shown Royal Baking Powder to be a pure, healthful, grape cream of tartar baking powder; of highest strength, and care should be taken to prevent the substitution of any other brand in its place.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price per pound, and is cheaper and better at its price than any other baking powder in the world.

AMUSEMENTS

"BUSY IZZY."

What the Adrian Telegram says of George Sidney in "Busy Izzy:"

George Sidney, the always popular "Izzy" and his merry company came to Adrian last night and delighted a smashing big audience at the Croswell with his funny stunts, good music, dancing, choruses, scenery, costumes, and in fact everything that goes to make up a modern, up-to-date production. Sidney seems to grow better as he grows older. He is the same funny little man, bringing a laugh every time he appears on the stage. And Carrie Weber is just as winsome as ever, helped out by a company of pretty girls and brilliant costumes.

Dick Hume, one of the best comedians on the road is still with Mr. Sidney and of course kept everybody laughing. He is a wonder in his line. And then there are others, all up-to-snuff people, who aid Sidney in making the production a "go." Plenty of good music comes along during the action of the "play" among the best being the automobile chorus.

Sidney can always be counted on to give your money's worth in fun and he did it in Adrian last night, as he has many times before.—Adrian Telegram, Nov. 21, 1912.

Mr. Sidney and his excellent company will be the attraction at the BRADLEY OPERA HOUSE, next TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 11. It is advisable to make early arrangements for your seats.

WILL DISCUSS MANY ISSUES

Suffragist Meeting at Peoria Will Plan for Future in Politics.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 3.—Illinois suffragists, victorious in their fight for the ballot, will gather here Nov 6 to discuss the problems confronting them. The meeting will be the forty-fifth annual convention of the Illinois Suffrage association and the first since the passage of the woman suffrage law. Some of the subjects to be discussed are as follows: The responsibility of the elective franchise, the machinery of practical politics, organization for the efficient use of the ballot, the power and responsibility acquired by women through the elective franchise, the civic obligations of the women of Illinois, the relation of legislative power to social and economic problems, the relation of the vote to everyday life, political parties and platforms, nominating, campaign, and election methods; political machines and bosses and remedies for legislative evils.

The general topic of discussion will be "The Responsibility and Use of the Ballot." Three hundred delegates and the same number of alternates are expected to attend.

One Law Against It.

"There ought to be a law against aviation," said the humane citizen.

"There is one," replied the cold blooded man. "The law of gravitation is continually interfering with it."—Washington Star.

"CLEOPATRA"

The story of "Cleopatra the Egyptian Queen" was presented Monday evening at the Opera House in a most thrilling manner, showing the wonderful workings of the moving picture art.

To those who were acquainted with the history of this Queen of Egypt, and the spell she held over Mark Anthony, it was of intense interest. In the death scene of Anthony one could almost hear his words to Cleopatra as he murmured:

"I am dying, Egypt dying,
Ebbs the crimson life tide fast
And the dark plutonian shadows
Gather round me at the last.
Let thine arms oh Queen enfold me
Hush thy sobbing, bend thy ear,
Listen to my heart's deep secrets
Thou and only thou should hear."

And when Cleopatra presses the asp to her bosom and urges it to do its work quickly, let the wife of Anthony "should be the first to steal the kiss that 'tis my heaven to have." One is held spell bound until the curtain drops.

DR J. A. SCIBERT'S LECTURE.

Monday, Nov. 10, 7:30, Dr. J. A. Seibert of Adrian will deliver his lecture "Mediterranean Isles and Cities", at the Baptist church. With the aid of the lantern he will show over 100 views taken on his journey through that historic sea. Price 25 cents.

A Sunset In Scotland.

It was a sunset of strange tints that evening, a background of clouds of deep violet tipped with crimson. The sky, of the very palest blue, had been turned by the brightness of the sun into a lake of silver, in which floated small fleecy cloudlets of brilliant rose pink, like islets floating in a crystal sea. The rays of the sun behind the purple clouds threw long shafts of dazzling brightness, which tipped the dark background with silver as the sun kisses the petals of a daisy. Every peak in the long range of mountains on the west was rose tipped, but the highest of them all towered clear and cone shaped in the distance, glistening in a shimmering mantle of silver and pale blue, as if the sky had wrapped it round its own cerulean color.—"A Garden of Spices," by A. Keith Fraser.

Do We Dodge Death?

Can we mortals always be trusted to do the right thing? The fear of death is general. Life is sacrificed every hour because the rules of health are not obeyed. Death is the one great monster of dread and from whom all flee. Yet how many safeguard their living in such a way as to avert his coming? The rules of health are violated because of the immunity we feel, but finally the penalty must be paid. No argument is needed to enforce the lesson. Everybody knows it. The rules of right living are clear, explicit. Vice, intemperance, wrong living, overeating as well as overdrinking, continue to pay their tribute to the undertaker and the graveyard.—Leslie's.

A RECOMMENDATION BY THE GOVERNOR

To the People of the State of Michigan

Greetings:

On Thursday and Friday, November 6 and 7, 1913, the Michigan Association for Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis holds its meeting at Kalamazoo. It is estimated that in the United States 160,000 persons die each year of tuberculosis. This appalling loss of life should awaken an interest in every American citizen. A large part of this loss is preventable. Mayors of cities and Presidents of villages should send delegates to this important meeting at Kalamazoo. It is hoped that Michigan will take advantage of this great meeting in order to learn how best to conserve human life.

WOODBRIDGE N. FERRIS,
Governor.

REGULATIONS AFFECTING COLLECTION OF THE TAX.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The Treasury Department last night issued regulations affecting collections at the source of income. Its synopsis follows:

"Normal tax of one per cent is to be withheld at the source where the income originates.

"All persons, firms, organizations, etc., having the receipts, custody, disposal or payment of annual income profits or gains, are required to withhold tax, except as exempt by law.

"The following income is exempt from the normal tax of one per cent, being withheld at scource:

"Dividends on capital stock or from net earnings of corporations and like organizations that pay the normal tax of one per cent on its net income.

"Proceeds from life insurance contracts, except annual interest payments in excess of $3,000.

"Income of individuals which is not fixed or certain, such as income of farmers, merchants, agents compensated on commission basis, lawyers, doctors, authors, inventors and other proffessional persons with no fixed annual income.

"The value of property acquired by gift, bequest or descent.

"Interest upon the obligations of the United States or its possessions, or a state or any political subdivision thereof. Salary of President and federal judges. All salaries paid by a state, county, or municipality including salaries of public school teachers.

"The normal tax not to be withheld until such time as total payments of an annual income exceeds $3,000 then the tax is required to be withheld on the amounts of the total payments, unless claim for exemption is filed with withholding agents.

"Persons liable for the normal tax of one per cent may claim from withholding agent or collector of internal revenue, benefit of a deduction of taxes, interest and other items as provided by law.

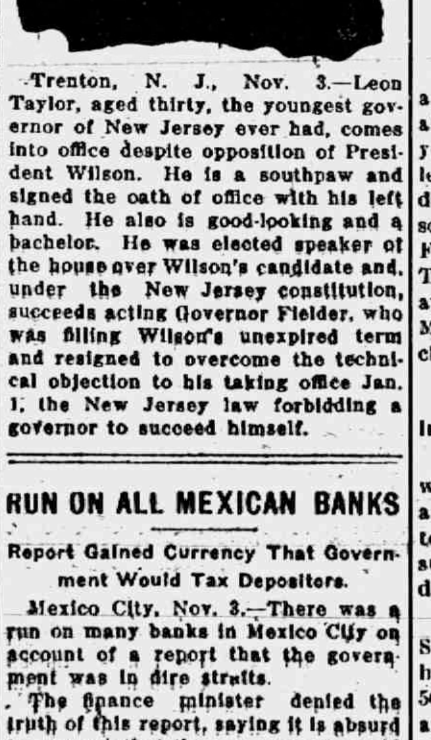
"Withholding agent not required to withhold the normal tax of one per cent until on or after Nov. 1 and then only on amounts accruing on and after Nov. 1, 1913, when in excess of $3,000.

"Persons subject to the normal tax when absent from the United States or physically unable to make returns required by law, may under certain conditions appoint agents to act for them.

"The penalty for false or fraudulent statement, intent to defraud, is a fine of not exceeding one year, or both."

LEON R. TAYLOR

The Third Governor of New Jersey Since March 2 Last.



Trenton, N. J., Nov. 3.—Leon Taylor, aged thirty, the youngest governor of New Jersey ever had, comes into office despite opposition of President Wilson. He is a southpaw and signed the oath of office with his left hand. He also is good-looking and a bachelor. He was elected speaker of the house over Wilson's candidate and, under the New Jersey constitution, succeeds acting Governor Fielder, who was filling Wilson's unexpired term and resigned to overcome the technical objection to his taking office Jan. 1, the New Jersey law forbidding a governor to succeed himself.

RUN ON ALL MEXICAN BANKS

Report Gained Currency That Government Would Tax Depositors.

Mexico City, Nov. 3.—There was a run on many banks in Mexico City on account of a report that the government was in dire straits.

The finance minister denied the truth of this report, saying it is absurd to suppose that the government would be capable of an action contrary to the elementary principles of political economy. The Mexican government, he added, is anxious to get the support of foreign capital and would not do any thing to increase foreign complications which would be the result of taxing bank deposits as almost all the banks here are controlled by foreign capital.

ORDER EASTEN STAR

About 60 of the O. E. S. boarded the 1:01 train Saturday afternoon for Manchester in response to an invitation from the Manchester Chapter. They were met at the depot by a committee from the order and were most cordially greeted. After a short social visit the meeting was called to order and the visiting chapter conferred the degree on two candidates.

At 5:30 a most bountiful banquet was served after which the company assembled again and a fine program was given consisting of music, both vocal and instrumental, and recitations. As the hour of departure drew nigh, the visiting members expressed their delight with their royal entertainment and the fraternal greetings of the order were exchanged with a hearty goodwill.

Missionary Entertainment

The Home Missionary Society of the M. E. church gave a fine entertainment last Thursday evening, which they showed the work being done by their society.

Mrs. Waring gave a lecture on the subject pointing out, by map the various schools and hospitals under their supervision the better to illustrate the work, the members in costume representing the various branches, came in upon the scene. Emigrants were represented by Misses Lane and Russell, Nurse, Mrs. Skinner, Deaconesses, Mrs. F. Temple, Mrs. E. M. Lewis; colored girls, Mrs. B. Hurry, Mrs. S. E. Austin, poor whites, Mesdames McCoy, field Misses [illegible]vens and Snyder. the Indian, Mrs. Ira Rogers. Each party had a dialogue or a song, suitable to their department. The Indian made a most touching appeal to all. As a closing scene Mrs. Alfred Wright President of the Home Society and Mrs. John McIntyre, Pres. of the Foreign society appeared. Mrs. Wright draped in the national flag Mrs. Mc Intyre carrying the Bible and Cross addressing the audience they told how both were working for the same cause.

Mrs. Warings lecture was given in a very forceful manner and her moving living, illustrations helped to present the subject in a clear understanding way.

ANCIENT SCHOOL-BOOKS DISCOVERED

Professor Langdon of Oxford, England, who is spending some time at the University of Pennsylvania has discovered that one group of the famous Nippur tablets stored at the university are in reality the oldest schoolbooks known to exist. They show that the children of the ancients learned much that the boys and girls of to-day have to study. According to these tablets the children of 4,200 years ago were taught arithmetic, geography, history and grammar just like the children of to-day. The multiplication tables are remarkably distinct, and in plain numerals show the the incontrovertible fact that three times one are three and five times one are five. On one tablet the schoolboy had been given a lesson in phonetic signs corresponding to the shorthand of modern times. The Summerians, the authors of these tablets at the Pennsylvania University, also invented the use of writing syllables and combining them into words, being the first step toward the alphabet.—The Christian Herald.

THE IMMGRANT IN OUR LAND

Sunday Evening Lectures at the Baptist Church

Is he an asset or a liability? That depends on the immigrant, the American citizen and the church. The immigrant in our midst presents a great national and religious problem.

Are you aware that at this present hour the greatest human migration of all ages is on? Are you aware that it is to our land? Are you interested in hearing the problem discussed? Very well — then come to the Baptist Church on Sunday evenings.

Below you will find the list of subjects

Nov. 23—How Does the Immigrant Affect Our National Character?

Nov. 30.—What Shall We Do for the Immigrant?

"If our country is to remain true to her original aims, and advance along the line of her first development, she must see to it that the leaven of the Gospel of Christ leavens the whole lump of her vastly increasing population."—Henry VanDyke.

JEREMIAH PACKARD

The passing away of Jeremiah Packard occurred Monday morning at 4:30 after a lingering illness of several years. He was 80 years of age and leaves to mourn his loss his widow, a daughter Mrs Lottie Biggins and four sons Oscar and Adelbert of Tecumseh, Fred of Detroit and Bert of Clinton. The funeral will be held Wednesday at 2 o'clock in the lecture room at the Methodist church Rev. Whitney officiating. Burial in Brookside cemetery.

Mrs John Cook of Tipton was calling on friends in town Monday.

Wm Wright and wife of N. Dakota, who are visiting relatives in and around Tecumseh, went to Clinton today for a visit. They expect to start on their homeward trip Wednesday.

The Friends Quarterly meeting held Saturday and Sunday at their church here was quite largely attended, some 50 visiting Friends being in attendance. The meetings of Saturday were quite interesting with several short talks and choice music. Sunday morning regular preaching service with Rev. Hobson of Lupton in the pulpit. A testimony meeting followed by a missionary meeting in the afternoon and evening service conducted by Rev. Hobson closed the meeting. The next meeting will be held at Raisin Center in February.

SHOOK OFF DEATH.

Ordeal Through Which Archdeacon Stuck Once Passed.

Archdeacon Stuck, who climbed Mount McKinley, the great American peak, once had his life saved in a most extraordinary way.

Late one evening, while exploring in the arctic regions, he was unlucky enough to fall through the ice into the water on his way back to camp. He was accompanied by an Eskimo boy in charge of a sledge and a team of dogs, and the boy soon had him out again, but as the thermometer was then about 70 degrees below zero the possibility of saving his life seemed very remote. He was wet through, of course, and before a fire could have been got well alight the chances were that he would have frozen to death.

The resourceful boy thought of a better plan than that. The explorer was already scarcely able to move, but the boy took one of the dogs out of the traces and forced the archdeacon to take its place. Then he lashed the unfortunate man's legs until he was compelled to run, applying his whip mercilessly every time the archdeacon showed signs of flagging.

In this way the boy kept him moving rapidly toward their camp, and by the time they reached it the terrible languor of death that had threatened to overcome the archdeacon had been shaken off.—Pearson's Weekly.

SOOTHING STEINITZ.

Pathetic Scene After Lasker Had Beaten the Old Master.

For thirty years the late William Steinitz beat every player who ventured to oppose him and was at last beaten by a mere youth. I had prophesied that his hour had come, writes Robert J. Buckle in the Chess Amateur, and at Hastings the moment he saw me he rushed in with a redhot attack. "How dare you say Lasker would beat me?" he almost screamed in response to my outstretched hand and attempt at a smile of welcome.

Lasker had actually beaten him, as I had foretold. The crowd looked on for a row. We were in the dining room of the Queen's—a score of masters present. I took his arm and led him outside.

"You had no right to say it," he cried, "and I demand an explanation." He continued to protest until we had reached a quiet corner. "Why did you say it—why did you say it?" he repeated shrilly.

I waited till he had blown off steam, then "Because you were sixty," I said. That softened him. He examined me with his innocent blue eyes.

"A man of twenty-two," I continued, "after a hard day's play is fresh next morning. A man of sixty-two is still brain fagged. You were giving the odds of forty years. It was too much."

ARE CHARGED WITH PLOTTING

Officers Who Were to Have Accompanied Diaz to Japan Also Are Ordered Taken Into Custody—Foreign Ministers Confer with Lind—American Envoy to Leave on Wheeling.

Vera Cruz, Nov. 3.—There is an undercurrent of excitement in this port and the indications are that there will soon be some sensational arrests. It is again hinted that the government has knowledge that certain prominent men were involved in a plot to overthrow the present regime and that those will be taken into custody.

The gunboat Tacoma is in trouble at the mouth of the harbor. On the night of the flight of Felix Diaz from the city he was first transferred from the Wheeling to the Tacoma and later to the Michigan. During the excitement the propellors of the Tacoma became entangled in the cables and she has not yet been released, although divers have been at work nearly all the time.

Transferred to Liner.

The facts concerning the transfer of Diaz from the United States warships to the Ward liner Esperanza are as follows:

When the Michigan left the harbor it was supposed that she had started on a short practice trip, but it was afterward discovered that she had steamed to meet the Esperanza, which had left Progreso. When the ships met Diaz was transferred to the Ward liner and proceeded to Havana.

The officers who were to have accompanied Diaz on his mission to Japan have been ordered arrested and returned to Mexico for trial. Orders have been issued also that they must make a full account of the funds which were issued to them for the trip.

Confer With Lind.

The ministers of Germany, Russia and Norway spent the night on the German warship Hertha von Hintze. The statement is made that the purpose of their visit to Vera Cruz was one of inspection to the German ships, but it is known that the real purpose of their visit was to have a conference with John Lind concerning the troubles of Mexico.

There has been some talk about the ministers being on a hunting trip, but the weather here is altogether too hot for anything of that kind.

Mr. Lind will leave here on the Wheeling as soon as the other squadron reaches port.

Philippine Embroidery.

Children under ten years of age make some of the most beautiful and delicate samples of embroideries in the Philippines. Almost every design of Philippine embroidery shipped contains drawnwork which is its chief attraction, putting it in a class by itself, and Filipino workers have developed this part of their designs to a high degree of excellence.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in Tecumseh, and Good Reason for It

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
When she finds freedom.

Many readers will profit by the following.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin Pearl St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I suffered from distressing symptoms of kidney complaint for more than a year. When some one told me that Doan's Kidney Pills were good in such cases I got a supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store. They helped me immediately and I continued using them until I have had no need of Doan's Kidney Pills or any other kidney medicine since. I can still recommend them highly."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

A Consumptive Cough

A cough that bothers you continually is one of the danger signals which warns of consumption. Dr. King's New Discovery stop the cough, loosen the chest, banish fever and let you sleep peacefully. The first dose checks the symptoms and given prompt relief. Mrs. A. F. Mertz, of Glen Ellyn, Iowa, writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery cured a stubborn cough after six week's doctoring failed to help." Try it, as it will do the same for you. Best medicine for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Money back if it fails. Price 50c & $1.00. Recommended by C. A Wright & Son. adv.

ROYAL DIFFERENCES FIXED

Kaiser's Son-in-Law Assumes Government of Brunswick Duchy.

Brunswick, Germany, Nov. 3.—The government of the duchy of Brunswick, which has been without a reigning duke since 1884, was assumed by the young prince, Ernst August of Cumberland, the Kaiser's son-in-law.

The differences between the two princely families of Hohenzollern and Guelph have thus been settled for the new duke, in a declaration, promised unswerving loyalty to the German empire and emperor and to the federated rulers of Germany. He thus implicity, although not actually, renounced his pretentions to the throne of the kingdom of Hanover annexed to Prussia in 1866 when it allied itself with Austria against Prussia.

TILLMAN FAVORS LYNCHING

South Carolina Senator Opposes Governor Cole L. Blease.

Spartanburg, S. C., Nov. 3.—Senator Benjamin R. Tillman has always favored lynching for assailants of women, he declares in a letter received by the Spartanburg Herald. In the letter which was called forth by former United States Senator John L. McLaurin's withdrawal from the race for governor and announcement that he was done with politics forever, Senator Tillman discusses various phases of the South Carolina political situation.

He vigorously assails the political doctrine of Governor Cole L. Blease.

GIVES AWAY $300,000 FARMS

John Stewart, Lumber King, Distributes Part of Estate to Heirs.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 3.—John Stewart, lumber king, reputed to be Kane county's wealthiest resident, has given away farm lands in Kane and Dupage counties valued at almost $300,000. Three Aurorans were the beneficiaries. John Stewart, Jr., son of the State Senator Thomas Stewart, got the Stewart homestead at Campton, consisting of 1,200 acres and a fine farm residence; Mrs. J. S. Watson, wife of Dr. Watson, a 250 acre farm at LaFox valued at $42,500; Mrs. John Alexander, wife of President Alexander of the Alexander Lumber company, a 250 acre farm at Wheaton, valued at $42,500.

Are the Fly and Mosquito Dangerous?

The fly, with spongy feet, collects the invisible germs of diseases, spreads them over our food and poisons us with typhoid and cholera. The mosquito with its bite injects into our veins malaria and yellow fever. The bacteria of consumption, or grip, are everywhere present for us to breathe into our lungs. The blood which flows through our veins and arteries is our protection. It should contain healthy red and white blood corpuscles—capable of warding off these disease germs. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood medicine and alterative made entirely without alcohol, a pure glyceric extract of bloodroot, golden seal, Oregon grape root, queen's root, mandrake and stone root, which has enjoyed a good reputation for over forty years. The refreshing influence of this extract is like Nature's influence—the blood is bathed in the tonic which gives life to the blood—the vital fires of the body burn brighter and their increased activity consumes the tissue rubbish which has accumulated during the winter.

"About forty years ago while in Newark, New Jersey, I had chills and fever," writes MR. MICHAEL MAGUIRE, of National Military Home, Kans. "I went to Kansas City and in the spring of 1877 the chills and fever returned. Doctors and everything I tried failed to do me good. Finally I saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised. I took one bottle of it and the chills vanished. If about a year afterward I felt them coming back so I got another bottle and have never had any symptoms of fever or ague since. That is all of twenty years ago, for I had the chills about twelve years before I started to take 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

M. MAGUIRE, Esq.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are for liver ills.

EVERYBODY GETS JUSTICE

Woman Sentenced for Bigamy and Husband for Grave Robbery.

Forsythe, Mont., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Sarah Hughes-Elliott pleaded guilty to bigamy after a jury disagreed and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. Arthur Hughes, her first husband, pleaded guilty to robbing the grave of John Kernan, placing the body in his home and setting the place on fire. He also was sentenced to two years. His "widow" had identified the corpse as that of Hughes, who concealed himself in New York, and had tried to collect $5,000 insurance.

Thomas Elliott, who "married" Mrs. Hughes two weeks after the fire, and who was charged with the supposed murder of Hughes, was dismissed. Hughes and Elliott sat side by side during the trial.

SYMMES CASE IS DISMISSED

Prosecutor Finds Evidence Too Flimsy to Support Charge.

Holland, Mich., Nov. 3.—The case against Attorney Thomas J. Symmes, of Chicago, charged with attempting to bribe Prosecuting Attorney Osterhous, of Ottawa county, was dismissed in justice court.

Assistant Attorney General Crowley, who handled the case for the people, said he considered the evidence too flimsy and the charge so ridiculous that he requested that the case be dismissed.

Injured Woman Dies.

Saginaw, Mich., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Hazel Reid, twenty-two years old, who accidently shot herself a few days ago when she stumbled with a revolver in her hand, is dead in St. Mary's hospital.

A Case of Alibi

It Was Very Hard to Prove

By EDWARD L. WALKER

When the war between the states closed more than a million men ceased to be soldiers. A man may be theoretically turned from a soldier to a citizen by the stroke of a pen, but the effects of the life he has lived as a campaigner will cling to him. He can't understand why houses should be locked overnight, and yet the ordinary dangers incurred in cities bother him. The humdrum of civil life is irksome to him, and he pines again for the varied scenes of war.

Sergeant Charlie Young of the —th Pennsylvania volunteer cavalry, having been mustered out of the military service of the United States, finding civilized life tame, irksome and altogether unbearable, concluded to go to what was then called the great American desert. He persuaded ex-Corporal William Somers of the same regiment and company to go with him. What they were to do in that benighted land neither of them knew, but the visions that danced in rainbow hues in their imaginations were alluring.

There was one feature on which they did not calculate. While they were soldiers they had been clothed and fed by the government of the United States. Now they must clothe and feed themselves. They scraped together money enough to take them to "the plains," but when they got there they were obliged to shift for themselves. Then, and only then, their balloon collapsed.

THE PROSECUTING ATTORNEY PROTESTED.

A soldier is usually pictured by those who don't know him, except by his uniform and his arms, as a man of power. On the contrary, except to shoot and be shot at under the personal direction of his officers, he is as helpless as a child. Like a child, he will stuff himself with green apples unless caught in the act and prevented by his superior. He must be kept from straggling and the consequent danger of being killed or captured.

Our heroes, who had charged many a line of butternut Confederates without flinching, found themselves somewhere between Omaha and Denver without provisions or the wherewithal to buy the same. Somers broke down physically. Young, seeing a wagon train in the distance, left his friend on the plain, uncovered even by a tree, to head off the travelers and ask for assistance.

That was the last Somers saw of him for many a long day. Whether Young was obliged to go so far to reach the train that he could not find his way back to the point he had started from Somers didn't know. One thing he was sure of—Young had not intentionally deserted him. There was every reason to believe that Young, who had started but an hour before sunset, had on his return got caught in the darkness. But even in daylight it would be difficult for him to find his way to a point he could not see, for the country was a vast area marked by nothing. Even the Platte river, which runs through it, was barren of trees on its banks.

Somers passed a wretched night. Early the next morning a buffalo hunter, one of the last in the business, came along and, taking pity on the sick man, placed him on his horse and thus transported him to Julesburg, at that time the terminal of the Union Pacific railroad being built across the continent.

Six years passed. One day a long limbed man, bearing on his shoulder a pick and shovel, walked into a little mining town in the Rocky mountains. Passing a courthouse and seeing through an open door a person within evidently engaged in trying a case, the prospector, for such he was, entered and took a seat among the spectators, resting his pick and shovel on the floor and in the hollow of his arm.

A man was being tried for murder, and the prosecuting attorney was stating his case to the court:

"The last person, your honor, who was seen with the deceased was the prisoner. He came into town a stranger. No one in the place had seen him here before or knew anything about him. He was miserably dressed and in a generally rundown condition. He went directly to the home of Mathews, the murdered man. That was seven years ago, the spring of 1865. He took supper with Mathews and through a window was seen talking with him during the evening by a person whose evidence we shall produce. Another witness who lived next door is ready to swear that during the night he heard in the house in which the murder was committed cries of 'Help! Murder!' accompanied by other sounds such as would be uttered by one struggling with an enemy. Lastly, we shall prove that the prisoner is the identical man who stopped with Mathews that night and who disappeared as mysteriously as he had come."

Having thus announced what he intended to establish, he produced the witnesses he had promised. Three different persons who was on the 1 day, professing the murder had seen the stranger come into town, and go to Mathews' house swore that the prisoner was the same person. They claimed that, notwithstanding a slight change in him, they would still know him if they had met him anywhere, because as soon as they were informed that he had committed a murder his image was impressed upon and since carried in their minds.

The prisoner's attorney seemed overwhelmed by this conclusive evidence and showed by his manner that he believed the prisoner guilty. When he had finished his effort the prisoner asked to be put on the stand in his own defense.

"I've spent the last four years, your honor," he said, "in New Mexico, having been a good deal of a wanderer since I came to this country; consequently I can't prove my identity. Besides, it wouldn't do any good to prove it, because the murderer had no identity. All I can say in my defense—and that I can't prove—is that in the spring of 1865, when this murder was committed, I was fighting for the United States in Virginia with Sheridan, who was cutting off the retreat of the Confederates. Quite likely I was engaged at Winchester at the very time the murder was committed. But I can only assert this; I have no way of proving it."

The jury and spectators were sympathizers with the Union cause and were affected by this defense. The prosecuting attorney in order to head off such sympathy arose and said:

"If the prisoner was really a soldier of the United States either he can produce his discharge papers or he was a deserter."

The prisoner's discharge papers were far away. Indeed, he had not seen them for years and didn't know where they were. He sat mute, not seeing any way to prove his innocence. The judge began his charge to the jury, virtually instructing them to find a verdict of guilty.

It was at this point that the man with the pick and shovel arose and said:

"Hello, Charlie!"

The prisoner looked at the speaker, but gave no sign of recognition.

"Did you strike that wagon train?" continued the man among the spectators.

"Who are you?" asked the prisoner.

"Bill Somers."

"Your honor," cried the prosecuting attorney, springing to his feet, "there is a game here to defeat justice. This fellow will doubtless identify the prisoner as an eminently respectable person."

"Nevertheless," retorted the prisoner's counsel, "I demand that if the man who calls himself Somers can throw any light on this case he be heard."

"Let the witness take the stand," said the judge.

Somers told the story of his and Young's coming west and how they had been separated on the plains; also that they had never met since that parting, that they had been soldiers in the same company at the close of the civil war and had fought shoulder to shoulder at the battle of Winchester.

"This is simply a made up story, your honor," the prosecuting attorney protested. "Neither of these men is known or has any proof of his identity. They are probably two horse thieves who have escaped the vigilance committees."

"If that man," said the witness, pointing to the prisoner, "is Charles Young, ex-sergeant of Company —, —th Pennsylvania volunteers, he has the scar of a minie ball that hit him in his side at the battle of Winchester."

"How do you know that?" asked the judge.

"Because I carried him off the field when he was struck."

"Pull up your shirt," said the judge to the prisoner.

The shirt was drawn up and the scar revealed.

The judge began again his charge to the jury, stating that an alibi had been proved and they were to acquit the prisoner. This they did before leaving their seats.

"What became of you, Charlie," asked Somers as they left the courtroom, "the day you left me on the plains?"

"I hunted two days for you, then concluded that some one had carried you away."

"You haven't had much luck, have you?" remarked Somers.

"Not a bit."

"Well, all's well that ends well. I've struck a rich vein."

And, putting his arm through that of his old friend, he led him away.

Fate's Perversity.

A commuter was in a dreadful wreck. The collision had been head on, four coaches were telescoped, flames burst forth, the shrieks and groans of the dying mingled with the hiss of escaping steam.

The commuter, black as a coal, was dragged out by the feet from under a mound of charred and badly mangled corpses.

"Are you hurt?" he was asked.

The commuter opened his eyes and stretched himself, then, rising, snarled:

"Hurt? Me? Of course I ain't hurt! I never am! I can't be! I carry an accident insurance policy."—Detroit Free Press.

Lewis Carroll's Humor.

An English magazine gives some amusing pieces of Lewis Carroll's humor from the forgotten pages of Oxford pamphlets. During the election at Oxford in 1865 he gave vent to the following Euclidean definition: "Plain superficiality is the character of a speech in which, any two points being taken, the speaker is found to lie wholly with regard to those two points." A note is also given on the right appreciation of examiners: "A takes in ten books and gets a third class; B takes in the examiners and gets a second. Find the value of the examiners in terms of books, also their value in terms when no examination is held."

PLAN AID TO FARM SISTERS

M. A. C. Women Will Help Development of Household Titles.

EAST LANSING, MICH. — Beginning December 1 the Michigan Agricultural college woman's department will be to the women of the state what the college and experiment station is to the farmers. In the past they have not attempted to do research work to any great extent, having had their hands full of other school work.

They are now planning an innovation, and will do considerable extension work about the state in the interest of the farm and urban women. It will include all household activities, and bulletins will be issued dealing with timely subjects.

DOG GAME WARDEN'S HELPER

Many Arrests Made on Violation of Law He Has Scented.

GWYNN, MICH. — Game Warden Herman Leisner of Escanaba is the possessor of a cocker spaniel puppy that is proving of invaluabe aid in ferreting out violations of the game laws. The latest achievement of the dog was to bring about the arrest of W. L. Marble of Gladstone. Leisner and Game Warden John Rough of Negaunee were tramping along the road to Willet Lake, Delta county, when they came upon Mr. Marble and his son, F. W. Marble, who were driving from camp at the lake, where they had spent several days.

The officers inquired concerning the location of the various camps in the vicinity and were about to proceed when Leisner's spaniel suddenly jumped upon the carriage, and shoving its nose into Marble's coat pocket, pulled out a partridge.

MILWAUKEE, WIS. — Packey McFarland and Jack Britton have been matched to fight here on Nov. 26, and the battle will be staged at the Hippodrome. The details have been closed and the boys are to get 60 per cent of the gross receipts. The fight is to be at 135 pounds at 3 o'clock.

SHOOTS LANDLADY, THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Muskegon Man Attempts to Murder Indian Sweetheart.

MUSKEGON, MICH. — In a fit of jealous rage, William Hall, a mason, shot and perhaps mortally wounded his landlady, Mrs. Mary Hennessy, Chippewa Indian, at the latter's home, 73 Cedar street. Hall then ran across the Ryerson Creek marsh to the home of his brother, Curtis W. Hall, 136 Wood avenue, got the key to the house from a neighbor and shot himself in the forehead. He died instantly.

According to the story told by the oldest girl, Susan Hennessy, aged eighteen years, she and her mother went to a local moving picture show theater and this excited Hall's anger and jealousy. The girl denies they had other company and says Hall had been drinking.

Hall, the children assert, entered their mother's bedroom and leveled a revolver at Mrs. Hennessy, standing only a few feet away, with her son in the same room. She struck his wrist, forcing down the weapon just as he fired.

MICHIGAN BANK ROBBED

One Bandit Fights Off Villagers While Companion Cracks Safe.

CADILLAC, MICH — While one daring robber stood behind rolls of barbed wire and grindstones and fought off the villagers of Falmouth, his companion cracked the safe in the bank at Falmouth, Missaukee county, fifteen miles east of Cadillac, at 3 o'clock in the morning. He obtained about $3,000, which was every penny in the bank.

All telephone wires leading from Falmouth were cut by the bandits. The bank building and the safe were badly wrecked by three charges of nitroglycerin.

EDWARD MORRIS IS CALLED BY DEATH

Head of Chicago Packing Concern Sick Long Time.

CHICAGO — Edward Morris, the head of the packing concern of Morris & Co., and one of the big men of the Chicago stockyards, died at his residence, 4800 Drexel boulevard, at 3 a. m.

Mr. Morris had been ill for a number of months and several times his condition had been reported to be critical, but this was denied by members of his family, who declared that the packer soon would be back in his office. Thus the death came as a surprise to friends and business associates.

Mr. Morris was the eldest son of Nelson Morris, founder of the big packing company which bears his name. He was born Oct. 1, 1866. He was a member of the Mid Day, South Shore and Standard clubs.

JOKERS CHASED BY BOARD

South Lyon Board Decides to Prosecute—Girls Soap Windows.

SOUTH LYONS, MICH. — Four arrests are expected as a result of Halloween pranks. The members of the school board expected that the usual pranks and set out to guard the high school and capture the jokers. When the trustees arrived they discovered that the school house had already had been broken into. As they entered the building the boys scampered to the upper rooms, hotly pursued by the irate trustees. The boys made their escape by the fire escapes.

As the officials were leaving they discovered two forms in the dusk. A rush, a grapple and the feminine screams that followed froze that part of the town in horror. The captives were daughters of two business men, out "soaping" windows.

PRIEST TAKES STRONG VIEW AGAINST TANGO

He Will Refuse Catholics Absolution Who Dance It.

MARSHALL, MICH. — The Rev. Father James C. Cahalan, of St. Mary's Catholic church made a scathing attack on the tango and allied dances and told his congregation that absolution would be denied any person in his parish who not only participated, but who watched such dances.

"The old dances were all right," said Rev. Cahalan, "but the new dances will not be tolerated in this parish, and I advise parents not to permit their children to attend any dance where the new dances are permitted." Father Cahalan stated that bishops in a majority of the dioceses in the United States had placed a ban on the new dances.

TWO NEARLY LOSE LIVES

Brothers Badly Burned In Trying to Save Horses.

PORT HURON, MICH. — Two men nearly lost their lives, four horses were burned to death and considerable damage to property was done by fire, which destroyed barns owned by the Lakeside Ice and Coal company.

In an attempt to rescue some of the horses, Andrew and Cope Corry, brothers, were caught in one of the barns and could not escape. They pounded against the side of the blazing structure and yelled for help until their cries brought firemen to their rescue. Andrew was burned from head to foot and is in a critical condition, while his brother was less seriously burned. Eighteen horses were saved.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that Science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation. adv.

The hen can not understand what the duck saw in the drake to admire.

For Children there is Nothing Better

A cough medicine for children must help their coughs and colds without bad effects on their little stomachs and bowels. Foley's Honey and Tar exactly fills the need. No opiates, no sour stomach, no constipation follows its use. Stuffy colds, wheezy breathing, coughs and croup are all quickly helped. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv.

Better is the laughter of children in the house than the gaiety of many social gatherings.

Pain in Back and Rheumatism

Torment thousands of people daily. Don't be one of these sufferers when for so little cost you can get well rid of the cause. Foley Kidney Pills begin their good work from the very first dose. They exert so direct an action on the kidneys and bladder that the pain and torment of backache, rheumatism and kidney trouble is soon dispelled. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Adv.

If we put a price tag on ourselves somebody will expect to buy at a greatly reduced figure.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. F. L. Willis suffered greatly from asthma and bronchitis. He writes: I got no relief until I took Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. In entirely removed those choking sensations and never failed to produce an easy and comfortable condition of the throat and lungs." For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Advt.

You can't blame a boy for getting tired when he knows where the fish would bite.

A Maker of Health.

A good honest medicine like Foley Kidney Pills gives health to many families. Mrs. O. Palmer, 685 Willow St., Green Bay, Wis., was seriously ill with kidney and bladder trouble. Mr. Palmer writes: "My wife is rapidly recovering her health and strength due solely to the use of Foley Kidney Pills." For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The man who is guided only by his doubts, is bound for a very doubtful end.

More Bottles Sold Each Year.

It is easy to understand why an increasing number of bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is sold yearly. Thos Verran, 286 Edward St. Houghton, Mich., gives an excellent reason when he writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has always proven an effective remedy, quickly relieving tickling in the throat, and stopping the cough with no bad after effects. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv.

Looking inward gives you mental strabismus, a peevish personality and an ingrowing disposition. Look out.

Nervous and Sick Headaches

Torpid liver, constipated bowels and disordered stomach are the causes of these headaches. Take Dr. King's New Life Pills, you will be surprised how quickly you will get relief. They stimulate the different organs to do their work properly. No better regulator for liver and bowels. Take 25c and invest in a box today. Recommended by C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

Occasionally man can be judged by the company he keeps away from.

Saved His Foot

H. D. Ely, of Bantam, O., suffered from horrible ulcer on his foot for four years. Doctor advised amputation, but he refused and reluctantly tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve as a last resort. He then wrote: "I used your salve and my foot was soon completely cured." Best remedy for burns, cuts, bruises and eczema. Get a box today. Only 25c. Recommended by C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

It's all right for you to see through your friends. But if you help the public do the same thing, pretty soon you won't have any friends to see through.

UNITED DOCTORS
SPECIALIST

Will Make Their Regular Visit

TO TECUMSEH BARRETT HOTEL FRIDAY, NOV. 7.

Hours 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases.

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this visit, consultation, examination and advice free of charge.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases of the blood, liver, stomach, intestines, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, tape worm, leg ulcers, weak lungs, and those afflicted with long standing, deep seated chronic diseases that have baffled the skill of other physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness has often been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc. By their method these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection. They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife, with blood and with pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

Worn-out and run-down men and women, no matter what your ailment may be, no matter what you have been told, or the experience you have had with other physicians, settle it forever in your mind. If your case is incurable they will tell you so. Consult them upon this visit. It costs you nothing.

COLLEGE OF MINES GROWING

The new first-year class at the Michigan College of Mines is thirty per cent larger than the entering class a year ago. This increase is in spite of the Copper Country strike, which had the effect of keeping many new men from coming. In a few cases prospective students, evidently thinking that the College could not operate with the strike on, have written asking for the probable time of opening.

The significance of this increase is that it indicates that the tide of students has turned toward mining engineering again. For a number of years the incoming classes have been getting smaller, not only at the Michigan College of Mines, but in all the mining schools, the larger number of the new students flocking into agricultural and commercial courses. Reports from the Colorado School of Mines and other mining schools indicate that the first-year classes are larger this year, everywhere. It is high time, because even with the mining industry not yet thoroughly revived, a scarcity of technically trained young men is beginning to manifest itself.

PORT HURON — A little bloodshed and charges of corruption featured the municipal election here. As a result, George W. Drought, prominent merchant, member of the St. Clair county board of supervisors and election inspector in the Third ward, was locked up in the county jail on a charge of assault and battery preferred by James H. Hastings, an aged man.

LANSING — James M. Pulver, who was about forty-five years old, former deputy register of deeds and clerk in the office of the Lansing electric light and water board, was found dead in a cornfield near Sterling, Ill. Pulver, suffering from a light mental trouble, left here six weeks ago and was last heard from by relatives at Elgin and Aurora.

FLINT — While he was being marched through the main corridor of the city hall on his way to police court with other prisoners, Tom Quirk charged with attempted larceny, ran through a rear door and escaped.

TAMMANY BEATEN

JOHN PURROY MITCHEL, NEW MAYOR OF NEW YORK CITY

Fusionists Elect City Officers.

Thousands of Municipal Jobs Go into New Hands

The victory won by the people of New York by the last election is one of national importance. The defeat of the Tammany ring is one of the greatest of political events for years. Thousands of municipal offices will change hands and a reform movement under John Purroy Mitchel is looked for in the near future.

His promise that a fight against graft and for a clean government will be carried on by himself and his supporters will be kept up, is an omen of good to a city that has been long ruled by corrupt men. All important county offices in the counties comprising greater New York were elected. It was a great surprise to all, especially Tammany and the ring, when the results or the elections were made public and it was a hard task for New York City to realize that the rule of Tammany was over.

TO IMPROVE PRETTY HAIR AND BEAUTIFY UGLY HAIR

Harmony Hair Beautifier, a delightful liquid hair dressing, is just what it is named—a hair beautifier. No matter how pretty your hair now is, it can be made to look even better by using Harmony Hair Beautifier. To those who mourn because the hair is stringy, dull, lustreless and homely, Harmony Hair Beautifier will prove a real blessing and pleasure. It seems to polish and burnish the hair, making it glossy, silky soft and more easy to put up in graceful wavy folds that "stay put." It overcomes the oily smell of the hair with a dainty, true-rose fragrance, very pleasing to the user and those around.

Very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair nor darken gray hair.

To keep hair and scalp dandruff free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp insuring a quick thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way or your money back. Sold in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States, Canada and Great Britain, which own the big Harmony laborities in Boston where the many celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made.—B. J. Pulver, Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION IN 1914

Seven college presidents and a number of college instructors, including ex-President Taft, will contribute to The Youth's Companion during 1914.

Then there is Gene Stratton Porter, whose stories of Indiana woods and swamps have made her famous, and Kate Douglas Wiggin, who never wrote a dull line in her life, and Mrs. Burton Harrison, who remembers when conversation was really an art as practised in Washington and in the manor houses of Virginia. And this is just a begining of the list.

If you know The Companion, you have a pretty clear idea of what is in store for next year's readers. If you do not know, ask us to send you sample copies—for instance, those containing the opening chapters of Arthur Stanwood Pier's fine serial—"His Father's Son." Full Announcement for 1914 will be sent with the sample copies.

For the year's subscription of $2.00 there is included The Companion Practical Home Calendar for 1914, and all the issues of the paper for the remaining weeks of 1913, dating from the time the subscription is received.

AMUSEMENTS

"BUSY IZZY."

Miss Carrie Webber, the leading woman in the 1913 edition of "Busy Izzy" which will be seen here shortly with George Sidney as the star, is noted for her taste in dress. She is also interesting on account of her versatility. Miss Webber is a character actress, and has the sense of character well developed. For example, she is seen in the opening act of "Busy Izzy" as an Italian organ grinder. She wears the Neapolitan garb and talks the Italian lingo with all the gusto of the real picturesque figure of the street.

But in the second act Miss Webber reveals a totally different aspect. In this she is seen as a Society Belle. She wears Parisian creations as to the manor born. And well she may, for she has a superb figure, and he is a woman of great beauty. In the present production Miss Webber is seen in some particularly elegant creations of the dress maker's art. She went to Paris this summer and while there she obtained some of the very latest patterns and the most recent creations of the artists in dress. She wears one gown in this act that costs $1,000. Ie is one of the most beautiful in design that has been seen on the stage this season and is down to the very minute as to style and mode.

Those who see Miss Webber in "Busy Izzy" will not only have a hearty laugh at her comedy in the first act, but will be treated to a sight of the most modish gowning of the season.

Miss Webber has had wide experience on the stage and has created numerous important roles, but it is in "Busy Izzy" that she appears to the best advantage.

George Sidney and his excellent company will be the attraction at the Bradley Opera House, next Tuesday, Nov. 11. As he is playing to capacity everywhere it is advisable to get your seats early. The seat sale opens at Hay's Bakery Saturday (tomorrow) morning at 8:00 A. M. Everything new this season.

Just a little item to show you that Tecumseh gets regular city attractions:

Sidney, Geo., as Busy Izzy, A. W. Herman, mgr.: Muncie, Ind., 5; Huntington, 6; Wabash, 7; Elkhart, 8; Battle Creek, Mich., 9; Adrian, 10; Tecumseh, 11; Pontiac, 12; Bay City, 13; Saginaw, 14; Lansing, 15

The above clipping was taken from 'The Billboard' and gives you the route of Geo. Sidney's Co. for 11 days and you will see that Tecumseh is the smallest place in the whole lot with Adrian the next largest in size. It means a whole lot for a town the size of Tecumseh to compete with these larger places for attractions of this class and it will necessarily mean some pretty good business for it to continue to do so. It's up to the people. "If you want this class of attractions, patronize them when they are brought here."

PREPARING FOR THE STOCK SHOW

Preliminaries of the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago, Nov. 29 to Dec. 6, have been completed, entries are being tabulated and the groundwork laid for the best display of good animals and draft horses ever congregated in America or elsewhere. Entries largely outnumber those of previous years and galaxy of purebred and fat live stock to be assembled may never meet in the competitive arena again.

Construction gangs are busy increasing show facilities, buildings are being enlarged or altered to accommodate the expansion of the exposition and unsurpassed accommodation will be furnished both exhibitors and spectators.

In consequence of impending shortage of beef, pork and mutton producers all over the United States and Canada are devising ways and means to expand production and on this account unusual interest is being taken in the 1913 exposition. The imperative lesson of economy in production will be taught forcibly and effectively, by the men who are now engaged in adopting their methods to changing conditions. New feeding and breeding problems will be presented in the stage of at least partial solution at this gathering.

The 1913 International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago willbe so dissimilar from previous events of the same nature that both those seeking instruction and diversion will be well rewarded by attending.

Trying to Be Resigned.

"So you've lost your nice pussy cat," sympathized grandma, hearing sad news. "Too bad! I know how you loved him. You miss him dreadfully, I suppose?" "Oh, yes, I miss him some," six-year-old John replied, with an air of chastened sorrow, "but then, grandma, since I've heard so much about this germ business I try to think it's just as well."

JEREMIAH PACKARD

Jeremiah Packard whose death occurred Monday morning, was a life long resident of Tecumseh and had a large circle of friends and relatives who mourn his loss. But he had reached the age of 80 years and for a number of years had been in very poor health, and for a few months had been a great sufferer.

He leaves a wife, a daughter, Mrs. Lottie Biggins, and four sons, Oscar and Adelbert of Tecumseh, Bert of Clinton, and Fred of Detroit, and one brother, Frank Packard of Pontiac, who is the only surviving member of the family. The funeral services were held at the M. E. church Wednesday afternoon, Rev. G. H. Whitney officiating. Many beautiful flowers covered the casket as tokens of love and esteem. The burial was in Brookside cemetery.

Gauls First to Shoe Horses.

It is not known who were the first horseshoers, but historians declare that the Gauls before the Christian era were the first to apply artificial protection of the hoof. The art was first introduced into England by William the Conqueror, who lived during the years 1027-1087.—Horseshoer's Journal.

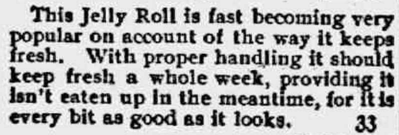
Jelly Roll Recipe

Only Two Eggs Required

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

This Jelly Roll is fast becoming very popular on account of the way it keeps fresh. With proper handling it should keep fresh a whole week, providing it isn't eaten up in the meantime, for it is every bit as good as it looks. 33



K C Jelly Roll

One cup sifted flour; scant half teaspoonful salt; 2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; grated rind of 1 lemon; 2 eggs beaten light; 1 cup sugar; ½ cup hot milk; glass of jelly; powdered sugar.

Beat the sugar into the eggs; add the lemon rind, then the flour, sifted three times with the salt and baking powder; and, lastly, the milk. Bake in a buttered dripping pan; turn out on a damp cloth, trim off the crisp edges; spread with jelly and turn over and over into a roll while still warm. Dredge the top with powdered sugar.

Hot milk used in the jelly roll enables it to be rolled without danger of cracking. Have the milk scalding hot, also be careful to have the eggs and sugar beaten together until very light and creamy. Bake in a moderate oven.

K C Jelly Roll is illustrated on page thirty-two of the new and handsomely illustrated 64-page K C Cook's Book, which may be secured free by sending the certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.

BAPTIST FAIR AND CHICKEN PIE DINNER

Surely the Baptist people of Tecumseh are all right when it comes to a chicken pie dinner which they served to over 2 0 guests at noon Wednesday. Over 100 partook of the supper which was served at 5:30. Mrs W. B. Hartzog was chairman of the dinner committee and Mrs Jay Morse of the supper. A fair was also held in connection with the dinner. The fancy work department was presided over by Mesdames Stahler and Bower. Three candy tables under the supervision of Mrs R. S. Moore for the fair in general. Miss Lillian Cole with her class of boys and Mrs. McNeil with her girls. Rev. W. B. Hartzog had charge of the vegetables and grains and was a most successful salesman. This also proved a great financial success. They cleared about $130.

Kept Scholars at Work.

In Scotland up to the middle of the eighteenth century, the usual school hours were from 6 a. m. till 6 p. m., with two breaks of an hour earlier and worked so long as daylight lasted. No alteration in the hours was made on Saturday, and even on Sunday a certain amount of school work was done. The holidays were restricted to a day at Candlemas and at Whitsun, and a fortnight in the autumn.

GLOOM! GLOOM! GLOOM!

The Foot Ball game with Adrian High did not end nearly as well as we thought it would, They swept us off our feet by the tune of 45 to 7

We have more than one reason to be gloomy. Our players are in a pretty bad shape to buck up against Clinton today, Russell McNeil is out of the game with a sprained ankle, he is about the most consistent gainer we have although not the fastest man Karl Schneider our peerless end is quite hampered by receiving a hard knock on the leg, it is doubtful if he will be able to play the whole game. Capt. Orr has a pretty bad bruise on one leg, It is not serious enough to keep him out of the game. Nearly every man on the team has some bruises, so we will present a pretty banged up piece of machinery when we buck up against Clinton

K. Schneider made our only touch down and that was through the greatest possible luck. Capt. Orr jumped up to intercept an Adrian pass he knocked it right in Karls' hands, he ran about thirty yards for it.

If Adrian had a few more Stoddards she would have a team that would make Detroit Central look sick: he secured five of their touchdowns.

About the prettiest bit of line work we have had pulled against us was in third quarter, when, with the ball within two yards of their goal they held us for four downs. On the third down we had just four inches to go.

We received the fairest deal at Adrian that we have received away from home this year, also the best treatment.

The line up and summary:

ADRIAN	TECUMSEH
Mott	Satterthwaite
Benner	Wilson
Lewis	Kay
Brown	Aebersold
Lehr	Blesing
Wilmoth	Hall
Ayres	K. Snyder
Watts	Hendershot
Alger	McNeil
Porter	Orr
Stoddard	L. Snyder

Woman's Foreign Missionary Society

40TH ANNUAL MEETING OF DETROIT CONFERENCE, ANN ARBOR DISTRICT

At Tecumseh, November 4-5.

There was a fine attendance at the meeting of Woman's Foreign Missionary Society at the M. E. church Tuesday and Wednesday over fifty delegates from the churches in the Ann Arbor district responding to the call.

The program as given in a late issue of the Herald was carried out with but slight changes The exercises were full of deep interest to all who have the work of foreign missions at heart. The lecture given Tuesday evening by Rev Lester Smith of the Central M. E. church in Detroit was one of marked ability and was listened to with deep attention. W. S. Dickenson rendered a beautiful solo which was enjoyed by everyone. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

Pres.—Mrs. D. N. Ramsdell, Ann Arbor

1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. W. B. Collins, Hudson.

2nd Vice Pres—Mrs H. D. Nublack Ypsilanti

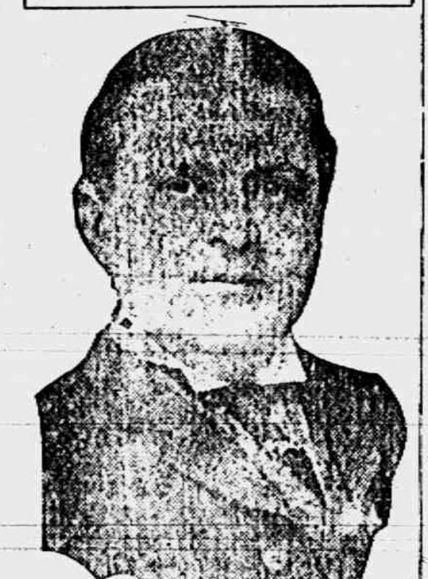
CHARLES G. GATES

Noted Plunger and Broker Drops Dead in Wyoming.



CODY, WYO. — Charles G. Gates, Gates, the New York multi-millionaire, known as "Spend a Million" Gates, died suddenly in the afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the Burlington depot, a mile from this place. Death was caused by heart failure. Gates and a party of companions had been on a hunt in the Wyoming wilds. They had gone to the depot to take a train for New York after thirty-three days spent in the big game country.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

FORSYTHE, MONT. — Mrs. Sarah Hughes-Elliott pleaded guilty to bigamy after a jury disagreed and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. Arthur Hughes, her first husband, pleaded guilty to robbing the grave of John Kernan, placing the body in his home and setting the place on fire. He also was sentenced to two years. His "widow" had identified the corpse as that of Hughes, who concealed himself in New York and had tried to collect $5,000 insurance. Thomas Elliott, who "married" Mrs. Hughes two weeks after the fire, and who was charged with the supposed murder of Hughes, was dismissed.

[illegible]FIELD, ILL. — Jack Martin, a special deputy sheriff, was killed and J. B. Bird, a detective for the McKinley Interurban company, was wounded, perhaps fatally, when they were fired upon by a negro while returning from a coal mine north of town with a negro prisoner.

JACKSONVILLE, IND.—Miss Mina Youell, aged sixteen years, committed suicide at Pisgah, eight miles southeast of the city by taking poison. The girl came from an institution in Quincy and had made her home at the residence of J. E. Davenport, at Pisgah, for five years.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in Tecumseh, and Good Reason for It

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
When she finds freedom.

Many readers will profit by the following.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin, Pearl St. Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I suffered from distressing symptoms of kidney complaint for more than a year. When some one told me that Doan's Kidney Pills were good in such cases I got a supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store. They helped me immediately and I continued using them until cured. I have had no need of Doan's Kidney Pills or any other kidney medicine since. I can still recommend them highly."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. adv.

Study those things that displease you and avoid them in your treatment of others. This is merely the familiar golden rule in a little different shape. Chas. S. Kay.

Would Make Them Better if They Could.

The makers of Foley Kidney Pills know that they have absolutely the best combination of curative and healing medicines for kidney and bladder ailments and urinary irregularities that it is possible to produce. That is why Foley Kidney Pills are the best medicine for the purpose you can buy. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Adv.

WOMEN TAKE NOTICE!

A man cannot understand the torture and suffering many women endure uncomplainingly. If the majority of men suffered as much pain and endured with patience the weakening sicknesses that most women do, they would ask for immediate sympathy and look for a quick cure.

Many women have been saved from a life of misery and suffering by turning to the right remedy—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy which is safe to take because containing no narcotics, alcohol or injurious ingredients. It is an alterative extract of roots, made with pure glycerin, and first given to the public by that famous specialist in the diseases of women—Dr. R. V. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y.

MRS. LIZZIE M. HESSHEIMER, of Lincoln, Neb., 529 "O" St., says: "I send a testimonial with much pleasure so that some suffering woman may know the true worth of your remedies. I was a great sufferer from female troubles but after taking one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which a friend advised me to take, I found myself very much improved. After taking three more bottles, and using two boxes of Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets, I found myself on the road to recovery. I was in poor health for five years but now I am cured.

"I hope all women suffering from female weakness will give Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a fair trial.

GENERAL NEWS.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The will of the late Adolphus Busch, brewer and philanthropist, by which his estate, estimated at $75,000,000, is bequeathed has been filed for probate and names the widow, Mrs. Lilly Busch, his eldest son, August A. Busch, and his personal attorney, Charles Nagel, as trustees with a provision that the first vacancy among the trustees shall be filled by his son-in-law, Edward A. Faust. His son August is given two of the eight shares with an explanation. This preference is shown on account of valuable aid by his son in managing the brewery business. The remainder of the estate is divided equally among the six children, the seventh child, Carl, referred to as "my invalid son" is left to the care of August Busch, who is instructed to expend $12,000 a year for Carl. One hundred and twenty thousand dollars is left to charitable institutions.

WASHINGTON — President Wilson Wilson made it known in unmistakable fashion that he is unqualifiedly in favor of the vital principles in the Glass-Owen currency bill—the administration measure which the senate committee on banking and currency is amending. While admitting that some parts of the measure are debatable, the president is disposed to indicate with exactness what amendment he will be willing to accept. It is known, however, he is opposed to the senate amendment for only four regional reserve banks at the outset of the proposed system.

NEW YORK — Nearly one million pounds of mail were piled up in postoffices and railway stations in New York as the result of a sudden strike of chauffeurs of the Postal Transfer service, a corporation which has the contract for the transfer of the United States mail in New York, and which handles on an average 5,000,000 pounds of mail matter a day.

RACINE, WIS. — That there is a split between Mattie McCue, the local lightweight fighter, and his manager and trainer, John McCue, has become known. The young fighter probably will be taken over by some person in Chicago, perhaps Nate Lewis.

The Man She Met Abroad

He Was Not Acceptable to Her Father

By EDITH TOWNSEND

Paris, France, Oct. 3, 19—.

Dearest Papa—I have something awfully important to tell you. It's the most important thing in the world. Now, do be good and don't get upset. I know that you have never expected me to be married and all that, and you do expect that I'll be a good little girl and live with you and mamma always. And so I would if the finest, brightest, most intelligent, handsomest fellow in the world hadn't come along and asked me to be his wife. We met him in Switzerland, and he came here with us. Just think—he proposed to me in the gardens of the palace of Versailles! Wasn't that too lovely for anything?

He is obliged to return to America on the next steamer and will go at once to you to ask for me. He will also tell you all about himself, and I'm sure his account will agree with mine. Do be good to him for my sake. Your own loving

ELSIE.

"What did I ever let her go over there for to pick up some worthless globe trotter to come down on me for funds to keep him trotting? Something awfully important! I should think so! I told her mother to keep all such fellows away from her. But you can't trust a woman in such a matter. It takes a father to do that. 'Finest, brightest, most intelligent, handsomest.' What are you going to do with a girl who will tumble to the first mustache waxed nonentity that looks at her?"

Mr. Witridge after this soliloquy opened a letter from his wife giving a more coherent account of the man who was coming to ask for their daughter. He was an American, a young lawyer who had recently been admitted to the bar and was taking an outing before settling down to practice his profession. This was the substance of the report. There were many details, but none of the things said seemed to make the father more inclined to be satisfied with what meant to him the loss of a daughter he loved so well.

"SHE LOVES ME AND ME ONLY."

A couple of weeks after the receipt of these letters Mr. Witridge stepped aboard the train he usually took to his home in the suburbs after business hours. He was not conscious of being followed by a young man who took the vacant seat beside him.

"How do you do, Mr. Witridge?" said the young man, with great cordiality.

The other looked up at him curiously, evidently not remembering him.

"Anything recently from Mrs. Witridge and Miss Elsie?"

"They're in Paris," was the brief reply.

"Paris is an attractive place for ladies. I fear we shall not get them home soon."

"They're coming on the next steamer."

"That must be gratifying to you. I suppose you find living alone rather dull?"

"I find it very dull indeed."

"You have an attractive daughter, Mr. Witridge."

"Yes; Elsie's a nice girl."

"I should think you would fear that some of those foreign chaps would fall in love with her and keep her there."

Now, Mr. Witridge was full of his daughter's engagement and ready to pour forth his dissatisfaction to some sympathetic listener. He had no remembrance of having seen this young man before, but he could not be expected to remember all his daughter's acquaintances, and his eyesight, as well as his memory, was not serving him as it had when he was younger.

"Elsie's engaged to an American," he said.

"Elsie engaged!" The speaker looked as if he had received a terrible blow. He appeared to control himself with difficulty.

"Pardon me!" he gasped. "I—I had hoped"—

Mr. Witridge surmised that he had encountered a disappointed suitor for his daughter.

"Have you known my daughter long?" he asked.

"Long! One does not need to know your daughter long to be assured of her inestimable worth."

"Let me see. I remember your face very well, but I have a way of forgetting names. You are"—

"Tickets!" cried the conductor. And both gentlemen plunged into their pockets, the younger neglecting to reply to the other's question. When his ticket had been taken up he said:

"Mr. Witridge, I confess that your announcement has affected me terribly. I dread being alone this evening. I don't know what I may do. I wish you would dine with me and keep me company till bedtime."

"My dear boy, come home with me. I am alone in a big house and will be delighted to entertain you."

So the unfortunate suitor went home with Mr. Witridge, and the two sat down together to dinner. The elder man had dined alone nearly every day since his wife and daughter had gone abroad, and it was a great comfort to him to have a companion. He was much pleased at his guest's appearance and thought that if Elsie had given her heart to such a man the pill would not have been so hard to swallow. Mr. Witridge regretted deeply that Elsie had not thought proper to listen to his suit.

"Did she encourage you?" he asked.

"[illegible] that is not the way to put it. Had she not made this trip abroad all would have been different."

"I don't doubt it. I was opposed to her going. It's a mistake to expose girls to those broken down foreign fortune hunters and American globe trotters. If I had my way Elsie would have remained at home. But if you're ever married, young man, you'll find that your wife knows everything and you know nothing."

"I only ask to see your daughter once to win her away from this fellow. She loves me and me only. Doubtless sightseeing together abroad, dawdling in picture galleries, boating on the Italian lakes with him, have made her think that she has found a new love. As soon as she gets away from his influence she may very easily be brought under mine."

"You don't mean it!"

"I do. I am perfectly confident that in the bottom of my heart she loves me and me only."

"Well, young man," he said resolutely, "if you wish to renew your addresses to my daughter when she comes home all I have to say is that you can count on all the influence I have in this family—it's not much, I admit—to help you. You're a gentleman, every inch of you. I'd much rather have Elsie marry a man I've seen and like—yes, I like you first rate—than one I've never heard of before."

The guest reached across the table and fervently pressed the speaker's hand.

"What are you going to do in the matter?" asked Mr. Witridge presently.

"I will meet your daughter at the dock when she lands and be guided by circumstances."

"But likely you'll find the other fellow there too. He's in America. Elsie wrote he was to come over before her. I've been expecting him every day to come and ask me for her."

"Leave all that to me. He won't interfere with my meeting Elsie. Any one has a right to do that."

"But are you sure you can manage it all?"

"Perfectly."

"You were not engaged when Elsie went away, were you?"

"No."

"Then why are you so sure?"

"Simply because Elsie loves me, and no man on earth can take her away from me unless temporarily. As I have said, she has been under other influences; then, too, she is very young."

"Young! I should think so! She should be in the nursery instead of traipsing around Europe, exposed to every impoverished scamp who comes along."

Before the evening was over the guest promised that if he should win Elsie he would make his home in the same street—next door, if possible, to her former home—and Mr. Witridge, under the genial influence of a good dinner, assured him that he would rather have him for a son-in-law, than any man living. The guest was pressed to stay all night; but, realizing that his host might in the morning be less genial, he declined and returned to the city.

In due time Mrs. Witridge and her daughter arrived, and her father's dinner companion met them at the pier, it having been arranged between him and the old gentleman that the latter should keep out of the way.

"I've met your father, and he is mine," said the young man.

"You don't mean that he has consented"—

"I do."

"How did you ever do it?"

The lover told the story on the way to the lady's home and how he had made a friend of Mr. Witridge and secured his consent that he should cut the other fellow out with the father's promised assistance.

Soon after her arrival Elsie Witridge informed her father that as a dutiful daughter she would marry the man of his choice. Mr. Farnsworth, the accepted suitor, called and was received by all the family with open arms. For some time Mr. Witridge made frequent allusions to that chap his daughter met abroad, wondering why he had not called to ask for her and intimating that if he had done so he would have been peremptorily refused. Mrs. Witridge and her daughter at such times maintained a discreet silence, declining to discuss the matter. The Farnsworths have been married two years, and Mr. Witridge is still ignorant of the way his consent was gained to his daughter's marriage with the man she met abroad.

'DOPE' CAUSED DOWNFALL

Dr. William Coburn, Jailed for Forgery, Blames Morphine.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. — Dr. William Coburn of Coopersville, under arrest for forging two checks, admitted that his downfall was caused by the use of morphine. When he was searched an outfit to administer these narcotics was found in his pockets. During the three days he has been in jail he has been on the verge of collapse.

Coburn, who is a young dentist, came here from Detroit, where he had been employed.

MEMPHIS, TENN. — James T. Johnson, negro, formerly a railway mail clerk, was arrested here on an indictment returned by the federal grand jury at Danville, Ill., charging him with robbing the mails. The charge is in connection with the disappearance of $3,000 en route from Carbondale, Ill., to the First National bank at Cobden, Ill.

CHICAGO — The demands for increases in wages by employes of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company, involving 5,000 trainmen, conductors and employes of the freight service, who threatened a strike a few months ago, were considered when a board of arbitration began sessions in the federal building.

MAJ. GILLETTE HITS 'PATRIOTS'

'Constitutional' Leaders Guilty of Revolting Crimes.

ONE BIG 'REBEL' CATTLE THIEF

Former Army Officer Says Durango Is Saturnalia of Outrage on Women Biggest Leader Great Criminal—Carranza Would Have Same Class to Fight If President.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Major Cassius E. Gillette, an ex-officer of the United States army who has resided in Mexico many years, has resumed his attack on the administration for its present policy in Mexico. Major Gillette recently joined twenty-one other Americans who have large interests in Mexico, in signing a communication to the president protesting against the present Mexican policy of this government.

Major Gillette's statements were sharper than any made by him before and disclose revolting conditions in many Mexican cities. He said among other things, referring to the so-called constitutionalists:

Chief Leader Cattle Thief.

"The forces that have been in absolute control in Durango for many months, consist of four bands. The largest is in command of a man who has been a cattle thief for years, his name being used by nurses to scare children with. He can neither read nor write.

"The second is a common farm peon, ignorant and a savage. The other two I believe can read and write. Barring Americans, whom they have somewhat respected and a few of the better class of Mexicans who got away, practically every woman and girl over ten years of age within 125 miles of Durango has been outraged by the 'patriots.'

"A man came to an American in charge of a large business in that section and asked if the doctor could come and see his two girls, twelve and fourteen years old. They had been carried off by the 'constitutionalists,' outraged for about two weeks and then left in the wilds, eighty miles from home to find their way back home as best they could. Do you suppose that one of those brutes is interested in a constitution or would have the slightest comprehension of the word or cares a continental about it in any event?

"I was told by a cultured and refined American woman just from Durango that if a rap came at the front door of any house and it were not instantly opened a bomb blew it open. One Englishman got there just as the bomb opened the door, taking off his legs.

"She said the American women missionaries there were chased around by drunken savages at the points of bayonets and forced to cry 'Viva Madero' as they ran.

"These are the people whom our congress proposes to help get arms. The president alone holds out against it. If Carranza were made president tomorrow he would have exactly the same problem Huerta now has against 90 per cent of the same 'patriots.'"

Huerta Preparing Statement.

Mexico City, Nov. 10.—At the termination of the extraordinary meeting of the cabinet which lasted from five o'clock in the afternoon until one o'clock the next morning, it was announced that an official statement will be issued as soon as it can be prepared explaining the whole story of the Huerta regime from the time he assumed the presidency to the present.

A high government official says that General Huerta will admit that there have been many irregularities in the recent election, that there were not enough ballots distributed to make the election legal and that for that reason the new congress will be justified in declaring the election void and calling for a new one. It is said that the relations between Mexico and teh United States have shown a marked improvement in the last few days.

REBATE CLAUSE HELD VOID

Attorney General's Opinion Against American Ship Preferential Public.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The treasury department made public Attorney General McReynolds' opinion on the clause in the new tariff law which gives a five per cent rebate to all goods imported in American vessels. The attorney general holds that this clause is null and void because it impairs treaty obligations of the United States government, guaranteeing many foreign nations against any discrimination in the matter of duties.

This means that no effort will be made by the treasury department to put this clause of the tariff law into operation. It means too that American ship owners will immediately take steps to carry the matter into the courts and obtain a judicial interpretation of the law.

WOMAN DUPE OF SPIRIT MEDIUMS

Mrs. Eliza Dean, of Michigan, Brings Court Action.

MULCTED OF LARGE AMOUNT

Letters Purporting to Come from Spirit World from Departed Husband Directed Her to Turn Her $15,000 Over to Them—Rev. Mrs. H. V. Ross Is Sued.

Philadelphia, Nov. 10.—Love for her dead husband and a blind faith in a Philadelphia spiritualistic medium cost Mrs. Eliza B. Dean of Sandwich, Mich., $15,000 in money and bonds, according to the petition in a suit Mrs. Dean has instituted against the medium. The defendant is Mrs. Hannah V. Ross of this city, doing business as the "Rev. H. V. Ross." Mrs. Ross's present husband, H. Ray Pierce, who is associated with her in the medium business, is better known as the "lecturer and message bearer."

According to Mrs. Dean, the woman medium, by means of letters purporting to have been received by the deceased husband, induced her to part with her wealth.

Mrs. Ross disclaimed any part in the fraud upon Mrs. Dean, if fraud there was. She said her first husband obtained some of Mrs. Dean's property, and when she learned of it she divorced him. Mrs Dean now has procured an attachment against the property of the woman medium and will strive to convince the courts it should be turned over to her Spirits Wrote About Cash.

Mrs. Dean told a strange story of weird seances in which the medium is alleged to have appeared to go into the spirit world and fetch back to earth the spirit of the departed Mr. Dean. After she had conversed with her husband through mediums, as she supposed, Mrs. Dean received spirit letters advising her as to the proper disposition of her property, practically all of which he had left to her at his death.

Such was her faith in spiritualism as revealed to her by Mrs. Ross and her husband, Mrs. Dean said that she followed the advices she believed the letters to contain and gave up her property to the medium's husband. Mrs. Ross and her present husband have lived in Philadelphia for three years conducting Sunday meetings under the name of the First Spiritual Alliance church, in a hall on North Broad street.

Here's Where Adam Gets It.

Mrs. Ross admitted that Mrs. Dean had attached her property:

"Yes my property has been attached and Mrs. Dean has sued for $15,000. If there was any fraud my first husband committed it. I had nothing to do with it. Mrs. Dean did give him some money and I don't believe he was entitled to it. I should not be held responsible for what my first husband did".

CRIBS WRECKED BY STORM

Men Inside Have to Fight for Their Lives—Shipping in Peril.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The storm Sunday afternoon almost completely wrecked the Carter Harrison, Lake View and Four Mile cribs, smashing in the heavy steel gates, shattering the thick plate glass windows, so that the men inside had the lake itself to fight with.

In three of the cribs a desperate battle was fought to prevent interference with the city's water supply by accidents to the intake gauges. The situation was critical up until midnight. The storm did much damage in the city, and shipping on the lake was imperiled.

GLASS BILL TO GO INTO CAUCUS

Administration Men Have Coop for Recalcitrants.

HITCHCOCK MAY HOLD OUT

Four Democratic Members of the Banking and Currency Committee Propose That No Amendments Be Introduced Without President's Approval—Committee Trouble Likely.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Four Democratic members of the senate committee on banking and currency which have adhered to the administration program currency legislation have met and begun work on a report to be made to the Democratic caucus called for Wednesday afternoon. The four are Chairman Owen and Senators Pomerene, Hollis, and Shafroth. It developed after the meeting that the four will join in a recommendation that the caucus endorse the Glass bill practically in the form it passed the house. Whatever changes are suggested will bear the endorsement of the president. The number of regional banks may be reduced below twelve as provided by the house bill, but, if this is done, it will be only after the president has approved.

Hitchcock May Hold Out.

Senators O'Gorman and Reed were not present at the conference nor was Senator Hitchcock. The three senators will be asked to concur in the report the four administrations senaters are preparing to make to the caucus. There is no hope apparently that Senator Hitchcock will sign it but O'Gorman and Reed may do so.

Meanwhile the Republicans are making their plans to join in a report to the senate on a bill that may authorize a central bank but certainly will not provide for more regional reserve associations.

Trouble in Committee Probable.

It is likely there will be trouble when the banking and currency committee meets. Four administration Democrats, if they pursue the policy they did in the committee meeting Saturday, will try to prevent any further action by the committee pending the Democratic caucus. The Republican members of the committee will insist on going forward with the amending of the bill regardless of the Democratic caucus and if they can command a quorum they will keep up the work regardless whether Democratic members attend or not.

The Republican senators hope to be able to command a quorum of the commitee to continue their work. If Senator Hitchcock meets with them there will be six of the twelve members of the committee present at each meeting and on this basis they may proceed to frame a report for the senate regardless of the Democratic caucus.

NOTABLES AT RILEY FUNERAL

Lorimer, Cooley, Farrell, Alschuler, and Purkhiser Attend.

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 10.—William Lorimer, Lyman E. Cooley, and Representative J. Farrell of Chicago, were among those who attended the funeral here of Thomas H. Riley, Democratic politician. Samuel Alschuler, William C. Crolius, former candidate for mayor of Gary, Ind., and E. G. Purkhiser of Chicago were also here.

Lorimer, Cooley, and Riley constituted the legislative triumvirate which authorized the Chicago drainage canal. The three men were lifelong friends. Riley voted for Lorimer's election to the senate. The funeral was conducted by the Joliet lodge, B. P. O. E.

THREE KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS BUGGY

Father and Two Children Killed; Mother Badly Hurt.

North Judson, Ind., Nov. 10.—Henry Brenlien of Bremen, Ind., and his two children—Otto, ten years old, and Norman, three months old—are dead and his wife, Mrs. Henry Brenlein, is in a serious condition, the result of the buggy in which they were riding being struck by west-bound Erie fast train No. 3 at Augle Crossing. The train was said to have been running more than fifty miles an hour.

The engineer did not know he had struck anything until the train stopped at Crown Point, when he noticed pieces of clothing and wood hanging about the front of the engine. It was three hours later before the dead bodies were discovered, when Frank Cimiter and his daughter, returning home from town, heard groans and cries of a woman.

It was after midnight before enough of the boy's body was found to identify it. The horse which the Brenleins were driving was dragged for 400 feet beneath the engine and ground into small bits. The buggy was worse than kindling wood. The woman will recover.

JAIL BREAKER IS CAPTURED

Man With Long Record in Illinois and Indiana Found Out Hunting.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 10.—Charles Walker, alias Rogers, alias Smith, with a record of forged checks in Indiana and Illinois, and an escape from a prison, where he was sent from Danville, was caught east of here while hunting.

He draws a pension of $24 a month for Spanish war service.

Negro Defies 200 Pursuers.

Centralia, Ill., Nov. 10.—Sam Sherman, a negro held at bay a posse of 200 men who attempted to arrest him for shooting his wife. Three men were wounded. The negro finally was overpowered and locked up.

BASEBALL PLAYERS' SIDE IS PRESENTED

Dave Fultz Puts 17 Propositions up to Magnates.

New York, Nov. 10.—David L. Fultz, president of the baseball players fraternity, made public for the first time a list of seventeen requests for the adjustment of alleged wrongs which he has filed with the national commission and the national board, the latter being the minor leagues' court of appeals. Fultz also has filed a list of explanations clearly drawn together.

Much importance is attached to the eleventh and twelfth demands relating to the perpetual reservation of players. The fraternity asks that a player who has served ten years in the majors or twelve years in the minors shall receive his unconditional release so that he will be unhampered in his efforts to secure another position. C. W. Murphy's treatment of Mordecai Brown, the former Cub pitcher last year, is a case in point.

The most radical demand, which winds up the list, relates to the waiver rule and probably will cause serious friction with the club owners. It calls for the asking of waivers by major league clubs right down through the various minor league classes instead of sending a drafted or purchased player directly back to his original employer.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation. adv.

The hen can not understand what the duck saw in the drake to admire.

For Children there is Nothing Better

A cough medicine for children must help their coughs and colds without bad effects on their little stomachs and bowels. Foley's Honey and Tar exactly fills the need. No opiates, no sour stomach, no constipation follows its use. Stuffy colds, wheezy breathing, coughs and croup are all quickly helped. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv.

Better is the laughter of children in the house than the gaiety of many social gatherings.

Pain in Back and Rheumatism

Torment thousands of people daily. Don't be one of these sufferers when for so little cost you can get well rid of the cause. Foley Kidney Pills begin their good work from the very first dose. They exert so direct an action on the kidneys and bladder that the pain and torment of backache, rheumatism and kidney trouble is soon dispelled. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Adv.

If we put a price tag on ourselves somebody will expect to buy at a greatly reduced figure.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. F. L. Willis suffered greatly from asthma and bronchitis. He writes: I got no relief until I took Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. In entirely removed those choking sensations and never failed to produce an easy and comfortable condition of the throat and lungs." For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Advt.

You can't blame a boy for getting tired when he knows where the fish would bite.

A Maker of Health.

A good honest medicine like Foley Kidney Pills gives health to many families. Mrs. O. Palmer, 605 Willow St., Green Bay, Wis., was seriously ill with kidney and bladder trouble. Mr. Palmer writes: "My wife is rapidly recovering her health and strength due solely to the use of Foley Kidney Pills." For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The man who is guided only by his doubts, is bound for a very doubtful end.

More Bottles Sold Each Year.

It is easy to understand why an increasing number of bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is sold yearly. Thos Verran, 206 Edward St. Houghton, Mich., gives an excellent reason when he writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has always proven an effective remedy, quickly relieving tickling in the throat, and stopping the cough with no bad after effects. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv.

Saved His Foot

H. D. Ely, of Bantam, O., suffered from horrible ulcer on his foot for four years. Doctor advised amputation, but he refused and reluctantly tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve as a last resort. He then wrote: "I used your salve and my foot was soon completely cured." Best remedy for burns, cuts, bruises and eczema. Get a box to-day. Only 25c. Recommended by C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

It's all right for you to see through your friends. But if you help the public do the same thing, pretty soon you won't have any friends to see through.

AMUSEMENTS

TECUMSEH GETS ANOTHER BIG CITY ATTRACTION

Arrangements have been completed with Steir & Halvin of New York for the presentation of the United Play Company's mammoth production of "The Man from Home" in Tecumseh. This big attraction was secured by the local management on a big first money contract as the play was open to only three one night stands in Michigan owing to "The Garden of Allah" playing the entire week in Toledo, otherwise this attraction would have played these three nights at the Valentine theatre where it was originally booked.

The company is headed by Mr. Walter Marshall and the entire cast is way above the average ever seen outside of the largest cities. The stage settings which are from the original Liebler Company production are massive and on an elaborate scale. The same production which was used in the Astor theatre, New York City.

The company is under the management of the United Play Co. of Chicago who were responsible for having "The Third Degree" and "The Lion and the Mouse" as both of these excellent attractions were under their management. This is enough to guarantee "The Man from Home" to be an A. No. 1 attraction.

Sorrento, the locale of the play, affords great opportunity for the skill of the stage mechanic and many beautiful pictures are shown throughout the play. The first act is, in miniature a replica of the famous Hotel Regina Margherita at this beautiful Italian watering place.

Tecumseh is a very small town for an attraction of this caliber to play and its up to the people to support this class of attractions if they want them. It stands to reason that companies will not book their attractions into towns that they know will be losers and the people should give an attraction of this class the patronage that it deserves.

TWENTY SEVEN YEARS AGO

In an issue of the Tecumseh Herald bearing date Oct. 14, 1886, we find the following which will be quite interesting to the members of St. Peter's Guild of today

The entertainment given at William Hayden's residence last Monday evening by the young ladies of St. Peter's Church Guild was a more elaborate affair than was anticipated by outsiders. A flower booth and other stands where articles were sold yielded a good sum. The dining room was transformed into a veritable Gypsy Camp, where Misses Hayden and Root performed the role of fortune tellers with equal facility and satisfaction. A musical program of excellent merit was presented which must have been over an hour in length. The spacious parlors were crowded with an interested company the entire evening, and the young ladies reaped a nice pecuniary harvest for their trouble. There were thirteen numbers in the musical program as follows:

Selection—Knapp's Band
Vocal solo—Miss Agnes Woodward.
Duo—Mozart—Misses Rice and Havens
Vocal solo—Mrs. L. I. Bidwell.
Trio — Nocturne 11—Violin, Miss Mable Hayden; flute, Levi Hayden; piano, Clara Hayden.
Piano solo—Miss Belle Barlow.
Vocal solo—Mark Russell.
Selection—Knapp's Band.
Vocal solo—Miss Grace De Wolfe
Violin solo—Miss Mable Hayden.
Piano duet—Miss Jennie Root and Mrs. E. P. Tribou.
Vocal solo—Mark Russell.
Selection—Knapp's Band.

THAT JOLLY PARTY

A merry lot of little folks gathered at the pleasant home of Mrs. G. R. Gillespie Saturday afternoon, surprising the little Misses Arlene, Geraldine and Frances. A most delightful afternoon was spent with games and other amusements.

A special feature of the occasion was when the bunch were seated at the dining table, 17 jolly little folks. As the affair was a combination birthday party a large cake decked with candies was the center of attraction. An elegant two course supper was served. It would have done any one good to see how the feast was appreciated in fact when the ice cream and cake were served. Most of the company were too full for utterance, and they all say that they had one of the best times they ever had.

Origin of Vaudeville Turns.

We are indebted to John Chinaman for the modern vaudeville "turn." There were theaters in China when our ancestors were wandering about dressed in skins and blue paint, and the actors in those faroff times were just as anxious to please their patrons as the modern "artist" is to get the applause which gladdens his heart and more important still sends his salary up. The play over, each member of the troupe came forward to receive the applause to which he thought he was entitled, and one of them hit on the bright idea of performing some simple trick to prolong the enthusiasm of the spectators. His example was speedily followed, and these tricks soon became obligatory. One actor would produce a cat or a monkey from a hat; another would imitate an animal or "swallow" an object which he afterward found in his boot. Each tried to surpass the other, and feats of strength and dexterity were soon added to these simple tricks.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Bane of Curiosity.

"Curiosity has been the bane of womankind ever since the first apple was ripe," declared Bulger as he stormed out of the house and slammed the door behind him.

On the way down to his office he stopped ten minutes to see a man replace an automobile tire, seven minutes to watch a steeplejack painting a church spire and fifteen minutes to catch sight of a noted actress who was expected to come out of a hotel side door.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

RECORD-SMASHING ENTRIES

Entries vastly exceeding in number any list heretofore compiled indicate growing interest in the International Live Stock Exposition, which occurs this year at Chicago, November 29th to December 6th. No such list of exhibits has ever before been prepared, nor for that matter have the live stock producers of the North American continent previously manifested such concern in the future of that industry. Every department of the exposition will be full; interest being manifested alike in horses, cattle, hogs and sheep.

The spectacular side of the exposition will be as prominent as the practical. A series of evening attractions of unique character have been prepared and there will be no lack of entertainment to maintain the essential equilibrium. Equipoise has always been a characteristic of the "International," and the management intends to attain the standard of perfection in every department on this occasion.

Interest in the draft horse, instead of waning is growing and the nightly horse fair will excel even the superb equine display of former years.

In swine and sheep the breeders of the United States and Canada promise to eclipse all previous efforts. Wisconsin and Ontario, as usual, will make a stellar display, and the Western grower will again demonstrate the merit of range product.

Current and threatened beef scarcity renders the fat cattle display of more than usual interest this year. That the beef industry is "coming back" will be effectively demonstrated and feeders will be furnished with numerous object lessons on the subject of economy in production. In other words, the master feeders of the country will show and tell how they do it.

If you miss the 1913 International Live Stock Exposition you will be the loser.

Earliest Hunger Strike.

What was the date of the earliest hunger strike? In the second or third century of this era a Greek student wrote: "Theon to his father Theon, greeting. It was a fine thing of you not to take me with you to Alexandria. * * * Send me a lyre, I implore you. If you don't I won't eat; I won't drink. There, now!"

Corrected the Inspector.

In a police court an inspector was giving evidence of the arrest of the prisoner. "I went to No. 27," he said importantly, in a dignified staccato fashion that came from long practice, "where I saw the prisoner in bed. I said, 'I have a warrant for your arrest for burglariously entering the premises at'" and so on. At the end of the inspector's evidence the magistrate asked the prisoner, "Any questions?" "Yes, sir," said the prisoner, and he intimated that the inspector had not given his evidence correctly. "I'm sure," he said, "Mr. Jackson," the inspector, "don't want to say only what is true. Didn't you come to my room," turning to the inspector, "and say, 'Now, then, Ginger, 'op out of it—I want yer?'"—London Mail.

Oil Good for Linoleum.

To keep linoleum that has worn bare from showing every track use the water that you wash it with any kind of oil. It saves a great deal of labor, as the floor will need washing only once a week, and it also keeps down the dust wonderfully.

LOOK AT THIS!

The foot ball game with Clinton High ended just as we expected it to. We beat them to the tune of 18 to 6. Despite the wet field and rainy weather the game was a very fast one with but comparatively few fumbles. We were the first ones to score, we scored 6 points in the first quarter and in the second quarter added 12 more to our bunch, then thinking that we had enough we played mostly a defensive game. Clinton scored their only touchdown in the third quarter, but we in a good position to score when the game was called.

Our men played a fine game these are the ones who did the best work; "Doc" Hendershott, L. and K. Schneider, Seymour Orr, and Howard Wilson, Fay Satterthwaite played a good defensive game, but on the offensive he didn't have much to do. Our line showed quite an improvement over the Adrian game, Adrian made numerous gains of six or eight yards through it, the best Clinton could do was about five, with very few of these.

We will probably add another scalp to our string next Friday when we go to Addison. We beat them 67 to 0 the last game, and with "Doc" back we ought to better that. The following was our line-up:

JOHN H DARLING

Of Duluth Resigns From Service With Uncle Sam After Forty Years Service.

After 40 years of service for Uncle Sam as assistant engineer in the Duluth office of the United States engineers John H. Darling has tendered his resignation and stepped out of office October 31.

From a copy of the Duluth Herald which we have before us we call these items of interest. Mr. Darling has reached the age of 66 and feels that after 40 years service he would like to indulge in travel both at home and abroad and take up a course of study. He and Mrs. Darling are anticipating a trip to Europe in the near future.

In accepting his resignation Capt. E. D. Peck engineer in charge expressed deep regret and said "Your services for the past forty years in this department have been of more than ordinary value and satisfaction to all who have had occasion to entrust work in your charge."

His fellow workers in the engineers office presented him with a handsome silver loving cup, fitly engraved and all of them made short addresses with best wishes for his future. Mr. Coleman in presenting the cup, thanked Mr. Darling in behalf of each and everyone for his kindness, advice and influence on their lives.

Mr Darling is a recognized authority on many branches of government engineering.

He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1873. His early life was spent in Ridgeway and he was well known in Tecumseh where he married his wife then, Miss Adalaide Ford.

Mr. and Mrs. Darling will not give up their home in Duluth as their interests, sympathies and friends are in that city.

Whatever their future plans maybe the best wishes of their friends in Tecumseh will go with them.

Snell's store will be closed hereafter each Wednesday evening from 7 to 8.

The Big Chief Garage have received a car load of 1913 Ford cars this week.

The singing of the Boy Choristers at St. Peter's church last Sunday morning was much appreciated by all who heard him.

Despite the inclement weather of last Sunday the Parish House was well fitted for the social hour and lunch after the church services.

A congregational meeting will be held next Sunday morning after service to vote on the proposition of extending a call to Rev. Dr. Fox.

RATE BOOST REFUSED

Commerce Commission Will Not Allow Increases in Freight.

WASHINGTON — There will be no immediate relief from the interstate commerce commission for the eastern railroads in the matter of increased freight rates.

It became known that the commission has decided to suspend all of the proposed increases in freight rates recently filed by the railroads in the territory east of the Mississippi and north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers. The order of suspension is now being prepared and will be promulgated at an early date. The decision of the commission means that all schedules will be held in abeyance until the commission can take testimony and hold hearings on the proposed increases.

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use

IT'S different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts four times as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on sample stoves and sold by hardware dealers.

All we ask is a trial. Use it on your cook stove, your parlor stove or your gas range. If you don't find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Insist on Black Silk Stove Polish. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH WORKS
Sterling, Illinois

Use Black Silk Air-Drying Iron Enamel on grates, registers, stove pipes—Prevents rusting. Use Black Silk Metal Polish for silver, nickel or brass. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

MONDAY CLUB VISITS CLINTON CULTURE CLUB

Thursday afternoon at one o'clock witnessed the departure of nearly 40 members of the Monday Club in answer to an invitation from the Culture Club of Clinton. They were met at the depot by Mesdames Frank Johnson and Anna Campbell.

The ladies first visited the cemetery to see the Mortuary Chapel which the ladies of the Culture Club had erected after which they went to the home of Mrs. E. S. Tate, president of the club. A social hour was first in order after which, waiving the business of the club, the speaker of the day Mrs. Ella S Custard of Mendon was introduced. She took as her theme Michigan and gave a very interesting address. Mrs John E Carr of Adrian, president of the County Federation, was present and gave a short address. She also commended the ladies on the work they had accomplished.

A motto for the club—"Higher Thoughts"—was given by Mrs Custard and was adopted by the club. A two course supper was served at five o'clock to between 75 and 80 guests.

The ladies of the Monday Club express themselves as most delighted with their entertainment and the fraternal spirit of their sister club.

DINNER PARTY

Mrs. Blanche Fisher entertained a company of ladies at 6 o'clock dinner Friday. Among those present were Mesdames R. S Moore, James McCann, Alfred James, Fred Wood, Howard Bredow, E. D. Brown, G. R Newsome, Emily Hall, Floyd Elliott and Mrs. James Cupples. A fine three course dinner was served. Among the dainties were luscious fresh peaches which the hostess had preserved since the peach season by wrapping in tissue paper.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Mrs. Henry Lloyd had a birthday Friday and her neighbors and friends gathered for the occasion and gave her a fine shower of things useful and ornamental. A pot luck supper was one of the features of the occasion.

It is good to be remembered and it is also good to remember and make glad these events.

EPWORTH LEAGUE SOCIAL

About 36 members of the Epworth League of the M. E. church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Harding on Friday evening. A short business session was followed by a social good time with games and other amusements. Pop-corn and home made candies were served. Goodnights and good wishes for all closed a most delightful evening.

JOLLY SIXTEEN

Mrs. Wm. Powell assisted by Mrs. Oscar Lidke entertained the members of the Jolly 16 and several friends at their home Thursday evening.

Five tables of progressive pedro played the ten games Mrs Comfort Chase received the first prize winning nine out of ten games. There was a triple tie for second prize between Mesdames E. C. Brown, Chas. Deery and Geo. Church, Mrs. Brown being the final winner. Most delightful refreshments were served at the close of the games.

Mrs. John Harring will entertain the club tonight at her home.

NOTICE

STATE INVESTIGATES GRAFT

Charged That Funds for Militia Have Been Misused.

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 10.—A report from Jackson, Miss., says graft charges of a sensational nature, involving one of the departments of the state government, are being probed by the legislature investigating committee.

It is charged that several thousand dollars of the funds appropriated and allotted by congress to Mississippi by the war department for the maintenance, support and equipment of the state militia, have been misused and that federal military property valued at more than $15,000 has disappeared.

M'MANIGAL OUT OF JAIL

District Attorney, However, Says He Is Not Yet Free.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—The departure from the county jail of Ortie McManigal, the dynamiter whose confession aided in sending the McNamara brothers to San Quentin prison and thirty-three other union labor officials to Leavenworth penitentiary, gave rise to a report that he had been released.

District Attorney John D. Fredericks, who has intimated on several occasions that McManigal ultimately would receive his liberty, declared the dynamiter's freedom had not been granted yet. The prosecutor declined to say, however, why McManigal had been permitted to leave the jail.

Not Worth Stealing.

A certain dramatic author was seen by a friend to have a manuscript almost falling from his pocket. "If you were not so well known you would have had your pocket picked," said the friend.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in Tecumseh, and Good Reason for It

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
When she finds freedom.

Many readers will profit by the following:

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin Pearl St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I suffered from distressing symptoms of kidney complaint for more than a year. When some one told me that Doan's Kidney Pills were good in such cases I got a supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store. They helped me immediately, and I continued using them until well. I have had no need of Doan's Kidney Pills or any other kidney medicine since. I can still recommend them highly."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. adv.

Study those things that displease you and avoid them in your treatment of others. This is merely the familiar golden rule in a little different shape. Chas. S. Kay.

Would Make Them Better if They Could.

The makers of Foley Kidney Pills know that they have absolutely the best combination of curative and healing medicines for kidney and bladder ailments and urinary irregularities that it is possible to produce. That is why Foley Kidney Pills are the best medicine for the purpose you can buy. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Adv.

You can generally tell what a fellow has been used to at home by the way he kicks at things away from home.

Nearly Every Child Has Worms

Paleness, at times a flushed face, unnatural hunger, picking the nose, great thirst, etc., are indications of worms. Kickapoo Worm Killer is a reliable, thorough medicine for the removal of all kinds of worms from children and adults. Kickapoo Worm Killer in pleasant candy form, aids digestion, tones system, over coming constipation, and increasing the action of the liver. Is perfectly safe for the most delicate children. Nearly every man would like for his boy to be something else when he grows up.

A Consumptive Cough

A cough that bothers you continually is one of the danger signals which warns of consumption. Dr. King's New Discovery stop the cough, loosen the chest, banish fever and let you sleep peacefully. The first dose checks the symptoms and gives prompt relief. Mrs. A. F. Mertz, of Glen Ellyn, Iowa, writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery cured a stubborn cough after six week's doctoring failed to help." Try it, as it will do the same for you. Best medicine for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Money back if it fails. Price 50c & $1.00. Recommended by C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

The truly patient man is he who asks the young father about his baby—and then stays and listens to the avalanche of words!

STANDISH — Between 200 and 250 Indians of Saganing, Pinconning and Forest Lake, north of here a few miles and near Tawas, Kawkawlin and other points are moving up into Alcona, Iosco and Oscoda counties, and settling upon the eighty-acre tracts recently given each of them by Uncle Sam. They are Chippewas and are generally good citizens. Some of them still love the "fire water," a natural appetite which has descended through several generations. They still stick to hunting and trapping, farming being a side issue, although several raise fairly good crops on a small area of ground. James N. Coon is the chief in charge.

ANN ARBOR — Making allegations that extreme cruelty was practiced upon them by their daughter, Mrs. Rebecca Sutherland, of Oxford, two aged people, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tubbs, father and mother of former Representative W. C. Tubbs, of this county, have started suit to recover from Mrs. Sutherland property valued at about $4,000 which they say they deeded to her with the provision that she care for them for the rest of their lives. The parents allege when they moved to Oxford Mr. Tubbs was thrown to the ground and sat upon by a son of Mr. Sutherland.

STUDENTS BURN A HISTORY

Southerners Won't Stand for Book Abusing Jefferson Davis.

Waleska, Ga., Nov. 10.—With the band playing "Dixie," the students at Reinhardt college, numbering nearly 400, gathered on the campus and made a bonfire of every copy of a history of the United States which had been prescribed in the curriculum. The book was prepared by a northern historian. In the history Harriet Beecher Stowe is lauded in extravagant terms and Jefferson Davis is declared to have been a man of small mental caliber and also a traitor. The character of some of the leading southern generals is also attacked.

Reinhardt college is under the auspices of the Southern Methodist church. It is co-educational and is the largest educational institution in north Georgia.

RUNAWAY HORSE KILLS TWO

Retired Farmer and Son-in-Law Are Hurled Under Train.

Goshen, Ind., Nov. 10.—George Grady, sixty-five years old, a retired farmer, and his son-in-law, Quinton Whitehead, twenty-five years old, were instantly killed here when the horse hitched to a wagon in which they were riding to Grady's home, became frightened at a lateral railroad train at the Goshen Milling company's plant and ran away, throwing them under the wheels of freight cras that were being switched.

Grady's head was cut off and both bodies were mangled beyond recognition. The horse was hurled into a canal, escaped uninjured and swam ashore.

WOMEN TAKE NOTICE!

A man cannot understand the torture and suffering many women endure uncomplainingly. If the majority of men suffered as much pain and endured with patience the weakening sicknesses that most women do, they would ask for immediate sympathy and look for a quick cure.

Many women have been saved from a life of misery and suffering by turning to the right remedy—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy which is safe to take because containing no narcotics, alcohol or injurious ingredients. It is an alterative extract of roots, made with pure glycerin, and first given to the public by that famous specialist in the diseases of women—Dr. R. V. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y.

MRS. HESSHEIMER.

MRS. LIZZIE M. HESSHEIMER, of Lincoln, Neb., 520 "C" St., says: "I send a testimonial with much pleasure so that some suffering woman may know the true worth of your remedies. I was a great sufferer from female troubles but after taking one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which a friend advised me to take, I found myself very much improved. After taking three more bottles, and using two boxes of Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets, I found myself on the road to recovery. I was in poor health for five years but now I am cured.

"I hope all women suffering from female weakness will give Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a fair trial.

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules.

GREAT FIELD DAY ON WOMAN'S RIGHTS

House Committee to Hear Both Sides on Suffrage,

Washington, Nov. 16. — Women, those who want to vote and those who don't, will be heard on the question of suffrage in this country by the house committee on rules during the first week of December. Chairman Henry of the committee has announced officially that the hearings will begin on Tuesday morning Dec. 2, and will last as long as there are any women who want to speak for or against suffrage.

"The proposition on which the hearing is given," said Mr. Henry, "is the request of the suffragists that this committee make a favorable report to the house for the creation of a standing committee on woman suffrage."

According to the plans of anti-suffragists and suffragists, they regard the hearing which is barely three weeks off as the great field day of the women question. Both sides in the battle will be represented by their ablest speakers and most prominent leaders. Both sides will have men speaking for them as well as women and it is believed that more real information will be brought out regarding suffrage and its effect than has ever been done before.

ARSENAL EMPLOYE IS SLAIN

Stabbed to Death at Own Gate by Three Men.

Rock Island, Ill., Nov. 10.—John B. Schoessel, aged fifty-one, foreman of the machine shops at the Rock Island government arsenal, was murdered on the door step of his home in this city while returning from practicing with a church choir, of which he was a member.

He was accosted by three men at his gate and was stabbed through the heart. His assailants escaped. There is no known motive.

"OLD GLORY" SMITH

A Story of a Mexican Raid

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"Never!" declared Ellen Bradley, with emphasis.

Mark Smith frowned impatiently. "But, Ellen, listen for a moment," he said.

"Never!" repeated Miss Bradley implacably.

"Then it's all off. You won't marry me, after all?" Mark moved toward the door of the adobe house.

"Never unless you get rid of that ridiculous nickname."

"How can I help it if my neighbors call me 'Old Glory' Smith?" demanded Mark heatedly. "It might be worse."

"Of course you can stop it," she retorted. "Just cease waving the stars and stripes every time you open your lips. I believe in being patriotic. You know I am proud of being an American and a Texan, but no one ever called my father by such a name, and you are a jest all along the border. Every Mexican"—

"That's enough, Ellen," interrupted Mark hoarsely. "I thought you understood the reason why, but I am mistaken. Perhaps you are right in sending me away. Goodby."

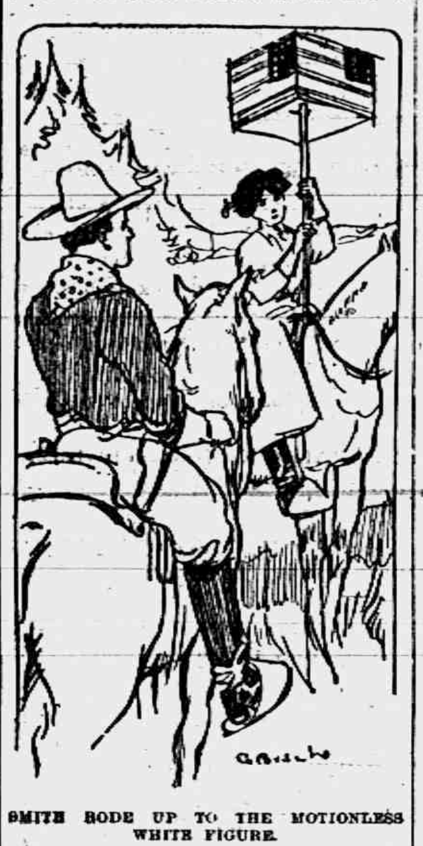
He disappeared down the path, and a moment later came the thudding sound of horse's hoofs as he rode away.

Ellen's father stirred from his seat on the veranda and spoke through the open window.

"I s'pose you know what you're about, Ellen, sending Mark off that way?"

"Of course I do, father," returned Ellen in a strained voice. "He is so sensational about his patriotism that if I married him every one would be calling me Mrs. 'Old Glory' Smith."

"Well, I reckon there's more dishonorable appellations than that. I suppose even your female brain has a glimmer of the reason why Mark has whooped up the stars and stripes all along the border, eh?"



SMITH RODE UP TO THE MOTIONLESS WHITE FIGURE.

"I don't see any special reason why he should make himself ridiculous in that manner. I'm patriotic, father, but"—

"Humph!" interrupted Mr. Bradley. "A lot you wimmen know about the meaning of such words. There's Smith. He's patriotic and democratic and politic, and when the varmints will let him he's pacific; but, above all, he's patriotic, and he advertises it loud and long, so that every greaser along the border will understand that there's one little settlement that won't stand for cattle stealing and incendiarism, and that's the little town of Yeager, U. S. A."

Mr. Bradley's chair came down with a thump, and Ellen heard the scratch of a match as her father relighted his pipe.

Within the cool dimness of the living room Ellen stood with lifted chin and stormy eyes.

That was always the way, she thought—her father invariably took sides with Mark Smith in the younger man's campaign of blazing enthusiasm, but now for the first time Ellen began to realize that there might be a reason for her lover's attitude.

But it was too late for repentance. Mark had gone for good.

Out on the edge of the settlement Mark Smith stood in the doorway of his adobe ranch house and talked rapidly with the travel stained half breed who had tumbled wearily off his horse a moment before.

"You are sure, Manuel?" questioned Smith sharply.

"Sure, senor. I heard Vados himself—he was drunk with pulque—boasting that he would burn Yeager flat to the earth and bring back Senor Smith a prisoner to the Hacienda Vados before another day."

"They will not dare," laughed "Old Glory" Smith.

"No, senor; they would not dare if they were not wild with drink. Now they will dare anything."

"True, true," returned the American thoughtfully. "Get you to the kitchen, Manuel, and tell cook to give you something to eat and drink, and then you must go and rest. After you have eaten I will settle with you. You have earned your reward."

Manuel grinned appreciatively and led his tired horse around to the corral, while Mark Smith paced up and down the hard baked path before the door.

He had staved it off for months, but now it had come. Vados, the outlaw, had held his men with an iron hand, and not once had he permitted drunkenness to spoil his wild raids upon the peaceful settlements over the border. They came and went in the night like shadows. Vados knew his half savage followers, and he had not dared allow them liquor.

But now he had broken loose himself, and his men were quick to follow their leader.

What chance had law and order, even the emblem of a great government, in the face of madness? And these were nothing better now that they had had a taste of the pulque.

While Mark Smith acknowledged this, he set his jaw tight, and, mounting his horse, rode from one to another [illegible] giving warning of the coming raid. He advised his neighbors to gather at his place.

His line was drawn closer as he neared the town, and at last there remained only one house, that of James Bradley.

Ellen's father was at the gate when Mark rode up.

"I've heard all about it. What's your plan, Mark?" he asked.

"Gather all the women and children at my place with an armed guard. I want the men to go with me to meet Vados and try to wipe him out before he does any damage. I've sent a couple of messengers to Arko to telegraph for assistance from El Paso."

"Good. I'll hitch up and bring my folks over. I hope you'll let me be on the skirmish line," added the old man wistfully.

"Suit yourself, but we need a steady head to hold the fort, you know," smiled Mark wearily.

Just at sunset the last of the fugitives rode through the gate of Mark Smith's ranch. It was a very martial sight that met their eyes, and it renewed courage in many a timid heart.

From every peak of the roof there was a standard from which waved the stars and stripes. Every window had its pole with fluttering flag, and even the stables were breaking out in patriotic colors. On either side of the gate was a tall pole, where two large flags waved protectingly over the refugees

James Bradley and his wife had come over in a buckboard with some of their most precious belongings.

"Where is Ellen?" asked Smith as he assisted Mrs. Bradley to the ground.

Ellen's parents cast startled glances around.

"Why, isn't she here? She started off on her horse and said she would get here first."

"I'll fetch her," gritted Mark savagely, and, throwing himself on a horse, he tore away toward the town

But in the deserted town there was no trace of Ellen Bradley. Mark found himself riding frantically in pursuit of the girl who had flouted him for a whim. At last he dashed toward the river and followed a fresh trail along the bank. Possibly Ellen was taking the longer way, but she must know it was a dangerous way today. Vados might be lying in ambush, waiting for the friendly night to cover his movements.

It was dark when he reached the river. Here a strange sight met his startled eyes.

This was the narrowest part, and it was here that the outlaws would cross if they were to reach Smith's ranch that night, as they had threatened. A narrow wooden bridge spanned the river.

A dark bulk of shadow resolved into a stationary horse and white clad rider. Above the rider there appeared to float in midair a large transparency with the stars and stripes painted vividly on four sides. Within the transparency there burned a light that threw the flags into strong relief.

Mark Smith had carried that transparency in the last political campaign.

That was not all.

There was an ominous crackling, with the smell of burning wood. Suddenly the bridge burst into flames and disclosed on the opposite bank a paralyzed group of ruffians, Vados and his band. They stared at the motionless figure garbed in white upholding the glowing transparency, then at the burning bridge, and with one accord they turned and fled in drunken terror toward the hills. Another day would find their heads clearer and their courage renewed and they might return to Yeager, but by that time the troops would have arrived.

Now Smith rode up to the motionless white figure on the horse and found it to be Ellen Bradley.

She was crying with terror even while she bravely upheld the emblem of an indomitable country.

"My girl—my own girl!" cried Mark as he lifted her from the horse and held her, together with the pole of the transparency, tightly in his arms. The transparency waved triumphantly over them as he kissed her again and again.

"I wanted to be worthy of you and the name," sobbed Ellen on his shoulder. "If they must call me Mrs. 'Old Glory' Smith I want to be worthy of the name." She laughed weakly.

"They will think you brave enough to be called another Molly Pitcher," cried her lover warmly.

But the Yeagerites compromised by dubbing her "Miss Star Spangled Banner" until she actually became Mrs. "Old Glory" Smith.

Turning a Tight Screw.

Any one who has attempted to remove a very tight screw knows what a very difficult business it is. After straining and twisting for a considerable time the operator frequently ends by losing his temper and destroying the bite of the screw, which remains fixed as tightly as ever. With the aid of a pair of pinchers, however, the affair is quite a simple one. Place the screwdriver in position and then catch hold of the blade with the pinchers just above the head of the screw. Press the screwdriver firmly and at the same time twist round the blade with the pinchers. The tightest screw will yield immediately to this sort of persuasion.

She Saw Him Passing By.

That the aged are not easily roused to enthusiasm or excitement is well known, but they are not often as calm as the old lady that the Windsor Magazine tells about.

An old man fell from a second story window into the street where an anxious crowd immediately gathered to see whether he was seriously injured. One of his daughters rushed frantically into the first floor room, where his wife sat knitting, and cried:

"Oh, mother, mother, father's fallen from the top of the house into the road! Oh, dear! Oh, dear!"

"Yes, my child," answered the old lady placidly, looking up from her work; "I saw him pass the window."

SHERIFF IS OPPOSED TO SURGICAL CURES

Benton Harbor Officer Will Protect His Prisoners.

BENTON HARBOR, MICH. — This country is rent into bitterly opposed factions over the practice of Circuit Judge Bridgman of sentencing certain classes of wrongdoers to be operated on by a Chicago physician. The method of curing criminal tendencies by surgical operations is known as "constructive surgery," and although some of the men who have been treated by the Chicago surgeon have returned to Benton Harbor deeply grateful to Judge Bridgman, Sheriff Fred C. Franz has announced that he will not be a party to any compulsory operations on any of the prisoners committed to his care.

Benton Harbor lawyers and doctors are lined up almost solidly on the side of the sheriff. "I am in office to protect the prisoners committed to my care as well as to confine them," said Sheriff Franz. "I am neither a friend nor a foe of the use of modern surgery in dealing with criminals.

"My stand is simply this: I will not permit a prisoner in my care to be operated upon for 'reform purposes' unless the prisoner desires the operation. After the three prisoners were taken to Chicago about ten days ago, I received a complaint that at least one was operated upon against his will while under the influence of drugs. This man still insists he was wronged and that no possible good could have resulted to him from this operation, a fact which he knew before it was performed and thinks the doctor should have known it too."

WATER IN SAUSAGES DEAR

Moisture Brings 15 Cents a Pound When Mixed Properly.

LANSING, MICH. — The Michigan dairy and food department has a book, said to be published by B. Heller & Co., of Chicago, which gives the "secrets of sausage-making," and, in the opinion of Commissioner Helme, fills a long sought desire. According to Mr. Helme, the book furnishes timely and profitable hints, chief of which is a new way to sell water for only 15 cents a pound. Mr. Helme points out part of the recipe on page 236 which follows: "The great advantage of using bull meat in preference to that of the steer and cow is on account of its greater absorption of water. The more water you work into the meat while it is being chopped, the more tender and juicy will be the sausage."

"Of course the more water you get into the sausage, the more weight," added Mr. Helme.

PORT HURON IN DARKNESS

Black River Backs Up Putting Out Fires in City Plant.

PORT HURON, MICH. — Water backing up in the Black river here put the fire in the city lighting plant out leaving the city in darkness.

With the heavy rain in the morning and the severe blizzard in the afternoon the river rose considerable, flowing into the fire boxes. Only the street lights and the motors propelled by the city plant were crippled.

AGED METHODIST IS DEAD

Rev. Joshua White Held Many Pastorates in Michigan.

GALESBURG, MICH. — The Rev. Joshua White, seventy-five years old, one of the best known pioneer Methodist ministers in Michigan, died at his home in this village after a lingering illness.

LOS ANGELES, CAL. — Four persons were killed and seven injured early in the morning when two automobiles collided. One was a seven passenger machine packed with men and women. It ran into a smaller auto and overturned, crushing four of its occupants to instant death. The dead are Ervin Chapman, owner and driver of the larger car; Miss Vride Elmore, W. R. Sanders and Harry B. Curtis. The occupants of the smaller car escaped death.

NORTH JUDSON, IND. — Henry Brenlien of Bremen, Ind., and his two children—Otto, ten years old, and Norman, three months old—are dead and his wife, Mrs. Henry Brenlein, is in a serious condition, the result of the buggy in which they were riding being struck by west-bound Erie fast train No. 3 at Augle Crossing. The train was said to have been running more than fifty miles an hour.

CHICAGO—Late information which may lead to the arrest of the murderer of Ida Leegson, art student, was brought in an anoymous letter addressed to the detective bureau. The letter directs the police search to Longview, Ill., near which place, according to the informant, the "copper colored negro" has been employed on a farm.

PARIS, FRANCE—Seven of the coaches of the Marseilles-Paris express were wrecked in a collision with another train. The coaches were all filled with passengers. The wrecked cars caught fire. The number of dead is estimated at between forty and fifty.

KANSAS CITY, MO. — A hunter, who refused to obey a command that he cease shooting in the park, was shot and killed by Frank Robinson, a special officer, in Swope park. There were no adequate means of identification on the hunter's body.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—The death of August Pagel, a fireman, makes the ninth victim of the fire and explosion which destroyed the local store and adjoining property of the Goodyear Rubber company on Oct. 26.

NOBLESVILLE, IND.—While he was cleaning a gun Elmer Ballard, twelve years old, accidently killed his two-year-old brother Albert, who was watching him work.

BEILIS ACQUITTED OF RITUAL MURDER

Great Excitement Attends Returning of Verdict.

KIEV, RUSSIA—Mendel Beilis, the Jew on trial here for the murder of a Christian boy, Andrew Yushinsky, was acquitted by the jury.

Intense excitement attended the returning of the verdict in the case, which, because of its accusations of ritual murder supposedly sanctioned by the Russian Jews, has aroused interest far beyond the boundaries of Russia.

Gendarmes prevented any outbursts or turbulence in the court room, but there was a smouldering anti-Semitic feeling and steps, it is not known how vigorous, were made to protect Beilis and other Jewish residents from fanatical partisans of the Russian church.

HUERTA MUST STEP DOWN

Unalterable Decision Is Reached by President Wilson and Advisers.

WASHINGTON — It is possible now to give authoritatively for the first time some of the details of the administration's Mexican policy.

Huerta must go, that is the unalterable determination of President Wilson and his advisers. How this most difficult and dangerous task can be accomplished is a matter yet to be worked out. With this determination as the basis of the president's policy, Huerta's acts as head of the Mexican government will not be recognized by the United States nor will this government recognize the acts of the Mexican congress about to be called into being. Huerta has been informed of this determination and so also have the European and other governments having interests in Mexico.

No time limit, however, has been set by this government for the retirement of Huerta and no threat of force in the event of his failure to yield has been conveyed to him.

WASHINGTON — President Wilson and his party associates were happy over the results of the elections in New Jersey, Massachusetts, Maryland and some other states. They accept the results as an endorsement of the president on the tariff and other important questions. It is the general expectation that with the election figures in mind, President Wilson will assume a more aggressive attitude in demanding immediate action on the banking and currency bill.

OMAHA, NEB. — Fast passenger train No. 9 of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, from Chicago, bound for the Pacific coast, was held up shortly before 1 o'clock in the morning by a lone bandit as it pulled out of the station at Council Bluffs. The robber got $500, several watches and other jewelry. His operations were confined to one sleeping car. The negro porter was forced to search the clothing of the sleeping passengers.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND. — The second of a series of meetings of the annual commission on finance of the conference of Methodist Episcopal churches was begun at the First M. E. church here when the affairs of the Crawfordsville district were taken up. Discussion of the new financial plan adopted by the Methodist churches of the country was held throughout the meeting.

NEW YORK — The fusion victory becomes even more impressive when the vote was corrected on the recovery of missing election districts. Mitchel's plurality is 121,834. Prendergast won by 42,860 and McAneny got a plurality of 73,873.

100 DIE IN GALE

One Hundred Sailors, Officers and Men, Are Lost.

NUMEROUS VESSELS WRECKED

Unknown Steel Freighter Discovered Keel Up Eight Miles Off Port Huron and No Signs of the Crew—Unidentified Steamer Pounding to Pieces on Gull Rock, Manitou Island.

CHICAGO—About a hundred sailors, officers and men, have perished, it appears certain, in a score of shipwrecks in the three days' gale on the Great Lakes.

Dispatches from nearly every port, the most of them delayed by crippled wires, tell of the wreck of one or more vessels.

Probably forty men were swept to death in the icy waters of Lake Huron in the greatest lake tragedy of the year, reported from Port Huron, Mich.

A huge steel ore freighter turned over in the gale and is lying, keel up with her bow eighteen feet in the air, eight miles off Port Huron. It is a new ship, or at least the bottom is freshly painted. The name is submerged.

No Sign of Life on Board.

All night the tug Sarnia of Port Huron stood by, serving as a marker to other craft. The crew of the tug saw no signs of life on the big ship. The wrecked vessel is about 600 feet long. Forty men is a crew for ore ships of this size. No one has been rescued from it.

Twenty-eight men are believed to have perished on an unidentified steamer which is pounding to pieces on Gull Rock, Manitou Island, nine miles off Kewaune point, on the Michigan shore. The life savers got within six miles of her but saw no life on board through their glasses.

The steamer George B. Stevenson, which first reported the wreck, brought news that twenty-eight men were on the deck of the stranded vessel. They probably have been swept to death in the lake.

Other Vessels Wrecked.

Other lake shipwrecks reported are:

Steamer L. C. Waldo's cabin washed ashore near Marquette, Mich; crew missing.

Barge Halsted washed ashore at Detroit Harbor, Wis.; crew of eight men not heard from.

Huronic, passenger steamer, reported aground in Whitefish bay; passengers and crew safe.

A. M. Byers, wheelhouse and part of upper works smashed; reached Duluth.

Near Detroit the steamers Saxonia, Matthew Arnold, G. Hawgood, Harlow, Victory and W. G. Pollock and a lightship were blown ashore.

Arcadian ashore in Thunder bay.

Steamer, unidentified, beaten to pieces on Angus island, near Calumet, Mich.; crew missing.

Steamship wrecked off Copper Harbor, Kewaunee point, Michigan; crew missing.

PONTIAC — Cashier Ralph E. Jossman, an official of the E. Jossman State bank of Clarkston, was arraigned here on information charging him with larceny and making false entry. He pleaded guilty and waived the reading of the information. He will be sentenced Nov. 7. The specific charge on which he was arraigned was, that on August 6 he took from the bank $6,915.24 belonging to E. S. Bird, resident of Graveland township. The bank failed for approximately $150,000, and Jossman came to the jail and gave himself up following the shortage discovery by the state banking officials. Jossman appeared in court with his attorney, John E. Brondige, as debonair as ever.

UNIONS MAY BLOCK ADCRAFT FAIR PLAN

Bay City Row May Be Transferred to SanFranscisco.

BAY CITY, MICH. — The Bay City Ad. club and the ad. clubs of the state and the boards of commerce interested may be balked in their plans to erect a Michigan building at the Panama-Pacific exposition, for which the local organization has offered to donate the material and Grand Rapids the furniture.

The offers were accepted by the conference. Local labor leaders have taken cognizance of the matter, and though they will divulge nothing of their plans, it is known that they are formulating a course of action with a view to causing a hitch in the work now under way. The North American Construction company, which has been given the order for the material, is not on the best of terms with local unions. Neither is the Lewis Manufacturing company, which does the woodwork for the former.

The fact that San Francisco is perhaps the most radical union labor city in the country is being relied on by the local unions. It is proposed to notify the central body in that city and head off the use of any kind of material not handled by organized labor in the construction of the building, unless a compromise is reached beforehand.

SENTENCED FOR BLACKMAIL

Woman Goes to Prison for Deception in Winters Case.

DETROIT, MICH. — Mrs. Edna Norrine Vance, forty-six years old, pleaded guilty to a charge of blackmail before Judge Arthur Tuttle in the federal court and was sentenced to serve one year in the Detroit house of correction. Immediately she fell full length on the floor in a faint, but recovered quickly.

Mrs. Vance is the Adrian (Mich.) woman who last spring wrote a letter to Dr. William Winters of Newcastle, Ind., telling him that she knew where his nine-year-old daughter, who was kidnaped last March, was hidden and demanded $25 for the information. When arrested she confessed she knew nothing of the whereabouts of the child.

GAS MEN OUTWIT HOLLAND

Force Mains Under Streets to Evade Injunction Against Digging.

HOLLAND, MICH. — In spite of the fact that the Holland Gas company is restrained by a permanent injunction from tearing up the streets here for mains to connect with the proposed Zeeland branch work was started on the extension to Zeeland early in the day.

Blaine Gavett, of Grand Rapids, holder of the Zeeland franchise, purchased the right of way through private property to the city limits, and the mains are being forced through under street intersections so as to evade the injunction proceedings. The city authorities have not interfered.

LOW WAGES NOT VICE CAUSE

Grand Rapids Morality Commission Prepares Report.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — After months of investigation, the public welfare commission, appointed by Mayor Ellis simultaneously with the creation of the morals efficiency commission by Circuit Judge McDonald, has prepared its report. The commission dealt especially with the cause of immorality.

In substance it finds that low wages do not form a direct cause of vice but that indirectly low wages and poverty have a great influence.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

For Children there is Nothing Better

A cough medicine for children must help their coughs and colds without bad effects on their little stomachs and bowels. Foley's Honey and Tar exactly fills the need. No opiates, no sour stomach, no constipation follows its use. Stuffy colds, wheezy breathing, coughs and croup are all quickly helped. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv.

Better is the laughter of children in the house than the gaiety of many social gatherings.

Pain in Back and Rheumatism

Torment thousands of people daily. Don't be one of these sufferers when for so little cost you can get well rid of the cause. Foley Kidney Pills begin their good work from the very first dose. They exert so direct an action on the kidneys and bladder that the pain and torment of backache, rheumatism and kidney trouble is soon dispelled. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Adv.

If we put a price tag on ourselves somebody will expect to buy at a greatly reduced figure.

A Maker of Health.

A good honest medicine like Foley Kidney Pills gives health to many families. Mrs. O. Palmer, 635 Willow St., Green Bay, Wis., was seriously ill with kidney and bladder trouble. Mr. Palmer writes "My wife is rapidly recovering her health and strength due solely to the use of Foley Kidney Pills." For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh

The man who is guided only by his doubts is bound for a very doubtful end.

More Bottles Sold Each Year.

It is easy to understand why an increasing number of bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is sold yearly. Thos Verran, 236 Edward St Houghton, Mich., gives an excellent reason when he writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has always proven an effective remedy, quickly relieving tickling in the throat, and stopping the cough with no bad after effects. THE MAN FROM HOME

WALTER MARSHALL as "DANIEL VOORHEES PIKE" in the United Play Co's. big production of "THE MAN FROM HOME" which comes to the BRADLEY OPERA HOUSE next TUESDAY, November 18

AMUSEMENTS

"THE MAN FROM HOME"

To my patrons:

In announcing the United Play Co's. massive production of "The Man from Home" which is at the Bradley Opera House, next Tuesday, November 18, with Walter Marshall in the leading role, I do so knowing it is one of the best of the season. I was only able to secure this excellent attraction on a strong guarantee.

In Mr. Marshall's support are such well known artists as: Harry Farnham, Richardson Cotton, W. H. Belmont, Jane Hampton, John Fernlock, Anna Pomeroy and others. In all the most capable cast of the season. The scenic production is the same used with the original Liebler production which had a run in Astor theatre, New York City, of over two years. It is undoubtedly the largest production ever used on the stage in Tecumseh. Everything in the line of furniture, effects etc are carried by the company, in fact the only thing required of the local theatre is a piano on the stage.

"The Man from Home" is conceded, on all sides, to be one of America's best plays. This, in consideration with the excellence of the cast and the elaborate scenic investiture, makes the engagement here a notable one. The slightest detail has been considered and the result is apparent in the excellent performance.

Respectfully,
Ed. L. Mark, Mgr.
'The Bradley'.

The following letter 'backs up' the above statement.

Ed. L. Mark,
Bradley Opera House.
Tecumseh, Mich

Dear Sir:

Kindly advise if you have Monday or Tuesday November 17 or 18 open for the big city company of "The Man from Home".

Owing to the "Garden of Allah" playing whole week at the Valentine theatre, Toledo, this company is available for three one night towns in Michigan. Will be glad to give Tecumseh one night if time is available and terms can be agreed upon.

Very truly yours.

YOUR HAIR MAY BE YOUR FORTUNE

Beautiful hair has made the fortune of many a woman, by adding charm and loveliness to an otherwise plain face. Nothing means more to good looks than beautiful hair. Without it you can't be beautiful; with it you will be at least pretty.

To have beautiful hair, use Harmony Hair Beautifier. It will improve the beauty of your hair, taking away the dull harshness and stringiness, softening and polishing every hair in your head and making it soft, silky, glossy, easier to put up and keep in place, and at the same time giving it a rich and lasting rose fragrance that will delight both you and those around you.

Very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change color of the hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick and thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments.

Both preparations come odd-shaped very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States, Canada and Great Britain, which own the big Harmony laboratories in Boston, where the many celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made.

BEHOLD!!!

DO YOU REALIZE that the Village of Tecumseh is paying THE TECUMSEH ELECTRIC COMPANY an average of FOUR HUNDRED ($400) DOLLARS per month for the lighting of our streets and council building?

AND DO YOU KNOW that the City of Adrian, with nearly FIVE TIMES THE POPULATION of Tecumseh is only paying about EIGHT HUNDRED ($800) DOLLARS per month for her City street lights?

IF you have not heretofore awakened to these facts, you KNOW THEM NOW.

But LISTEN! A large proportion of this expense can be avoided. We can have just as much light on our streets for a great deal less money, and even at the rates we are now paying. HOW? By changing the present antiquated, obsolate, HAS-BEEN ARC LIGHTS (not Noah's) FOR LARGE SIZE STREET TUNGSTEN LAMPS. The present Arc Lights use about 550 watts of current per hour, while the Tungsten Lamps use only 250 watts per hour. And yet the Tungsten Lamps give just as much light, and also a clearer light capable of penetrating further into darkness. We are paying FIVE ($5) DOLLARS per month for each Arc Light. The Tecumseh Electric Company could well afford to furnish us with current for Tungsten Lamps at TWO AND ONE-HALF ($2.50) DOLLARS, and then gain 50 watts difference between this system and the old Arc Lights. Gentle reader, kindly SIT UP for just a moment and TAKE NOTIBE. (I would also say look pleasant, but hate to ask so much with these facts before you.) Better start pulling your hair with one hand and hold the other over your purse. Tecumseh Village is paying The Tecumseh Electric Company about THREE HUNDRED ($300) DOLLARS per month for these Arc Lights, or THREE THOUSAND SIX HUNDRED ($3,600) DOLLARS per year. The Tungsten Lamps should cost but EIGHTEEN HUNDRED ($1,800) DOLLARS per year, leaving us again of EIGHTEEN HUNDRED ($1,800) DOLLARS over the present system. It would cost us about TWO HUNDRED ($200) DOLLARS per year to replace burned out and dimmed Tungsten Lamps, for they should each be changed about three times a year. We now have left SIXTEEN HUNDRED ($1,800) DOLLARS. UNDERSTAND THIS IS A CLEAR SAVING, AND SIXTEEN HUNDRED ($1,600) DOLLARS, SAVED EACH YEAR IS EIGHT THOUSAND ($8,000) DOLLARS MADE DURING THE NEXT FIVE YEARS FOR THE VILLAGE, FOR YOU MR. T-A-X-P-A-Y-E-R,

S-O-M-E S-U-M

Again I say, does it sound like GOOD BUSINESS For the Village of Tecumseh to pay THREE THOUSAND SIX HUNDRED ($3,600) DOLLARS for an antiquated lighting system when it should buy better lights for SIXTEEN HUNDRED ($1,600) DOLLARS LESS MONEY? What would you think of your Township Supervisor if he handed your next door neighbor SIXTEEN HUNDRED ($1,600) DOLLARS, the same to be included in your taxes? You would not be very likely to vote for him for re-election, would you. Yet this is just exactly what we are going to do if the VILLAGE COUNCIL does as contemplated, and grants The Tecumseh Electric Company a FIVE YEAR CONTRACT on almost identically the same Terms as the Old Contract. SHALL WE HAND THE TECUNSEH ELECTRIC COMPANY SIXTEEN HUNDRED ($1,600) DOLLARS EACH YEAR FOR THE NEXT FIVE YEARS? The Village Council should demand this service and stick to it until they GET IT. The Tecumseh Electric Company is opposed to giving us this New and Better and Cheaper System because it will cost them a loss of a few hundred dollars in Old Arc lights, but not as much however as the Taxpayers of this Village are losing Each Year because of the Old Equipment. If we can't get this service in our New Contract, we certainly cannot get it after a contract is granted, and then during the NEXT FIVE YEARS we will have no redress,—nothing to do until 1918 but TAKE OUR MEDICINE AND STAND OUR EIGHT THOUSAND ($8,000) LOSS. But you have something to do today, Mr. TAXPAYER, and that is to GET BUSY. SEE AND TALK with your councilmen personally, and DEMAND of them that they DEMAND of the Tecumseh Electric Company a Contract providing for this New and Improved and Cheaper System. Its simply up to you MR. M N, so wipe the wool from over your eyes, and GET BUSY.

I have here taken up but ONE of the many points that should receive the careful and honest attention of the Council before a New Contract is granted to The Tecumseh Electric Company. There are many other vital questions that should be thoroughly weighed and you can find them Mr. Taxpayer, if you will only look into the Old Contract and see for yourself what we have been GETTING and what we have been PAYING FOR. HAVE A LOOK AND MAKE INQUIRY TO SATISFY YOURSELF. And above all things DO YOUR DUTY by helping to prevent our Common Council granting The Tecumseh Electric Company a New Contract unless we are therein protected for BETTER SERVICE AT FAIR RATES.

Signed,
G. ARTHUR RATHBUN.

Citizens Attention

Last Spring a ticket was elected by the Village of Tecumseh pledged not to give any privately owned corporation any contract for lighting our streets similar to the contract at that time in force. The old contract expired in June, and since that time we have been getting fair service

Up to this time the gentlemen elected on that ticket have put up a good fight to obtain a contract that would be fair to us. NOW PRESSURE is being brought to Force them to sign the SAME OLD THING.

Do you want to renew your contract with The Tecumseh Electric Company and receive the SAME OLD SERVICE, and pay the

SAME HIGH RATES

on your streets and in your homes and stores?

The Tecumseh Electric Company DEMANDS the same OLD COTRACT and it DEMANDS it for FIVE YEARS. The Company will concede nothing.

Will you be the slaves of this Company for FIVE YEARS?

WE need Better Service
WE need Lower Rates
WE need a Guarantee of both Service and Rates.

ABOVE ALL

To prevent disease—resist disease germs

SMALLPOX is prevented by vaccination — the injection of vaccine. DIPHTHERIA is prevented by the injection of anti-toxin. These enable the body to produce substances which prevent the growth of smallpox and diphtheria germs in the blood.

There are many other diseases, nearly, if not quite as dangerous, and far more common — typhoid fever, the grippe, bronchitis, pneumonia, catarrh, rheumatism, and a score of others—that can be prevented less painfully and more easily by making the body strong to resist germ infection.

Rexall
TRADE MARK

Olive Oil Emulsion
(With Hypophosphites)

Is designed for the prevention as well as the relief of disease — by enabling the body to overcome the germs. It, at the same time, strengthens and tones the nerves, nourishes the blood, puts the entire system into a proper healthy condition to combat and successfully resist disease.

Every person not in perfect health has incipient germs of some distressing ailment in his or her system.

Cold weather, over-work, excesses of any kind, are liable to bring about just the conditions under which those latent disease germs will get the upper hand, and put you on your back "down sick."

You who are run-down, tired-out, nervous—

You who, though not sick enough to give up, still don't feel good—

You who are apparently well, and want to stay well—

Take home a bottle of Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion today, and use it as a means to get well and keep well.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is a real nerve-food tonic.

In this it is different from most other so-called "tonics" which either have no food value and do nothing more than temporarily stimulate you, leaving you in a worse condition than before or, having food value, still are so unpleasant to take that many people can't keep them down.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is pleasant to take. The Hypophosphites it contains tone the nerves. The pure Olive Oil nourishes both nerves and blood

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion strengthens you, puts snap and ginger and vitality into your system. It makes you feel better and stronger. It improves your digestion and your bowel action.

It contains no alcohol nor any dangerous or habit forming drugs.

It is guaranteed to be just as represented above — to do all that is claimed above — to satisfy you in every way, or your money back without quibble or question.

Enough for full two weeks' treatment, $1.00.

Sold only at The Rexall Stores — the World's greatest Drug Stores — and always with a full guarantee of complete satisfaction, or your money back.

RECEPTION TO PASTORS OF FRIENDS CHURCH

A very pleasant occasion was the reception tendered the Reverends Lewis and Mary Pim, Ministers of the Friends church on Tuesday evening. About 40 guests including the Pastors of the other churches and their wives. Mr. and Mrs. Pim came from Cleveland a few months ago on the retiring of Miss Elizabeth Mott, and are very highly esteemed in the community. The Misses Eva Satterthwaite, Ruth Curry and Angie Wilson served refreshments during the evening.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Monday being the birthday of Homer Marsh, a number of his gentlemen friends were invited to help in celebrating the occasion. Mrs Marsh had made all necessary preparations for the occasion and served an elegant five course dinner to the twenty men that were seated at the table. The table had as its center piece a beautiful basket of carnations and similax and chrysanthemums were used in decorating the rooms. At the close of the banquet Will Barrett toasted each member of the company in a most humorous manner, when he came to Mr. Marsh he changed his manner of speech and in behalf of the friends who had gathered for this birthday event, presented him with an up-to-date automobile coat as a proof of their friendship and good will. Mr. Marsh responded in a very feeling manner as he accepted the gift.

The company then adjourned to the parlor and passed the hour with music, Messrs. Hayden, Ager and Hart distinguished themselves as soloists, and as a chorus the whole crowd were fine. There being work at the Eagle Lodge an adjournment was made to their Aerie the men declaring that the birthday party had been a great success.

"BUSY IZZY."

"Bizzy Izzy" as presented at the Opera House on Tuesday evening was the same old laugh provoking play, as when it was presented in Tecumseh last year,

A number of the characters were the same as last year and the new ones were all up to the mark. The chorus, the dancing, in fact the whole entertainment was full of fun and jollity. A good audience greeted the performance.

GETTYSBURG, PA. — Two hundred of Eddie Plank's "home folk" honored the veteran pitcher of the Athletics at a banquet. Guests of honor were Manager Connie Mack, Eddie Collins and Harry Davis of the Philadelphia American League club, while baseball enthusiasts from all the nearby towns joined in the event. As a special token a diamond scarf pin was presented to Plank.

NEW YORK—In a hot, desperate ten-round fight which thrilled a huge crowd in Madison Square garden, Willie Ritchie, world's lightweight champion, whipped Leach Cross of this city. From the moment the gong sounded for the first time the men fought like bull dogs, but in the third round Cross had a narrow escape from a knockout.

CINCINNATI, O.—It was reported here that John K. Tener of Pittsburg, governor of Pennsylvania, and a great ball player in his time, had been selected to succeed Thomas Lynch as president of the National league.

GENERAL NEWS.

ALBANY, N. Y. — A direct primary bill abolishing party state conventions is to be passed by the present Democratic state legislature in December. In addition the present legislature is to pass at the December session bills repealing laws appropriating over $1,000,000 which were signed by Governor Sulzer to secure legislative support for his direct primary bill. When the legislature adjourns it will be on Monday, Dec. 1, or Dec. 8, in order ot give Governor Glynn an opportunity to formulate plans to effect such a substantial retrenchment in the annual expenditures for support of the state government. Governor Glynn announced that he was determined that during his administration there should not be a direct tax rate except such as is required by the state constitution to pay for the cost of good roads and the barge canal system.

WASHINGTON—The U. S. senate committee on banking and currency has made further sweeping changes in the administration currency bill. It voted 2 to1 to strike from the bill the words "or lawful money" wherever they occur, thus making the reserve required to be held under the bill to be solely of gold. Four Democrats voted to retain the words "or lawful money." They were the chairman, Senator Owen, and Senators Hollis, Pomerene and Shafroth. All Republican members of the committee and the three Democrats—Senators O'Gorman, Hitchcock and Reed—voted to strike the words from the bill.

STANDISH — Mrs. Joseph Laporte, a woman living a few miles south of here, was fatally injured when dynamite which she accidently put in the stove blew up. She was emptying the contents of a dustpan when the top of the stove went up, destroying one eye, breaking an arm, and causing internal injuries.

BATTLE CREEK — Being listed as an official of the "Philosophers of the Living Fire," Samuel Greathead, this city, came in actual contact with the flames when he went to bed with his pipe lighted. He was nearly burned to death when his bed covers took fire. He is now in jail.

How The Body Kills Germs.

Germs that get into the body are killed in two ways—by the white corpuscles of the blood, and by a germ-killing substance that is in the blood. Just what this substance is, we do not know. The blood of a healthy person always has some germ-killing substance in it to ward off the attack of disease. The fountain head of life is the stomach. A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished. To put the body in healthy condition, to feed the system on rich, red blood and throw out the poisons from the body, nothing in the past forty years has excelled Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a pure glyceric extract (without alcohol), of bloodroot, golden seal and Oregon grape root, stone root, mandrake and queen's root with black cherrybark.

J. H. MARTIN, Esq.

"My husband was a sufferer from stomach trouble and impure blood," writes MRS. JAMES H. MARTIN, of Frankfort, Ky. "He had a sore on his face that would form a scab which would dry and drop off in about a month, then another would immediately form. It continued this way for a long time. He tried every remedy that any one would suggest but found no relief. He then tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which completely cured him. He has stayed cured now for two years, and I recommend this valuable medicine for impurities of the blood."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules.

LANSING — Secretary Drake, of the Michigan industrial accident board, has ruled unofficially that a workman who is injured while eating dinner on his employer's premises is entitled to compensation. The point in question was brought up in the case of Michael Holland, a foreign laborer, who died in an explosion of gasoline at the city stone crushing plant while eating his dinner. Secretary Drake declares that for the purpose of compensation the burden is placed upon the employer to show that the employe was present in violation of strict orders. The secretary also declares that the employer must take precautions to safeguard the lives and welfare of his workmen, and that in failing to protect the gasoline tank this obligation was not carried out.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

GRAND RAPIDS — Michigan State Senator Thomas D. M. Naughton, member of the executive committee of the Michigan state grange, has returned from a meeting of the committee at Flint, and announces that the grange will demand important and drastic progressive legislation at the next session of the state legislature. "It has been decided," he said, "to have the grange ask for a tonnage tax on Michigan minerals and a registration system of land titles, similar to the system now in use in Illinois. An amendment to the recall bill is also favored, putting back in that measure the section including judges, and reducing the necessary percentage from 25 per cent "or more" to the original phrase 25 per cent "or less." To do this the grange may seek to take advantage of the initiative and referendum which it helped to pass."

Quite a Run.

It's an overworked word, that poor little monosyllable "run."

"I found a run started in my best stockings this morning," said the woman, "so I thought I'd run downtown and go into ——'s, where they are having a great run on silk hose. They ran an advertisement in this morning's paper, you know. Well, I ran my eye over the bargains on the way down and I saw so many things I needed that I ran out of money before I got to the hose counter. Well, I'd run my legs off by that time, but I don't run a bill at ——'s, so I was in despair until who should I run into but my husband. I got some money of him—he's more generous than the general run of men—but when I got to the counter they'd run out of my size. Wasn't that a terrible run of luck?"

And so she ran on and on and on.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Made in Manchester.

The gentleman came on the railway platform with a bicycle just as the train was about to leave for Manchester. He put the machine into the van. A ticket collector followed him to the compartment and asked if he had a ticket for the bicycle. He had not, and as the official on the step was writing out an "excess" receipt the train began to move, whereupon he came in and traveled to town. The gentleman who had made this trip compulsory engaged the collector in conversation and found that the man would have to cross Manchester to get a train home again. "Why," he said, "then you'll pass not far from my office. Would you mind taking this bag there for me? I should like to get out at the next station and come to town by a later train." The dazed collector meekly agreed. It was a fine example of how to collect "excess."—Manchester Guardian.

The Doctor at Sea.

A veteran naval surgeon, speaking of the odd things that crop out in the service, said that one of the younger medical cranks in the navy discovered much virtue in sea water, and, no matter what disease came on, his first action was to throw down the patient's throat a large dose of the nauseating liquid. The crew soon learned to hate him thoroughly. In process of time he fell overboard in a choppy sea, and a great bustle ensued. In the midst of it the captain came up and anxiously inquired the cause. "Oh, nothing, sir," replied a tar, "only the doctor has fell into his medicine chest."—London Telegraph.

A PRACTICAL JOKE

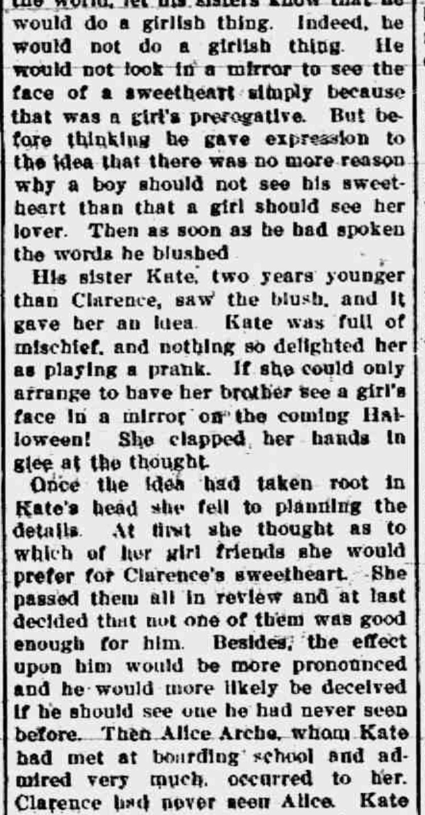
Perpetrated on Halloween

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Clarence Rudd as a boy was full of fancies. He loved pictures, music, story. He was a voracious reader, his favorites being the "Arabian Nights' Entertainments" and "The Wonder Book."

One day in autumn, when Clarence was about sixteen years old, he heard his sisters talking about Halloween. He asked them what it was, and it was explained to him. Bess told him that she was intending when she went to bed to look into a mirror and expected to see there the face of the man she would marry looking over her shoulder. There is something attractive in the idea, especially to a very young person. It seized upon Clarence's wonder loving disposition and would not let go. There was one feature about it that he could not understand—if a girl might see the image of her future husband looking over her shoulder in a mirror, why might not a boy see his future wife?

There is no reason why a sensitive boy should not be a manly boy, and Clarence was both. He would not, for the world, let his sisters know that he would do a girlish thing. Indeed, he would not do a girlish thing. He would not look in a mirror to see the face of a sweetheart simply because that was a girl's prerogative. But before thinking he gave expression to the idea that there was no more reason why a boy should not see his sweetheart than that a girl should see her lover. Then as soon as he had spoken the words he blushed.



CLARENCE SAW ALICE'S REFLECTION IN THE MIRROR.

His sister Kate, two years younger than Clarence, saw the blush, and it gave her an idea. Kate was full of mischief, and nothing so delighted her as playing a prank. If she could only arrange to have her brother see a girl's face in a mirror on the coming Halloween! She clapped her hands in glee at the thought.

Once the idea had taken root in Kate's head she fell to planning the details. At first she thought as to which of her girl friends she would prefer for Clarence's sweetheart. She passed them all in review and at last decided that not one of them was good enough for him. Besides, the effect upon him would be more pronounced and he would more likely be deceived if he should see one he had never seen before. Then Alice Arche, whom Kate had met at boarding school and admired very much, occurred to her. Clarence had never seen Alice. Kate would ask her friend to visit her on the 31st of October. But she must contrive that Clarence should not see Alice before seeing her reflection in the mirror. This would be difficult to arrange. It might be easier if she took Alice into her plan, but this she did not wish to do if she could help it. After much thought she concluded that alone she would not be equal to the task. Indeed, it seemed that the whole family must be in the secret or it would be given away. She went to her mother and begged her assistance.

Mrs. Rudd smiled at her daughter's plan and at first pronounced it impossible, but finally, converted by Kate's pleading, she gave way and promised her aid. She said it would be best for the plan to take no notice of Halloween as it approached. Alice's coming could be kept from the rest of the family, and it might be possible for them to spring their trap without any one except themselves being in the secret.

Alice Arche received the invitation and accepted it. Bessie Rudd, four years Kate's senior, was admitted to the secret since her assistance was necessary. Alice arrived after dark on Halloween, and Kate was driven to the station to meet her. On her return with the guest all the children younger than herself were safe in bed. Bess was in Clarence's room with him. She had gone there to make herself useful in carrying out the plan. She knew of Kate and Alice's arrival and had timed her visit accordingly. The door of the room was open. She had continued to get her brother with his back to it and his face toward the mirror of his dresser. In this position he remained while chatting with her.

"Tread softly," said Kate to Alice as they went upstairs. "The children are asleep." Kate led the way to a corridor leading past Clarence's room and, pausing, said:

"You will find your room at the end of this hall. The door is ajar, and the light is turned low. I am going for some toilet articles that I had forgotten. I will be with you in a few minutes."

Alice proceeded as directed. Passing the room in which Bess and Clarence were she naturally gave it a quick glance. That Clarence saw Alice's reflection in the mirror was evident to Bess from the expression on his face, but she paid no attention to it, chatting on as if she had seen nothing. What she was saying her brother did not heed. He was thinking of the girl's glance he had seen in the mirror before him.

"Some one—a stranger—just passed the door. Did you see anything?"

"See anything? What do you mean?"

Now, Halloween was in Clarence's mind, and for a moment the idea that he had seen his future wife dominated him. But fear of being rallied for such a fancy deterred him from following the matter further.

Bess proceeded with what she had been saying and knew that Kate's scheme had been successful. Soon after this she went to Kate's room, where she found both Kate and their mother, and the conspirators, especially Kate, listened eagerly to what she had to report concerning Clarence and the reflection and what he had said about it.

"So far so good," exclaimed Kate, after listening to what her sister said "Now what?"

"There is nothing more to be done," said the mother. "Clarence will meet your friend at breakfast and"—

"And what?"

"It won't be easy to explain the matter, will it?" Mrs. Rudd finished thoughtfully.

"Indeed it won't," Bess remarked. "I'm afraid, mother, we've got into a muddle in consenting to aid Kate."

"I'll keep Alice in her room in the morning," said Kate. "That will give us time to make up a story or something."

"We'll simply make a joke of it, as was intended," said Mrs. Rudd. "Come, girls; go to bed."

Clarence Rudd was as sure that he had seen a girl's face in the mirror on Halloween as he was of his existence. But why had not Bess, who was sitting with her face to the open door, seen the flesh and blood as he had seen the image? He was puzzled, but his mind clung to the correct solution that the girl had been in the house. Would she be there tomorrow? He expected to see her at breakfast.

But when morning came and the stranger did not appear at the breakfast table, no member of the family making any reference to her, Clarence was staggered. He studied the face of each of the older members of the family, but gained no satisfaction. After breakfast he went out, and after a conference of the conspirators, at which it was decided that the guest must be informed of the prank that had been played, Kate carried a breakfast up to Alice and while it was being eaten told the whole story.

If there was any fear that Alice would be displeased it was allayed at once.

"There's but one way to carry out your scheme to its proper end, Kate," she said. "I must go away from here without your brother seeing me."

"And then?"

"And then—let me see—it would be a good plan for you to visit me and arrange that he should come, too, while you are with me."

Mrs. Rudd endeavored to get the girls to bring the matter to an end without, as she expressed it, running any more risk, but Alice was obdurate and insisted on having her way.

"You put me into it," she said, "without consulting me. There's lots of fun in it, and I don't wish to see it spoiled. I think you should permit me to handle it from now on."

It was decided to let her have her way. She left at once, and it was arranged that Kate should visit her within a few weeks.

Clarence's natural reticence prevented his saying anything about the face he had seen on Halloween, and the secret of the conspiracy was kept from him. In time Kate went to visit Alice Arche and when about to return wrote her brother that she had "picked out" her friend for him, at the same time suggesting that he come for his sister and escort her home.

Alice Arche and Kate Budd agreed that when Clarence appeared they would keep up their game. But when his sister introduced him to the girl whose image he had seen in his mirror his expression was too much for them. Neither girl succeeded in keeping a straight face. Kate burst out laughing, and Alice, seeing that the end had come, followed suit.

"I knew there was a prank being played on me!" exclaimed Clarence, prevaricating, for he knew nothing of the kind. "Come; out with it. I must have an explanation at once."

The explanation was made, and Miss Arche treated the affair as the joke it was, but it had made an impression on the impressible Clarence. He had for weeks been dreaming of the face he had seen on Halloween, and it was not destined to fade. Years after his sister had played her prank upon him he married Alice Arche.

LANSING—Several United States postal inspectors are now in Michigan investigating reports that the parcel post system is bing used by Wisconsin and Illinois pot hunters in flagrant violation of the game laws of this state. The law relative to the hunting of partridges provide that a hunter shall not kill more than six partridges in one day, nor shall he have more than fifteen in his possession at any one time. The parcel post law seems to have opened a new field, as it has been reported to the state game warden and the postal authorities that partridges are being shipped out of Michigan by Wisconsin and Illinois pot hunters through the medium of the parcels post.

BATTLE CREEK — Provided that Dan Cupid safely ropes and ties Floyd L. Scott, an employe of the Michigan Rug company, this city, by October 31, 1916, the young man will receive $10,000 as a wedding present from a wealthy relative in the east. This was discovered when it became known that the young man had received a check for $500 for his birthday last week, and the offer in a letter containing the check. He says that while he has no particular girl in mind he has an ideal. He refuses to give an inkling of the "ideal maiden" who may share the $10,000 with him. Mr. Scott is a descendant of George B. McClellan, commander-in-chief of the army of the Potomac.

Two little girls were playing "house" with their dolls and having a lovely time. A little seven-year-old boy watched their play laughingly for awhile and then said: "Ain't you kids got no use for a father?"

WOMEN UNITED TO DEFEND VOTE

War by "Wets" on Vote Statute Will Be Met.

ABLE LAWYERS ARE EMPLOYED

Illinois Equal Suffrage Association Has Employed Counsel to Make Critical Analysis of Suffrage Act—Mrs. McCullough Believes Attack Will Be On Technicality.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—The spirit of militancy seized women voters when the news spread that the united liquor interests of the state were planning a legal campaign to have the new suffrage law declared unconstitutional. But this feminine belligerency is of the kind that will confine itself to political jurisprudence instead of brickbats as weapons.

It became known that the Illinois Equal Suffrage association already has engaged lawyers to make a critical analysis of the law passed by the last legislature and to render an opinion as to its constitutionality.

The verdict of these lawyers—John P. Wilson and John J. Herrick—is that the law is sound and that it will stand the most rigid test of the courts.

Believes Law Will Stand Test.

Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, "mother of the suffrage law," gave it as her opinion that the assault being mapped out by foes of the vote feminine will be based on a technicality.

"I think I know one line of attack," she said, "and that is they will try to prove the law is vitiated because it is one sweeping act giving women the right to vote for all offices not provided for in the constitution instead of being a series of amendments to the laws creating those offices and providing for the means of election.

"I don't believe the supreme court can declare it unconstitutional without reversing itself. The supreme court in the early nineties gave a decision affirming the right of women to vote for certain offices and the principle they enunciated then was taken into consideration when the present law was being drafted."

MAGNATES WILL VISIT TENER

Everything Is Cleared for Governor to Head National League.

New York, Nov. 17.—Unless there is a hitch in the program already mapped out, a committee of National League club owners will visit Harrisburg this week and ask Governor John K. Tener to accept the presidency of the league in the place of Thomas J. Lynch whose case has become hopeless. It is said that if seven club owners, one bearing the proxy of C. W. Murphy of the Cubs, can make arrangements in time they will call upon Governor Tener Tuesday or Wednesday.

Robert W. Brown of Louisville, who has been a candidate for the league's presidency for the last four years has released Ebbetts of Brooklyn, Herrmann of Cincinnati and Dreyfus of Pittsburgh from their pledges to vote for him.

KILLS HIS YOUNGER BROTHER

Union City Boy Declares He Did Not Know Gun Was Loaded.

Union City, Ind., Nov. 17.—A tragedy was enacted on State Line street when Charles Lambert, nine years old, was shot through the heart. Immediately following the tragedy the boy's brother Kenneth, fourteen years old, ran to a nearby grocery and cried out, "I have killed my brother. Call the doctor."

Later he denied this, however, and told a story to the effect that he was not near his brother when the shot was fired. Under close questioning he weakened and said he shot him, but did not know the gun was loaded. The coroner is withholding his verdict.

HINDERLIDER CONTEST ENDS

Effort to Deprive Widow of $100,000 Brownstown Estate Defeated.

Brownstown, Ind., Nov. 17.—After a bitter trial lasting ten days the jury in the Hinderlider will case reached a verdict for the defense.

The suit was that of Claude M. Hinderlider, who sought a share in the $100,000 estate of John M. Hinderlider. He alleged that he was a son of John M. Hinderlider and had been acknowledged as such, and that the widow, Catherine B. Hinderlider, exerted undue influence to obtain the will, by which she inherits the entire estate.

FOWLER WILL TELL IT ALL

Indicted Man Will Reveal Truths of New York Political Extortions.

New York, Nov. 17.—Everett P. Fowler, indicted last Friday on a charge of extortion, got word to the district attorney Whitman that he would be ready to come forward with the complete story of his activities as the "bay man" of the Democratic state committee in the campaign of 1911 and 1912.

When Mr. Fowler gets through with his disclosures the district attorney expects to have well in hand not only the story of the hatching of that scheme of which Seneca P. Hull of Cortland was the victim to the extent of $250 in 1911, but also that of a similar scheme that during the campaign of 1912 operated to extract another $100 from Mr. Hull.

WILSON'S SPEECH EVOKES PROTEST

Democrats of Copper Country Ask His Removal.

Calumet, Mich., Nov. 17.—Democrats of Northern Michigan mining districts have started a movement looking for the removal from the cabinet of Secretary of Labor Wilson because of his "biased statements unduly favoring one side in an industrial dispute as shown in his address before the American Federation of Labor convention," held in Seattle, Wash., the present week.

It is reported to prominent Democrats in Houghton county that 150 of the leading Democrats of Marquette county, the center of the iron district, signed a telegram to President Wilson, asking that he demand the resignation of Secretary Wilson.

An effort likely will be made ot secure the approval of the Democratic county committees throughout Michigan and through the mining districts of Minnesota and Wisconsin for the petition.

The mining district people, aside from the members of the Western Federation of Miners, are highly indignant because of the stand taken by Secretary Wilson in scoring the mining companies of the copper district for their attitude in the strike which has delayed the district for four months. They claim Wilson had prejudiced men, former exponents of organized labor, investigate the strike for him and also that he implied a threat against the companies in his address.

THIS IS A EUGENIC MAMMA

She Goes to House of Correction for Felling Woman with Gas Pipe.

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Annie Wills, mother of Mrs. Emund C. Perron, the first eugenic bride in Massachusetts, was sentenced to the house of correction for one month for striking Mrs. May Fenton, a neighbor, over the head with a piece of gas pipe.

It is alleged that Mrs. Wills set her dog on the children of Mrs. Fenton. The latter objected and an argument followed which culminated when Mrs. Fenton was knocked unconscious.

THINKS WHIPPING POST FINE THING

Delaware Governor Comes out Strongly In Its Support.

TELLS EVIL DOERS TO BEWARE

Resents Interference of Persons In Other States—Wife Beaters, He Thinks, Fit Subjects for Lash and "White Slavery"—Finds It an Effective Bar.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 17.—Governor C. R. Miller of this state comes out strongly in support of the whipping post. In response to newspaper articles and letters he has received as a result of the agitation caused by the resolution offered in congress by Representative Evans of Montana, the governor said:

"The courts and other authorities of Delaware will administer the internal affairs of the commonwealth regardless of any attempted interference by a member of congress or of persons in other states who are ignorant of conditions here."

The executive stated he had received abusive letters, demanding that he "suspend the whipping post laws."

"If the senders of these missives," he continued, "would consider that only the legislature can amend or repeal statutes, they would realize the ignorance they are displaying."

Tells Evil Doers Beware.

The governor declared he would uphold the courts in the administration of the laws and warned evil doers to give Delaware a wide berth if they wish to escape the whipping post. He expressed himself as being personally in favor of this punishment for the reason that is is the most effective barrier to vicious criminals on the statute books.

He said that crime is at a minimum in Delaware, a condition he attributes to the fear and public disgrace of the whipping post. He cited wife-beaters as a fit subject for the lash and said the post would be an effective punishment for the "white slave" traffic, a condition they do not have in Delaware.

The governor concluded:

"The whipping post has been the fundamental punishment in Delaware since 1656. It will continue in force until the people of Delaware of their own accord decree otherwise."

FRIEND OF TEDDY RETIRES

Col. A. O. Brodie Was Rough Rider and Governor of Arizona.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Colonel Alexander O. Brodie, bosom friend of Theodore Roosevelt, has been placed on the retired list of the army on account of age.

Colonel Brodie helped Colonel Roosevelt as rough rider and served as major and lieutenant colonel in that regiment. In July, 1902, he was made governor of Arizona, serving in that post until 1905.

Culture.

Culture is a word we often fight shy of by reason of certain unfortunate connotations. Here is a masterly definition of culture by the English philosopher Bosanquet:

"The habit of a mind instinct with purpose, cognizant of a tendency and connection in human achievement, able and industrious in discerning the great from the trivial."

Twenty-seven words are enough to phrase this noble conception of a noble quality.—Collier's Weekly.

ADALPE FORCED OUT BY HUERTA

Minister of Interior Has Urged His Boss to Resign.

TO BE FIRED FROM MEXICO

Provisional President Suspects He Is a Rival Candidate for High Office—Follows Old Diaz Precedent of Sending Rivals Out of Country on Foreign Missions.

Mexico City, Nov. 17.—Manuel Garza Aldape, the minister of the interior, who has been urging President Huerta to yield to the United States and withdraw from the presidency, has resigned office. The official announcement was made at the end of a conference of the ministers with General Huerta which lasted all night. It is stated that Garza Aldape's efforts to persuade General Huerta to resign were looked upon by the provisional president as proof of the minister of the interior's ambition to step into the executive seat.

Foreign Minister Moheno, who is bitterly anti-American and an avowed enemy of Garza Aldape, is now General Huerta's chief adviser and the remainder of the cabinet are disposed to support the president's views.

To Be Fired from Mexico.

It is believed here that Garza Aldape will be sent as Mexican envoy to France to take De La Barra's place in pursuance of the plan adopted by Porforio Diaz and his successors of sending presidential possibilities out of the country.

The air is, however, filled with alarming rumors and the exodus of Americans to Vera Cruz continues. The employes of the Waters-Pierce Oil company believe they are in danger of their lives as General Huerta is generally credited with blaming that company for the present trouble.

Carranza Capital to Be Juarez.

Douglas, Ariz., Nov. 17.—Advices received from Nogales indicate no immediate prospect of a resumption of the conferences between Dr. William Bayard Hale and General Carranza. It is considered probable that Carranza will shift his headquartters to Juarez in the next few days and the fight will be pressed along the line of the railroad in the direction of the capital.

The next great clash with the federals is expected to take place in the civinity of Torreon, where the federals are massing forces for the purpose of retaking the city from the rebels, who have also massed their forces in and around the city in preparation for a desperate resistance if they should not be strong enough to take the offensive.

BURNING STEAMER IN PORT

Balmes Reaches Hamilton Bermuda—Conduct of Sailors Praised.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 17.—The Spanish steamer Balmes, of the Pinillos line, which caught fire last Wednesday night 600 miles from this port and whose 103 passengers were rescued from their perilous situation on Friday by the Cunard Liner Pannonia which rushed to the assistance of the vessel after receiving her wireless call for help, has arrived here convoyed by the Pannonia.

High tributes were paid by the passengers to the work of the captain and crew of the Balmes in transferring them to the Pannonia. The Spanish sailors refused to abandon the ship after the passengers had been taken off and stuck to their posts manfully fighting the fire although half suffocated by the smoke.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

For Children there is Nothing Better

A cough medicine for children must help their coughs and colds without bad effects on their little stomachs and bowels. Foley's Honey and Tar exactly fills the need. No opiates, no sour stomach, no constipation follows its use. Stuffy colds, wheezy breathing, coughs and croup are all quickly helped. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv.

Better is the laughter of children in the house than the gaiety of many social gatherings.

Pain in Back and Rheumatism

Torment thousands of people daily. Don't be one of these sufferers when for so little cost you can get well rid of the cause. Foley Kidney Pills begin their good work from the very first dose. They exert so direct an action on the kidneys and bladder that the pain and torment of backache, rheumatism and kidney trouble is soon dispelled. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Adv.

If we put a price tag on ourselves somebody will expect to buy at a greatly reduced figure.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. F. L. Willis suffered greatly from asthma and bronchitis. He writes: I got no relief until I took Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It entirely removed those choking sensations and never failed to produce an easy and comfortable condition of the throat and lungs." For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Advt

You can't blame a boy for getting tired when he knows where the fish would bite.

A Maker of Health.

A good honest medicine like Foley Kidney Pills gives health to many families. Mrs O. Palmer, 645 Willow St., Green Bay, Wis., was seriously ill with kidney and bladder trouble. Mr. Palmer writes: "My wife is rapidly recovering her health and strength due solely to the use of Foley Kidney Pills." For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The man who is guided only by his doubts, is bound for a very doubtful end.

More Bottles Sold Each Year.

It is easy to understand why an increasing number of bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is sold yearly. Thos. Verran, 286 Edward St., Houghton, Mich., gives an excellent reason when he writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has always proven an effective remedy, quickly relieving tickling in the throat, and stopping the cough with no bad after effects. It's all right for you to see through your friends. But if you help the public do the same thing, pretty soon you can't have any friends to see through.

FOR THE CHILDREN

About Queer Birds.

One of the most singular of birds is the chanting hawk. The sexes pair for life. During incubation the male turns musician and sings by day and night. Each strain occupies about a minute, when he pauses for a time, then begins again. He is so absorbed while singing that he may be approached, though at other times exceedingly shy.

Levaillant having killed a male bird, the female searched for him on all sides, uttering piteous cries. In another case, having killed a female, the husband mounted to the tops of the trees and poured out a mingled strain of lamentation and defiance.

The crowned eagle of Brazil is said to be the only bird that ventures to dine on skunks. It devours the armadillos, breaking their shells by carrying them high in the air and letting them fall upon the earth.

When flying, the buffoon eagle has the appearance of a bird with the tail cut off. Its name is given from its habit of tumbling like a buffoon in the air.

The condor has been known to soar to an elevation almost six times greater than that at which the clouds are ordinarily suspended over our heads.

A Fox Tragedy.

On one of the large estates in Hingham, England, a few weeks ago a fox was found to be destroying poultry. The time of the raids and their boldness were proof enough that the fox must be a female with young. Poisoned meat was prepared for her, and at once the raids ceased. A few days later one of the workmen of the estate came upon the den of a fox, at the mouth of which lay dead a whole litter of young ones. They had been poisoned. The mother had not eaten the doctored food herself, but had carried it home to her family. They must have died in the burrow, for it was evident from the signs that she had dragged them out into the fresh air to revive them and deposited them gently on the sand by the hole. Then in her perplexity she had brought various tidbits of mouse and bird and rabbit and placed at their noses to tempt them to wake up out of their strange sleep and eat as hungry children ought to eat. Who knows how long she watched beside the still forms and what her emotions were? She must have left the neighborhood soon after, however, for no one has seen her since about the estate.—Atlantic Monthly.

A Plant's Drink.

When we cut flowers we put them in water to keep them fresh. Like human beings, they can exist for long periods on water alone, as the liquid forms a considerable portion of their bulk. The drinking capabilities of plants vary a great deal, and at a recent scientific exhibition held at Surbiton, England, some ingenious devices were shown to register the different actions of plant life. The apparatus consists of a twin glass tube with a coiled formation at the base. The flower is placed through a cork into the water in the upper end of the branch tube, and the lower end, which is inserted in a vessel filled with water, is lifted out and replaced, thus allowing an air bubble to enter the tube. As the plant drinks the water the bubble is forced along the coiled glass tube as fresh water enters behind it, and the amount taken by the flower is, of course, the quantity behind the air globe.

Conundrums.

What is it that we often tell others to do and cannot do ourselves? Stop a minute.

What contains more feet in winter than in summer? An ice skating rink.

Why is an egg like a colt? Because it isn't fit for use until it is broken.

What part of a fish is like the end of a book? The fin-is.

Why does a puss purr? For an obvious pur-pose.

When is a wall like a fish? When it is scaled.

What is the difference between a dollar bill and a silver half dollar? Fifty cents, you boob.

What is the best thing to do in a hurry? Nothing.

What is a put up job? Wall paper.

The Lone Fisherman.

This is a variation of the donkey party. A square of muslin upon which is drawn or pasted a fisherman with rod and line in hand is fastened against the wall at one side of the room.

A fish made of crape paper, with a pin stuck through its gills, is given to each player, and one by one they are blindfolded and told to attach the fish to the hook on the fisherman's line. The one who comes nearest to doing this receives a prize.

Word Puzzle.

A word of four letters signifies something made of glass. With seven different initials in succession, make a weather indicator, a country road, trouble, something used by the lame, part of a lion, a temple, an inhabitant of a European country.

Answer.—Pane, vane, lane, bane, cane, mane, fane, Dane.

The Rabbit.

There was a little rabbit sprig,
Which, being little, was not big.
He always walked upon his feet
And never fasted when he eat.
When from a place he ran away
He never at that place did stay.
And when he ran, as I am told,
He ne'er stood still for young or old.

KILLS HIS WIFE IN DETROIT

Chicago Contractor Commits Double Crime When She Rebuffs Him.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 17.—James C. LeMar, a Chicago building contractor, shot and killed his wife at Eighteenth and Michigan avenue, then turned the gun on himself, dying five hours later in a hospital. LeMar was jealous of his wife, and, it is said, her refusal to return and live with him in Chicago caused the shooting.

LeMar married his wife last July and the couple went to Chicago. The Chicago police were asked to look for him as a fugitive from justice, a charge of swindling being sworn to by a Detroit woman. Soon after going to Chicago LeMar's wife returned to her parents. LeMar came to Detroit and begged his wife to live with him again but Mrs. LeMar refused and he left her in a rage. He met her the following day at a street corner and as she was boarding a car he sent a bullet through her heart. LeMar then shot himself twice.

How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; how can I avoid them unless they are named?" asks a housekeeper.

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that if the powder contains alum that fact must be there stated. If you find one of the ingredients named alum, or sulphate of aluminum, you have found an alum baking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE GIRL WITH UGLY HAIR

Don't mourn over it! Don't envy others because they have beautiful hair. Begin right now to give proper, intelligent care and attention to your hair—and then let others envy you. Use Harmony Hair Beautifier, a delightful liquid hair dressing that is just what it is named—a hair beautifier.

To make the hair glossy, soft and silky—to make it easier to put up in smooth, wavy folds, and "stay put"—to restore to your hair the well groomed appearance you want it to have—to overcome the unpleasant, oily odor of the hair and leave instead a delightfully dainty, fresh rose fragrance—Harmony Hair Beautifier will please you, or your money back. Very easy to apply simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. Contains no oil; will not change the color of the hair nor darken gray hair.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives a rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick and thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Can't harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet cleanliness.

Both preparations come odd-shaped very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00, Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States, Canada and Great Britain, which own the big Harmony laboratories in Boston, where the many celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE PARTY

Sunday being the 73rd birthday of Isiah Mattis, his wife and children conceived the happy idea of giving him a surprise, which they accomplished in a most satisfactory manner. The children and their families were all present. A chicken dinner with all the good things that go with it was served, and then a social afternoon was enlived with the presentation of gifts, chief among which was a gold watch from his wife. Mr. Mattis would enjoy being surprised some more.

FATHER GREAT PIPE.

Eccentric Will of the Famous Dutch Smoker, Von Klaes.

In "Holland of the Dutch" Demetrius Boulger tells the story of the famous Van Klaes of Rotterdam, who was known as "Father Great Pipe."

Van Klaes smoked about half a pound of tobacco a day and to save himself trouble used an enormous pipe, hence his nickname. He built a mansion in Rotterdam, with a fortune amassed in the Indies, and turned it into a museum for pipes and antique instruments used by primitive man for burning hemp or weeds long before the discovery of tobacco. No man who visited his curios went away without a gift of choice cigars. He lived to be ninety-eight and made, while smoking, an eccentric will, which began by inviting all smokers in the country to his funeral.

Each person who attended was to receive ten pounds of tobacco and two pipes bearing the name of the donor, his arms and the date of his death, but he imposed the condition that they should smoke without interruption during the funeral ceremony. Finally his coffin was to be lined with the wood of his old cigar boxes, and beside him were to be placed his favorite pipe, a supply of tobacco and a box of matches, for, as the will sententiously sets forth, no one knows what may happen.

Cruelty and fear shake hands together.—Balzac.

The Popinjay.

The origin of the application of the term "popinjay" to a dude was as follows: The popinjay was a figure of a bird shot at for practice. The jay was decked with particolored feathers so as to resemble a parrot and, being suspended on a pole, served as a target. He whose ball or arrow brought down the bird by cutting the string by which it was hung received the proud title of Captain Popinjay for the rest of the day and was escorted home in triumph.—Exchange.

AMUSEMENTS

"THE MAN FROM HOME"

At the Opera House To Night

Uncle "Joe" Cannon in a political speech in Vincennes, Ind., in the last presidential campaign, said:

"'The Man from Home' by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, is good enough for me to see the second time, and I did; and I will see it the third time if ever I get the chance. I was afraid to go out between acts for fear I would miss something."

RUPTURE EXPERT

Seeley, Who Fitted Czar of Russia Called to Adrian

F. H. Seeley of Chicago and Philadelphia, the noted truss expert, will be at the Maumee hotel and will remain in Adrian, Monday only Nov. 24th. Mr Seeley says: "The Spermatic Shield as now used and approved by the United States Government will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete relief, but closes the opening in 10 days on the average case. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, harmful injections, treatments or prescriptions. Mr. Seeley has documents from the United States Government, Washington, D. C., for inspection. All charity cases without charge, or if any interested call he will be glad to show same without charge or fit them if desired. Any one ruptured should remember the date and take advantage of this opportunity.

FRIDAY EVENING ENTERTAINMENT AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

A decided innovation was that of last Friday evening when Supt. Reed assisted the pupils of the Seventh grade with Stereoptican views in describing the Steel and Iron Industry. As each view was presented one of the pupils gave a talk upon it. Supt. Reed first made a short speech explaining the object of the evening's entertainment. Two songs by the Seventh grade then followed. At the close of the picture talks they sang again. A good crowd was present and were much interested in the novel entertainment which was such an education to those who took part.

This was surely an improvement on the doings of the night before and needed no lumber wagon to illustrate it. The pranks of the school boy are past finding out and were the same called upon to expend as much time and strength in some good work, that they used to hoist a wagon to the second floor of the high school building, the average boy would be laid up for repairs.

CHANGE.

Today is not yesterday. We ourselves change. How can our works and thoughts, if they are to be always the fittest, continue always the same? Change indeed is painful, yet ever needful, and, if memory has its force and worth, so also has hope.

The Cause.

She—I don't know what makes her so positive about everything.

He—Her sex.—Puck.

What a Child Needs Most.

It is not, after all, a smattering of chemistry or an acquaintance with the habits of bees which will carry our children through life, but a capacity for doing what they do not want to do, if it be a thing which needs to be done. They will have to do many things they do not want to do later on, if their lives are going to be worth the living, and the sooner they learn to stand to their guns the better for them and for all those whose welfare will be in their hands.—Agnes Repplier in Atlantic Monthly.

Second Edition

FOR YOUR ATTENTION MR. TAXPAYER

SOMETHING DOING ALONG THE PIKE? Well I guess. I can see and hear that you have been Heeding my urgent plea, and have been GETTING BUSY. That's fine, but Now I want you, Mr. Taxpayer, to GET BUSIER. Keep the ball rolling, and remember that while you are doing this it is gathering no moss. REMEMBER that electrical currents are transmited faster than the eye can see. So if you are going to compete with the Electric Company, you have got to be on the run. They certainly have had us on the run for the last generation or so; and more, we have been running in the WRONG DIRECTION, (running against ourselves), but now that we are started in the RIGHT DIRECTION, let's keep up the running at full speed. As long as your breath holds out, KEEP ON TALKING.

If your grocer was selling sixteen pounds of granulated sugar for $1.00 while his competitor was selling twenty pounds for the same $1.00 you might stick to your own grocer for perhaps a dollar's worth of his sweetness, but you would not feel like sweetening his till for all time to come, would you? But that is just what you have been doing with The Tecumseh Electric Company under the Old Contract, and that is just exactly what we are going to do with the Electric Company for the NEXT FIVE YEARS if the Council grants them the Contemplated Contract. Now why shouldn't the Village Council be just as particular in granting a contract to the Electric Company as any member of the Council would be in granting a contract for HIS OWN PRIVATE BUSINESS? Why should some of our councilmen want to give the Electric Company the same Old Contract? It is up to you Mr. Taxpayer to go to your Councilmen and ask them for their reasons; and if their reasons are good I'll say to you Mr. Taxpayer that we should consider then. All we are asking for is an open, aboveboard, fair deal for both ourselves and the Electric Company. We have always stood ready and willing to meet the Electric Company HALF-WAY, but we are objecting to having the POWER HOUSE the HALF-WAY HOUSE.

I trust that you get my drift, but for fear that you may not exactly understand the situation, let me elucidate. At the Council Meeting of September, 15th 1913, the following motion was made, supported, and carried.

"Motion made and supported that Village Attorney be instructed to draw up a new lighting contract for Village with Tecumseh Electric Company under the supervision of Common Council, after the State Railroad Commission have made their report to the Council."

If I am reliably informed, (and I believe I am) the Common Council have not taken up the matter of a NEW CONTRACT with the Village Attorney, and no NEW CONTRACT has been drawn for or under the supervision of the Council to be submitted to the Electric Company. BUT the Electric Company has submitted its contract (practically the same as the Old Contract) to the Council. Allow me to ask why we have to LOOK UP to the Electric Company for the KNOWLEDGE of what should be the PROPER INGREDIENTS of our NEW CONTRACT? Why not SUBMIT SOMETHING to the Electric Company instead of ALWAYS and FOREVER having to SUBMIT one of its take-it-or-leave-its-contract-to-the-Council?

(Signed,)
G. ARTHUR RATHBUN,
As attorney for several taxpayers.

HIS PROPHETIC DREAM.

Curious Story of a Warning That Came From Slumberland.

The following prophetic dream was related by the president of a theological seminary:

It had been the custom of one of the professors to invite all the students, with members of the faculty, to dinner at a hotel on the annual Thanksgiving day. On the morning of that day the wife of this professor suddenly fell dead in her dressing room at 8 o'clock.

That morning at 7 o'clock one of the students woke up from a bad dream. He had dreamed that he sat down with the usual company at the Thanksgiving dinner and that immediately one of his fellow students rose in his place, saying that it was his painful duty to announce to the company that the wife of their host had suddenly died at 8 o'clock that morning.

This dream, however, he had instantly banished from his mind as an uncanny probability and had thought no more about it. But on going to the dinner and taking his seat with the company he was unspeakably amazed to see the student seen in the dream rise and to hear him make the announcement made in the dream.—Exchange.

Australia.

The story of Australia is, from some points of view, curiously interesting. It offers the spectacle of the evolution of a nation, lying so near to us in time that the process can be studied with scientific minuteness and as under the lens of a microscope. And the factors, if not the events, are on a great scale. The stage is an entire continent. For Australia offers the only instance in history where a whole continent has flying above it the flag of a single people. And this is a continent with the climate of Italy, with more than the mineral wealth of Peru and as fit to be the granary of the world today as Egypt was for the world of the Caesars.—"The New World of the South."

DEATH OF MRS. JULIA SAWYER.

W. J. Waldron was called to Kalamazoo last Wednesday by the death of Mrs. Waldron's aunt, Mrs. Julia Sawyer which occurred that morning. Mrs Sawyer was a resident of London, and was taken to Kalamazoo a few weeks ago for treatment but at her advanced age of 85 years but little could be done but to make her comfortable. Mrs. Sawyer has visited in Tecumseh many times in former years and will be remembered by many. The funeral was held at her old home Friday.

Doughnuts
That will remain moist.

Every housewife who bakes her own bread knows that if a little potato is added to the sponge, the bread will not dry out as quickly. In this recipe potato is utilized to make doughnuts that will remain moist and fresh for several days.

K C will be found to have distinct advantages over any other Baking Powder for doughnuts. K C is a double acting baking powder with which a large batch of doughnuts may be mixed and fried a few at a time. The last will be as light and nice as the first.

K C Potato Doughnuts

By Mrs. Nevada Briggs, of Baking School fame.

3½ cups flour; 2 eggs; 1 cup sugar; 4 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; ½ teaspoonful salt; ¼ teaspoonful mace; 1 cup cold mashed potato; ½ cup milk, or more if needed.

Sift three times, the flour, salt, spice and baking Powder. Beat eggs with rotary beater, then still using rotary beater, gradually add sugar, then work in the mashed potato with a spoon and alternately add milk and flour mixture. Make a soft dough, roll into a sheet, cut into rounds, pinch a hole in the center with the finger and fry in deep fat.

Fat for frying should not be hot enough to brown the doughnut until it has risen. When the doughnut is dropped into the fat it sinks to the bottom. As soon as it comes up it should be turned and turned a number of times while cooking. This recipe is excellent as they do not take the fat in frying and will stay moist for days.

The regular Annual Fair of St. Peter's church was held Friday Nov. 14, in Witherell's Hall.

Four booths were prettily arranged for the display of the fancy goods that had been prepared for this occasion. Fancy work, dolls, and dolls appointments Home made candies and Home baked goods were quickly disposed of. Mesdames T. C. Harris and F. M Lewis had charge of the 1st booth, Mesdames R N. Lowe and L. Barrett the dolls department Mesdames Eugene Harris and Lynn Hardenburg despensed the sweets and Mesdames Nellie Adamson and Frank Wallinger the more solid bake goods. A tea table was quite an attraction and Mesdames Tiffany and Patterson served in a most deligtful manner.

The dancing party in the evening was a very pleasant affair, Will Coller and wife furnishing the music.

TECUMSEH GRANGE BANQUET.

Held at Grange Hall Friday Evening. An Interesting Program Was Given by the Members. Over 200 Were in Attendance

A. O. HOWARD WAS TOASTMASTER

The annual banquet of the Tecumseh Grange was held Friday evening and it is needless to say it was a grand success There were over 200 Grangers and their friends present and when the chickenpie and other good things were placed before them everyone showed their appreciation of the good cooking of the farmers wife After an hour over the feast of good things. A. O. Howard as toastmaster proceeded to roast and be roasted as the program of the evening progressed.

A chorus with Mrs. A. W. Mills a director sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and as the stirring notes of the hymn fell upon the ear it was a cold heart indeed that did not respond to the patriotic theme.

From this time on the sharp shooting was continuous, fusilading fire then infilading fire in fact firing along the line in every way was kept up by the merry wits of those who took part in the exercises Omens, was the subject presented by Mrs. D. T. Hall and she brought out many fine ideas of the trend of the times as predicted by events that have happened and are happening every day whose results will be felt in the future.

The Future of the Grange, was the theme of C. H. Bramble's talk and as has the Grange at heart so thoroughly he handled his subject well.

C. H. Snedicor was then called upon and in a very impressive (?) manner read the first chapter of Chronicles of the Grange called Tecumseh He certainly had a thorough knowledge of the members of the order, and gave their history in a most entertaining style. Chapter two will be given at the next regular meeting of the Grange Friday evening November 21. Those who are permitted to enter the inner gates, should be on hand to know what is in store for them.

Wilfred Waldron who had been one the victims along the firing line was of now called upon to express his feelings in a musical way and accompanied by his mother, gave a fine rendering of "Sweet Dreams" on the sliding trombone responding to an encore with Dearie.

Mrs. Andrew Wilson gave a talk on Important things in a girls education and from a mother's point of view gave some very pertinent suggestions and maintained that there was nothing unimportant in, the education of a girl and it is never to early to instill the precepts of obedience and right living,

Why Boys leave the Farm was discussed in a negative sort of way by Wm. Wilson who impressed upon his hearers the necessity of using proper influences to keep the boy on the farm,

And Any Old Thing for the next number proved that there is always a place for everything and that any old thing had a value that we do not realize until circumstances arise where they can be utilized and by some certain process are made to be just the right thing in the right place. Miss Clara Waldron dropping into rhyme gave a most delightful rendering of the subject and proved that a woman and any old thing, could beat the average man to a frazzle.

The closing number on the program was a duet by Messrs. Wilson and Camp which was so well received that they had to respond to two encores.

Just farmers, yes horny hand servants of toil
Whose wealth is secured from the sod and the soil,
But whose heritage comes like the dew drops from heaven
And to whom all gifts good have most freely been given.

Why is Dixie Gem Like a Model Husband?

Because it is clean, does not smoke or go out nights and its presence in the home promotes a feeling of warmth, happiness and security.

We gather from this poem, copied from Emerson Shoe advertising, that the perfect man has not been found:

There is a man who never drinks,
Nor smokes, nor chews, nor swears,
Who never gambles, never flirts,
And shuns all sinful snares—
He's paralyzed.

There is a man who never does
Anything that is not right.
His wife can tell just where he is
At morning, noon and night—
He's dead.

We claim the "Perfect Coal" has been discovered. DIXIE GEM is 97 per cent. heat and only 1.73 per cent ash. It is a general purpose coal for furnace, range, heating stove or grate. We will have a car of those large lumps on track in a few days.

JACOB G. SCHURMAN

President of Cornell Announces a Big Gift to Medical School.

$4,350,000 GIFT TO CORNELL

Medical School of University Has Generous Unmentioned Donor.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 17.—An anonymous gift of $4,350,000 to the Cornell university medical school in New York City was announced by President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell university. Dr. Schurman said he was not at liberty to disclose the name of the donor and no official announcement of it will be forthcoming.

On account of the magnificent generosity to the Cornell medical school in the past, however, it is generally believed that the man who made this gift to the medical school is Colonel Oliver Payne of New York city.

STEPHEN BULL, JR., IS DEAD

Helped Found J. I. Case Threshing Machine Company.

Racine, Wis., Nov. 17.—Stephen Bull, Sr., aged ninety-one years, one of the founders of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine company, is dead. Mr. Bull was born in Scipio, Cayuga county, New York, March 11, 1822. In 1845 he came to Wisconsin. Here he became associated with his brother-in-law, Jerome I. Case, in manufacturing the first threshing machines. In 1863 the J. I. Case Threshing Machine company was organized.

On the death of Mr. Case in 1891, Mr. Bull became president of the company, which position he held until 1897.

CALUMET — Owing to persistent reports of a plot to blow up No. 6 shaft house of the Mohawk mine in the copper strike district, soldiers searched for dynamite and all persons traveling into Keweenaw county were closely scrutinized. A detail of troops also was kept at the shaft house all night with orders to shoot if any persons came within 100 yards of that property. Picketing by strikers in defiance of the injunction is again in evidence at the Allouez mine and arrests are expected.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in Tecumseh, and Good Reason for It

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
When she finds freedom.

Many readers will profit by the following.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin Pearl St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I suffered from distressing symptoms of kidney complaint for more than a year. When some one told me that Doan's Kidney Pills were good in such cases I got a supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store. They helped me immediately and I continued using them until well. I have had no need of Doan's Kidney Pills or any other kidney medicine since. I can still recommend them highly."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

UPTURNED BOAT IDENTIFIED

Mystery of Lake Huron Disaster Is Solved by Diver.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 17.—One of the strangest mysteries in connection with the destruction of vessels and men on the great lakes by last Sunday's storm was solved when William Baker, a diver, identified the overturned vessel in Lake Huron, thirteen miles northeast of this port, as the Charles S. Price of Cleveland.

The Price, a steamer of 504 feet long, has been lying in the lake ever since the storm, with only a few feet of the bottom of its bow above water. It is said to have carried a crew of twenty-eight. All of them must have been lost.

SAYRE SAYS MURDER IS NOT WORST CRIME

Deception of and Preying on Others Is Greater.

New York, Nov. 17.—Francis Bowes Sayre, the young assistant district attorney who is to marry Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, the president's daughter on Nov. 25, formally resigns his position with District Attorney Whitman today.

Mr. Sayre made it plain that his year's association with personal problems at short range, with its work in the district attorney's office and particularly his experience as head of the abandonment bureau dealing with marital troubles, has given larger scope to his views of life. "The present law," he said, "lays disproportionate emphasis on the crime of murder. To my mind murder is not by any means the worst crime there is. Generally speaking the man who deceives and preys upon unfortunates of any sort is worse than the murderer. The girls who are forced upon the streets by men might much better be dead and the man who places them there is worse than the murderer.

"Then there are the labor union crimes. I do not mean to say that labor unionism is a bad thing, but some of the methods that are employed are atrocious. Bosses are often corrupt men who practically deprive the man who incurs their enmity of the privilege of earning a living. Instances have come to my attention from one place or another where men were hounded by the labor union bosses until they were in despair. In one particular case I know of a man who committed suicide."

Her Raven Hair.

"Some novelists don't know what they're talking about. Here's one who speaks of a girl's 'raven hair.'"

"What's wrong with it?"

"All wrong. Ravens don't wear hair. They wear feathers!"—Liverpool Mercury.

How The Body Kills Germs.

Germs that get into the body are killed in two ways—by the white corpuscles of the blood, and by a germ-killing substance that is in the blood. Just what this substance is, we do not know. The blood of a healthy person always has some germ-killing substance in it to ward off the attack of disease. The fountain head of life is the stomach. A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished. To put the body in healthy condition, to feed the system on rich, red blood and throw out the poisons from the body, nothing in the past forty years has excelled Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a pure glyceric extract (without alcohol), of bloodroot, golden seal and Oregon grape root, stone root, mandrake and queen's root with black cherrybark.

J. H. MARTIN, Esq.

"My husband was a sufferer from stomach trouble and impure blood," writes MRS. JAMES H. MARTIN, of Frankfort, Ky. "He had a sore on his face that would form a scab which would dry and drop off in about a month, then another would immediately form. It continued this way for a long time. He tried every remedy that any one would suggest but found no relief. He then tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which completely cured him. He has stayed cured now for two years, and I recommend this valuable medicine for impurities of the blood."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules.

SHIPPING A SKELETON

It Required Very Careful Handling

By OSCAR COX

Mark Hudson was station agent at Pembuton Junction. Mark was in the freight house one morning looking over the boxes and bales scattered about when he heard a wagon drive up outside and stop. A young man about eighteen years of age entered and said:

"I've got a box out here I'd like to ship to Hallowell. You want to be mighty particular about it because it contains something breakable."

"That's all very well so far as I am concerned, but I can't answer for the case after the box leaves my keeping."

"I've marked instructions on the lid," replied the youngster. "Come out and have a look."

The agent went out with the shipper and saw a box about five and a half feet long, two feet wide and eighteen inches high.

"Corpse?" he asked.

"No, but it's the next thing to it; it's a skeleton."

"A skeleton! Isn't that a queer thing for you to be shipping from this point?" exclaimed the agent suspiciously.

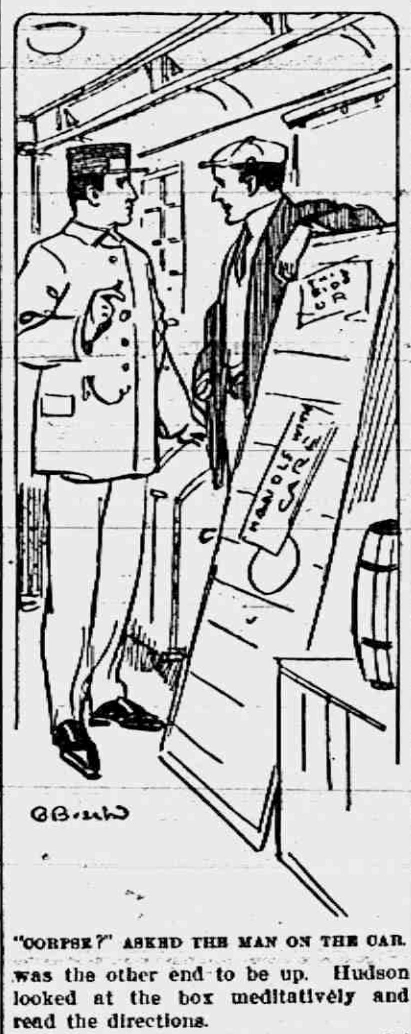
"Well, yes; it would be without an explanation. I saw an ad. in a newspaper the other day for a skeleton. I knew they had one they didn't need in the physiology lecture room of our college. I'm a Merton student, and I bought it. I've sold it to the advertiser and have made some money on it—that is, if I get it there without breaking any of the bones."

Merton college was six miles distant from the junction. There was a co-ed institution connected with it.

The box was lying on its bottom, and tacked to the cover was a card on which were written the instructions:

Breakable. Keep this side up most of the time. Stand on end occasionally for awhile.

On one end was another card stating that when the box was stood on end that end was to be up. In no case was the other end to be up. Hudson looked at the box meditatively and read the directions.



"CORPSE?" ASKED THE MAN ON THE CAR.

"What's the use of being so careful with a skeleton?" he asked. "If it isn't packed properly I don't want to ship it, or if I do it must be at the owner's risk. If it is packed properly it should stand ordinary handling."

"I'll tell you," said the shipper, assuming a faraway expression. "Those bones were once the framework of a beautiful girl."

"How do you know that?" interrupted the agent.

"That's the tradition in college," resumed the youth. "Now, in packing it I couldn't divest my mind of what it had been in life. It seemed horrible to put the poor creature in cotton or excelsior or anything like that. I couldn't do it. I've put her in just as she would like to be put in if she were alive, lying peacefully upon her back, or when that end is up and this one down she stands like a beautiful statue—the Venus de' Medici, for instance."

The speaker was so affected that he wiped moisture from his eyes with his handkerchief.

"I don't think," said the agent, "that I'll receipt for the article. If I should make myself responsible for a medical Venus or anything like that and there should be a breakage, with claims against the road for big damages, I'd get fired."

There were a few moments of deliberative silence between the two, after which the shipper said:

"I expect you're right about it. I wouldn't assume the risk if I were you. If some galoot of a handler should stand the box wrong side up it might break the skeleton's neck. That would knock off a big sum from its value. Besides, consider what it once was. How would you like to have a sister of yours sent off in a box and stood wrong end!"—

"Oh, give us a rest on that part of the business. I understand that you've got a piece of merchandise to be shipped at the ordinary rates."

"You haven't any feeling," the other continued. "I can't resign all that remains on earth of what was once a delicate girl to such hands as yours. I'm going along with the box myself, so that I may see it is handled tenderly. Will you take it on those terms?"

"Well, yes. I don't mind if you'll take the responsibility."

The agent took hold of the box and was proceeding to remove it when he discovered that it weighed something like a hundred pounds.

"That's the heaviest skeleton I ever handled," he remarked.

"How many have you handled?" asked the shipper.

"I don't know that I ever handled any."

"Then how can you tell what one of them should weigh? Take hold of that end and I'll take this. Now she goes."

[illegible] carried into the freight station and stood up on the right end. Then, the agent went to a desk and, taking a blank receipt, asked the young man his name.

"John Smith," was the reply.

"Any middle name?"

"No."

"Where to?"

"Hallowell."

Hallowell was a town some twenty miles distant.

"You don't need the name of the person the skeleton was when alive, do you?" asked Mr. Smith.

The agent turned from his writing and, looking the shipper in the face, said:

"Young man, will you be offended if I say something plain to you?"

"No; drive on."

"You're the biggest fool that ever came into this station."

"You've hit it right, pard. I entered college ten years ago, and I'm a freshman yet. I've been turned back with nine classes. I was to have been graduated with the class of '04. Now I am at the foot of the class of '14."

"Oh, give us a rest. I've something to do besides chinning with an idiot. There's your receipt. I'll put the box on the next train that comes along, at 12:05. That's an hour."

"Isn't there a train before that time?"

"No."

At this point a carriage was driven up to the passenger entrance of the station, and Dr. Bidwell, president of Merton college, and Dr. Arabella Caxton, president of the woman's college of the same institution, alighted. The agent, who had charge of both the passenger and freight departments, was proceeding to the ticket office when Mr. Smith stopped him and said:

"See here, old man; don't talk about that skeleton I'm shipping. These two prexys were opposed to the sale, and they might not like to see it go."

"Oh, I mind my own business," replied the agent and went on his way, while Mr. Smith put himself out of sight among the boxes in the freight house.

"Have you seen anything," Dr. Bidwell asked the agent, "of a young man and a young girl going off on any of the trains?"

"No; I haven't," was the laconic reply.

Dr. Bidwell turned to Dr. Caxton and remarked, "Do you suppose they have gone from the upper station?"

"They may," replied Dr. Caxton.

"When does the next train pass?" the agent was asked.

"At 12:05."

After a consultation the two presidents decided that Dr. Bidwell should go to the upper station and Dr. Caxton should remain and watch the 12:05 train. Other college officials were taking care of other routes. Dr. Bidwell drove off, leaving his colleague in the waiting room. When the 12:05 train came along the agent wheeled Mr. Smith's box on a truck to the baggage car, and it was lifted inside.

"Corpse?" asked the man on the car.

"No; skeleton."

"Mighty heavy skeleton."

Meanwhile Mr. Smith, when sure he was not observed, swung himself on to the rear platform of the last car of the train.

When the train was receding in the distance and President Caxton was leaving the station Mr. Smith made his way to the baggage car and saw that the box rested in a comfortable position for its contents till Hallowell was reached, then superintended its removal into the freight house of that station. Calling for tools, he opened the box and handed out as pretty a structure of bones with appropriate flesh as had ever been shipped by that or any other railroad.

"Can you direct me," he said, "to a parson?"

"Certainly," said the astonished agent. "You'll find one right under that spire you see over there," pointing. "The parsonage is next the church."

The girl, a student of the woman's college of the university, clung to Mr. Smith, whose real name was Jim Stevens, a sophomore, and the two hurried to the clergyman's house and were there united in the bonds of matrimony.

That ended the curriculum of both Mr Stevens and his wife as college students. The affair created considerable commotion in the men's and women's colleges, and the faculties of both institutions seriously considered the separation of the two on the ground that they furnished too favorable opportunities for elopements.

It Is Obtainable.

He was young, though of a serious turn of mind. Conversation was lagging, and she was earnestly hoping he would take his leave. Her musings were interrupted, however, by him asking:

"Do you think perfection is ever actually attained in this life, Miss Alice?"

"Yes," she answered quickly, "some people become perfect bores."—Denver Republican.

The Worried Widower.

"He says his poor children need another mother."

"Then why doesn't he take one home to them?"

"It seems that the children pay the rent, and they are very hard to convince."—Exchange.

Europe's Birth Rate.

The average birth rate for Europe shows that for every 100 girls 106 boys are born.

WORRY.

Ungovernable worry is liable to lead a person to insanity and even to death. There must be a way of taking worry so that it shall do us good and not harm. Worry, rightly taken, should train to quietness, humility, patience, gentleness, sympathy.

WILSON'S SPEECH EVOKES PROTEST

Democrats of Copper Country Ask His Removal.

CALUMET, MICH. — The Democrats of Northern Michigan mining districts have started a movement looking for the removal from the cabinet of Secretary of Labor Wilson because of his "biased statements unduly favoring one side in an industrial dispute as shown in his address before the American Federation of Labor convention," held in Seattle, Wash., the present week.

It is reported to prominent Democrats in Houghton county that 150 of the leading Democrats of Marquette county, the center of the iron district, signed a telegram to President Wilson, asking that he demand the resignation of Secretary Wilson.

An effort likely will be made ot secure the approval of the Democratic county committees throughout Michigan and through the mining districts of Minnesota and Wisconsin for the petition.

The mining district people, aside from the members of the Western Federation of Miners, are highly indignant because of the stand taken by Secretary Wilson in scoring the mining companies of the copper district for their attitude in the strike which has delayed the district for four months. They claim Wilson had prejudiced men, former exponents of organized labor, investigate the strike for him and also that he implied a threat against the companies in his address.

QUICK TRIAL FOR "PIRATE"

Robbery on Lake Steamer Followed by Sentence Same Day.

DETROIT, MICH. — The bogey of the law's delay was annihilated in the United States district court here when William Griffin of Cleveland was arrested on a charge of piracy, indicted by the grand jury, pleaded guilty and received an eight-months' sentence—all in the space of thirteen hours.

Griffin, an ironworker, left Cleveland with a party of fellowworkmen on board the steamer Western States. On the way to Detroit, according to his own confession, he stole $88 from one of his companions. An officer of the ship placed Griffin in irons and delivered him to the police on arriving in Detroit.

FLINT FOLKS CALL POLICE

Cops Reach Trouble Zone to Find Undertaker Is Wanted.

FLINT, MICH.—A telephone hurry message was received at police headquarters to the effect that a drunken father was breaking up dishes in a house in the south end of the city and had grabbed his dead child from its bier and was threatening to throw it out of doors.

When the police reached the house they found, instead of the alleged drunken father, a group of angry women, who demanded that the officers go after the undertaker, who, it is said, was late for the funeral of a child. The police officers beat a hasty retreat.

KILLS HIS WIFE IN DETROIT

Chicago Contractor Commits Double Crime When She Rebuffs Him.

DETROIT, MICH. — James C. LeMar, a Chicago building contractor, shot and killed his wife at Eighteenth and Michigan avenue, then turned the gun on himself, dying five hours later in a hospital. LeMar was jealous of his wife, and, it is said, her refusal to return and live with him in Chicago caused the shooting.

Hits Teacher in Eye.

ALPENA, MICH. — Miss Grace Barber, one of Alpena's most popular school teachers may lose her right eye as the result of being hit with a snowball thrown by one of her pupils. The school board will probably take action to punish the boy who threw the snowball.

NEW YORK—In a hot, desperate ten-round fight which thrilled a huge crowd in Madison Square garden, Willie Ritchie, world's lightweight champion, whipped Leach Cross of this city. From the moment the gong sounded for the first time the men fought like bull dogs, but in the third round Cross had a narrow escape from a knockout.

OSHKOSH, WIS. — Steamboat Bill Scott of Buffalo, Ohio, and Bill Perkins of Rhinelander, Wis., middleweights, fought ten rounds here. Scott shaded Perkins by a small margin. Both men stood up and fought through the entire fight. It was one of the hardest contests seen here.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL. — Five passengers on train No. 3 of the Southern Pacific from Chicago were robbed of about $1,000 in money and jewelry when the train was near Richmond, across the bay from this city. Near Oakland the robber compelled the conductor to stop the train and jumped off.

VIROQUA, WIS. — While his aged wife looked on, unable to assist him, Derent Anderson, aged seventy-five, a farmer living near here, was killed by a vicious bull while he was crossing a field. Anderson was stamped to death and his body was terribly mutilated before it was recovered from the savage animal.

CHICAGO—Three workmen were scalded to death in steam in the plant of the Inland Steel company at Indiana Harbor. The men were steamfitters and were repairing a big steam pipe in the basement of the electrical power house when the pipe suddenly burst.

CEDAR RAPIDS, MICH. — Eight men were buried in the ruins of the New Lyman building which collapsed here. One body and three workmen, two of whom are fatally injured, have been taken from the debris. The building was seven stories high.

MAROONED HUNTERS SAVED IN DUCK BOAT

Men Chop Way Through Three Miles of Ice.

FLINT, MICH. — E. A. De Water, one of the party of Flint hunters marooned on Houghton lake, Roscommon county, from Sunday until late Wednesday, has reached this city and tells a thrilling story of his experience.

The houseboat in which he was staying was caught in the ice and in danger of going to pieces for two days. The men could not get to shore on the ice, which was considered too dangerous for walking, yet was too thick to crush with the small boat.

The three men finally put in a duck boat and gradually chopped their way three miles to shore.

ADOPTS COMMISSION FORM

New Charter at Saginaw Wins by 1,200 Majority.

SAGINAW, MICH. — In one of the hottest political fights ever waged in Saginaw, the new charter, which provides for a commission form of government, was carried by a vote of 4,412 for, and 3,212 against. In ten out of the twelve east side wards there was a majority for the charter.

Through this action at the polls supporters of the charter say that the people repudiated the common council and mayor who, it was charged, since the present administration took office, have practiced dilatory tactics in administering affairs. The new instrument will go into effect January 1.

OLD MYSTERY IS RECALLED

Wreckage and Body from Veseel Lost Five Years Washed Up.

HARBAR BEACH, MICH.—Among the tragic relics of the Great Lakes washed ashore by the recent storm on Lake Huron was wreckage and a body believed to be from the tug Searchlight, lost off this port five years ago. The sinking of the Searchlight with all of her crew was a great lakes' mystery.

White Rock fishermen discovered, tossed upon shore, a badly decomposed body together with a smokestack and cabin which answer the description of those on the Searchlight.

GOOD ROADS REWARD CUT

State Will Only Pay One-half Supposed Amount Through Error.

CHARLOTTE, MICH. — A big error in drafting the new trunk line act will cost Eaton county taxpayers $3,000. Instead of paying $1,700 a mile reward as expected the state will only pay $850, under the most recent interpretation by the state commissioner.

This county has already completed four miles of trunk line. It is quite probable that the new decision will alter several 1914 contracts.

JEALOUS, SHOOTS AT WOMAN

M. Herman Eludes Grand Rapids Police 5 Hours—Surrenders.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — After firing two shots at Mrs. Clara A. Whitney and one at himself, Matthew Herman, of Dorr, a Lake Shore brakeman, eluded officers for five hours, before he walked through the city in broad daylight and surrendered himself to Police Sergeant Steckle.

In police court he admitted an attempt to take Mrs. Whitney's life, saying he was enraged at seeing her with another man.

FOND DU LAC, WIS. — While preparing to shoot at a squirrel Arthur Schill, seventeen years old, was killed. In reaching to the bottom of his buggy for a gun he accidentally pulled the trigger.

REBELS TAKE JUAREZ, MEX., IN HOT FIGHT

Federal Troops Mutiny During Height of the Battle.

EL PASO, TEXAS — In a sudden assault under cover of darkness, 7,000 rebels under direct command of General Mancho Villa, early in the day captured Juarez, Mex., across the river from this city, after several hours of desperate fighting.

At the height of the battle a mutiny broke out among the federal troops in the garrison.

Three Americans were killed during the fighting incident to the capture of the city by the rebels.

Bullets flew across the international line and broke a hole in the White House window, in the heart of El Paso. The White House is only half a block from the postoffice, on Pioneer plaza, near all the hotels. The plaza was full of people attracted by the firing across the line, when the bullet struch the plate glass window and shattered it.

President Huerta regards his part in the recent exchange of communications with the United States as finished. He expects to find no difficulty in consummating his plan to bring his new congress to full organization.

It is learned that the American charge has seen President Huerta and from the president himself learned that he will not resign and will listen only to such proposals as he considers compatible with his own dignity and that of his country.

This is the substance of a report which it is said, Mr. O'Shaughnessy has made to Washington.

SPENCER IS GUILTY

Murderer of Chicago Tango Teacher Is Sentenced to Death.

WHEATON, ILL. — Henry Spencer, who murdered Mrs. Mildred Allison-Rexroat, the tango teacher of Chicago, at Wayne, this county, last September, was found guilty of murder in the Du Page county circuit court at 7:30 o'clock at night, and his penalty fixed at death.

HAZELTON, B. C. — Five armed and masked men robbed the safe of the Union bank of Hazelton, four miles east of Hazelton, securing $10,000, shot the cashier and escaped after a running rifle battle with a posse of citizens.

NEW YORK — T. H. (Tommy) Burns, internationally famous as a jockey, either jumped or fell beneath an elevated train in Brooklyn and was ground to pieces.

NEW YORK — H. B. Hollins & Company, one of the very oldest banking houses in Wall St., failed without causing a ripple of excitement in the stock market or the general financial community. The liabilities of the house are between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000. Free assets of $50,000 are known. How much the assets amount to that are pledged as collateral for loans the receiver for the firm is unaware.

NEW YORK — The last will of Charles G. Gates, who died suddenly at Cody, Wyo., Oct. 28, leave the bulk of his estate in equal shares to his mother, Mrs. John W. Gates, and his wife, Florence Hopwood Gates. The value of the estate is estimated at between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000. Accordingly the two residuary legatees will probably inherit over $1,000,000 each.

ST. PAUL, MINN. — The charges that the Volturno, transatlantic liner, which burned with heavy loss recently, was equipped with worthless life saving apparatus, are made in affidavits filed with C. E. Hamilton, British vice consul in St. Paul, by two survivors of the ocean disaster.

WRECKS ON LAKES

Steamer Henry B. Smith Sinks In Lake Superior.

CREW OF 30 BELIEVED DEAD

More Than 150 Sailors Are Believed to Have Perished in Storm and Ten Vessels at Bottom of Lakes Huron and Superior—List of Vessels and Men.

PORT HURON, MICH. — A report was received here that twenty or more bodies from the steamer McGean had been washed ashore at Goderich. The report was confirmed when wire communication with that point was restored.

MARQUETTE, MICH. — The big steamer Henry B. Smith, with thirty men and 10,000 tons of ore on board, which sailed from Marquette in the teeth of the gale, is lost on Lake Superior, and a lifeless body and wreckage drifting ashore confirm the belief that the big vessel foundered of Keweenaw point, and that its crew of thirty men have perished.

The Hawgood Transportation company of Cleveland, owners of the vessel, telegraphed for information concerning the Smith's whereabouts, stating that although five days overdue the ship has failed to reach the Soo.

Loss on the Lakes Is 167 Lives.

CHICAGO — That a many as ten vessels and 167 lives were lost in the storm that swept the great lakes from Sunday until Tuesday is indicated in the compilation of reports from various points. Twenty-one other vessels were partly or wholly destroyed, their crews escaping.

The list of lost vessels and their dead is apportioned as follows:

John A. McGean of Cleveland, crew of twenty-nine, lost off Sarnia, Ont., in Lake Huron; Charles S. Price of Cleveland, crew of twenty-eight, sunk off Goderich, Ont.; James S. Carruthers of Toronto, crew of twenty five, wreckage washed ashore at Grand Bend, Ont.; Regina of Toronto, crew of twenty, capsized in Lake Huron.; Wexford of Toronto, crew of twenty, believed to have collided with the Regina and sunk in Lake Huron.; Leifield, Saulte Ste Marie, Ont., crew of fifteen, wrecked on Angus Island, Lake Superior; Plymouth, Menominee, Mich., crew of seven, sunk off S. Martin's Island, Lake Michigan; Lightship No. 82, crew of six, sunk off Buffalo, in Lake Erie; M. F. Butlers, Milwaukee, crew of fifteen, believed to have foundered in Lake Superior; William Nottingham, Cleveland, three of crew of twenty-five missing, wrecked near Sand island, Lake Superior.

Among the lost vessels whose crews escaped were the steamer Turret Chief, wrecked at Copper Harbor; the L. C. Waldo, wrecked off Manitou Island, and the H. M. Hanna, ashore at Point Aux Barques.

Vessel owners' losses are $3,000,000.

KALAMAZOO — A unique suit was started in municipal court for sixty-five cents. Lloyd Tawk, a tailor, asks this amount of Arthur Adams, alleging that it is due him for a cleaning job.

LONDON — The militant suffragette arson squads and bomb troops were at work in several parts of the British Isles early in the day. The Cactus house at Alexander park, Manchester, containing a collection valued at $50,000, was wrecked by a bomb. Begbrook, a fine mansion near Bristol, was badly damaged by fire. The Bowling and Tennis club's house at Catford, southeast of London, was burned down. On the scene of all three outrages suffrage literature and petroleum cans were found, but no clew to the identity of the criminals.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

For Children there is Nothing Better

A cough medicine for children must help their coughs and colds without bad effects on their little stomachs and bowels. Foley's Honey and Tar exactly fills the need. No opiates, no sour stomach, no constipation follows its use. Stuffy colds, wheezy breathing, coughs and croup are all quickly helped. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh adv.

Better is the laughter of children in the house than the gaiety of many social gatherings.

Pain in Back and Rheumatism

Torment thousands of people daily. Don't be one of these sufferers when for so little cost you can get well rid of the cause. Foley Kidney Pills begin their good work from the very first dose. They exert so direct an action on the kidneys and bladder that the pain and torment of backache, rheumatism and kidney trouble is soon dispelled. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh Adv.

If we put a price tag on ourselves somebody will expect to buy at a greatly reduced figure.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. F. L. Willis suffered greatly from asthma and bronchitis. He writes: "I got no relief until I took Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. In entirely removed those choking sensations and never failed to produce an easy and comfortable condition of the throat and lungs." For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh Advt

You can't blame a boy for getting tired when he knows where the fish would bite.

A Maker of Health.

A good honest medicine like Foley Kidney Pills gives health to many families. Mrs. O. Palmer, 605 Willow St., Green Bay, Wis., was seriously ill with kidney and bladder trouble. Mr. Palmer writes: "My wife is rapidly recovering her health and strength due solely to the use of Foley Kidney Pills." For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The man who is guided only by his doubts, is bound for a very doubtful end.

More Bottles Sold Each Year.

It is easy to understand why an increasing number of bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is sold yearly. Thos Verran, 286 Edward St. Houghton, Mich., gives an excellent reason when he writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has always proven an effective remedy, quickly relieving tickling in the throat, and stopping the cough with no bad after effects. AMUSEMENTS

'THE MAN FROM HOME"

Those who attended the play at the opera house on Tuesday evening "The Man From Home" were well repaid for any effort they made.

It was a clean, clever comedy and Walter Marshall as Daniel Voorhees Pike was certainly a success. While he elicited many a laugh for his drollery, yet the common sense and American independence made him a strong character.

Miss Jane Hampton as the American heiress, W H. Belmont as her brother, both under the spell of foreign titles, were fine in their roles and Emmett O'Reilly the fortune hunter and fiance of the heiress was perfect in his rendition of the snob. Every character throughout was well taken and the grand finale was all one could desire.

COMING, "FINE FEATHERS"

In the two principal cities of the United States last season, it was said that the theatre yielded more successful productions than in any similar period during the past decade and for that reason the theatre going population of other centers are promised much that is good this year. Of all pronounced 'hits', however, the most powerful dramatic offering was "Fine Feathers", which H. H. Frazee produced in Chicago in August 1912, and kept current at his Cort Theatre there until the Xmas holidays. Following its run in the Western metropolis it was presented at the Astor Theatre, New York, and remained there for the balance of the season. That is the production which comes to the Bradley Opera House for one night, Friday November 28, and in which theatregoers will have an opportunity to see what is considered quite the most virile of all the plays written by Eugene Walter who has to his credit such successes as "Paid In Full", "The Easiest Way", and "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine."

In "Fine Feathers", however, Mr. Walter has dwelt upon the futility of graft, as a road to happiness, for the premise of his story, which centers round a young chemist, and his wife who are fighting an uphill fight on $25 per week. A business man comes along with what he calls an "opportunity", and the wife concurs in his opinion, seeing ahead that the money will bring a certain amount of luxury. The husband, however, sees in the proposition only "graft" and while he does not change his viewpoint, he accepts the "opportunity" because of his love for his wife. The masterful manner in which the story is developed has served to place "Fine Feathers" among the most profound classics of the world and, according to the consensus of opinion in this country it is being heralded as the biggest play ever written for the American stage.

SMALLPOX AND DIPHTERIA

There is less dread of these diseases now than formerly, because everybody knows they can be prevented, one by vaccination, the other with antitoxin. You can keep from having colds, grippe, bronchitis, pneumonia, catarrh, typhoid fever, rheumatism, and other dangerous cold-weather ailments, if you put your system into a proper healthy condition to resist disease.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion helps the body produce substances which prevent the growth of disease. It will help you get well and strong if you have any of the above diseases or other diseases. It is very good for children just at this season of the year—to make them healthy and strong to successfully resist cold weather ailments.

There's direct benefit to you in every ingredient in Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. The four Hypophosphites it contains are used by leading physicians everywhere in debility, weakness and liability to disease, to strengthen the nerves. Purest Olive Oil, one of the most nutritious, most-easily digested foods known, being taken with the hypophosphites, gives rich tissue nourishment through the blood to the entire system.

You who are weak and run-down, and you who are apparently well now, but are liable to suffer from various cold weather ailments, use Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion to get and keep well and strong. For the tired-out, run-down, nervous, emaciated or debilitated—the convalescing—growing children—aged people—it is a sensible aid to renewed strength, better spirits, glowing health.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion—king of the celebrated Rexall Remedies—is for freedom from sickness of you and your family. Pleasant-tasting, containing no alcohol or dangerous drugs, you'll be as enthusiastic about it as we are when you have noted its strengthening, invigorating, building-up, disease-preventing effects. If it does not help you, your money will be given back to you without argument. Sold in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of more than 7 000 leading drug stores in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.—B J. Pulver. Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich.

IN THE HERALD 35 YEARS AGO.

Mrs. N. M. Sutton returned from her trip to Baltimore, Md., last week where she was in attendance upon the National Convention W. C. T. U. The convention was a large and euthusiastic one, there being over 250 delegates and officers present. 78 ladies representing sixteen States visited Washington one day under the direction of Rev. Thomas L. Poulson, and called on President and Mrs. Hayes.

H. W. Stevens left home yesterday for a trip to Nashville, Tenn., where he will be gone about two weeks. He is going on business connected with the apple trade as he is shipping most of his apples there this fall.

The Masonic Lodge of Tecumseh has accepted the invitation to take charge of the laying of the Corner Stone of the Opera House. The ceremony will take place at two o'clock p. m.

The Tecumseh Guard have decided to have a shoot on Thanksgiving Day. Sides will be chosen, and the defeated party will pay for a supper or do some other handsome thing.

A splendid new sidewalk has been laid in front of Opera House.

We expect to move into our new building the last of next week.

Farmers who wish to pay their subscription in wood are requested to bring it along forthwith, we can't keep warm on faith this weather especially when our neighbors wood piles are all out.

J. T. Daglish returned last Tuesday from a trip to Bay City where he has been for the past week. While there he saw Frank Baxter who is doing well and and acquiring a good practice. Last Monday 3,400 pounds of deer were shipped from that city. The hunting is good in the woods north of Bay City.

Y M C A CONVENTION.

Detroit, Nov. 20.

Representative delegates from all the large cities of Michigan and from many of the smaller towns are in attendance upon the business sessions of the annual state convention of the Michigan Young Men's Christian Association.

The business sessions for the annual reports of the state executive staff and the election of officers began shortly after the noon luncheon at the Cadillac hotel for members of the state committee. The business of the convention is expected to continue throughout the entire afternoon.

The big feature of the day will be the business men's dinner tonight in the banquet room of the Cadillac hotel. Replies to invitations have been received in such number that the state committee is providing for 400 business men of Detroit and other cities and towns of the state. This dinner will be for the purpose of taking a view of the past, surveying the present and planning for the future in the work of the Michigan Young Men's Christian Association. This work, it is stated, has grown so enormously during the past five years that special provision must be made for its future extension.

William M. Kingsley, vice president of the United States Trust company of New York and state chairman of the New York Y. M. C. A. will deliver the principal address of the evening. He will be introduced by Wilfred C. Leland, state chairman of the Michigan Association. Dr. Frank H. Burt of the Y. M. C. C. College, Chicago, will also speak. Short talks are to be made by State Secretary Buell and his staff of traveling secretaries in county, student, religious and boys' work.

At the afternoon session today it was brought out that provision must be made in the near future for the extension of Association work generally throughout the upper peninsula. Much interest was shown in that part of the state following the upper peninsula boys' conference held in Ishpeming last spring, and attended by 250 boys. Considerable work has also been carried on at the Soo and at Ishpeming. The next boys' conference in that territory will be held at Escanaba.

"Training young men for Christian leadership" was set forth in the annual report this afternoon as the slogan of the state work for the next five years. This will be done mainly through the "group and service type" of Association work, the keynote of which is that one man shall train 10 men to lead 100 men to influence a thousand. Ann Arbor city association is pointed out as a characteristic example. This year the secretary there is training and supervising 17 young men as they lead eight groups having an enrollment of 89 boys, not only in bible study but in the gymnasium, social and educational activities.

CHARLSE BARTHOLEMEW SURPRISED

Having reached the age of 72 years on Wednesday Nov. 19, Charles Bartholemew was at peace with himself and all the world that evening, and was quietly resting at his home on East Pottawatamie St. when in marched some sixteen of his neighbors and friends to congratulate him on his anniversary day. Of course the good things for refreshments were not forgotten, and a very pleasant hour was passed in visiting and with the graphaphone. The guests bringing Mr. Bartholemew a new record with which he was much pleased.

Is the Housewife's Greatest Help.

WHAT so tempting to the laggard appetite as a light, flaky, fruit short cake or a delicate hot biscuit?

Royal makes the perfect short cake, biscuit and muffin, and improves the flavor and healthfulness of all risen flour-foods.

It renders the biscuit, hot-bread and short cake more digestible and nutritious, at the same time making them more attractive and appetizing.

Royal Baking Powder is indispensable for the preparation all the year round of perfect foods.

THIRD EDITION

FOR YOUR ATTENTION
MR. TAXPAYER

Did you ever read the Old Contract of the Village with the Tecumseh Electric Company? Do you know anything about the terms of that contract other than that the Village shall pay the Electric Company $5.00 per month for each arc lamp, $1.62 per month for each incondescent light, and eleven and ten cents for resident lights?

Let me call your attention to some of the protections. besides rate reductions, that we need if we are to have a New Contract. The Old Contract calls for a maximum charge of eleven cents per 1,000 watts, and ten cents if paid on or before the 7th of each month, and a minimum charge of fifty cents per month for current used, but it makes no provisition for a minimum current charge per 1,000 watts. That is, there is nothing in the Old Contract to prevent the Electric Company charging you ten cents per 1,000 watts and at the same time charging your neighbor five cents per 1000 watts, so long as your bill is above fifty cents In other words it is possible for the Electric Company to discriminate between its many patrons. Now what we need in a New Cantract is both a maximum and minimum rate per 1,000 watts, with a graduated scale between the two rates.

We also need an absolute guarante af service. We are entitled to and should know whether or not we are getting the voltage that we are paying for You would not want to buy meat, groceries and other provisions if the scales on which they were weighed were kept in a Dark Room behind closed doors. But what do you or I know about the amount of voltage we are getting other than that we compain of the lights being awfully dim? I am not an electrician by a long shot, and do not pose as one who should know how we should provide for this protection in a contract, but I believe that the Village should have the right to attach its own am meter at any place it wishes at any time it wants to test the amount of voltage we are getting; and further, that when such test is made by a person of reputed competent authority, his word on said test should be final,

We also need further protection against our street lights failing to burn night after night. Under the Old Contract the Village is entitled to a proportionate reduction for any portion of any night that any lamp is not kept burning. But we need a better and more binding assurance that these lights are going to be given such attention that they will not be continuously going out and leaving the residents of that particular section in darkness In my opinion, the Electric Company should be made to suffer a penalty for the failure of any light to burn according to schedule, and the penalty should be sufficient to guarantee us a better service. If I am correctly informed, this penalty clause is the one concession that the Electric Company has been willing to make, but we must not lose sight of the fact that the penalty should be sufficient to afford a proper guarantee.

Now how can we expect these protections unless our Council act upon the motion of September, 15th, as quoted in my last article, and ask the Village Attorney, and an electrical engineer if necessary, to confer with them in the drawing of a New Contract. Can we expect the Electric Company to gives us these protections in a contract that it submits? Certainly not. If we fail to look out for ourselves, do you think that the Electric Company is going to DO IT FOR US? It would be foolish if it did It's the wise man that attends to his own business.

So MR. TAXPAYER, KEEP BUSY. Go to your councilmen and ask them if they have intended providing us with these NECESSARY PROTECTIONS, and, if not, WHY NOT?

G. ARTHUR RATHBUN,

NO NAME CLUB

The first meeting of the No Name Club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Hunt Tuesday evening. There were about twenty present. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Teachout of Toledo former members of the Club taking their old places for the evening. Mrs. Allen Montgomery won the ladies prize, and Comfort Chase that of the gentlemen. An invitation was extended to the Club to go to Toledo for their next meeting in two weeks.

MAKING GOOD

Faunt Leonardson of Britton, a graduate of Tecumseh High School and one of the star players on our foot ball team at that time, is distinguishing himself this season in the M. A. C. foot ball team.

The story of the game between the Aggies and the South Dakota huskies is a thrilling one and after a hard fought battle the score stood 19 to 7 in favor of the Aggies. We quote from the Free Press accocnt.

"Leonardson presented the unusual spectacle of a guard, that out played his man on the line, did all the punting for the Aggies, and out punted Vidal, got away with three of the longest and cleverest passes, and then pulled off one long thirty-yard, smashing, crashing, squirming line plungs. He also repeated the same performance in carrying the ball when he circled the ends for two more thirty yard gains and a few smaller ones. At crashings through tacklers he was more powerful than ever Julian, for he simply bowled them over like nine pins."

THAT THANKSGIVING TURKEY

That Tecumseh is famous as a poultry center, no one can doubt when they visit the various places that do business along this line, and just now the turkey for Thanksgiving day is the great item of interest.

One shipment of two car loads left for the East Tuesday going by express, these were shipped by Williamson Bros., and up to Thursday their shipment had reached 150,000 pounds They have a force of 25 men employed as buyers of poultry all through the country who buy turkeys, geese, ducks and chickens. At their place of business another large force is employed in getting the poultry ready for shipment. and one would be well pleased to see the fowls on the racks ready for the packers to do their work.

The Lenawee Produce Co. Store also is doing a fine business, and Thomas Aiken is also a busy man just now getting ready for the Thanksgiving trade.

FLINT — Two alleged suspects are locked up and the police are working along lines which they claim probably will lead to further arrests in connection with the robbing of the furniture store of Morris Kobacker and the Boston department store, here, when the safe of each concern was rifled of about $3,000 in cash. The $6,000 represented part of the receipts of both stores robbed. The men under arrest give their names as Henry Fell, 158 Brewster street, Detroit, a machinist, and Sam Sanders, alias Goldberg, who says he is the son of a New York city jeweler. They were arrested on their way to the Grand Trunk station. They registered at one of the leading hotels.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

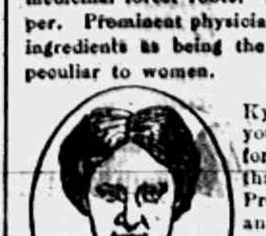
FLINT—Developments are coming fast in the cases of the robberies in Detroit and also in Flint. With three men in jail here, two suspected of the Detroit and Flint jobs, and one suspected of connection with the Flint job only, the local authorities and outside detectives who are here promise that the case will be cleared up within a short time. Henry Fell and Samuel Sanders, alias Goldberg, arrested here last night, are the suspects in both the Detroit and Flint robberies, the authorities say, and with the arrest of Murray G. Goldberg, confidential secretary and chief bookkeeper of the Kobacker Furniture company, whose store here was robbed Sunday night, the authorities believe they have the man at the bottom of that job.

WASHINGTON — Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson will be doubly honored by congress on the occasion of her wedding on Nov. 25. Miss Wilson will receive a gift from each house. A handsome silver set will be the contribution from the senate. The house will present a necklace with a diamond pendant. Furthermore out of compliment to Miss Wilson neither house will meet for business on the day of the wedding.

LANSING — Building construction work during October brought the total number of deaths due to industrial activity up to 34, a higher figure than has been reached for months. Construction work claimed six lives, lumbering took five, while steam roads cost four and electrical trades four. The copper mines took a toll of two and the iron mines the same. The automobile industry caused the death of three men. Of the thirty-four men killed, sixteen left dependents and three had relatives partially dependent.

FOR WOMEN ONLY.

That is the nature of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—the one remedy for women which contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest roots. Dr. Pierce tells its every ingredient on the bottle-wrapper. Prominent physicians and some of the best medical authorities endorse these ingredients as being the very best known remedies for ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women.



MRS. COFFEY.

This is what MRS. GENETTI E. COFFEY, of Longstreet, Ky., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what your medicines have done for me. I was a great sufferer for six years from a trouble peculiar to women, but I am thankful to say, after taking four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am not bothered with that dreadful disease any more. I feel like a new woman. When I first wrote you for advice I only weighed 115 pounds—now I weigh 135.

"I thank you very much for your kindness. You have been as a father to me in advising me what to do, so may God bless you in every effort you put forth for good.

"I hope this testimonial will be the means of some poor suffering woman seeking health."

IS FRIEND TO POOR

Wife of Gotham's Mayor Elect Combines Athletics and Charity.

Mrs JOHN PURROY MITCHEL

NEW YORK — Quite an athletic young woman is the wife of the newly elected mayor of New York city. Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel combines athletics with charity work. She swims and plays tennis admirably and spends much time in working to benefit the poor who are afflicted with tuberculosis.

FLINT — An empty office safe drawer and checks amounting to $1,000 were found in an alley in the rear of the Kobacker Furniture store which was robbed of $3,500 Sunday night. The discovery was made by Charles Wolff of Detroit, the Pinkerton detective, who has been investigating the Detroit and Flint robberies. Detective Wolff says the money which was taken from the Kobacker safe may have been "planted" somewhere in the vicinity of the spot where the drawer and checks were found. The three suspects now in jail had less than $50 between them when arrested.

ANN ARBOR — The recent extreme cold caused W. Bauer of this city to start a fire in a stove not used before this fall. The stove smoked so that it nearly drove the family to the neighbors. Then the family discovered several quarts of honey on the floor. Mr. Bauer found in the chimney a large honey comb full of honey and dead bees. He secured twelve quarts of good honey from the comb.

CHICAGO — Clarence S. Funk, formerly the general manager of the International Harvester company, has announced a relentless campaign against the real "principals" behind the alleged persecution directed against him and which resulted in the trial and conviction of Attorney Daniel Donahoe on a charge of conspiracy to defame Mr. Funk. He announced the offer of a reward of $5,000 for the arrest and conviction of the men, or $2,500 for the arrest and conviction of either of them.

MEXICO CITY, MEX.—The departure of Special Envoy John Lind from Mexico City, following the apparent breaking off of his personal negotiations with the dictator; the fact that Huerta is missing or in hiding and reported to have fled toward Europe, and declarations of American officers of a large oil concession that they have been assured that the United States would land marines in Vera Cruz, has caused a feeling of intense alarm here.

ALPENA—It is said one of the six Italians who were sent here by Ferdinand Palma, banker and former Detroit detective, who was shot, may prove to be the assailant. The men were sent here to work at Rockport and were to receive $2 a day and their board. They were refused these wages and returned to Detroit. They spoke bitterly against Palma while here and local authorities say these men may have had a hand in the affair. None of them is known here. Palma formerly lived here.

Wedding Bells For Ananias

The Story of His "Deep Trouble"

By EDITH L. WINSTON

It was several months after Ananias Sline went to board with the Widow Rowell that I journeyed down to Quince Harbor to spend golden October days in the cozy home of Captain Barnabas Fish and his good wife Maria, nee Weeks.

"And how is your friend Ananias Sline?" I asked the jovial captain as we sat around the supper table the night of my arrival.

"Ananias? Miss Telham, ma'am," said the captain gravely, "Ananias Sline is in deep trouble."

"Now, Barnabas Fish," protested Maria, but a smile crinkled around her merry eyes.

"Trouble?" I echoed. "Not trouble at the bank?" for Ananias occupied the dignified and responsible position of porter and man of all work in the First bank of Quince Harbor.

"Dear me, no—matrimonial trouble!" responded the captain.

"I did not know that Ananias was married," said I.

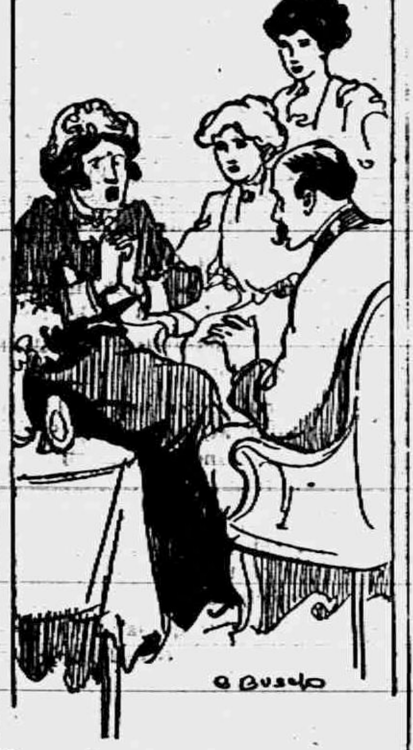
"He isn't, but the knot's to be tied—when, Maria?"

"Hettie says next Wednesday."

"Aye," chuckled the captain, "Hettie Rowell says the knot's to be tied next Wednesday in the First Methodist church, but Ananias, he says, never!"

"So it's the Widow Rowell who has captured the affections of Ananias Sline?" I mused.

"She's captured him, all right, but he's swearing he'll cast off and steer a course for China. I've been through three tantrums with him this week, and he says he'd rather be a corpse—a dead corpse—than a bridegroom. He came to me in great distress six weeks ago, and says he: 'Cap'n, I'm going to slip my cable, and you're the only one that'll know the truth. The Widder Rowell's bound I shall marry her, and I'd rather be a dead corpse.'



"AH-H-H!" SCREECHED THE WIDOW ROWELL.

"'She can't marry you if you never asked her,' I says to him, and he screamed at me: 'She can't, eh? You don't know her then.'

"Then I up and asked him if he did ask her to marry him, and he says he never did, never thought of it, didn't want to and would be confounded if he would."

There was a knock at the door.

Maria opened it to admit a rather round shouldered, elderly woman, whose weazened face was set in a perpetual smile that showed even rows of false teeth. Her gray hair was drawn up into a knot on top of her head, and a pink bow was pinned coquettishly over one ear.

"Well, Mrs. Rowell," greeted the captain as she entered the sitting room and shook hands with me, "how goes everything?"

"Beautifully!" exclaimed the bride to be, her smile widening. "I came over to ask Maria's advice. I suppose they have told you, Miss Telham?" she simpered.

"Yes, and you must allow me to wish you happiness," I said.

"Thank you, dearie," she said sweetly. "Ananias is certainly a rare man."

"He is indeed," I replied.

"But shy," went on the widow thoughtfully, fixing one of her little dark eyes on me while the other squinted obliquely at Captain Barnabas. "Why, he says, says he: 'Dear Hettie, I'd rather be walking to my own funeral than to be going up the aisle of the church to my wedding,' says he. 'It affects me that way.'"

"He will recover his nerve at the last moment," I cheered her.

"He's got to get over it," she said, with such deadly sweetness in her tone that I began to feel rather sorry for Ananias.

Maria came into the room fresh and tidy from her dishwashing. She picked up some knitting, and her needles clicked busily.

"What you going to wear, Hettie?" asked Maria practically.

"White," replied Mrs. Rowell calmly. "I've thought it all out, Maria. I wore white for my first bridal when I married Jasper Jones. Then, being a widow, I wore gray when I married Henry Rowell. Now I feel like I've swung back to first place again, and so I've concluded I'll wear white.

"And now, captain, how about you standing up with Ananias at his wedding?" She smiled playfully at him.

From nowhere in particular came a hollow voice that answered the widow's question.

"Pallbearer!" was its ominous suggestion.

The Widow Rowell screamed and closed her eyes. The captain glanced wildly around, and I confess that I was startled. Only Maria knitted on calmly, unconcernedly.

"Why, what was that?" I asked.

"What was what?" asked Maria in a surprised sort of way.

Mrs. Rowell sat up, and sparks flashed from her eyes in all directions. Her rather hooked nose almost appeared to meet her sharp upcurving chin.

"[illegible] heard something," she said, still smiling.

"I heard a tree toad outside in the illock bush, ma'am," said the captain innocently.

"Go on with your story, Hettie," urged Maria.

"I'm rather upset," confessed the widow, after a moment's hesitation. "I kinder thought it sounded like the warning voice of Henry Rowell. Henry was a very jealous husband, though he had no cause to be," she added hastily.

"Most husbands are jealous of their handsome wives," said the captain gallantly.

The widow simpered sweetly at him. "You are a case, Barnabas Fish!" she chided archly. "I was asking you if you would stand up with Ananias Wednesday, be his best man?"

"Pallbearer!" croaked the hollow voice.

"Will you?" persisted the widow, but her face was pale.

"Of course," said the captain in a hearty voice. "I'll stand by the bridegroom."

"Corpse!" rattled the hollow voice.

But the widow was undaunted as yet. She had set her heart on surprising Quince Harbor by her unexpected wedding to the porter in the bank, and she was not to be frightened out of it by the spiritual warnings of a dead and gone spouse or a tree toad, but the widow had leanings toward spiritualism. It was a cult that attracted her romantic nature.

"We will drive around after you and Maria," went on the widow doggedly. "We're going to have Al Murray's hack"—

"Hearse!" interpolated the hollow voice.

"And I've bought the wedding ring"—

"Casket!" came the interruption.

"Ah-h-h-h-h-h!" screeched the Widow Rowell, and she went at once into violent hysterics.

Maria and I flew around, applying remedies to her nose, while the captain tiptoed out to the kitchen stairway that led to the loft overhead, and I heard his deep voice rumbling. Sometimes it was broken by chuckles and again by another voice disagreeably high pitched.

At last the widow came to, looking yellower than ever, but there was a new light in her shifty eyes. They blazed with excitement, and her toil worn hands trembled.

"Maria," said she solemnly, "I've had a warning. I shan't marry Ananias—not yet, maybe not at all. I'll wait, and you'll bear in mind that when it happens you and Barnabas 'll stand up with us just the same"—

"Pallbearers!" came in a hoarse whisper.

Mrs. Rowell trembled, but her wide smile did not relax. It was fixed as though painted there.

"You see, Maria and Barnabas and Miss Telham," she said almost pathetically, including all three in a swift zigzag glance, "I'm considerable shook up now, and I want to study up on this spirit business before I go ahead."

"Cheer up, Hettie," said the captain, grasping her hand warmly. "By next June you and Ananias will be signing papers and setting sail on a pleasant sea of—er—matrimony!"

"Maybe!" The widow's tone was enigmatic. As she opened the door to depart she added in her customary manner: "I'm glad I didn't announce it to any one else, and I guess I'll go home and stir up some cornmeal griddlecakes for Mr. Sline's breakfast. I've got to do something to make up to him for his disappointment."

"And a man's heart being by way of his stomach, why, you're taking the right track," approved Maria.

When we were alone Maria fixed her bright eyes on her husband's twinkling blue ones.

"How long has Ananias been up in the kitchen loft?" she asked.

"Since before dinner," answered the captain. "He came all a-tremble, saying he'd hang himself if he wasn't saved, and I didn't know what to do about it. It so happened the widow came in tonight, and I guess Ananias' feelings got the best of him, and he jest naturally figured out a course for himself and sailed into a safe harbor. He's gone back to the widder's now, feeling pretty secure that she won't marry him yet awhile.

"By the way, Maria," he added, "Ananias says he found a punkin pie and a pitcher of lemonade up in the loft, and he et 'em up. I wonder how they came up there?"

"I took 'em up myself after dinner," smiled Maria triumphantly, and I did not blame Captain Barnabas when he kissed her warmly.

SEBEWAING — It is now almost certain that at least seven hunters lost their lives when the hurricane drove the waters of Saginaw bay seething over the middle ground, half a mile from the mainland, near here. Paul Emerich, aged twenty-four, 1323 Belvidere Avenue, Detroit, and Bert Cornwell, also of Detroit, have been given up for lost. They have undoubtedly been drowned. At least five others are believed to have perished.

BATTLE CREEK—Two prominent Battle Creek young women have been honored with invitations to the wedding of Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, in Washington at end of the month. They are Miss Josephine and Miss Mabel Stone, daughters of I. L. Stone, president of the Duplex Printing Press company. Miss Josephine Stone, who was a sorority sister of Miss Wilson, at Goucher college, will accept. Her sister is a missionary to China.

PETOSKEY — While he was riding his horse to a logging camp Frank Bodie of Emmet County was made the target for six bullets fired in rapid succession by a hunter who mistook him for a deer. One bullet struck Bodie on the chin and another hit the horse on the flank. If blood poisoning does not develop, Bodie will recover. He has no intention of taking action against the "buck-fevered" marksman.

ASK WOMEN TO BOYCOTT EGGS

Housewives League Urges a Nationwide Ban.

SPECULATOR GIVES THE TIP

In Letter to Trade Organ He Speaks of Joseph and Pharoah and Tells How He Plans to Soak Egg Customers—Has Accumulated 140 Carloads.

New York, Nov. 24.—The national executive committee of the House wives league, of which Mrs. Julian Heath is national president, has called a nation-wide boycott on eggs. This action was decided upon at a meeting of the executive committee at Mrs. Heath's home. Telegrams are being sent to 300 heads of local organizations throughout the country asking co-operation in the boycott.

Mrs. Heath was surprised to learn from the state board of health that the regulation requiring retail dealers to label cold storage eggs and poultry by keeping a sign over such cold storage stock exposed for sale has been rescinded.

Egg Game a Hummer.

The issue of the Produce News, a publication devoted to the trade, reprinted a letter which it said it had received from "that indominable speculator in eggs," James E. Wetz of Chicago, under date of Nov. 3, in which it quoted Mr. Wetz as saying:

"The egg game is certainly to be a hummer, and the price will go higher than you ever saw it in your association with the produce business."

The letter further stated that the writer had sold twenty-one cars of eggs and could make but $840 per car, "so I concluded," the letter continued, "to wait until the trade thought better of the game and would pay more."

A Is Joseph and Pharoah.

The writer instanced how Joseph and Pharoah "soaked them" on the occasion of the famine and went on "that's what the trade is going to get from us when it is necessary for them to have a few eggs for their breakfasts and custards for their dinner."

Mr. Wetz, the trade paper said, had 140 carloads more in his possession. The Housewives league considered this letter before the boycott was decided on.

QUIET SUNDAY FOR WILSONS

Lull in Ante-Nuptial Excitement—Crowds Attend President's Church.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Quiet observation of the Sabbath, which is the habit of the present occupants of the White House, created a lull in the ante-nupital excitement. There was an interruption in the flood tide of wedding presents.

The bride-to-be, accompanied by her fiance, Francis Bowes Sayre, attended the Central Presbyterian church at morning service. They accompanied the president and Mrs. Wilson, Miss Margaret Wilson and the Misses Smith, who are guests at the executive residence.

A considerable crowd was on hand to greet the distinguished worshippers outside the church. Within every pew seat was taken. The church attendance of the president has become an old story for the members of the congregation at the Central Presbyterian, but the presence of the bride and groom attracted the throng. The services of a dozen policemen in the neighborhood of the church were exceedingly useful in keeping the crowds from jostling the White House party.

BARBER CASE IN HIGH COURT

Judge Donnelly Decides Against Marengo, Ill., Closing Ordinance.

Marengo, Ill., Nov. 24.—Whether John S. Rowland, a tonsorial artist of this little city, may continue to operate on Sunday is for the Illinois supreme court to decide. Rowland's latest reason for ignoring the ordinance is a decision by Judge Donnelly in the county circuit court at Woodstock, Ill., holding the ordinance void and illegal. City Attorney Whittemore promptly gave notice of appeal to the state supreme court.

Rowland has been the defendant in a number of trials in which acquittals, fines, retrials and suspensions have resulted until the case was decided by Judge Donnelly. The ordinance was passed at the solicitation of other barber shops which were living up to it when Rowland came to town.

VICTIM'S BODY IN ASH PIT

Clamshell Bucket at Roundhouse Solves Detroit Mystery.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 24.—The mystery of the disappearance of Joseph Chumael of 334 Lawndale avenue, fireman for the Wabash railroad, was cleared when his body was hoisted from a roundhouse cinder pit in a clamshell bucket.

Coroner Rothacher believes Chumael was murdered. Chumael left home Friday with $50. The money was not in his pockets when the body was found.

Very Handy.

Closefist—It cost me over $5,000 to give Harry that course in industrial arts. Herdso—But he must be quite handy with his tools now? Closefist—Yes, and the first job he did was to put up awnings on the shady side of the house.

FIND GIRL DROWNED AFTER LEAVING CAR

Police of Three Cities Try to Solve Michigan Mystery.

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 24.—The body of Nina Covert of Fenton, Mich., was found floating in Square lake, eight miles north of Fenton. Relatives in Fenton and Detroit do not know of any cause for her to commit suicide and the police of three cities are trying to clear up the mystery. She was twenty-one years old.

Miss Covert left her home late Tuesday to visit her brother, Walter, living in Detroit. Her sweetheart, Hammond Oakley of Fenton, accompanied her on a suburban car as far as Royal Oak, ten miles from Detroit. Miss Covert wrote a letter to Oakley last Thursday, when she left the home of her brother, ostensibly to return home. She was in the best of health and spirits.

En route home Miss Covert apparently stopped off in Pontiac to visit a brother living here. She bade him good-by and that was the last seen of her alive. Her body was identified by means of a silver mesh purse, which she clasped in her hand. "I am sure that Nina did not commit suicide," said Arthur Covert, the Detroit brother. "She was a good, sensible girl and had no reason for taking her life. It was either an accident or murder."

WHITMAN GETS AN OVATION

Shares with General Booth Enthusiasm of Salvation Army.

New York, Nov. 24.—District Attorney Charles S. Whitman shared honors with General Bramwell Booth at a "Welcome demonstration" to the commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army at Carnegie Music hall. It was the occasion of the general's first formal speech to a New York audience and over 3,000 people heard him.

But the cheers for the district attorney perhaps were noisier though not less enthusiastic than the ovation to the distinguished visitor from England and bore evidence that Mr. Whitman's work in this city of exposing graft and getting sinners to repent is highly appreciated by the Salvation Army workers and their friends.

Chestertown Depot Burned.

Valjaraiso, Ind., Nov. 24.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Lake Shore Railroad company's depot at Chesterton, this county, together with freight and baggage. The loss is placed at $20,000.

MOTHER SCOFFS AT ATTACK

"No Man In Aurora Could Beat Her," Says Older Woman.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 24.—"There isn't a man in Aurora who could bind and gag Agnes Eppley if she didn't want him to. She is almost six feet tall, weighs 176 pounds and can put up an awful fight."

This is the statement of Mrs. A. M. Eppley, mother of the young nurse who claims to have been gagged, bound and beaten last week. Mrs. Eppley says her daughter is seeking notoriety and accused C. F. Harrall, her sweetheart, who found her tied up in a shed, of having helped the plot along.

Baby's Body Found In Bushes.

Gary, Ind., Nov. 24.—Coroner Frank J. Smith of Lake County is investigating the mysterious death of an eight-months-old child found in the bushes near Twenty-fifth avenue and Jackson street. The baby was dressed in the finest linen. Marks about the throat lead Coroner Smith to believe the child was murdered and thrown in the bushes.

Villa Says Federals Feared to Attack His Army.

JUAREZ RELIEF IS A FIASCO

Rebel Leader Declares He Will Await Enemy's Approach and Then Will Go Out to Find Him—Safety of El Paso, He Says, Is Assured—Federals Said to be Deserting.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 24.—With a battle line extending for twelve miles from Bauche on the west of Lamesa on the east, less than fifteen miles south of and below Juarez, Villa's rebel army has overawed and driven back the federal army which late Saturday was menacing Juarez. This is the substance of the report brought to Juarez by Villa himself, who with a bodyguard of forty men, returned from the front to arrange for sending additional supplies to his men.

A federal troop train arrived at Tierra Blanca but the federals were driven back before a general engagement took place and Villa says the entire federal force is in full retreat. Tierra Blanca is only eighteen miles from Juarez.

Panic stricken by the sight of the vanguard of the rebel army Villa declared the federal army advancing to attack Juarez retreated in haste Saturday shortly before dark.

Villa encamped his army and is waiting for the federals to approach again. If they do not come, he says he will go after them in a few days. He does not mean to bring his army back to Juarez unless driven in by the federals, he declared. Villa says he thinks the federal army numbers about 4,000 men although federal agents here claim that it numbers 9,500.

Says Federals Are Deserting.

"The federal commanders are having a hard time keeping their men from deserting," Villa said. "We captured a federal deserter from the federal ranks at Villa Ahumada. He said also that the soldiers were locked in their cars at night to keep them from deserting. The men have not been paid since the battle at Chihuahua nearly three weeks ago and they are poorly fed.

Assurances that the people of Juarez and El Paso need have no fear of a battle taking place within range of the two cities was given by General Villa. Nearly 1,500 soldiers remain in the city and its outskirts.

A prize fight between Vic Hanson, of Salt Lake, and Jack Herrick, of Kewanee, Ill., took place in the Juarez bull ring and drew a large crowd of Americans. It was declared a draw.

INDICTMENT OF M'GUIRE ASKED

Charged with Soliciting Campaign Fund from Corporation.

OFFENSE IS A MISDEMEANOR

Accused Man Was Former Mayor of Syracue—He Represented the Barber Asphalt Company In Politics and the Democratic Party In Business—Relations Fully Exposed.

New York, Nov. 24.—District Attorney Whitman has asked the grand jury to indict James K. McGuire for misdemeanor for soliciting a campaign contribution from a corporation. The former mayor of Syracuse has for many years been identified with the Barber Asphalt company and the Democratic party.

If the indictment is returned it will be found in part upon the testimony of Mr. McGuire's brother, George H. McGuire, who went before the grand jury last Friday and described the scheme under which it was proposed to get campaign contributions and sales commissions from a number of corporations that wanted to get in on state highway contracts. The man who will corroborate George M. McGuire's testimony and who will give additional information with respect to the arrangement which the McGuires proposed is Filmore Condit, who for ten years has been the New York agent for the Union Oil company of California.

Condit to Corborate McGuire.

Mr. Condit will testify that James K. McGuire, whom he had known for several years casually as the confidential man of the Barber Asphalt company, came to his office in the summer of 1912 and laid before him the terms under which the Union Oil company would get contracts. He will testify just as George M. McGuire did, that the terms were a $5,000 campaign contribution and a commission of one cent a gallon of oil on all products furnished to the contractors, this commission to be paid to George McGuire.

The testimony which Mr. Condit is expected to give was given to Governor Glynn on Friday by Henry A. Rubino, attorney for the Warner-Quinlan Asphalt company, who went to Albany a week ago to make a formal complaint against John N. Carlisle, commissioner of highways. Most of the information filed by Mr. Rubino pertained to an alleged meeting at Cooperstown on July 5, following which telegrams are said to have been sent to the highway contractors notifying them they must use only "natural solid asphalt" as required in the road specification.

BODY REVEALS SHIP'S FATE

Entire Crew of the Henry B. Smith Drowned in Lake Storm.

Calumet, Mich., Nov. 24.—The steamer Saxona, Captain W. S. Corlis, arrived in Houghton with the body of one of the crew of the last ore carrier, Henry B. Smith, which foundered in Lake Superior in the recent gale.

This is the first body recovered from the boat, and demonstrated that she was lost with all her crew. The body is that of Henry B. Haskins of Sandusky, O., second cook.

Lineman Falls—Is Killed.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 24.—While repairing electric wires A. D. Baessler, a lineman whose home was in South Bend, was shocked by a live wire and fell to his death from the top of a pole.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation. adv.

The hen can not understand what the duck saw in the drake to admire.

For Children there is Nothing Better

A cough medicine for children must help their coughs and colds without bad effects on their little stomachs and bowels. Foley's Honey and Tar exactly fills the need. No opiates, no sour stomach, no constipation follows its use. Stuffy colds, wheezy breathing, coughs and croup are all quickly helped. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv.

Better is the laughter of children in the house than the gaiety of many social gatherings.

Pain in Back and Rheumatism

Torment thousands of people daily. Don't be one of these sufferers when for so little cost you can get well rid of the cause. Foley Kidney Pills begin their good work from the very first dose. They exert so direct an action on the kidneys and bladder that the pain and torment of backache, rheumatism and kidney trouble is soon dispelled. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Adv.

If we put a price tag on ourselves somebody will expect to buy at a greatly reduced figure.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. F. L. Willis suffered greatly from asthma and bronchitis. He writes: I got no relief until I took Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. In entirely removed those choking sensations and never failed to produce an easy and comfortable condition of the throat and lungs" For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. Advt.

You can't blame a boy for getting tired when he knows where the fish would bite.

A Maker of Health.

A good honest medicine like Foley Kidney Pills gives health to many families. Mrs. O. Palmer, 635 Willow St., Green Bay, Wis., was seriously ill with kidney and bladder trouble. Mr. Palmer writes "My wife is rapidly recovering her health and strength due solely to the use of Foley Kidney Pills." For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The man who is guided only by his doubts, is bound for a very doubtful end.

More Bottles Sold Each Year.

It is easy to understand why an increasing number of bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is sold yearly. Thos Verran, 286 Edward St. Houghton, Mich., gives an excellent reason when he writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has always proven an effective remedy, quickly relieving tickling in the throat, and stopping the cough with no bad after effects. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv.

Looking inward gives you mental strabismus, a peevish personality and an ingrowing disposition. Look out.

Nervous and Sick Headaches

Torpid liver, constipated bowels and disordered stomach are the causes of these headaches. Take Dr. King's New Life Pills, you will be surprised how quickly you will get relief. They stimulate the different organs to do their work properly. No better regulator for liver and bowels. Take 25c and invest in a box today. Recommended by C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

Occasionally man can be judged by the company he keeps away from.

Saved His Foot

H. D. Ely, of Bantam, O., suffered from horrible ulcer on his foot for four years. Doctor advised amputation, but he refused and reluctantly tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve as a last resort. He then wrote: "I used your salve and my foot was soon completely cured." Best remedy for burns, cuts, bruises and eczema" Get a box to-day. Only 25c. Recommended by C. A. Wright & Son. adv.

"FINE FEATHERS"

What will undoubtedly prove to be the most notable theatrical event of the local season concerns the engagement here on Friday, November 28th, of H. H. Frazee's production of "Fine Feathers," direct from its record-breaking successful runs in the Astor theater, New York, the Cort theater, Chicago, and other cities to and from the Pacific coast. The play is described as a modern drama in four acts by Eugene Walter, the author of "Paid in Full," "The Easiest Way," "The Wolf," "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," etc. It is said to reflect on the stage the condition of the nation, today, or at least the condition uppermost in the minds of the people in thousands of our homes, viz: the love of finery on the part of a majority of our women. Briefly, the story centers about Bob Reynolds, a young chemist who, on a salary of $25 a week, is trying to supply the pretty young wife with a comfortable home for which they are paying on the installment plan. Mrs Reynolds begins to tire of the hum drum existence on Staten Island and longs for some of the luxuries which her more fortunate neighbors enjoy. Until John Brand, a former college friend, comes along with a proposition to Bob whereby by means of graft, he can make $4,000, she has been unable to see a way to purchase these fine feathers. Her husband refuses the offer until Mrs. Reynolds threatens to leave him. He must either agree to certify to a false report on the cement Brand wishes to furnish in the construction of the government dam or lose his wife. His love for her prompts him to become a grafter. As Bob says "If that is the system, I'll play it for all its worth."

So they find themselves subsequently in a beautiful suburban home where the more fashionable commuters live. Mrs Reynolds has been taken up by the smart set. The opera, the soiress and all of the things which go to make society a pleasure and a bulwark of our so-called social system have made her oblivious to the struggle her husband is undergoing to maintain the establishment.

Upon this premise the author has dared to write a virile, human document to the American people. He has incorporated into his play the most searing invective at his command and has written to the grafters, the financiers, the honest men and women and the peace-abiding citizens a play which is replete with the truth about and around themselves. Like Euripides, the greatest Greek dramatist of his day, Mr. Walter has reflected in his play the condition of our nation today.

The play comes here endorsed by the most eminent dramatic and literary critics of the country's metropolis. No greater compliment could have been paid to its author and producer than the receipt of a flattering offer from the most prominent publishing firm in America to novelize and publish in book form what is said to be the dramatic masterpiece of the century.

Strong Factor in Life.

They will do most in life who are most considerate.—Joseph Parker.

THE SECOND OF THE NEW "MARY" STORIES

"A Proposal from the Spanish Don," the second of "Who Will Marry Mary?" series, is perhaps the most sensational of all the "Mary" pictures which have been released thus far. For the purpose of making the principal scenes in this film, a branch railroad was hired and the result obtained amply justifies the expense involved.

The first novel sensation is gained when we ride in the baggage car with Captain Bradford and the Spaniard, watching the scenery flash by through the open door. Then, as the Spaniard uncouples the last car we stand in in the doorway of what is now the last car and watch Captain Bradford's struggle with the rusty hand brake as the detached car gradually loses momentum at the top of the grade and begins to roll back down the long hill. Then begins a mad chase over switches and under bridges as the derelict car gains greater and greater speed until it is finally plunging along at breakneck speed toward an open drawbridge.

The tense moments in the race are made even more exciting as we flash from one view of the car showing Bradford at the brake to the other end of the car upon which stand Mary and her terrified friends. Then, as the car plunges toward the drawbridge, we are on the other side of the stream where we see it coming towards us on the trestle, rolling on to the very edge where the platform on which Mory is standing seems to be suspended over the water. It is a breathless moment and the suspense has been admirably worked out.

In addition to the thrilling episodes there is a good bit of comedy introduced in the agonies of Mary's fat suitor who proposes to her on board the yacht.

Altogether it is the kind of film which would be a tremendous success even were it not a part of the "Mary" series. We promised that these new "Mary" pictures would be even better than the first series. We are more than making good.

"A Proposal from the Spanish Don" will be the extra attraction at the Bradley Opera House. Thursday (Thanksgiving day) Nov. 27

THANKSGIVING DAY SERVICE

The Union service for Thanksgiving day will be held at the Episcopal church Thursday at 10 a. m. The Rector Frederick Hewitt will preach the sermon and will be assisted by the other ministers with the service. This is an unique event, as never before has this church united with the others in the Union services. But the fraternal spirit has been steadily increasing with this happy result. The service will last but an hour so every one can be in time for their Thanksgiving dinner. The public are cordially invited.

PAPER CHANGES HANDS

The Clinton Courier passed into the hands of E. VanDeMark last week and will be continued under the management of Mr. Loomis who has been manager for some time.

Mr. VanDeMark is not new to the business as he was owner and manager of the Courier not so very long ago. The paper will be printed Thursday instead of Friday in the future, thus enabling the rural subscribers to get their papers on Friday.

PRESIDENT'S THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

President Wilson has designated Thursday, Nov. 27, as Thanksgiving Day, and issued the following—his first Thanksgiving proclamation:

"The season is at hand in which it has been our long respected custom, as a people to turn in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His manifold mercies and blessings to us as a nation. The year that has just passed has been marked in a peculiar degree by manifestation of His gracious and beneficent providence. We have not only had peace throughout our own borders and with the nations of the world but that peace has been brightened by constantly multiplying evidences of genuine friendship, of mutual sympathy and understanding, and of the happy operation of many elevating influences both of ideal and of practice.

"The nation has been prosperous not only, but has proved its capacity to take calm consul amidst the rapid movement of affairs and to deal with its own life in a spirit of candor, righteousness and comity. We have seen the practical completion of a great work at the isthus of Panama, which not only exemplified the nation's abundant resources to accomplish what it will, and the distinguished skill and capacity of its public servants, but also promises the beginning of a new age, of new contacts, new neighborhoods, new sympathies, new bonds, and new achievements of cooperation and peace.

"'Righteous exalteth a nation' and 'peace on earth, good will toward men' furnish the only foundations upon which can be built the lasting achievements of the human spirit. The year has brought us the satisfaction of work well done and fresh visions of our duty which will make the work of the future better still.

"Now therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-seventh of November, next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer and invite the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God.

"In witness thereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this twenty-third day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, and of the independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and thirty-eight.

TIME TO EXPRESS YOURSELF

MR. TAXPAYER

About seven weeks ago a petition, protesting against the granting of a New Contract to the Electric Company similar to the Old Contract, was presented to the Common Council. This petition was signed by about one hundred of our citizens. If I am correctly informed, and I believe I am, the Council gave this petition no consideration, and practically threw it in the waste basket. The reason of the Council for so doing was that anyone would sign a petition presented to him without even knowing what the petition contained.

I believe that our Councilmen are elected to carry into effect the wishes of the People, and that when they fail to do this they are failing in their duties as public officials. But even if they do not care to recognize a circulated petition, they certainly should recognize the wishes of the People when strongly put up to them. Perhaps some people will sign a circulated petition without giving it their thoughtful consideration, but no citizen will go out of his way and ask to sign a petition, the sentiments of which he does not earnestly endorse. I am therefore going to leave the following petition at Alva Spayde's Shoe Store:

To the Honorable,
The Common Council of the Village of Tecumseh.

We, the undersigned, being desirous of exercising our privelage of voicing our wishes in public affairs, respectfully protest against the granting of a New Contract to The Tecumseh Electric Company similar to the Old Contract, and request that, if a New Contract is granted, our interests be protected in a Contract calling for the following: a fair reduction in the cost of Street Lighting; a fair reduction in rates of residences and business houses; rates regulated by a graduated scale; guarantee of service; a penalty upon the failure of street lights to burn according to schedule; and no charge for connecting wiring with current.

Signed,

The Common Council certainly cannot conscientiously refuse to consider and act upon such a petition, for no signature will be affixed to this petition without the sentiment of the petition has first received the careful consideration of the signer.

Therefore, Citizens and Taxpayers, if you believe that the Common Council should afford us the above protections, MAKE YOUR WISHES KNOWN. Go into the Alva Spayde Shoe Store and sign this petition. Now don't wait for someone to bring it around to you for this will not be done. And if you are going to sign the petition, DO IT NOW - - TODAY. The petition will be there until Friday night ONLY.

REMEMBER, I am putting the question squarely Up to You, Mr. Citizen and Taxpayer. This is not a matter of Tact or Policy. Forget your Private Business Interests. This is a question of COMMUNITY INTERESTS AND PUBLIC WELFARE.

STEP LIVELY!!!
(Signed)
G. ARTHUR RATHBUN,
As attorney for several taxpayers.

DON'T DOSE A PUNY CHILD

Parents—don't give that puny, ailing, under-weight child any of those so-called "tonics" containing alcohol or dangerous drugs; such stuff won't give relief and health to grown people let alone children. Its purpose is to stimulate for a short time after each dose, just as whiskey or morphine does, thus making you believe it is doing real good.

Give that child something that will really build it up—replenish the wasted tissues—feed the stunted, dwarfed, puny muscles—make it lively, strong, well—full of the animal spirits children are meant by nature to have. Give it Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is wholesome, nourishing, free from alcohol and dangerous drugs. It's the ideal nerve, blood and body builder. It does the work it is planned to do better than any other medicine we know of, and our faith in it is so great that we not only urge you to use it and give it to your children—but we guarantee that it will do all we say it will or cost you nothing.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion should be given to childern who catch cold easily. Begin right now, and use it to build up the child's system to such strong health that it can resist colds, croup, grippe, bronchitis, catarrh, pneumonia, and other cold weather diseases. You who are weak and run-down, and you who are well now, but are liable to suffer from various cold weather ailments, use Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion to get and keep well and strong. For the tired out, run-down, nervous, emaciated or debilitated—the convalescing—growing children—aged people—it is a sensible aid to renewed strength, better spirits, glowing health.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion—king of the celebrated Rexall Remedies—is for freedom from sickness of you and your family. You'll be as enthusiastic about it as we are when you have noted its pleasant taste, its strengthening, invigorating, building-up disease-preventing effects. If it does not help you, your money will be given back to you without argument. Sold in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of more than 7 000 leading drug stores in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.—B J. Pulver. Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich.

SCHOOL NOTES

The football season at the High School closes with the game with Clinton Thanksgiving afternoon at 2:30. This is the third game with them this fall, the first was seven to seven and the second was Tecumseh eighteen Clinton seven. We expect to have a close game. Don't fail to come, for this will be your last chance to see a foot ball game this year. Besides you need a little exercise after eating that turkey. or you need some exercise to make a good appetite to eat him. Tickets can be bought from several of the players.

The Clinton "Never-get-beat" plays the Tecumseh Boy Scouts tonight the return game they were to play Friday.

No school Thursday and Friday aren't we glad. Well I guess we are.

FIRE.

The fire bell sounded loud and clear Saturday forenoon and the fire department and the people were quickly on their way to the fire. This proved to be on the roof of the DeWolf store where workmen were busy putting on a new coat of tar paint. By some means this caught fire and the clouds of black smoke were pretty dense for awhile. Prompt work however extinguished the fire before any damage was done and the fire laddies were ready to do all in their power to prevent any further disaster.

MISSIONARY MEETING

Baptist Society Entertain the Methodist Society Friday Afternoon Nov. 21

A very pleasant occasion was that of the Missionary meeting Friday afternoon when the members of the Baptist society entertained their sisters from the Methodist church There was a goodly number present and the fraternal spirit made the occasion one to be long remembered. Mrs. Bramble in few well chosen words welcomed the company and announced the subject of the afternoon "The Philipine Islands." Mrs. A. O. Howard then gave, with a map to illustrate her subject, a very fine talk on the work that is being done on these Islands and pointed out the different Islands that are being benefited by the various denominational Missionary's. Following her talk Miss Bernice Bramble gave an instrumental selection.

Mrs. O. B. Finch and Mrs, Jay Morse each had papers on special Missionarys and the great work they are doing.

A vocal solo by Miss Marie Bramble completed the program.

At the close of the meeting the ladies served most appetising refreshments and a social visit closed a most delightful afternoon.

GEN. LEONARD WOOD

Narrowly Escapes Serious Injury When His Horse Throws Him.

COPYRIGHT BY PACH BROS. N.Y.

HORSE THROWS GEN. WOOD

Chief of Staff of Army Narrowly Escapes Injury.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the United States army, narrowly escaped serious injury when he was thrown from his horse on the Fort Myer parade ground.

The general's horse balked at a ditch jump, throwing its rider over backward for a nasty fall. Miss Louisita Wood, the general's daughter, who accompanied him, rendered first aid to her father, who soon regained consciousness.

DYING, REVEALS $3,000 GOLD

Aged Man Tells Kin Where He Had Buried Money in Barnyard.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 25.—When Abraham Hoagland, sixty-five years old, of Bicknell, felt that death was only a few minutes off, after a long illness, he beckoned his family to come closer to the bed and, barely able to articulate, told them where to dig in the barnyard to find an iron bucket in which he had placed $3,000 in cash.

The instructions were followed, and in the bucket was gold coin of all denominations, and $3,000 of it. The old man was worth $60,000, but all except this $3,000 was in farm land.

The Letter M.

The Hebrew name of M was Mem, water, and it is curious to note that the original form of this character in the most ancient manuscript is a waving line, which to the not too particular ancients represented water. By some philologists the letter M as used by the Phoenicians is supposed to have come from a picture representing the human face, the two down strokes representing the contour of the countenance, the V stroke signifying the nose, the two dots, long since disused, and a stroke beneath the V representing the eyes and the mouth. The old Phoenician form of the letter does indeed bear a comical sort of resemblance to the human face.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Tapped the Church Sleepers.

Nowadays no protest is made or any action taken against the sleepy man or woman who falls into a doze in the midst of the minister's sermon. In England 300 years ago the guilty offender would have been severely rapped over the head by men especially appointed to the task of keeping the congregation awake. For instance, in one parish in Shropshire, 25 shillings a year was regularly paid to a poor man to go about the church during the sermon and keep the people awake. He carried a thin, long wand in his hand, which he could conveniently stretch out over considerable space and rap offenders on the head or about the shoulders. With women he was always instructed to be gentler, to tap softly, but persistently, until the slumber was broken. For women, it was learned, were not so amiable as men on being aroused from a comfortable nap, and, if gentle means were not employed, were likely to get up and leave, causing no little commotion about them.—Chicago Tribune.
